Waterloo Woman Fatally Shot In Neighbor's Home

Another Shot Hits Foot Of Her Male Companion

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—Police said Mrs. Augusta Taylor of Waterloo was killed Friday night by a shot fired from a .30-30 rifle. Another shot hit Nicholas Bodnaruck in the foot as the two sat in the kitchen of a neighbor's apartment, police said.

Police were investigating the shooting which they said occurred in the apartment of Frank Beam.

Police said Mrs. Taylor, a widow with a small child, had just entered the kitchen of the apartment with Bodnaruck when she was shot from the doorway. A second shot went wild and hit Bodnaruck in the foot. They said a third shot landed on the wall.

A man was taken into custody by police but no charges were laid immediately.

'Ernie' Selects Thrill Bond Lottery Winner

LYTHAM, St. Anne's, England (Reuters)—A hard-working mechanical brain named "Ernie" has selected the first winning number in Britain's "thrill bond" lottery.

Flashing his single green eye a couple of times and uttering a metallic grunt, he set about selecting more than 22,000 winners in the first payoff on the government's controversial premium bond campaign.

The holder of the first bond selected will receive £1,000 for the £1 he spent on the bond, and he can still keep the bond for a chance to win again for him in subsequent drawings.

Ernie—short for electronic random number indicator equipment—settled down to a steady rate of 1,200 winners an hour. Of these, he will win the top £1,000 prize on

INFLATION MEASURE

The premium bond campaign was launched last November by Chancellor of the Exchequer Harold Macmillan, now prime minister, to help beat inflation.

Anyone over 16 can buy up to 200 £1 bonds. They bear no interest because the interest is pooled in a jackpot. But to be eligible, investors must hang on to their bonds for six months.

When Macmillan first announced the plan it was greeted with derision from left-wing labor leaders. But Britons who spend millions each week on soccer gambling pools liked the idea of a gamble in which they would not lose their original investment. They have bet £72,000,000 so far.

Today Britons will be poring through lists of numbers in the evening papers to see if Ernie has picked their number. If he hasn't, he's not lost. The numbers will be fed to him again next month, as win or lose they can always get their money back.

Liberal Minister Has Praise for Diefenbaker

VICTORIA (CP) — Fisheries Minister Sinclair says one of the good things John Diefenbaker has done as leader of the Progressive Conservative party is to restore some faith in Conservatives.

Sinclair predicted at a Liberal conference here that some Conservatives who had joined Social Credit now will rejoin Diefenbaker.

"But he is a one-man show," the minister said. "There's no one with him."

BURNS VILLAGE

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Bandit leader Dadshah, alleged killer of three Americans in Southeast Iran in March, has attacked and burned down an Iranian village and killed two villagers, it was learned here today. Dadshah, harried by police and the March ambush slaying, had crossed the border into Pakistan. Now, apparently, he is returned to his old hunting grounds.

Hong Kong Veteran Meets Lady He Saved

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Ellen Field Friday night was reunited with a Canadian soldier who saved her and three others from Japanese troops invading Hong Kong in December, 1941.

The meeting, after nearly 15 years ago, was flown here by the RCAF after search officials located at Camp Shilo, Man., the "private called Flegg" sought by Mrs. Field.

Since her arrival in Canada she had wanted to express her gratitude to Sgt. Flegg. He had "appeared out of nowhere" after he and her children were stranded with their luggage on the bullet-torn docks of Kowloon, Hong Kong's mainland settlement.

He got them aboard a boat bound for the island held by Canadian and British troops, then continued to protect them until they reached safety.

Mrs. Field helped smuggle food and drug to Canadian prisoners in Japanese concentration camps until she was herself interned. But she never saw the private again until Friday night.

TORONTO (CP)—Two brothers, William Goldsmith, 25, and his brother Robert, 18, Friday were sentenced to three years each in prison after they admitted to the assault and robbery of a 73-year-old Toronto man.

The two youths smirked at Magistrate J. J. McGibbon, when they were being led out of court. Detective Kenneth Craven said the pair assaulted and robbed Joseph McCrea of $120.

Lawler, former vice-president of the First National Bank of Boston, left the bulk of his estimated $100,000 estate in trust for the care of the 10-year-old Welsh terrier, Lawler's will disclosed Friday. Noted Theologian Says Ministers Made Ballyhoo Aides for Graham

NEW YORK (AP)—A leading American Protestant theologian says "ministers are reduced to ballyhoo hucksters" in a campaign to boost the crowds for evangelist Billy Graham's New York crusade.

Dr. Reinhold Niebuhr Friday criticized what he called "the all-out efforts of both the Protestant Council and the Graham organization to enlist the city's Protestant ministers in the crusade."

Niebuhr discussed the crusade in an article in Advance, official magazine of the congregational Christian churches.

"Working ministers," he wrote, "are reduced to ballyhoo helpers in the effort to swell the Madison Square Garden crowds. And their essential dignity is compromised, as leaders of Christian congregations in which the Christian life is socially embodied."

Niebuhr said many ministers "rebel against this undignified role . . ."

The Graham crusade is sponsored by the Protestant Council of the City of New York. The council represents most of the city's Protestant churches.

MID-CANADA RADAR FENCE NOW OPERATING

Second of 3 Lines Has Been Completed

OTTAWA (CP)—The second of the three radar fences spanning Canada—basic ingredient in the North American defence system against any air-atomic onslaught—is in full operation.

"The mid-Canada radar warning line now is operating," said a defence department spokesman Friday.

Officials declined to say when the $200,000,000 chain began to function but it was understood it went into full operation only in the last week or so.

The western section of the line, running west along the 55th parallel from Hudson Bay, began operation on schedule Jan. 1, this year. But completion of the eastern section from Hudson Bay to the Labrador coast was delayed nearly five months by bad weather and consequent construction difficulties.

FINANCED BY CANADA

The mid-Canada line was financed entirely by Canada and built in two years by the Transcontinental Construction Company-Foundation Company-Stinson-Reeb RCAF supervision. Some 5,000 workers were employed in its construction. It will cost $18,000,000 to operate in its first year and will be manned by Canadian civilians under RCAF direction.

Largest single start of operation of the $400,000,000 DEW (Distant Early Warning) line—the "Pole Fence" of the future—being financed entirely by the United States, runs along the 70th parallel from Greenland to the Aleutian Islands. The Canadian sector will be manned mainly by Canadian civilians under U.S. military supervision.

The Pinetree radar chain, built roughly along the 49th Parallel, has been in operation for some three years. The U.S. paid two-thirds the cost, Canada one third. It is manned by the RCAF and U.S. Air Force.

WARNING STATIONS

The U.S. is paying entirely for gap-filler stations in the Pinetree chain and the building of picket radar planes and ships which patrol the coasts in the North Atlantic and North Pacific Oceans.

The entire North American air defence system also includes extensive land communications and a ground observer corps, designed primarily to protect the bomber bases of the U.S. Strategic Air Command. Object is to supply sufficient warning of attack by enemy bombers and guided-missile bombers being caught on the ground and to send them off on their terrible mission of massive retaliation.

Church Givings Called Paltry

TORONTO (CP)—Ralph Young, general secretary of men for the United Church of Canada, Friday described as "paltry" the contribution of $5.79 a member to the missionary and maintenance funds of the church last year.

Mr. Young said the well-organized sector plans and educational projects of the church should lead to increases far beyond this figure in 1957.

SETS GLIDING MARK

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Czech sailplane pilot Josef Kovarik set a world gliding record of 522 kilometres (about 324 miles), Czechoslovak news agency Ceteka reports. The previous record of 500 kilometres (about 311 miles) was set by Lyle Maxey in California in 1956.

Defence, Provincial Rights, Canada Council Discussed

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prime Minister St. Laurent and Progressive Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker campaigned for votes in Quebec Social Credit Leader Solon Low attacked the Canada Council and CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell rested in Regina.

In Matane, Que., Friday night Mr. St. Laurent spoke about the cost of defence. He said the Liberal government spends about one-third of the national budget for this purpose and intends to continue this policy because it is the best insurance against aggression.

The prime minister spoke in Matane after a one-day visit to Newfoundland.

In Montreal, Mr. Diefenbaker said a Conservative government would end what he called the Liberal government infringement on provincial rights. The St. Laurent administration, he said, thinks it rules Canada by divine right.

"My purpose is to have a united Canada in which all will enjoy full rights," he said.

During his speech there was evidence of a healing of an intra-party wound. Leon Balcer, national president of the Conservatives, took a seat on the platform with Mr. Diefenbaker.

Committee members for Trois-Rivieres in the last Parliament, Mr. Balcer battled against Mr. Diefenbaker's nomination as party chief to succeed Hon. George Drew last August.

Mr. Diefenbaker said Mr. Balcer had taken a "magnificent stand" for the party and is spreading the word that the party is "united everywhere in Canada."

Mr. Low spoke in Calgary to an audience of 2,000, largest election crowd in the city since campaigning began a month ago. He said the federal government was unwilling to stop spending money on "culture and other frills" and start discharging its responsibilities to the "unfortunate" citizens of Canada. The Social Credit leader said his party wa pledged to increased old age, blind and disabled pensions.

The attitude of Canadians toward the election was discussed by External Affairs Minister Pearson and Dr. W. G. Berry of Toronto, director of the national evangelic mission of the United Church of Canada.

Mr. Pearson said in Midland that indifference is the gravest danger confronting Liberal candidates. Many people assumed the Liberals would win and thought the loss of a few seats wouldn't matter. Some thought it might be a good thing if the government's majority were reduced.

"But if people all over the country take that attitude we could lose more than a few seats," he said. "We could be thrown out."

Dr. Berry said "one of the tragedies of the church today is the apathy of Christians to the [illegible] election." He was speaking to the mission's annual conference in Hamilton.

French People Horrified At Massacre of Algerians

PARIS (AP) — President Rene Coty has urged "all civilized peoples" to take note of the massacre of an Algerian village and turn their backs on the rebels seeking to cut off French rule in North Africa.

Throughout France feelings of horror and revulsion were stirred up by Friday's accounts from Algeria telling of the Sunday slaying virtually all the men—fellow Moslems—of a village 80 miles southeast of Algiers.

French officials said 302 villagers were killed, apparently because of rivalry between nationalist groups.

People in France, accustomed to other peoples' condemnation for French colonial practices, were shocked by the massacre as by nothing else since the nationalist uprising on November 1, 1954, with attacks on French settlers.

Breaking precedent, Coty went on the radio at midnight to tell his countrymen and the world:

"I address myself to all civilized peoples and I ask them if they do not feel the June horror is signity that they will refuse absolutely to listen to the killers and agents of this horrible terrorism which tramples all the laws of God and man in contempt of universal conscience. . . .

"There is not a single French man, there is not in the world a man with feelings who has not been overwhelmed by pity and

U.S. SENATOR URGES 'NEW LOOK' AT CHINA TRADE

Says British Action Forces Re-evaluation

WASHINGTON (AP)—A United States Senate Democratic leader called today for a "new look" at American policies as a result of the British decision to expand trade with Communist China.

Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas told reporters he believes that the U.S. "must frankly face the fact that the British action will require us to re-evaluate the China trade situation."

"We will have to take a new look," said the man who is said to be one of our most-pressing foreign policy problems in the months ahead.

As the Republican Senate leader visited Vice-President Nixon in California, did Friday, Johnson took something of a conciliatory attitude toward London's decision to put Red China in the same trade category as Russia and the Soviet satellites.

HAD JOINED

Under U.S. urging, Britain and other Western countries had joined earlier in a stiffer trade embargo against Peiping than had been applied against Moscow. This was done primarily on the grounds that the Chinese Communists had been declared by the United Nations to be aggressors in the Korean War.

Johnson said Britain's decision to relax the embargo represented an "abrupt break, and perhaps a setback to the [illegible] which we've been following."

"There are many who question the wisdom of the British decision," he said, "but I recognize the fact that the British have problems with which we are not confronted."

Knowland is the chief U.S. congressional critic of the Peiping regime and principal defender of the Nationalist Chinese on Formosa. The moderate tone of his criticism of the London decision went a long way toward dispatching the apparent fears of any violent reaction in Congress might set up a furore strain on U.S.-British relations.

Allan Believes Speed Limits Are too Low

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—After a ride Friday over a 40-mile stretch of highway between this city and near Woodstock, to London, Ontario Highways Minister Allen said he considers speed limits on highways are too low.

Current limits are 55 miles an hour for cars, and 50 miles an hour for trucks. Mr. Allen said he couldn't suggest what the speed limits should be, until a traffic survey is made by departmental experts.

He pointed out that with landscaping not done properly with few populated centres along the route, Eastwood — London section holds few distractions for drivers.

Tired of Housework, Diaper Wash Young Wife Sets Fire to Home

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A youthful housewife, who in a rebellion against housework and diaper washing, set fire to her home, doesn't recommend the remedy to other women.

"It just made things worse," she said.

Looking like a school girl, in pale white sweater, blue skirt and flat shoes, 20-year-old Mrs. Nancy Lee Stoner appeared in court in Friday on an arson charge.

She told the court she hadn't the money to hire a lawyer, so a public defender was appointed to represent her at the hearing. June 19 to enter a plea. In the meantime, she is free on $1,000 bail.

After leaving the courtroom, Mrs. Stoner said:

"I don't know about what's going to happen to me.

"My husband, Gene, and the two girls and I are staying with my sister. I'm still doing diapers and housework but I don't feel as nervous as I did before the fire."

On May 8 Mrs. Stoner admitted she set fire to seven stacks of diapers in various parts of their three-bedroom home in suburban Norwalk.

A neighbor reported that her house was afire.

"That's good," she called back. "Call the fire department."

When police arrested her Mrs. Stoner told them she set the fire because "I've been doing housework and baby diapers for so long I just got fed up and blew my stack."

Elaborating after her court appearance, she said:

"Things got too much for me. The baby had been in the hospital. I was lonely because Gene was working nights. I was washing diapers right on his construction job."

Fire damage to the home was estimated at $3,000.

"We want to keep the house and fix it up but we don't have the money now," Mrs. Stoner said. "The whole inside has to be painted and the floors have to be refinished. I can't recommend that any other women do what I did. I don't know what's going to happen to me."

Britain's Second H-Bomb Reveals Awesome Power

Blast Believed 3 Times As Powerful As First Test

ABOARD HMS ALERT (AP)—An awesome burst of sound and fury roared high over the Central Pacific as Britain touched off the second and most powerful hydrogen bomb blast in her test series.

A four - jet - engined Valiant bomber dropped the keep-fusion missile—estimated to have a destructive force equal to 5,000,000 tons of TNT—near Malden Atoll 400 miles south of Christmas Island.

The blast was believed, three times as powerful as the first, exploded Britain set off in mid-May.

The gleaming white jet, with only 30 seconds to escape the searing flash, banked away at 60 miles an hour after dropping the bomb. Its bombing height was not disclosed, but the Valiant normally flies at high altitudes.

KEEP BACKS TURNED

Observers aboard this naval yacht 35-miles from the blast scene were cautioned to keep their backs turned to avoid risking blindness.

After 10 seconds, the press corps, clad in protective suits and goggles, was given the signal to face the fearsome spectacle.

A huge fireball appeared at more than a mile wide, hovered in the sky, its centre a writhing turmoil of boiling, angry red and tense white.

Then it descends it expanded into a blinding rainbow. Then it appeared to retract, and for moments the familiar puffy cloud of dazzling whiteness began forming.

BUSY SCENE

Prior to the blast, Christmas Island had been a beehive of activity as more than 2,000 scientists and servicemen at the operational headquarters made final preparations for the test—biggest of the series called Operation Grapple.

The British task force scientific director, William Cook, predicted that there would be no significant fall-out activity from the high air burst.

The body was hurled 80 feet into a ditch by the impact.

U.S. Army Tests Jupiter Missile For Third Time

WASHINGTON - (AP) — The United States Army, with another apparently successful test accomplished in its intermediate range ballistic missile (IRBM) program plans to carry on development of the weapon at least through next November.

After that, the army will be compelled to drop development of its 1,500-mile range rocket unless Defence Secretary Charles E. Wilson changes his mind about restricting the IRBM to the air force, navy.

A missile generally believed to be of an army Jupiter-type was fired Friday from the missile test centre at Cape Canaveral, on Florida's east coast. The defence department, following custom, confirmed that a test in its general category was conducted, but declined to identify the type or give results.

If Friday's firing did involve the Jupiter, it was the third known test of that missile. One launched last September was reported to have travelled more than 3,000 miles—twice the specified range for an intermediate missile—and reached a height of 600 miles in its trajectory. A subsequent firing attempt in the Jupiter program was a virtual failure.

Wilson has ordered that the air force be assigned the use of what ever IRBM is developed ultimately; but said that the army would be permitted to continue with it work on the Jupiter for a time. Earlier, the defence chief's advices test fired so far has been flawless, reflecting improvements in design.

Annual Meet of Hastings Board for Blind Is Held

"I hope people realize how precious, how much appreciated is their help in lending their eyes to those who have been deprived of sight," said Mr. A. W. Sparks, supervisor of field services for the Ontario branch of the Canadian Institute for the Blind, as he addressed the Hastings County Advisory Board and guests at the annual dinner meeting in St. John's Anglican Church in Stirling on Thursday evening.

"The Institute came into existence thirty-nine years ago, headed by a blind man with courage and inner vision, Col. A. E. Baker," said Mr. Sparks. "They set out to ascertain how many blind persons there were in Canada, to analyze the conditions under which they existed, and to provide facilities for those so handicapped to climb a higher rung on the social ladder. We bring heartfelt thanks that you have faith and so strongly kindled that you lit a lamp of kindness that means so much."

The Women's Guild of the church provided the excellent meal, and the pastor, Rev. Mr. Secker, pronounced the invocation and welcomed the members on behalf of the church and also for the village of Stirling in the absence of the reeve.

Chairman of the Board, T. J. Flurey, presided at the meeting, reading in his annual report that the Board had a successful year with the members striving to bring sunshine, comfort and pleasure to the blind. Seated at the head table with the chairman were Mrs. G. Wishart, Mrs. Tiesson, Rev. Mr. Secker, and Messrs. P. J. Timmins, A. W. Sparks, Mark Tripp, and R. Padden.

REPORTS READ

Secretary Everett Fairman read the minutes, followed by reports from the county representatives: Bancroft, Mrs. A. R. Towle; Foxboro, Mrs. M. J. Waller; Frankford, H. J. Madill; Madoc, Mrs. D. Kernohan and Mrs. G. Hill; Marmora, Mrs. R. G. Winters; Stirling, Mrs. F. Wannamaker, A. Lee, Ray Lennox Boorne; Tweed, Mrs. J. LeSage.

The home teacher, Mrs. M. Tiesson, gave a most interesting report of her work with instructions in Braille, locating the blind people in the six counties which she visits, twenty-one of these in Hastings county. She teacher goes into the homes and knows each pupil personally. There are many problems to be solved. Sometimes the newly-blind cannot adjust to their sightless condition and are very fretful, and not extremely co-operative. One who has had a little sight and then loses it presents a special problem. Some men make a wonderful adjustment to their lack of vision.

Small children begin to realize that they are slightly different from normal children, and sometimes become extremely shy and withdrawn, until they are made to realize that they do not have to stay at home. Then there is the ever interesting old people. Some people have other handicaps besides blindness and Mrs. Tiesson described her method of teaching a young man blind and a deaf mute with finger reading.

In Picton a social group has been formed for craft classes. They have a beautiful room, the supplies are provided, leather work, sewing and knitting are taught; tea and cookies are served, and they enjoy fun and banter. This working group of ten has increased keen interest in their lives and Mrs. Tiesson urged the members to visit the blind, to take them for rides, to the beach or on a picnic, or perhaps to invite a letter for them, or do some mending.

REPORTS ON RESIDENCE

Mr. Mark Tripp gave a report from the Trenton district, and Mr. A. J. Boore, representative on the Board of Governors, brought the reportr from the Quinte—St. Lawrence residence.

Two vocal solos were given by Mrs. Woodbeck of Stirling.

Mr. R. Padden, assistant field secretary, reported that the board had been able to help save the sight of many people, and had provided glasses for several who would have had trouble doing their daily tasks. One girl from the county had left the Ontario School for the Blind to take training and was now working. Several had had jobs found for them.

In his report as campaign chairman, Mr. H. J. Puke's figures showed an increase of $1,853.95 over the previous year. The financial statement read by the treasurer, Miss E. Roblin, was gratifying, with a small surplus of $294.76, the first time in many years that anything but a deficit.

Field secretary P. I. Timmins of Belleville explained the main objectives of the CNIB, to assist the conservation of blindness and to prevent it where possible. The Board furthers rehabilitation by means of the Institute by doing something constructive to help blind people help themselves. The Board was doing a useful service which commanded the goodwill and broader program of services and greater care, he said. The Board is also trying hard to help in national and divisional services to make sure that no blind person is overlooked. This year a canvass is being planned for Belleville to take the place of the tag day and letter appeal and will be conducted by Mrs. G. Wishart.

OFFICERS ELECTED

Mr. A. D. Archibald brought in the slate of officers for the ensuing year, presenting the following elected to the Board: president, T. J. Flurey; first vice-president, Mrs. G. Wishart; second vice-president, Mark Tripp; treasurer, Miss Roblin; field Sage; secretary, Everett Fairman; treasurer, Miss E. Roblin; campaign chairman, H. J. Puke and A. J. Boorne; welfare, Miss M. Hill; public relations, Mrs. M. C. Ward.

Mrs. N. C. Wilbur was named honorary life member, Ray Lennox who is moving from the district.

Mr. A. W. Sparks congratulated the Board on the splendid reports likening it to a fountain of inspiration with green as a feeling, spreading its spray to touch all those who were served in its vicinity.

"The change from the blind person with his tin cup to the blind of today is phenomenal," said the speaker, "it has been accomplished by the blind people themselves, helped by dedicated sighted people. There was a time when a blind man lost, a feeling of frustration was felt and the question was asked, 'What can I do?' With the CNIB the only credential needed is blindness. There are 24,000 blind less in Canada, 7,000 in Ontario, and 2,000 in Hastings county.

They miss something the normal person takes for granted, the beauty of the spring time, and seeing their young ones grow up. In ten years seventeen residences have been built where the blind are provided with a home of dignity and efficiency.. No institutional atmosphere is tolerated.

PROFICIENT

"The range of opportunity in industry is limited, but with training and persons within the reach of sound or touch the blind can become proficient. The C.N.I.B. has filled every position of its various departments with capable blind. The girls are educated to become darkroom technicians.

When the light is suddenly shut out, the mind becomes paralyzed, anxious questions arise and anxiety builds up. The blind, like every one else, want to feel useful and needed. You are living engineers building a road where the blind travel. Take out the stones and the hills to make a safe highway for the blind. Extend a helping hand where it is needed. Your face is a mirror that reflects what is in your heart. Don't mar it by any unkind deed to those who need your help."

The speaker was introduced by George Wishart and thanks were expressed by Leslie Reid who stated that a real challenge had been given by the speaker to "do it do something worth while for the blind in the county, and expressed the hope the fine address to a feeling of sympathetic understanding of the needs of the blind.

Scene as Chief Clerk to CNR Superintendent Honored

Happy Retirement Smiles

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Thompson flash happy retirement smiles as C.N.R. employees and officials tender Mr. Thompson a retirement banquet following his retirement after a 42 years' service with the Canadian National Railways. Mr. Thompson entered the service as a stenographer and retired as chief clerk to the divisional superintendent.

42 Years' Service

Newton Thompson Honored By-Colleagues at Banquet

About 80 couples gathered at the Knights of Columbus Hall last night to pay tribute to Newton Thompson, chief clerk to the superintendent of the Belleville division of the C.N.R., who retired yesterday after 42 years of continuous service.

Master of ceremonies for the banquet was Wm. Wilson, superintendent of the Belleville terminal and was taken on as a stenographer in the superintendent's office. Six weeks later he became the superintendent's secretary.

As the years passed Mr. Thompson worked at a clerk in the Belleville division, until January 15, 1920, when he was appointed chief clerk to superintendent. He held that post for the next seven years; then he became chief clerk of the division and on March 16, 1948, he was named chief clerk to the superintendent.

Mr. Thompson was laid up twice for lengthy periods during his career with the C.N.R. being off sick for six months. Last night he thanked Dr. Dow, senior medical officer with the company, "for saving my life in 1941." After a thorough examination by Dr. Dow, Mr. Thompson was admitted to the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal for a while and if the patient had not been so frank and thorough in his examination, "I would have died within two years."

OFFICIALS PRESENT

There were many guests present last night from out-of-town and numbers of employees of others sent their regrets for being unable to attend Mr. Thompson's retirement party. Among those whose well wishes were read out were W. A. Scott, vice-president of the C.N.R. and M. A. Walford, general manager of the railroad.

After everyone had gorged themselves on Mrs. Stan Barber's turkey dinner and pies, Charles Goodenough, assistant superintendent at Kingston, rendered a few vocal with an Irish lilt. He was joined in one song by Mrs. Leonard Stock, while Ron MacKay accompanied them on the piano.

Several speakers held the floor to tell of Mr. Thompson's friendliness, ability, kindness and generosity.

Mr. Wilson was unabashed when he said: "Any measure of success I have achieved in my role as superintendent is largely due to the kindness and generosity of Newt. Thompson. "The guest of honor has served 10 superintendents, six of whom came to Belleville after 1944.

Mr. Thompson was the oldest railway employee in the Belleville division and last night he paid special tribute to the division's youngest worker, 17-year-old Lucy Ruben.

"In my 42 years on the road I have had the finest people in the world as my associates, bar none. The experience I have had from these people — young and old — will be treasured always," he said.

When the general superintendent, G. A. Locke, presented Mr. Thompson with two gifts from the employees of the division, "Uncle Newt.", upon finding in them a pair of binoculars and a portable typewriter, could only whisper: "Man, oh man!" and "Boy, oh boy!"

Before making the presentations, Mr. Locke referred to Mr. Thompson as a "walking encyclopedia."

"You don't know of anything Newt. doesn't know about the Belleville division", he said.

COMPLETE SURPRISE

In reply Mr. Thompson said, "your generosity is something beyond words. This was a complete surprise and I do appreciate everything you people have said about me tonight."

James W. Risk, superintendent of works equipment, who met Mr. Thompson in the early days of the railroad, said, "Newt. Thompson should be about the best chief clerk this division ever had," and welcomed him into the "fraternity of superannuated loafers."

Dr. Charles Shortt, assistant senior medical officer of the CNR extended his and Dr. Dow's best wishes to the Thompsons for a "long and happy life".

"Now, isn't retiring, he never will. He's got too many things to do to retire now," he said.

The superintendent at Cobourg, James Smith, added his best wishes and presents were extended and thanked "Uncle Newt", for his unerring guidance and assistance.

Rupert MacDonald, director of operations for the Board of Transport Commissioners, Ottawa, has been a good friend of Mr. Thompson for many years.

"It was Newt. who did so much to make Belleville the banner division," he remarked. "Thirty-five years ago this week Mr. MacDonald joined the CNR and during each of his years of service he observed that Mr. Thompson "always had the feeling of wanting to do his best in the people he met."

"His human relations approach to people is one of the outstanding characteristics of Newt's career", he said, adding that many talents unsparingly and he'd like to thank him for a job well done."

The general superintendent of the division W. L. Stuart, expressed his and Mr. Walford's best wishes to Mr. Thompson for "many years of happiness in retirement with your wife and family."

TOWER OF STRENGTH

R. C. Johnston, retired vice-president of the CNR, referred to Mr. Thompson as a "tower of strength in any position he has held" and "the backbone" of the division."

"Newt. gathered the esteem and respect of everyone with whom he came in contact and I am proud to be here this evening as he is honoring him. I hope Newt. will carry away an indelible memory of the friendship and esteem that was displayed here tonight," he said.

Mr. Thompson, he recalled, was a "spark plug" in divisional war work during the Second World War II and "he is outstanding in the esteem and affection in which interest is in benefiting his fellow man." (Mr. Thompson played a leading role in the Canteen Club of Belleville and guided the club for four years.)

"Newt. was a model chief clerk and an expert administrator," said Mr. Johnston.

When briefly addressing the guests, Mr. Thompson said: "Without the help of my wife, Fanny, I don't know where I would be. I owe more to her career with the C.N.R. She has been my shining light.

"Fanny has been 100 per cent to me and I'd like, especially, to thank my secretary, Mary Mac-Dougall, for doing such a wonderful job. Mary, and I'm going to miss you, Mr. Wilson; you've been a wonderful boss. Everyone has been wonderful and I thank you all."

In conclusion, Mr. Thompson presented Mr. Rupert MacDonald with a gift — a ruler — "just to keep you straight on the railroad family". It was a reminder to abide by the Golden Rule.

In a brief interview before the farewell party began, Mr. Thompson, when asked by this reporter, "What now?" he replied:

"And I'm not going to worry about the railroad anymore."

Mr. Thompson can put his gifts to good use. He is talking about writing his memoirs, so he can use a new typewriter. And with the binoculars, he can see the pickerel coming down the hatch, and then he can launch his boat and reap a good catch.

A Lift for Living

Preserving Personal Values

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

More and more we live and move in large masses. War, as well as modern life, does that to us. The boys I lived to ... and barbers longed to get back to the farm or the village where, as they said, they could have the world to themselves.

One wonders, however, where in our tomorrows we can have the world to ourselves. Perhaps there will be some decentralization of our large cities, but in this day of huge factories and easy travel it will be more and more difficult to disassociate ourselves physically from the crowd.

The growth of the group tends to dwarf the individual. The crowded city tends to smother individuality. Lost in the crowd, we are prone to lose our sense of personal responsibility, and with that our personal morals loosen.

"CHARACTER"

"Character," said Dwight L. Moody, "is what a man is in the dark." And one form of darkness is that of numbers. In the small town a man is under the observation of his neighbors, but in the large city there are few neighborhood newspapers to keep track of his virtues and no neighborhood gossips to keep track of his vices.

For that reason many a man is not the same when he leaves the small town for the big city. When we live in large cities and work in huge factories, the tendency is for morals to become slack, politics to become machine-ridden, and philanthropy to become cold and impersonal.

What, for instance, does the word neighbor mean in a city of a million? When we become hardened that a street accident involving loss of limb or life means little more to us than an inconvenient blocking of traffic; when the visit of the doctor to the apartment across the hall scarcely arouses our inquiry; when people dwell side by side without exchange between heart and heart—then such living is demoralizing.

PERSONAL RELATIONSHIPS

It would be hard to say how much of our present industrial and social unrest is due to this large-scale living and working, with the attendant lack of personal acquaintance and individual attention. An employer in Connecticut told me proudly of the good relations in his factory of 600 employees. The men were organized but they were known to him personally, and in that atmosphere of mutual acquaintance and understanding their difficulties dissolved. Such association cannot be paralleled in large factories, but some more personal relationships must replace the long-range dealings often unknown to one another.

More important than the production of things is the production of men. And men are not made in masses.

And we need the spirit of Christ to preserve the personal touch. This the Christ does by proclaiming a gospel of persons. Jesus never used the big, vague, abstract terms so common among us, such as "humanity," or "society" or "the masses." Jesus dealt with a sick daughter, a prodigal son, a dishonest publican, a pitiable Magdalene. To Him every individual was a person known by name—not by number, not as a "hand," not as a unit in so much manpower.

DEALT WITH PERSONS

Jesus also dealt with persons, not percentages. His was the gospel of a Good Shepherd who was not satisfied to save ninety and nine out of a hundred. Ninety-nine per cent is a mighty good average in any modern merchandising operation, but not with Our Lord, who goes out to get the one that is lost. Jesus pictured God as a Father, and a father who loses one of his five sons does not sit back contentedly and say, "Well, four out of five, that's pretty good." To a good father, a son is a son, whether he be one of five or ten. So is every child of God in His Heavenly Father's sight.

Aldous Huxley says the last two wars have made us so familiar with human suffering we have grown callous to it. So it may seem. Then little Benny Hoaks falls into a dry well and we all watch his rescue with bated breath. We listen for his breathing and lift our prayers for his safety.

Yes, we can still be reached by the personal touch. Let's cultivate it.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

LIFELONG MATES

About half a century ago it was maintained that a few kinds of birds actually mate for life. Although we feel fairly sure that many choose the same partner summer after summer, this cannot always be proved, yet sometimes there is little room for doubt.

We like to think that our local robins are the same ones we watched last year. Those of us with a good ear for music may be able to tell whether or not the male has returned because either we do or we do not recognize his song. But what about the female? To some extent, looks and behaviour are guides; however, only banding can prove this point.

MANY REUNITE

Much banding now having been done, we have ample evidence that many migrants are reunited with their former mates at the old breeding grounds. A pair is apt to show a strong attachment for the territory where a family was successfully reared. Generally, it is the male that first arrives from the south, and waits a matter of days or even weeks before his old love turns up. He immediately claims her, but often has to fight for her.

This is the way things work out for many of our songbirds. But also a number of other migrants are known to reunite each summer—occasionally for many, many years, as most of these belong to species which live 15 to 30 years. Eagles, peregrine falcons, and ospreys are about the best examples of this. They are said to be very fond of their mates. Returning each spring to the old nest, they repair and add sticks until it becomes quite enormous. These birds remain paired until death claims one—then another mate may be chosen. Red-shouldered hawks also keep their same nests and wives, and after the breeding season stay together in family groups.

FAMILY TIES

Canada Geese are noted for their strong family ties. They also mate for life, and migrate back and forth "en familie". Not so well known is the fact that pairs, too, keep the same mates, both live and migrate in family groups, and are very affectionate. If one is shot, all the relatives gather around, and show great distress.

Banding proves that the year round residents, screech owls, ravens, and white-breasted nuthatches, remain happily paired for life—unless, of course, tragedy overtakes them. These owls spend the winter days in the same holes they occupied for nesting purposes, or in similar ones.

After all, the home life of birds is not so very different from ours.

FOSTER HOMES NEEDED

Have you any room for a child in your home— and in your heart?

Some have one without the other, but both are required to meet the needs of the Belleville, Hastings and Trenton Children's Aid Society. The Society is appealing for foster homes for children ranging in age from one year to 18 years.

Foster homes are the modern answer to the orphanage. The local society was among the first to follow the modern trend in this practice. Its wards in homes, rather than keeping them in an institution. Today in Ontario there is no Children's Aid Society which runs a "shelter" or "home" as a place of permanent residence for the children under its care.

Providing a child with a foster home is not the same thing as adopting the child. The Children's Aid Society pays for the child's maintenance. Personnel of the Society assist the foster parents in meeting any problems which may arise from time to time. The foster parents are free to terminate their responsibilities at any time, for any cause or without cause. In one sense, foster homes are merely boarding homes for these homeless children. But the real foster home is much more than that. It is a place where the child feels security, where it is loved and learns to love, where broken hearts are repaired and warped minds straightened out.

A foster home does not have to be wealthy in anything but love. There are even some families, one suspects, which find a foster child a source of a little additional revenue, in exactly the same way that other families augment slender incomes by accepting adult boarders. But no money could ever repay some foster parents for what they give to a needy child, and therefore to society.

One foster mother comes to mind. She had had about a dozen children of her own, but as they grew up and got married gaps appeared at the family table. She filled these gaps by accepting foster children from the Children's Aid Society. They got the same treatment as her own children. Tears were wiped and punishments administered, papers rustled arranged and household chores assigned. The children were not living in a home rich in money — but they were living in a home rich in love.

SUNDAY MUSIC VOTES COMING?

Will Ontario communities eventually have the power, to hold referendums on the question of whether musical entertainments for which an admission fee is charged should be permitted on Sundays?

That possibility would seem to exist in the light of remarks made by Rev. A. S. McGrath, general secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance, in his annual report.

"It may not be denied," he declared, "that among the voices raised on behalf of change in Canada's Sunday law are some which are undoubtedly asking for greater privileges for cultural activities. Chiefly, their interest appears to be in high class music. Their representations are, in the opinion of this Alliance, more deserving of consideration than most others."

That latter sentence will interest many. There can be no denying the fact that it is a strange situation when the law in Ontario permits cities which have so voted to allow commercial sports on Sunday within certain hours but prohibits musical entertainments. On the other hand, while it can be argued with much logic that music lovers have as much right to entertainment as sports lovers, can it also be contended with equal logic, as Mr. McGrath would appear to be doing, that music lovers' right to have their wishes gratified is greater than those desiring other types of entertainment? Their representations are certainly as deserving of consideration as those of any others, but are they, in Mr. McGrath's words, "more deserving of consideration than most of the others?" Unless the latter can escape from the conviction that, eventually, it will be found necessary to adopt a uniform policy for most forms of Sunday entertainment.

THE VALUE OF RESEARCH

"In large cities, about 55 per cent of the family clothing dollar is spent for the women and girls, while men and boys account for a little over 40 per cent and infants use most of the rest," reports the Twentieth Century Fund, an endowed foundation for research and public education on economic and social problems.

It is statements like this which emphasize the value of research. Until this revelation we had no idea that women, girls, men, boys and infants were hogging such a large share of the family clothing dollar, leaving so little for Fido, Puss and the goldfish.

REGRET

There's so much more I should have done
And much of it I could have done
And had the good intent to do
All little things I meant to do, and could do now—Oh, sad refrain—
It but the chance were mine again.
Perhaps too long in bed I'd stay
Or by some whim was led to
To see a friend I could have gone
And had I known I would have gone.
But now too late, he was vain;
I'll never have the chance again.

I've lost again, and yet again,
The time I'll never get again
And grateful words I could have heard
I'd hear them now with rapture glad
If but the chance again I had.

'Back With Bings'

There are all sorts of poetic quotations available on what delightful centerpiece gardens are and how noble are the folk who cultivate them. Personally, we prefer this down-to-earth one from Charles Dudley Warner's My Summer In A Garden: "What a man needs in gardening is a cast-iron back with a hinge in it."

Halt Tests For Present

MacLean's Magazine

Continued pleas from respected citizens and respected scientists asking that the United States, Great Britain and Soviet Russia cease testing atomic weapons because of the dangers of accumulating radioactivity have fallen on deaf ears. The tests go on, and the winds from the Pacific and from Siberia continue to spread those tiny particles that some consider insidious and other insist aren't dangerous.

Recently a number of important world figures have added their voices to those of Bertrand Russell, the late Albert Einstein and others, in demanding a halt to the tests.

Dr. Linus Pauling, another Nobel prize winner, has estimated that at least one thousand persons will eventually die as a result of each thermonuclear test by the British.

Dr. Ralph E. Lapp, an atomic physicist who worked during the war on the Manhattan Project, has written that present H-bomb tests are causing as much radiation contamination as a threat to the present as well as to future generations.

On the other hand, a group of equally respected scientists and laymen have absolutely denied these and other statements and are insisting that there is little danger from thermonuclear tests and won't be for some time to come.

It disturbs us that the most optimistic of these statements always seem to come from politicians or from scientists who are employed by one of the governments involved in these tests. An obvious inference is that politics is a consideration in considerations color their scientific statements. It is possible that they know more about the subject for think they do) because of information which is not freely available to all and a government must act on such special and secret knowledge to bolster its opinions.

We might ask, in passing, what all this secrecy has actually accomplished. It hasn't stopped the Russians from building and testing super bombs. But it has confused what may well be the most important controversy in history.

It is the great debate about the survival of humanity there are details of opposing opinions, honestly held and sincerely arrived at. But those who insist that concern for the well-being of future generations are at a twofold disadvantage. First, they are denied a large portion of the evidence on grounds of security while being told that they don't know what they're talking about. Secondly, their remarks are branded ignorant and even treasonous.

At the risk of being called both ignorant and disloyal, we add our own tiny editorial voice to those that have been raised asking a ban on atomic tests. We think they should be halted, at least for the moment. For one thing is now perfectly clear: there is enough reasonable doubt in all this business to demand a freer exchange of information and a careful public examination of all the evidence. As long as this doubt remains we ought to go slow. If generations yet unborn, the scientists turn out to be right, it will be too late.

And, we might ask, why all the eagerness to rush on with more tests to build even better, more powerful explosives? Each side now has enough destructive power to annihilate the other. The side with the best bomb has only a slight advantage with the best chance of survival. National security no longer depends on the quality and efficiency of hydrogen bombs but on brains. Einstein, Russell and the Schweitzers are right, national security is no longer of prime importance to any one of the security of the race that is in question, surely it demands as much careful thought and productive energy as the security of single nations.

Ike Makes Bad Blunder

Ottawa Journal

Robert Lee has been a sacred figure in Southern lore, not defeat at Gettyburg nor anything else could dim the lustre of the gallant soldier who laid down his life that the Confederate cause to brave it unconquered. And in histories, in story books, in verse—remember the stirring poem "The Sword of Robert Lee"—he was the stainless hero; above reproach.

But now comes Field Marshal Montgomery, backed up by, of all people, Dwight D. Eisenhower, to say that actually Robert Lee was a traitor. In a legal general, that he made unforgivable mistakes, and that he should be pulled down—unless to have been sacked.

The conclusions of Montgomery and Eisenhower—why they were made public after the two had spent only a few hours' stroll over the old battlefield heaven only knows—is that Lieutenant-General Lee's commanders, delayed too long in attacking the right side of the Union army, and that Pickett's famous charge against its powerful centre was a piece of foolhardy from a military standpoint—he "charge of the Light Brigade."

Now Montgomery, a cold objective, brilliant military science and an outlander might have said that, and been entitled with it. But it is a different thing when it is said by a President of the United States, who happens to be the leader of a Republican party which never has done well in the South. Here surely is the final conclusive proof that Eisenhower is no politician, or perhaps an insensitive one, bereft of awareness about what makes politics tick!

And the South, of course, has taken in fine frenzy, excepting a northerner, a "damn Yankee", who dares to cast aspersions upon the greatest of Confederate heroes.

Mr. Eisenhower, seemingly aghast at his own blunder, and probably realizing what vigorously by the Republican National Committee has already sought a storm shelter by telling that General Lee's picture hangs in his office, but he nonetheless him one of the "four greatest Americans" and so on and so forth. But it will take more than that to appease the southerners; given to emotion, sentiment and mine Julyes they might well bar "like" from that "second White House" of his on a George Lyon course.

Jump Nimbly Or Be Rammed

Windsor Star

When provincial police raided the Lakeshore Tavern way they encountered, to them, an unusual obstacle. Or rather, had they been driven down the drive, would have encountered them. It was a little rare, which chased them about the farmyard and into the safety of a stable.

Sheep generally may be regarded as among the most docile of animals. But that doesn't apply to a ram, especially if he is mean and irritable. Such a ram is apt to take on the whole world and see. He is rather stupid in his pugnacity, however.

His method is to draw a line on the victim, then put his head down and charge. The impact, combined with a thick, hard skull, can bowl over a man in a jiffy. Anyone that he "threws" is

There is an easy counter, though. Just wait until the ram is about to strike and jump nimbly aside. Or, better still, leapfrog over him. He can't stop quickly enough in the one instance, and, in the other, if he chooses flight, one must move fast. An angry ram can get up amazing speed for a cumbersome animal.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A doctor friend of mine who owns one of those expensive air rifles, is a chum of the police force. He uses the weapon to shoot out his bathroom window whilst shaving the other morning and saw two starlings perched on the telephone wire across his side drive.

Last year, too late, the doctor discovered that starlings had nested in his new cavity eaves and all sorts of trouble.

Suspecting the intentions of these two birds on the wire, who were talking animatedly to each other, the doctor opened a window and got his air rifle and plinked one of the birds. The other flew off.

Less than five minutes later, denying his hands, he came back to his consternation, two more starlings billing and cooing. If you can call the starling chatter cooing, in precisely the same spot as previously. He plinked another, the survivor flying away.

Half way through breakfast, he could not resist running upstairs; and sure enough, there was another pair, on the same wire, in the same spot. So the doctor went round to the front of the house, climbed out on the verandah roof, and taking a flanking shot, succeeded in downing both birds with the one pellet.

"No darn starlings," he said, rather ruefully looking round at all the little peaceful bodies strewn on his side drive, "are going to plug my eaves this year!"

He finished his breakfast with appetite not entirely undiluted, and went out to pick up the victims to put in the garbage. Something caught his eye. Two starlings were sitting, in conjugal discussion, on the telephone wire precisely the same spot over his side drive.

"What did you do?" I enquired of the doctor.

"I gave up," he said. "I might better shoot snow flakes to drive away winter."

Now he has got starlings th his eave troughs.

Farm Output Changes

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

As Canada's population grows, the needs of the country for different farm products tend to change. The result is a more diversified agriculture and a wider range of products.

There always has been a wide diversification of products among farmers in Canada. Large areas of the prairies have been devoted to wheat production, but there has been a widespread cheese and dairy product industry through districts farther away from the towns.

In the West the tendency has often been to concentrate on certain products. Wheat has been the classic product of the prairies. Just the same there are many others; and the trend toward more varied production still goes on.

One of the more valuable and relatively new prairie farm products is cattle. Ranchers have doubtedly hurt some people, nevertheless the production must eat, and the production and use of farm crops must go on. The kinds and uses of the different food crops differ, but the industry can and does go on forever. Beef plus oilseed crops is perhaps the coming thing on the prairie, replacing in part the chronically surplus wheat crops.

Here We Go Again

I say physician and dentist, for in every case of mouth, jaw, gum, or tooth trouble, any extraction should be done only with the sanction of both consultants.

Everyone with mouth, jaw, gum, or tooth-ache trouble should understand clearly that there is no cure for pyorrhea. The best we can hope for is arrest of the process before the important functions of digestion, assimilation, and nutrition are too greatly impaired. So-called pyorrhea is not a disease; it is simply degeneration. The fundamental cause is nutritional deficiency, which is almost universal in Yankeeland due to refined, soft, sterilized, easily digestible diets. Such pap requires little or no chewing. So we don't chew enough. In turn teeth, gums, muscles, and jaw bone grow and weaken and sicken. Being credulous children, we swallow the hokum taught in schools and by nineteenth century dentists about brushing the teeth; and we dismiss suggestions for improving nutrition as crackpot ideas.

"For about fifteen years I have had pyorrhea. I gather from your column and from what other physicians and dentists have told me that I need a liberal daily intake of calcium and vitamin D, but have been told that it is because my system contains too much calcium that I have pyorrhea . . ." (Mrs. C.E.M.)

"My front teeth are perfect. I go two or three times a year for what the dentist calls 'prophylaxis.' Last time he did not fill any teeth, but suggested that I just let them go until they hurt and then have them extracted . . ." (C.H.)

"Mother has been under the dentist's care since last November for Riggs' disease. She has had all her teeth extracted but still has pain in left side of jaw and is unable to eat any solid food. She has lost about 20 pounds since the trouble began . . ." (Mrs. P.W.R.)

Extracting teeth is not treatment. It is just acknowledgment that the physician and dentists are incompetent.

TODAY'S TALK

THOSE GHOSTS!

Ghosts are very real to many people, but there never has been a real Ghost! They are all imaginations of the mind. Ghosts of fear, who work overtime trying to get us to believe that they are real. Ghosts of the body that we give mind-form to, and mistrust our good doctors—who have never known a Ghost.

Many a book has recorded stories of Ghosts in castles and lonely lanes—but no one has ever captured one. Hardly a week goes by while for some time, has left with his family, for his old home in Louisville, Kentucky. The good wishes of many friends will follow them.

The city council intends to construct a new local improvement a Tavis Macadam pavement on West Bridge Street between Octavia and Yeomans Streets.

They are children of darkness who fear the break, though some say that they do make strange noises! No one has ever caught a Ghost in the act of frightening at least by any many.

To be happy and free of mind, dismiss all thought of Ghosts. Bequeath them to no one! George Herbert said: "Endeavor your soul at night,' not by self-examination, but by washing it as you your garments, the daily sins whether of omission or of commission, and you will be sure to live a free man with a new life." That is a way to treat your Ghosts—if they trouble you!

Our Creator never meant that we live in dread of anything, not even by unreal things, like crossing, imaginary bridges that later prove to be non-existent, nor by Ghosts that only live in people's imaginations. Here, Have nothing to do with Ghosts of any description!

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

NOT A FIRE EXTINGUISHER

A naval officer tells of being on the bridge of his battleship. At any moment the ship might capsize. As he groped his way to the wheel he found the helmsman desperately trying to operate a valve, the sailor beside him said, "This would be a good time to pray—if I only remembered how."

A great many people pray their religion as if it were a fire extinguisher. They call it aside for use except in emergency." Even fire extinguishers, however, have to be checked and recharged occasionally, and some of these people do not open the glass case even that often.

God did not send His only Son to be a fire extinguisher. He is just resort in times of trouble. He wants to be a first resort at all times. Christians who know what it means to live do not save their communion with Him for emergencies, or even for Sundays. They talk with Him everyday, and He is always there to hear and to help.

Featherheads Preferred

Hamilton Spectator

In London, England, the other day, a judge granted a divorce to a bride and groom on the grounds of cruelty. Mr. Turner had refused to speak to her, except in curt monosyllables, because (the wretch alleged) she had bought a hideous, full of chatter, and let the kettle boil dry. Granted, it is a grave domestic offence in England to delay the advice of a spot of tea, or to damage in any way the utensils essential to its preparation. We feel that the vast bulk of world opinion, regardless of resolutions sponsored by the Women's Institute, will be on the side of Kitty Turner.

If women must be full of chatter—and they must be—then let it be featherheaded rather than profound or omniscient, or any one of a number of adjectives associated with distress in the dinner table. What could be worse than Greek letters in the dinner table?

It is no accident that the most beloved actresses of modern times are those who are full of winsome damatic dither. Miss Billie Burke comes to mind today. The more learned ladies might have a treats to hear on a literature platform for a while, so, but they would be erudite nuisances to have around the house for prolonged periods.

We'll wager that Mrs. Turner won't have a great deal of trouble in finding a second and more appreciative husband. As for Mr. Turner, let him keep quiet and buy a new kettle.

The Face on the Stamp

A Pioneer in Medical History

By Nickolas Mika

Two hundred years ago an Austrian doctor made one of the most amazing discoveries in medical science. A discovery that was destined to save thousands of lives in the years to come. He was not known for his great scientific knowledge nor was his discovery recognized during his lifetime.

But with his clear logical reasoning he showed the medical profession for the first time a way to diagnose the ailments of the human chest. His method was so simple that scientists and doctors merely laughed at his idea and called him a fool. "He should stick to his music," they said and forgot about him.

Well, he was quite a music lover. He even composed now and then and his favorite pastime was playing the flute. But being a doctor was his life. He loved his work at the hospital in Vienna. There was only one thing that disturbed him about his profession — having to stand by helplessly and watch people die. Young people whom he might have saved, had he recognized their disease in time. When he analyzed a body he often found the chest full of a watery effusion. "This man shouldn't have died," the doctor murmured with trembling lips. A hollow needle thrust between the patient's ribs could have extracted the fluid and saved his life. But how was he to know that there was water behind the man's chest? How could he examine the chest? Any other part of the body he could feel with his sensitive fingers, he could detect a growth or an abnormal condition, but the ribs of the chest were like a wall he could not penetrate.

He brooded. Day in and day-out. He was determined to find some way to examine the human chest. Comparing his own healthy chest with that of every patient in the hospital he hoped to discover a clue perhaps in the coloring of the skin. More than once he thought he had the answer, but each time the flicker of hope vanished. The more people he examined, the more confused he got.

ACCIDENTAL DISCOVERY

Well, perhaps he would have given up as the other doctors before him had done. There simply was no way to investigate the ailments of the human chest. But as it happened with many great discoveries, the percussion of the human chest was detected almost unintentionally. How did this happen?

One evening the doctor entertained his friends. Like a good host he went down in his cellar to get some of his best wine. He had forgotten which cask contained the oldest wine, but he remembered that there was very little left. So he tapped with his finger each cask to tell by the sound where the wine level was. Naturally, an empty container would give a different sound than if it had been full of liquid. Just as a cracked cup would produce a different sound than a whole one when you tapped it.

The doctor had checked his wine supply many years that way without much thought. But this particular night a remarkable idea suddenly crossed his mind. He rushed upstairs to his friends to tell them about his discovery.

LIKE A WINE CASK

"Gentlemen," he said, "I think the human chest is like a wine cask. If it is filled with fluid you can tell by the sound as soon as you tap against it. If it is healthy and filled with air only, the sound will not be the same. I think I discovered a way to determine hidden diseases within the chest!"

The next morning he told his fellow doctors at the hospital. They shrugged their shoulders and were not quite sure if he was sober.

"Just listen to me!" he pleaded, "I know I am right!" But his voice was carried away with the wind. The echo of his idea, however, came back after his death. The little book he had written was studied carefully and finally served as a great contribution in the struggle against hidden diseases. Its title is "The Percussion of the Human Chest" and the doctor who introduced it to the medical world was Leopold Auenbrugger.

A three-in-one wedding anniversary is being celebrated by the Marner family of Belleville this weekend. They are Mr. and Mrs. Fred Marner (centre) observing their 60th anniversary, their son Fred and his wife (left) celebrating their 26th anniversary and daughter Mrs. Harry Yorke and her husband, observing their 31st wedding anniversary. The "at homes" will be culminated by a family anniversary dinner Sunday evening.

Marner Family Celebrates 3 Wedding Anniversaries

Birthdays and wedding anniversaries roll around just as often as the years but the Marner family of Belleville believe in getting them over in grand producing style.

For instance when June 1st rolls around family holds three wedding anniversaries all in one — one for the parents and the others for a son and a daughter.

Today (Saturday) Mr. and Mrs. Fred Marner, 82 Queen street, are observing their 60th wedding anniversary; their son Fred and his wife are observing their 26th anniversary, and a daughter Mrs. Harry Yorke and her husband are observing their 31st anniversary. To make it a really happy anniversary it will be a three-in-one celebration.

All three couples were married on the same date — June 1st.

Well known East Hill corner grocery store operators, Mr. and Mrs. Marner have been operating the same store for the past quarter-of a century and still do their stint at waiting on customers.

"I can still do ten hours in the store, but I am ready to quit when it comes six o'clock, Mr. Marner says. "I would die if I didn't have something to do." Both Mr. and Mrs. Marner are 80 years old.

Married in Scotland 60 years ago, Mr. and Mrs. Marner came to Canada in 1911 and for the next 21 years farmed in the Belleville area.

"Times have changed a lot," commented Mr. Marner as he recalled events in Scotland and in Canada, shortly after the turn of the century.

He and Mrs. Marner take great pleasure from their TV. Favorite programs for Mr. Marner are the wrestling matches and Mrs. Marner nodded acquiescence.

Members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church here of recent years they have not taken an active part in church work. They have 12 children, seven of whom are living, 21 grandchildren and seven great grandchildren.

Today and Sunday the Marner clan are holding "open house" at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marner Sr. Sunday evening is the big anniversary dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Marner Jr. are grandparents in their own right, their daughter Mrs. Harold McPherson having a son. The Yorkes have one daughter, Miss Helen Yorke.

Children of Mr. and Mrs. Marner Sr., are Mrs. J. Browning, Mrs. Harry Yorke, Fred Marner, all of Belleville; Robert Marner, Corbyville; Mrs. Herman Flindall, Kingston; Mrs. Bert Hardwick, Guelph, and Wallace of Belleville. A daughter Mrs. Clarence Downey died a few years ago.

Some forty-five neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Marner, Sr. presented them with handsome gifts as mementos of friendship and esteem.

Should Do More For Blind, Old, Disabled--Low

CALGARY (CP)—Social Credit Leader Solon Low has told the largest political rally in Calgary in the current election campaigns that more should be done for the old, blind and disabled citizens of Canada at the moment and less for culture.

About 2,000 persons turned out Friday night at the 2,700-seat Southern Alberta Jubilee Auditorium to hear Mr. Low and Alberta Premier R. C. Manning. The rally marked the 14th anniversary of Mr. Manning's acceptance of the premiership.

The national Social Credit leader pledged his party's support for increased old age pensions. He criticized the Liberal government for setting aside $50,000,000 for the Canada Council for culture and a "miserable pittance" of $6 a month more for the aged.

The federal government should stop spending money on "culture and other frills" and begin discharging its responsibilities to the old, blind and disabled, he said.

OBJECTS TO BEING PRESSED

Mr. Low said the Social Credit party is not opposed to culture but it objects to having it pressed on anyone by "the old, worn people in the Canada Council."

Premier Manning accused the federal government of weakening ties within the Commonwealth and of not strengthening Anglo-American relations.

The future depends on the solidarity of the Commonwealth and "unity between the Commonwealth, the United States and other Anglo-Saxon nations of the world," he said.

Mr. Manning also spoke of federal taxes. Last year more than $2,000,000,000 was collected in "hidden" excise and other taxes which were reflected in higher consumer prices, he said.

TO BLAME LABOR

"It's a common practice to blame labor for all the rising costs," he said. But the total payroll in the Canadian auto industry last year was $154,000,000 while $175,000,000 was paid by the industry in indirect taxes.

Mr. Low predicted that Manitoba would be the next province to turn Social Credit, following the lead of Alberta and British Columbia.

He said Progressive Conservatives should "stop fooling the people" because they have nothing new to offer than the Liberals.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

This Man Purchased Golden Years With Savings and House Mortgage

By THOMAS COLLINS

Why don't you buy yourself some Golden Years when you retire?

It can be done, for not much money, Mr. Walter B. Peterson, who was afraid not to have a job in retirement, has just done it.

Mr. Peterson was a federal government employee for many years and retired with his small house paid for and with an income of $190 a month. He had a good many friends. Some were in his church and in his lodge. Others were scattered around town. All were about his own age of 66.

Among these friends was one, Mr. William Stone, who owned and operated a children's shoe store not far from the Peterson house.

"Bill had done pretty well," according to Mr. Peterson, "and while he probably still needed the shoe store to live well, he could walk out with at least as much monthly income as I had.

"He never would, of course. He was attached to the store ten hours a day and he was growing old with it. A man like that won't let go."

BUYS INTO STORE

Mr. Peterson made a proposition to him. He would buy a $5,000 share of the store. That would be about one-third of its worth. Then he would learn how to sell children's shoes, would take over one-third of the hours that had to be worked in the store (it was a one-man operation), and would get one-third of the profits.

It took a lot of talking back and forth, with the wives, a lawyer and two sets of children involved in it. Finally Bill Stone agreed to deal after his wife had dangled the prospects of four free months each year before his eyes.

For Mr. Stone and Mr. Peterson it worked out like this: Mr. Peterson agreed to work in the store two months without charge, to learn the business. Mr. Stone would go away for one month. If things went satisfactorily, Mr. Stone would seller his other three months out one at a time during the year.

Then next year maybe he and Mrs. Stone would take the four months at once and go to Sweden for a visit.

A NEW CAREER

For Mr. Peterson it was a new career. "I've had my first month alone now, and with Mama helping me I've had about the most pleasant time of my life. I think the whole place. And Mama I just might take it."

Mr. Peterson didn't have $5 for his purchase. He took his savings and gambled with a small mortgage on the house.

You, in planning your retirement, will probably have no intention of selling shoes to children. But have you looked around to whether somebody your own has a small business? And what they might be eager to unload, piece of it on your shoulders. Corners of businesses, as well as hired help, grow weary at 65, if they often have no pensions to enable them to rest.

You can do worse than some thing like this. It's a job and come. It's something to keep you interested people, to give you a call for living. . . And, if you choose it can always be a second stab at fame and fortune.

Weddings

HURLIN — McMILLAN

Candlelight, white snapdragons and gladioli created a lovely background in St. Andrew's Church, Norwalk, Connecticut, Saturday, May 18th, for the marriage of Nancy Grace McMillan, of Baltimore, Maryland, daughter of Mrs. Wilbert Mc-Millan, of Bellleville, and the late Mr. McMillan, to John Calef Hurlin, of Baltimore, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall W. The reception, at which many out-of-town guests were present, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Hurlin.

Emilia Cundari Hopes to Make Concert Tour

TORONTO (CP)—Pretty Emilia Cundari, whose singing with the Metropolitan Opera Company has been praised by New York critics, hopes that before long she may make a concert tour of Canada.

The petite, dark-eyed lyric soprano, though born in Detroit, has lived in Windsor, Ont., since she was five, and feels Canada is her home.

Miss Cundari, appearing with the Met in its sixth Toronto engagement the role of Barbarina in The Marriage of Figaro on opening night, but her big scheduled role was that of Micaela in Carmen.

"I still suffer from stage fright but as soon as I sing my first note I forget myself completely," said Emilia in an interview.

"I have been thrilled with all my roles to date but my ambition is to become a prima donna."

At 23, Emilia is not interested in romance although she admits she would like to get married sometime in the future.

"One of the most exciting moments of my career was in 1953 when I read a New York critic's comment that my voice had a bright full tone, suited to opera and thrilling to hear," said the young singer.

Languages are no handicap to Emilia. She speaks French and Italian fluently and her knowledge of German is adequate.

Though an accomplished musician at 16, Emilia says "until I was 18 I wanted to be a lab technician. The turning point in my life was when I sang for Edward Johnson, a former general manager of the Met. He advised ...

St. Thomas' Parochial Guild Holds Pretty Spring Tea

Bright sunshine and warm breezes heralded the success of the spring tea held yesterday afternoon by St. Thomas' Parochial Guild.

Like one of Gainsborough's fair ladies of long ago was Mrs. J. Lewis in her long, white flowered and lace trimmed frock as she stood in the door of St. Thomas' rectory pinning yellow roses and lily-of-the-valley corsages on the in-coming guests from a basket on the crook of her arm. Adding to this unusually pretty picture were the large white baskets of mauve lilacs, white spirea, lemon lilies, and colorful tulips which scintillated the doorway.

Receiving the guests were Mrs. A. S. McConnell, wife of the rector, and Mrs. R. J. Pringle, president of the Parish Guild, who graciously welcomed each one with a cheery smile, a warm handclasp, into the spacious home with its baskets of fragrant flowers.

DELIGHTFUL TEA ROOM

The tea room, with its wide fireplace flanked with cosy chairs, snow white hedge of Van Houtt spirea, was delightfully arranged for the dainty lace covered table centered with a crystal bowl of sweet scented Illies-of-the-valley mingled with blue veronica, and flanked by tall mose-green candles in silver holders. On the tall white mantel two bowls of pink carnations, pink and white snapdragons and sprays of white spirea, lent a pleasing, appropriate the setting.

Presiding at the silver ser-vices were Mrs. A. W. Coulter, and Mrs. P. O. Jeffery; Mrs. J. E. Genet and Mrs. F. C. Gilbert; Mrs. B. Feather and Mrs. H. F. Alford; while Mrs. C. W. Coleman, Mrs. A. M. McLean, Mrs. G. Faulkner, Mrs. C. Wallbridge, Mrs. Dixon, Mrs. D. P. Herring, Mrs. D. G. Diamantides, Mrs. A. Walters, Mrs. T. Rose, Mrs. H. R. Tanner, Mrs. E. Levy and Miss Helen Graham, Replenishing were: Mrs. A. E. Purdy, Mrs. T. Y. Wills, Mrs. M. Davison and Mrs. F. Evans.

ARRANGING PLATES

Mrs. J. R. Barnes, Mrs. G. Hosang, Mrs. T. Kelly, Mrs. G. Goddard, Mrs. G. Bastable, Mrs. A. Simpson, Mrs. E. Jones, Mrs. J. Clarke and Mrs. C. Fisher were busy arranging plates, and Mrs. J. McKenne, Mrs. I. Johnson assisted in the kitchen duties.

Inviting the guests to the tea room was the hostesses, Mrs. A. Lewis and Mrs. G. Miller.

The homecooked room was redolent with spicy flavors from the delicious cakes, pies, tarts and nut breads; muffins, vanilla squares, angel cake, fruit cakes and onion breads. Jars of relish and jellies and jams were also for sale.

Assisting in the tea room were Mrs. I. Mastine, assisted by Meadames D. Foster, Green, Everett, S. Henn, R. Stone and G. Little.

Mrs. H. Murray was in charge of all corsages, and Mrs. H. Weller, the floral arranger, to both of whom a "well done" is extended in and to all the many who also gave of their time, making the spring tea a delightful one.

After a meeting of the executive committee, the visitors sat down to a delicious repast in the community church hall, after which the meeting began.

In the absence, through illness, of the president, Mrs. C. A. Smart, the vice-president, Mrs. Weir, Belleville, was in the chair, and spoke on the theme, "Thou Shalt Love the Lord Thy God."

'Cyprus' Topic At Women's Study Club

"Cyprus" was the topic under discussion at the May meeting of the Women's Study Guild, held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Archibald, Dufferin Ave.

During the business meeting conducted by the president, Miss Tickell, a nominating committee was appointed to draw up a slate of candidates for executive positions.

Mrs. Meades read a letter of thanks from the Guild's Italian Foster child.

The theme of the worship service, conducted by Mrs. Fry, was "Peace", and consisted of several selections from the Old Testament on that subject.

Mrs. Meldrum presented the history of Cyprus from three thousand B.C. to the present day. Because of it's strategic position in the Eastern Mediterranean, Cyprus has been invaded and ruled by many nations in its long history. In 1878 Britain acquired the island by treaty from Turkey. Great Britain rules the colony today by a Governor, assisted by an appointed Advisory Council.

Since the recent riots, Great Britain has offered to discuss self-determination with the Cypriot provided peace and order are restored to the island.

Mrs. Meades explained the factors which have led to the unrest in Cyprus. Economically Cyprus is better off than other Middle East countries but an expanding population within a limited land area, promises to bring eventual economic hardship. The split in favor union with Greece, while the Turkish minority favors for its safety should union occur.

British policy, governed by military considerations, favors keeping Cyprus as a colonial possession, throughout its turbulent history, the Archbishop of the Cypriot Orthodox church, has been the rallying point, and spokesman for the people. Because of Britain's refusal to recognize this fact, much bitterness has been created over the expulsion of the Archbishop. F.O.K.A., the terrorist resistance organization, consists of a group of only 300 fanatics, pledged to resist British influence by means of bombing and assassination.

Cyprus seems fated to remain for the present in its uneasy state as a British police station and listening post for the Eastern Mediterranean.

Discussion followed during the serving of refreshments by the hostesses, Mrs. Archibald and Miss Tickell.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

We find ourselves at the typewriter at an unusual time for us. It is early in the morning for us. The inducement that brought us to it. Beside us is a collection of material and notes for today's column.

For some inexplicable reason, the notes do not seem as interesting as they did last night. The wind which is not a wind at all, but only a slight current of air, is from the east. Smoke from the Bakelite plant in the chimney is floating off to the west. It is still very still if you disregard the roar of traffic in the distance and pay no attention to the wild chatter of countless birds. Last year we talked quite a bit about our feathered friends and of course as everyone knows they have been back for some time now.

Out a north window can be seen three dozen rows of straw-berry plants which at the moment show signs of promise of the promise of delicious dessert. Out of a south window falling lilacs still give off the fragrance which seeps into the room on the heavy air. Through the latter window can be seen a maple tree, which was planted a few years ago.

It is dull morning, really, so it is not the bright sunlight that takes our brain at times from our notes. It is the maple tree. My, how it grows! Its young shoots reach up and out as though reaching for some-thing even more their size. Maple tree, which was planted a few years ago.

It is dull morning, really, so it is not the bright sunlight that takes our brain at times from our notes. It is the maple tree. My, how it grows! Its young shoots reach up and out as though reaching for some-thing even more their size. Maple tree, which was planted a few years ago.

At the top of its spire is a pamphlet entitled "Posture's important when you are in your teens." Posture and maple tree; teens and vitality; spring and growth — they all tie in together some way. Who would deny that a youthful tree has the right to stand by her girl, has the summer, the autumn and the winter of her life before her? Who would deny that a tree which grows straight and correctly in spring will develop into a healthier grown-up than the bent sprig of early promise? Who can say that there is so much which could be learned from the struggle for existence going all about us, even if we only sat at a window. Spring — the season of growth and promise. Spring, a time of responsibility for boys and girls, but a promise of which, for the most part, today's boys and girls, like crocuses of yesteryear, are unaware. Before D. D. T. comes on this day one week from now, our collegiates, secondary and high schools will be emptied of the real bodies and the real noise of thousands of Canadian students. It is unlikely they consider, with examinations being just around the corner, that spring is the time of growth and that their mental posture develops hand in hand with their physical development and stature.

A maple tree and a pamphlet coupled with an early morning rising must be blamed for bringing this detour about. We assure our readers that T & T is going to be careful not to rise at such an early hour often, at least not to do the column.

We wish good luck to the boys and girls writing examinations shortly, and we wish good luck as well to young maples everywhere.

More about the population and food problem which we have been considering in the past few columns. It is an interesting fact that the output of food is relatively much higher in lands where few people work for the farms than in those lands where most of the population is on the land. Liberty have offered a double-headed answer to the problem: 1. To level off the growth of population, balancing births with deaths, to a point of stability... 2. To increase and better distribute the food supply.

Japan has taken the most effective action against overrapid growth of populations and has experienced the most rapid decline in the birth rate ever recorded. Over half the human race lives in Asia.

It is imperative that more food be produced in the world, for people who are hungry are inclined to be restless and unhappy. In ancient Roman days, Seneca observed, "A hungry people will not endure reason; they will not listen to justice; they will not bend to the arts of mercy." Writes Mr. Robert Hatch, editor of the "Journal of Heredity," "Until national leaders face up to the distasteful fact that population is the most potent cause of international tension, world peace will hang by a thread, a thread which is under heavier tension each passing day." And for that one we thought provoking quotation for this first of June weekend.

Going Places

Plan Active Summer Vacation And Halt Boredom's Advances

By SHIRLEY AND BOB SLOANE

Now comes the time of year when the dining room table blossoms out with road maps and colored brochures, and the family sits down to disagree on where it wants to go for its summer vacation.

Since, in the United States and Canada, there are seven or eight million square miles and 3,000,000 miles of paved highways to traverse; 190,000,000 people to visit in about 128,000 communities; and more streams, rivers, lakes, mountains, resorts, golf courses, and historical sites than we could enumerate if we knew, it would be pointless here and now to suggest places.

But perhaps we can help you to guide yourself according to your own lights. Therein, after all, lies the secret of a happy holiday. First a few don'ts.

Unless you're old or infirm, don't plan a vacation expecting to do nothing but sit in the shade and "relax."

After about three days you'll have relaxed everything except your ears. You'll become bored and probably start worrying about all the things you were putting behind you, and you'll eat so much and get so lazy you'll feel worse when you get home than before you left.

SECRET OF FUN

We know you're all tired out of every-day — but the secret of fun is recreation, not inactivity. Why do you suppose that so many persons constantly are being urged to do something fruitful with their time last boredom become a way of life?

This is not by way of urging you to avoid quiet resorts. But if you go to one, you should plan fishing or boating or swimming or golf or hiking and be prepared to enjoy these appeals of places.

Which brings us to our second don't: don't take the kind of vacation someone else thinks you ought to take.

If you've never cared for sitting in a boat and waiting for a fish to wake you up, don't think you're going to start liking it now.

Be realistic about what constitutes your pleasures. ♯

Perhaps seeing the ball games on television has made you nostalgic for your youth and the sunny days when the crack of the bat resounded over the bright green grass. Why not spend a few days in the city and take it in again?

Do what you really know, from experience, you'll enjoy doing. And do what you can't do the rest of the year.

In families, this takes a degree of cooperation. Mom may want to collect some antiques, Dad some parimutuel tickets, Daughter some sun tan, and Junior some fish. Talk it over, narrow down your choices and usually a little bit of everything can be worked into a two weeks' motor tour.

If you have those two weeks you've been waiting for during the past 50, plan to allow a week going, and a week coming.

Don't assume there are a couple of spots at which you'll want to stay put and take things in for a couple of days. Thus, at a leisurely 200-miles-a-day pace, travelling first out of the seven days each way, you can range as much as 1,000 miles from home comfortably.

DON'T OVERPLAN

You'll want to get a regional road map from your filling station and using a length of string gauged to the map scale, (allow something shortening the range) draw a circle at a radius of 1,000 miles from home. Within that circle you'll undoubtedly find enough big cities, resort areas, lakes, natural wonders and historic sites to satisfy any vacationist. Detailed state maps will pinpoint the attractions for you.

Where you'll need reservations, such as at a resort hotel, consult any travel agent for free advice. The rest of the trip on this kind of varied vacation, you can play by ear.

This is not by way of urging you to go to one, you should do don't — don't plan to hitchhike, don't — under circumstances, or the desire to do something you hadn't planned on, may kick a hole in your trip, and being strapped with too many reservations and unchangeable plans can spoil one of travelling's favorite treats — doing by the seat of your pants.

In this day of dependable travel conditions and simple long distance communication, only two things really limit your trip — money and time. We'll talk about the budget next week.

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOU HAVE NOTHING TO WORRY ABOUT

Here is a real funny one, folks!

A young woman who, so far as I can tell from her description of herself, seems to be delightfully adaptable in her relationship with people, thinks there must be something wrong with her on that account.

She does have another problem; a problem which is a fairly common one for a young woman her age—20—who is about to be married, and I think perhaps her confusion on this particular problem so colors her thinking that she's lost her sense of proportion about other things.

Let's dispose of the much smaller problem first and then go on to what seems to be the real one. Sometimes she says she seems to herself "like the biggest phony living." And the reason, strange as it may seem, is that she can adapt herself so thoroughly with people to their interests and similar to her own different.

"My fiance and I can go out with friends and have a wonderful time, different way of living, in regard to interests, education and background. Then, friends we might go out with the following night," she writes, "and I can lose myself fully with either group. When I'm with one group, I can't quite be in the other at all. I can't say, 'do anything they do and feel perfectly at ease.' And the very next night I find myself sitting in a theatre listening to Carmen or La Traviata and I enjoy myself to the fullest, even though that performance will be very quiet, refined and subtle.

"To me this just doesn't make sense."

Well, it makes sense to me—a lot of sense.

It makes me feel that here is a young woman who can adapt herself to fit in with any group, whatever type group with whom she happens to be associated, and this is a real gift. Not everybody has such a gift, by any means, and she should consider herself very lucky, indeed. For it will mean that wherever friends may go and her husband make, as time goes on, whether singly or together, will find her friendly, congenial and charming. It will be a tremendous asset not only to herself but to her husband as well.

She has no problem; indeed, something to be thankful for, she should give thanks

As for her more serious problem, I think that here, too, she's worrying needlessly.

The man she is going to marry is, she tells me, "a wonderful fellow" although he's not quite old enough for "a nicer guy in every way."

She is concerned about is that, although she and her fiance have known each other for many years, and she has always been certain that she's "madly in love with him," she has lately found herself having "unbearable moods" in which she feels "completely mixed up and doesn't know why."

"One day I want to get married in a month or so, the next I don't want. I frankly don't care. Yet I don't want to call off the wedding, that's about the only thing I'm really sure of. I just don't even know how to explain how I feel."

If this young woman thinks she has only herself to blame for that exactly this sort of experience, then she simply doesn't know how to analyze her own feelings; her wedding day gets nearer and nearer, and she is going through a completely normal—the confusion of feeling, the doubts, the fears—that many girls in her position get married at the same time and not understanding why.

All I can say is, that if she follows the usual pattern, and I'm quite sure she will, she is going to be just as happy a bride as she hopes to be, and that, with her quality for friendliness and adaptability, she will also be a very happy wife.

Relax, honey, and go ahead with your plans. Pay no attention to your doubts and fears. They'll all disappear when you walk down the aisle.

Mother's Helper

REFRESHMENTS might be served first at your child's party, both as an "appetizer" and as a preparation against spoiling appetites for supper. And most mothers will appreciate your keeping candy favors at a minimum.

Balloons or tiny inexpensive toys are good substitutes.

Jesus, the name high over all,
In hell, or earth, or sky.
Angels and men before it fall,
And devils fear and fly.

Jesus, the name to sinners dear,
The name to sinners given!
It scatters all their guilty fear,
It turns their hell to heaven.

O that the world might taste and see
The riches of His grace!
The arms of love that compass me
Would all mankind embrace.

His only righteousness I show,
His saving truth proclaim;
'Tis all my business here below
To cry, "Behold the Lamb!"

Charles Wesley, who helped his brother John launch the religious movement which became known as Methodism, composed this following an unusual preaching experience in an English prayer-meeting one summer night in 1744. The service was held in a church at Lanesast, in Cornwall.

Wesley was in the middle of a stirring sermon on sin when an intoxicated man in the pews arose and challenge some of his statements. From then on the man in the pulpit spoke directly to his challenger. When he asked whether the heckler actually was willing to "defend the devil" and received an affirmative answer, Wesley's verbal drive on sin became so vigorous that the man left the church.

The service was scarcely over before Wesley began planning his hymn and the writing began next day. When the verses were first published they bore the title, "Attempt in Preaching In A Church".

Christ Church C. C. Sponsors 'Coffee Delight Nite'

Wednesday evening a "Coffee Delight Nite," was held in Christ Church parish hall under the sponsorship of the Couples' Club, with Mr. H. McCormick and Mrs. M. Fletcher, as convenors.

PRETTY BOOTHS

The various booths with their pretty decorations were convened by Trudy Sands and Nancy Mapes. Linda Wilson was engaged in selling the delectable confections including chiffed cream pie; Lemon pie; Edna Kirkconnal and June Woodley.

The harvest post with its tempting packages of the "unknown" was in charge of Mrs. Hancock who made a charming postmistress.

The novelty booth, convened by Barbara Bertram, and Thelma Saunders, was a drawing card for many, who took advantage of the oddments which would answer a long-desired want at a reasonable price.

Across of many colors, materials, and designs drew the housewifely attention of many, who chose from their aprons, and the all-over heavy-duty aprons which ever supersede in their sense of beauty and usefulness. These were convened by Bunny McLean; Ina Carter, and Marion Carter.

The shower gift stall, convened by Phyllis Fisher and Marg. Shappee, who was overseer of the fine assortment of lovely things one would like to give to bride-to-be.

At the children's booth, were all sorts of clothing, sweaters, socks, little dresses, all attractive and lovely. They were convened by Trudy Sands, assisted by Myra Cresswell; Betty Ling; Catherine Bilsen Magahay; Barbara Sweet, and Freida Patterson.

Appreciation thanks are tendered Betty Ling; Joan Taylor; Florence Lennox; Barbara Sweet and Thelma Saunders for the pretty decorations which adorned the coffee room, and which lent such a delightful atmosphere to the occasion. Congratulations also are tendered the convenors of the Coffee Delight Nite, and their assistants for a successful event.

Anniversary of God's Law

By DR. HOWARD V. HARPER

Ascensionide — Christians are now in the midst of the short season of Ascensiontide, which began last Thursday and will continue through this week. According to the book of Acts, Jesus ascended on the 40th day after Easter and the Holy Spirit descended on the disciples on the 50th day. This brief season commemorates that ten-day interim.

Pentecost — A period of marking time for those early Christians. They were not at all clear about how the Lord's promises were to materialize, and they were greatly worried about what would happen if the Jews laid hands on them.

St. Luke, in Acts, chapter 1, verse 13 to the end of the chapter, tells that they spent the ten days in the upper room and in "continued in prayer." Their only specific recorded action during this time was the election of Matthias to replace the traitor Judas and bring the number of the Apostles again to 12.

Weeksday, June 5 — On the sixth of Sivan, 50 days after Passover, comes Shabuot, the Feast of Weeks. It is the festival that ends the seven weeks of the grain harvest, and was originally named the Feast of the Harvest. It has another name, too — Pentecost, which is a Greek word meaning "fifty."

The harvesting of grain began in the spring with the reaping of the barley crop and ended with the wheat at the wheat. Nothing could have been more natural to a nation of farmers than a time of rejoicing when the hard labor of this season was over, and nothing could have been more natural to a religious people than the offering of a sacrifice and prayers of thanksgiving. The agricultural tone of the festival dates from Jewish history. It must have begun after the Jews settled in the Promised Land and became tillers of the soil.

Of course Shabuot could not remain a farmers' festival after the Jews lost their homeland and dispersed among nations. So, instead of dying out, it adjusted to the changing situation. It took on a new historical significance and a new spiritual content. It came to be considered the anniversary of the time when God first entered into His covenant with man and gave the Law—the Ten Commandments—to Moses.

And that is the chief meaning of Shabuot today—and annual commemoration of the day the Jews first received the Law, their greatest spiritual treasure.

Within the last century, Reform Jews in America have made Shabuot the traditional day for the confirmation of their young people. In former times this rite (called Bar Mitzvah) was for boys only and took place on the Sabbath nearest a boy's 13th birthday. It was mainly a private celebration within the family.

Among modern Reform Jews the name has been changed to Confirmation, girls have been included, this one day in the year has been set for the ceremony, and it has been made a community-wide occasion.

Shabuot, the day on which the entire nation first confirmed its faith, seemed obviously the appropriate day for the confirmation of Jewish young people in that faith.

CAUGHT IN AN ERROR

For the soul, there is nothing like honest confession. A Tulsa, Okla., reader catches us in a mile stake and all we can do is to admit our error.

In the column for Holy Week we said, "Lent ends at noon today (Holy Saturday). As far as we know, only the Roman Catholic church has ever had any definite ruling about the termination of Lent, and it was revised by the Pope on Feb. 14 of this year. It now continues until Saturday midnight. We should have known that in other churches where Lent is observed, the close of the season has always been at midnight Saturday, though this was not decreed by an official ruling.

B.P.W. Club Will Continue Scholarship Grant

The regular monthly meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club was held recently at the home of Mrs. Dorothy Brown. Mrs. Sidney McMullen presided.

During the meeting, boxes of needed articles were packed for Hungarian relief.

Following a brief discussion, the club decided to continue their Nurses' Scholarship for a second year to Miss Patricia Rowland, winner of the scholarship for 1956, as well as present one to a new winner, for 1957. This is given to the most deserving girl graduating from BCIVH and entering nursed training at Belleville General Hospital.

The council meeting of Monday, and particularly the motion to terminate the services of Mr. Dennis Horring as city manager, was widely discussed by the members.

Members decided that the annual meeting and installation of officers for the 1957-1958 year will take place at Maple Inn, Bloomfield, on June 24th. Following adjournment, coffee was served.

A water softener added to hard water will double the life of soaps, soap or detergents go further, water heating bills lower, and plumbing maintenance costs less.

GOOD MANNERS

FACTS ON WEDDING RECEPTION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. These are the plans. The bride and groom are to be married in the parsonage in the afternoon. Then they, with the matron of honor and her husband and the best man and his wife, are to have dinner together, and return for an evening reception. The aunt of the groom-to-be insists it is not proper to have a large reception (about 20 guests) when the wedding is at the parsonage. She says they should just have a shower. Please tell us which is proper.

2 Should the bride and groom arrive at the reception after some of the guests have arrived? Or should they be on hand in a receiving line to greet the guests?

3. Should the bride's sister and her husband be invited to be master and mistress of ceremonies, or may a friend and her husband be asked?—R. M.

1. When the marriage ceremony takes place in a parsonage, it is entirely proper to have a reception of this size, or even larger, but the wedding party would not be correct to have a shower instead of a reception.

2. The bride and groom should arrive well in advance of the hour appointed for the reception, and so that the receiving line may be formed and in progress in order to receive the guests.

3 The bride's sister and her husband would probably be a wise choice since they probably would know most of the guests, and certainly those to be called on for toasts. However, there is no rule about who is invited for these responsibilities.

COMBINING INVITATION TO WEDDING AND RECEPTION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We are going to have a large formal church wedding, and afterward we are to have a large reception at our country club. The church to be invited to the reception) at the club is the church to which we belong. Will you please give us the correct wording for this if we can expect a present?

Here is the correct form:

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Williams request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter Grace

Mr. Kenneth Browne at four o'clock on Tuesday, the ninth of July Centre Church Haven Corners and afterward at Dale Country Club Kindly send response to 123 Fourth Street

SHOULD FRIENDS GIVE NEW OWNERS HOUSEWARMING?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have a question which is at the moment of special importance to us. Recently we bought a home in the town we have been building, and very soon we will have the furniture and furnishings in place and can quite a long time to plan these, as the house is not finished. We would like to give a Housewarming, but we're not familiar with the proper way to go about this. We'd like to know if it is right for the owners of the new house to give the Housewarming, or are we supposed to wait for a friend to give it for us? Should it be a surprise? — EDL

It is quite "right" for the new householders to give their Housewarming. Not only is this perfectly right, but from my point in my judgment, much wiser. From a practical point of view it seems to me more satisfactory for the hostess and host to decide when they are ready for it, and be ready for the welcoming-of-friends, then they can make their own plans as to what day, what hours, what-to-serve, what type of service, and every other detail of the housewarming party. However, it is certainly not incorrect, even though not customary, for a friend or a group of friends to plan a "surprise" Housewarming; though the new householders should not take this for granted, and certainly should not wait for this gesture.

TO TAN OR NOT TO TAN?

This is the season when gals will just have to make up their minds—to or not to tan? And the decision may be a little more difficult in this summer of 1957 since, for the past few months, fashion models has been placed on the pale face, only slightly made up.

Demon sun-worshippers will, of course, pooh-pooh Dame Fashion and become veritable "nut brown mades" before the season's half over, but more fashion-conscious girls may decide to skip the sun this year and retain the gardenia like complexions they've been cultivating for, lo, these many weeks You'll never see them without broad-brimmed hats; shoulders and arms will be covered when they're exposed to sunlight; and it will probably be those "Miss Elaines" who'll be sporting the pretty parasols so popular this year. O'l Sol won't stand a chance with them.

But he won't stand much of a chance with the sun-worshippers, unless they're careful. For it's one thing to acquire a lovely coat of tan but quite another to become the victim of those "burning" rays. Skin from too much "worshipping" of So, if you're going to take it easy. First exposures should be brief—five or ten minutes at the most—and the skin should be well lubricated with a suntan cream or lotion. In fact, before spending long days at the beach or in the open country, it would be well to get in a few short tanning sessions at home—in your backyard, on the terrace, wherever it's most convenient.

Once your skin has begun to show its golden hue, you can, within reason, disregard time limits. But don't neglect your creams and lotions. If you want to keep your skin soft and supple, and avoid those wrinkles caused by over-exposure, it must have a generous anointing after every sun bath, use a light cream for cleansing purposes. Never use soap and water immediately after exposure or just before going out into the sunlight.

One more note of warning: Don't take chances because you happen to be a vivid brunette. True, brunettes can take more tanning than their fair-haired sisters, but a burn or blister quite as easily, but their skins can and do burn, and burn painfully. Proper care. And since when has a hide-like complexion been a beauty asset?

Answer: We enjoy you American girls too. I think you should be pleased to be called "Miss" . . . they are quite a few more than six children under 3 years out this summer. I'll bet the nurses are startled at the amount of food that boys and girls between the ages of 8 and 18 consume—everything in sight!

If time is leftover you will just have to parcel it out to be taken home by those with the largest families to be used at once. Between 16 and 18 lbs. boneless, fat-trimmed cooked ham. Allow 1/2 cup baked beans is the quantity that will result from starting with 7 lbs. (recipe ingredients: 14 cups navy beans, 1 large onion, 1 cup, 1 1/2 lbs. lean salt pork, 1 1/4 cups molasses, 7 teaspoons salt, 1 1/4 teaspoons pepper, 7 teaspoons dry mustard, water for soaking beans, plus water added.) One quart slaw serves 12 adequately but I would advise providing 1 quart each of cole slaw, pickles, olives, 2 12-stalk heads celery; amount of carrots is optional. Cut into a large number of small pieces; amount of potato chips is optional — regardless of how many you buy it will be eaten. They are an extravagant luxury but a delicious one. Allow 25 oranges; 20 apples and 60 bananas. Allow at least 2 or 3 dozen cookies each, especially if homemade. Lemonade — 1 10-oz. pint each. You

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

If any Eastern Ontario Senior "A" Hockey League players have made reservations in Oslo and other European centres in anticipation of visiting them as a Canadian hockey player come February next, they can cancel them pronto.

For they're going to be good little boys and stay home to play with their own clubs. Because none of them will be invited to join the Whitby Dunlops on their European safari in quest of world honors.

And our authority for that statement is none other than the Dunlop hockey impresario, one Wren Blair.

And before you jump to any conclusions, flip your lid or make any rash statements, read what the man has to say.

We talked with the tonsillar dynamo yesterday and to describe him as being as happy as junior with a new electric train is merely scratching the surface.

We hit him squarely between the figurative eyes with the query "Are you including any Eastern League stars in the six players granted you by the CAHA?"

He left-hooked back "No."

And before we blurted the logical "Why not?" he went on in his rapid-fire manner "I am not taking any players from our league, because I think it is the best senior "A" loop in the country — and I want it to remain that way."

There are two or three players, I won't name them, in the Eastern League I would like to have, but I don't want to weaken any of the clubs."

"In short," Blair went on, "I would like to see our league win the Allan Cup again next year — and I firmly believe that one of the clubs, with proper strengthening can turn the trick. I believe Belleville, with five or six good players added will be as good a senior club as there will be in the country.

"Are you taking the Dunlops over in their entirety?" Blair was asked.

"No," he said, "I am taking the top twelve players. I cannot name them at the moment, but I believe this dozen with the added six will be good enough to bring the baton home from Sweden, Russia or any other European club."

Blair said he hopes to make his selection of the six players allotted him early enough so the team will get into training as a whole by probably September.

He declined to mention any players he might have in mind, but in this corner's opinion he won't be satisfied with anything but the best. And he won't make his selections in a hurry.

The club that will represent Canada next February will play in the Eastern League until late January then withdraw for the European trip. It will not take part in the Eastern League playoffs upon it's return. This will snap the Whitby string of Eastern championships.

Some of the scribbling boys have already columned suggestions as to what players Blair should select — but they are merely wasting their time and ribbons. The little man will make his own selections — and the devil take the hindmost.

However if the cat can look at the king, we protrude the neck far enough to suggest that Kitchener's Ken Laufman, Jack McKenzie and Don Rope would not exactly weaken the Dunlops.

Besides McKenzie, Rope and Laufman have played hockey in Europe and their experience would stand them in good stead. They could give the Dunlops some topflight assistance with their know-how of European play, players and whatnot.

Chicago's Last - stepping White Sox pushed into a four-game lead—their largest of the season—in the American League with some second division help Friday night as veteran Bob Keegan fourth Detroit for a 6-0 victory in his first shutout in three years and first complete game since last August.

White Sox, winning their fourth in the last five games on a grand slam homer by Walt Dropo and a two-run homer by Sherm Lollar, boosted in as Baltimore's seventh-place Orioles smacked New York Yankees 3-1 and seventh-place Kansas City Athletics tripped Cleveland 3-1. The loss sent the third-place Indians five games off the pace.

In the other game, Washington rallied in the ninth to defeat Boston 3-2.

Lollar's seventh home run headed Frank Lary to his seventh defeat and White Sox to their 15th victory in the last 19 games in the first inning. Dropo then became the latest to belt two grand-slammers this season in the manners with his wrap-up clout in the eighth. Keegan, hurling his first since last September, gave up only singles, stopped two and walked just one. The 35-year-old right-hander last had a shutout on May 7, 1956—also against Detroit, 8-0.

The White Sox' fourth victory over Tiger Frank Lary in seven starts this season and Dixie Howell Phillips was dusted in the first inning and then was tripped back from his grasp and spun to within six feet of the mound. In the eighth, Howell was pushed back by another Lary pitch and started for the mound, but in both cases plate umpire Ed Rommel and catcher Fran House intervened.

CHAMPS FIVE-HIT

At Pilarcik drove in two Oriole runs, one with his second home run of the season—and second in two days—as Yankees dropped their third decision in the last four, all against eights, to place Washington and the Birds. Ray Moore, 31 today, was hit the champs. Bob Turley lost it, forcing in the final Oriole run in the sixth with a third consecutive walk.

Ned Garver held Indians to four singles and was backed up by Billy Hunter's two-run homer off loser Cal McLish and three double plays by the A's. Garver, who had a three-hitter in his last start against Detroit, now is 4-3.

The Senators made it five out of six on Jim Lemon's two-out single in the 10th that scored Herbie Plews with the clinching run, an unearned leaguer, as hand Tom Brewer his fourth defeat.

It was a merry month of May for Philadelphia Phillies. They suddenly took on the look of a contender in the National League race by shoving in with the likes of Cincinnati, Brooklyn and Milwaukee.

Figured a fifth or fourth place finisher at best and nowhere near the big three in pre-season calculations, Phillies are sixth, five games out of first on May 1. Today, June 1, they're tied with Milwaukee for third place, 2½ games from first and a half-game from second. It's the first time since the first of May.

Only Cincinnati, with a 20-7 record (.741) topped the Phils in that span as the Redlegs hustled into the league lead. Brooklyn was an almost-break-even 14-12 (.538) and Milwaukee was a horrible 13-14 (.481) as Braves tumbled out of first place.

ROOKIES AND VETS

The Phils have done it with a blend of rookies and veterans, although it was a trio of old-timers who hoisted the club into a tie for third with a 21-7 victory over second-place Brooklyn Friday night while Braves were losing 4-3 to the St. Louis Cardinals. Reds also was rained out.

Robin Roberts won his fifth on a six-hitter and Willie Jones' two-run triple in the fourth inning—the second, incidentally, scored by young Don Drysdale's string of hitless innings against the Phils at 11 2-3 with a one-out double in the frame.

New York Giants rallied to beat Pittsburgh 3-2 in the other game.

15TH GOPHER BALL

Roberts, who had lost six, could not escape a home-run pitch, giving up his 15th and Roy Campanella's seventh in the seventh inning, but became the first Philadelphia pitcher to beat Dodgers this season as Phillies won their seventh in the last 10. It was Brooklyn's third defeat in the last five games—all one-run decisions.

Boots kid Lindy McDaniel was wild and gave Braves nine hits. But Cards backed him up with 11 hits against rookie Juan Pizarro with Eddie Kasko four-for-four and Stan Musial three on the triple marker in the sixth and the winner in the eighth. Wally Moon drove in Kasko after Musial had after doubling to stretch his hitting streak to 24 games.

Willie Mays upped his string to 9 games with an eighth-inning home run and a ninth-inning single that gave the Giants' winning run on Ray Katt's sacrifice fly as Al Worthington beat the Pirates in relief.

Hamilton Edges Niagara 6-5; Terriers Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dan Levandowski, who is pinch-hitter, relief pitcher and in his spare time manager of Hamilton Beavers, Friday night came on in relief for the second night running and salvaged the Beavers' third win in Great Lakes-Niagara district Senior baseball play.

Levandowski, who played outfield for the now defunct Hamilton Red Sox entry in the Pony League, put out the fire in the eighth and saved a 6-5 victory over Niagara Falls Kerrios in the home opener at the Falls.

In a Senior Intercounty game, Bob Trafford's homer and a triple good for four runs, sparked Gt., Terriers to a 10-5 win over Listowel Legionnaires in Listowel.

Hamilton went into 3-3 in the eighth, Beavers came up with four hits for three runs and the winning margin.

WINNER ON BASE

Kerrios got to starter, and winner, Eric Lomas in the bottom of the eighth for two runs and had the tying and winning runs on base with two out when Levandowski came in and retired the side on a fly ball to centre. Earlier in the game Kerrios down in order in the ninth.

Gord Johnson started for Kerrios and took the loss.

Trouble for Listowel dated to the Legionaire loss. Two of their six errors came in the fifth inning after Gait led 3-0 lead. All of them proved costly as Terriers were limited to only four earned runs.

A rhubarb resulted in the third when base umpire Frank Slota called Listowel's George Arlein out for trying to touch third base after he had been tripled home by Red Dubrick. Dubrick banished Listowel coach Ken Benjamin from the park but had to contend with a group of angry Legionaire fans after the game.

HOMER BREAKS THE

Trafford's homer in the fifth broke up a 3-3 deadlock. Ray Boomer also tripled for the Terriers and collected runs on their five trips to the plate.

Larry Hill drove allowed five hits and was credited with the victory. Jerry Binkle struck out four and was charged with the loss.

Terriers now have two wins and one loss. Listowel is winless in three games.

Tonight a full slate is scheduled in the Intercounty. Guelph Platmounts are in St. Thomas to meet Elgins, Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen visit Listowel and Oakville Canadians are looking for their fourth straight win when they meet the Terriers in Galt.

In the Great Lakes-Niagara loop Welland meets Brantford Red Sox in Brantford, Port Colborne-Tonawanda N.Y., Genesee Warriors journey to London to meet the Majors.

GET A BETTER WRIST SNAP BY LINING UP MIDDLE KNUCKLES ON BAT.

LEARN TO HIT ANY PITCH THAT'S OVER THE PLATE BETWEEN THE KNEES AND ARMPITS.

BATTERS CAN HIT HIGH PITCHES FURTHER BECAUSE THEY CAN SWING THE BAT FASTER AT THE CHEST LEVEL.

While some hitters like Mickey Mantle and Duke Snider have so much strength that they can hit any kind of pitch which is in the strike zone for a home run, many others find that they must hit a pitch between the chest and waist if they want to get extra-base blows.

Research has proved that it is more difficult to get distance when you hit low pitches, so smart pitchers try to keep the ball below the belt on most batters. Luke Sewell has observed that you can make a "singles hitter" out of most sluggers with a knee-high pitch.

Scouting reports on the top teams in the major leagues last year will give you another clue. For instance, these reports show that Bill Skowron, Roy Campanella and Ted Kluszewski "murder" high pitches, and that it is a good idea to pitch top-notch hitters as Enos Slaughter, Billy Martin, Hank Bauer, Carl Furillo, Del Crandall, Johnny Logan, Gus Bell and Ed Bailey..

Scot, American Reach Final British Amateur

FORMBY, England (CP) — A Glasgow Scot and a U.S. Air Force sergeant won their way into the finals of the British amateur golf championships today.

Reid Jack, Glasgow, defeated Alton Bussell, 20-year-old fellow Scot, 2 and 2 in a semi-final match while Harold Ridgeley, 42-year-old American, defeated Arthur Walker of South Africa 13 and 12. The Ridgeley-Walker match was one of the most lopsided victories in the 72-year history of the tournament.

Come Come, Mister Martin The Yanks Are No Supermen

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK (AP)—The best series of sports pictures we have seen in quite a spell was run by one of the local newspapers the other day.

It showed Billy Martin, Yankee second baseman, muffing a routine ground ball; Mickey Mantle, centre fielder, having a fly ball pop out of his glove, and Mantle and left fielder Elston Howard crashing together as both tried to get the putout on another fly ball.

The cutline accompanying the pictures was enlightening. It read: "Are These the Yankees?"

NEARLY PERFECT

The point is that the Yankees for years have been the symbol of excellence, or near-perfection.

Other clubs might bobble ground balls, mess up fly ball or get their signals mixed in the field with the calm and sedate Yanks taking full advantage of the misplays.

But not the Yankees, those businessmen ball players who made the difficult play look easy; who came through with the big hit when it was needed; who sent pitchers to the mound who made the opposing batsmen walk back to the bench talking to themselves.

To date the Yankees haven't been the Yankees of song and story. They are up there battling for the lead, but it hasn't been through sheer excellent play so much as the other teams' inability to take advantage of very ordinary play.

SLOPPY BASEBALL

They've been playing sloppy baseball, that's all.

Something has gone wrong. They are scrambling, instead of playing a polished game.

Yogi Berra, of course, hasn't been hitting. Neither have some of the other players. But that shouldn't affect the defense, always a strong point of the New York club. Or the pitching, which always has been good enough to hold the opposition in check while the sluggers miraculously got busy.

You can't blame it on overconfidence. With men of almost unparalleled ability vieing for jobs overconfidence shouldn't be apparent.

It's just one of those things which make baseball so intriguing. The perfect team is showing its feet of clay. We still believe the Yankees will win, but on their play to date you have to have a few doubts.

Referee Rules 'No Contest' In O'Connor, Kiniski Bout

By GEORGE R. GARVEY
Sports Editor

Was Bunny Dunlop "ter or fernished" at Memorial Arena last night? That was the question.

Was he "fernished the O'Connor of "ter" La Kiniski?

Anyway, the British Empire heavyweight wrestling crown still perches jauntily on the crew-cut noggin of the gentleman from Edmonton.

It all ended up in a nice peaceful ringside brawl that would have made an American politician convention look like a baptism.

As matters stood, tonight's sagging-tummied Bunny who was sent here to referee but at times was a spectator with the best seat in the house, declared the bout "No Contest" which merely paved the way for a rematch next Friday providing there is enough left of Kiniski to appear.

For it seems a crowd of irate fans lowered the Kiniski boom near the dressing rooms alley way and launched on a brief course of stomp-kicking.

It also seems that Genial Gene cleared a path for himself by charging through the center of the line for a dressing-room touchdown.

All this followed hectic goings on in, out and around the ring which are those of festivities after the boys had divided honors in the first two falls.

The initial explosion occurred when O'Connor heaved Kiniski out of the ring. Then Kiniski reversed the procedure and Pat found himself looking into the eyes of the blonde in the third row back. The pair battled on the apron then dropped more plumb into the centre of a crowd of milling spectators.

They tossed fists willy-nilly at each other while Bunny was making grimaces and mystic signs topside.

O'Connor was the first to realize what was going on and leaped back into the ring. But Bunny said "No dice, look the fun's over and you've both had it".

Kiniski got back into action and the pair danced over to shake with Bunny threatening to give the match to Kiniski if O'Connor persisted in pushing his fist under the official schnozzle.

So Kiniski and O'Connor re-sumed the fray without benefit of the official blessing. They ended the public part of the battle by Kiniski leaping out of the ring after disdaining what he thought was the coup-de-grace to the foeman, and doing a John Landy to the dressing room but-ty pursued by an infuriated O'-Connor.

Then came the fond farewells near the dressing rooms.

The pair took the first fall with a knee-bend backbreaker hold after 28 minutes of torrid tussling. Both of O'Connor trunks to advantage or disadvantage on occasions with Bunny recovering precariously on his embonpoint well outside the line of vision. Kiniski ignored the work of untying several times and the gentle lad was forced to wham him in the chops.

La Dunlop, too, made like a referee. Kiniski got the same old toughie took the measure of Don Lewin after fifteen minutes of mayhem and mixed matters in the first two falls.

Leafs Edge Montreal 2-1; Bisons Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ask Buffalo pitcher Glenn Cox which is his favorite team in the International League and the answer was got to be Rochester.

The 27-year-old Indian right-hander limited the three hits, including two home runs and a double and batted in four runs as Buffalo trounced Rochester 12-1 Friday night. It was Cox' second successive victory over Rochester. In last Sunday's 8-0 triumph he also homered twice, including one with the bases loaded.

Cox, in addition to his perfect day at the plate, limited the Red Wings to six scattered hits and had a shutout until Ronnie Plaza homered in the eighth. The victory ended a three-game Buffalo losing streak and Rochester's four-game winning skein.

Richmond came from behind with two late inning rallies to build a six-game winning streak. Columbus took a 5-3 lead as the Virginians exploded for four runs in the seventh and eighth. Tom Carroll's tremendous triple drove home three runners in the eighth climaxed Richmond's scoring, breaking a 6-6 tie.

Toronto catcher Bob Rorelli's first homer of the season broke a 1-1 tie with Montreal. Veteran Connie Ryan's single, advancing Genial Gene off the ropes.

Doug Ford Tops Field in Round Robin Golf Tourney

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP)—Masters champion Doug Ford, taking command of the Wykagyl round robin golf tournament with two rounds to play, said today, "I'm playing so well, it scares me."

Then he added:

"I've been on this streak since last September. I'm keeping my fingers crossed. I'm hoping it lasts for the National open a couple of weeks from now."

The open is scheduled June 13-15 at the Inverness club in Toledo, Ohio.

Going into the semi-final round-with each player matching his medal score against those of the others in his foursome-Ford had a score of plus-28. He moved ahead of the early front runner, Ben Hogan, who dropped to second with plus 31. In third place was Sam Snead plus-13, followed by two young pros, Fred Hawkins and Dow Finsterwald, plus-10 each.

AGAINST OPEN CHAMP

Today Ford was matched with National open champion Cary Middlecoff, while Hogan teamed up Peter Thomson of Australia and Gene Littler, the eighth ranking money winner in golf's most promising comer. In Sunday's showdown, Ford is slated to go against Hogan, Snead and Venturi.

Ford shot two brilliant sub-par rounds in the second and third rounds to take the early lead. He had a morning 66, five under Wykagyl's par 71, and a gruelling afternoon 69 on the tough course record set by Middlecoff in 1949 and matched by Ben Hogan's best round last Wednesday.

Ford is the only player in the tournament who hasn't lost ground to at least one opponent.

Hogan, the front runner through the first two rounds, shot a 69 in the afternoon third round but came back with a 74 on the Scarsdale course, who checked in with a brilliant 65.

Finalists in British Amateur Even at Nine

FORBY, England (AP) — Reid Jack, 33, of Scotland and 43-year-old Harold Ridgeley of the United States were all even at the end of nine holes of their morning round in today's 36-hole final for the British amateur golf championship.

Ridgeley, a U.S. Air Force sergeant who has been in England since the Second World War, was 1 up over Jack at the end of the first five holes. but the Scot evened things before the turn.

Jack then forged into a 1-up lead at the end of the 14th.

Today's match was the first American-Scottish final in this 72-year-old golfing fixture since Lawson Little of California beat Jimmy Wallace in 1934 by the record score of 14 and 12.

Ridgeley slaughtered South African's Arthur Walker 13 and 12 in Friday's semi-final. Walker lost the first two holes and never was in the match.

Jack got to the big round by eliminating fellow Scot Alan Bussell, a lad on whom all Scottish golf lovers pin great hopes. The score for that semi-final was 3 and 2.

Ridgeley and Jack began play in bright sunshine, but there was a strong wind sweeping the cyrlze. The forecast was for possible showers later.

Johnson KO's Himnant With Single Punch

NEW YORK (AP)—Harold Johnson, rated among the top four in both the heavyweight and light-heavy classes, wants to go after Archie Moore's 175-pound title as his first target.

"Can I get the winner of the Tony Anthony-Yvon Durelle fight (June 14 at Detroit)?" asked Pat Aluvieri, Johnson's manager.

Matchmaker Billy Brown of the International Boxing Club couldn't make any promise because Anthony is due to get first crack at Moore whenever Archie returns from Europe. However, Johnson was assured of more action soon.

Johnson said he was waiting for the opening that gave him a knockout. "I like to be dropped his left after the jab," he said, "cr. I was ready to shoot my right."

Hinnant, stopped for the second time in his last 11 fights, didn't have much to say. "What can you say after being hit like that?" he asked.

Less than 500 saw the "quickie" at St. Nicholas Arena. Johnson weighed 174½, Hinnant 176. John son was the 9 to 5 favorite.

Score Better Won't Play Until July

HAGERSTOWN, Md. (AP)—Herb Score says his injured right eye continues to improve but he probably will not be ready to pitch for Cleveland again until early July—"even if everything clears up."

The young lefthander, struck by a line drive May 7 in a game against the New York Yankees, said he felt "satisfied" with his progress toward recovery.

But, he added Friday in his first interview since arriving here from Cleveland last Tuesday, he still is under doctor's orders to take no exercise.

"So even if everything clears up before July 4, I'll be like spring training all over again to get back in shape," he said.

'Carry Own Weight' New York City Officials Veto Subsidies to Baseball

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP) — New York City's hopes of keeping the Dodgers and Giants from moving to California grew dimmer Friday.

An survey by the New York Post showed that members of the board of estimate, who will have to pass on any financial measures to build stadiums, are overwhelmingly opposed to granting subsidies to keep the two clubs.

The board members mostly would follow the policy of Mayor Robert Wagner, and he too doesn't appear to be inclined to make an exception for two of the big town's three major league clubs.

"If we began to subsidize baseball teams," the mayor said in an interview with The Post, "all sorts of business enterprises would demand the same things. Our feeling is that professional ball clubs are a private enterprise. They have to carry their own weight."

The mayor has invited Walter O'Malley, Dodgers president, and Horace Stoneham, Giants owner, to talk things over with him Tuesday.

HAVE GO AHEAD

Both clubs received a green light from the National League Tuesday to make the shift to Los Angeles (Dodgers) and San Francisco (Giants).

If there were any developments in the proposed shifts, the ball club officials weren't talking.

O'Malley said: "We are playing our games now at Ebbets Field and Jersey City. That's all I care to say."

At the same time the Dodger boss had reports from San Francisco that a pay-as-you-see television firm is bankrolling the possible transfer of the Dodgers to Los Angeles.

Bill Veeck, he said, "doesn't enter the picture at all."

How to Work Triple Play And Score Run

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — How can a team hit into a triple play and still score a run?

It happened Friday night in the Schenectady - Syracuse Eastern League game.

Syracuse had the bases filled in the fifth inning with none out. The batter grounded to the Schenectady second baseman who started what seemed to be a normal 4-6-3 double play with the runner on third scoring. The man on second, however, also tried to score and was out at the plate to complete the triple play.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Sam Hanks today banked the driver's share of a record $103,844 prize for winning the 500-mile race at Indianapolis Motor Speedway and dropped plans to drive another 500 at Monza, Italy.

Hanks' big prize came out of a total purse of $300,352, also a record. Previous highs, set last year, were $282,052 for the total and $72,815 for first place which was picked up by Pat Flaherty of Chicago.

Hanks' decision not to go to Monza for a race there June 23 came after the Indianapolis Rotary Special in which Don Freeland of Los Angeles, finished fifth Saturday. He said the owner had decided not to send the car and he decided not to go.

Bahama Bonefishing Outstanding

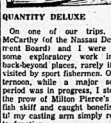
Fifty-six miles northeast of Nassau, sandwiched between two large outcroppings of ocean bottom known as Andros Island, lies a tiny spot of coral rock and sand called Fot Cay. On this little islet Col. Alf E. Sturrup, formerly of New York City, has built the Bang Bang Club, christened in honor of a memorable day of shooting in that same place.

It you like roughing it in the far-away places, Bang Bang is the place for you. You rough it in attractive cottages with modern plumbing, inner-spring mattresses, overstuffed furniture and plenty of fresh water—a novelty in these parts. Your food is served to you on tables with fittings reminiscent of the Waldorf and the food itself is every bit as good.

A more-than-adequate staff of servants anticipates your every wish. When you go anywhere—fishing, usually—you are not permitted to carry anything. The bulk weight of a six-ounce fly rod is, in my guide's opinion, far too heavy for one to lift from cottage to dock. He carries it and my tackle bag. I fully expected him to carry me. No doubt about it—that's roughing it the way I like to rough it.

BONEFISH FLATS

Surrounding Pot Cay, within easy access, lie the bonefish flats. Our bonefishing was learned in the art to seeing a school of bonefish every now and then; that is, we do if we are lucky. But for every bone fish in the Keys there are ten, twenty or a hundred in Bahamian waters, depending upon where you happen to be fishing.



They come in all sizes, from little fellows of half a pound or less weight it would be hazardous to guess Hardly a day passes that record-breakers are not sighted.

Bonefish do not grow to the impressive weight attained by snook, tarpon or kingfish—no bonefish will get you your Field and Stream button trophy. Yet I have seen bonefish that gave you a terrific battle and top the twenty-pound mark. The record, taken in Hawaii, is seventeen pounds, fifteen ounces.

In common with all record-breakers, these big tackle-busters are shy and exceedingly difficult to hook. Once hooked, they are even more difficult to land, particularly on light fly-rod tackle of have the speed and the power to upset your most carefully made plans. So many unpleasant things can happen when you are fast to a large bonefish, all of them disheartening.

But if you like bonefish in quantity—two to five pounds—this is the place to go to them. One day a friend of mine, weary of standing in a bonefish skiff, had the guide beach the craft while he went ashore. A sandy point extended from the lee side of the cove, so he walked that way to have a look, taking his fly rod with him.

As he approached the point, he saw a school of bonefish cruise out of the cove and over the shallow bar, within easy casting range. He removed his shoes and socks, rolled up his pants, and waded out knee-deep. Within the next hour he hooked and held and released seventeen bonefish, all taken with a fly from passing schools.

QUANTITY DELUXE

On one of our trips, Don McCarthy (of the Nassau Development Board) and I were doing some exploring work in the back-beyond places, rarely if ever visited by sport fishermen. A bonefish skiff and caught bonefish until my casting arm simply refused to function.

My right hand being temporarily out of business, I sat on the bow of the skiff and counted bonefish. could see the schools quite plainly. As I counted, I made mental notes.

Knowing that estimates are tricky things, too high more often than not, at the end of an hour I added up the score and then divided by ten. With that method of counting, more than five thousand bonefish, in schools large and small, passed our skiff within easy casting range. That is the waters which surely will stop the twenty-pound mark. The record, taken in Hawaii, is seventeen pounds, fifteen ounces.

In common with all record-breakers, these big tackle-busters are shy and exceedingly difficult to hook. Once hooked, they are even more difficult to land, particularly on light fly-rod tackle of have the speed and the power to upset your most carefully made plans. So many unpleasant things can happen when you are fast to a large bonefish, all of them disheartening.

But if you like bonefish in quantity—two to five pounds—this is the place to go to them. One day a friend of mine, weary of standing in a bonefish skiff, had the guide beach the craft while he went ashore. A sandy point extended from the lee side of the cove, so he walked that way to have a look, taking his fly rod with him.

As he approached the point, he saw a school of bonefish cruise out of the cove and over the shallow bar, within easy casting range. He removed his shoes and socks, rolled up his pants, and waded out knee-deep. Within the next hour he hooked and held and released seventeen bonefish, all taken with a fly from passing schools.

Small contracts are a study in contrast for the masters when play bridge. Hardly ever do they agree in bidding; opening leads are often atrocious; and seldom is the play anything but excellent.

Here is world championship deal number 96:

NORTH
♣ A Q J 9 7

WEST
♠ A 10 9 8 7
♥ A J 9 8 7
♣ K 8 6

EAST
♠ J 8 4 2
♥ K 4 2
♦ Q J 10
♣ 5 4 3

SOUTH
♠ Q 5
♥ Q 6 3
♦ K 9 8 6 4
♣ 10 2

Room one bidding was abrupt. West opened with a heart. North put in a simple overcall of two clubs and everyone passed. The play by this declarer was pretty and he took his needed eight tricks.

He let opponents take their two heart tops, discarding a spade from north. He ducked a diamond return and let east take the king. Opponents cashed two top spades and they got nothing more.

South won the diamond queen and cashed heart queen on which north stuffed his fourth spade. Club ten worked in the finesses that picked up opponent king and declarer gave up no more tricks.

Room two bidding went like this:

West	North	East	South
1 H	Dbl	Pass	2 D
Pass	Passs	2 H	All Pass

Opening lead from north was spade three. Declarer made a wrong guess by playing the jack from dummy. When south scored with queen, west had to use a top spade to win the trick.

A diamond return from west was grabbed by north ace and return of a diamond from there gave declarer another wrong guess. He took the finesse and lost to the south diamond queen.

Declarer stuffed his third spade on dummy diamond king. But he later lost three clubs and a trump. So, with the two diamond tricks already lost, he went down one trick.

Yes, masters are brilliant and clever players of the cards. But sometimes their reflexes are not working right.

Belleville Merchants hammered Madoc for 19 runs and 17 hits at Madoc last night to walk off with a 19-1 victory in a Belleville and District softball league encounter.

The Merchants scored in every inning except the first while southpaw Bobby Green held the village crew to three singles for his initial victory of the season.

Green was working on a no-hitter until the sixth when Madoc bagged two singles and with the aid of an error, scored their lone marker. Green gave up another single in the eighth. He fanned 12 over the route while passing eight.

Wayne Shaw went all the way for Madoc, tagged hard for 17 hits, including one homer, one triple and eight doubles. He whiffed five while walking six and hitting four other batters.

While the Merchants scattered their runs throughout, they had a big eighth frame, scoring seven runs on hits by Hayden, Bunton and a double and single both by Keith MacDonald.

Bob Bunton slammed the lone homer in the ninth frame, a two-run blast following a single by Hayden and a fielder's choice play.

The Merchants' lone error in the sixth and safeties by Sid Johnson and Hagerman accounted for the Madoc tally.

Shortstop Keith MacDonald was the big gun for the winners with a triple, two doubles and a single as well as being hit once in six trips to the plate. Dave Bone collected three doubles and scored four runs.

Bob Bunton had a homer and single, Green and Denny Hayden a brace of singles each, Claude Carr, Bep Guidolin and Doug Soule a double each and playing coach Don Barclay one base hit.

TRENTON (Special) — A 3-run explosion in the top of the ninth gave Belleville Goyer's Marines a close 11-10 victory over the Trenton Legion Juniors in a Belleville and District Softball contest here last night.

Trenton held a 9-8 edge entering the ninth but they could not hold back the Marine attack.

Four consecutive hits, including singles by Stoliker, Bovay and Leo Goyer and a two bagger by Gerry Goyer, plus an error netted the three runs. Trenton got one back on an error, Austin's double and Drake's single, but it was not enough.

The Marine's top frame was the fifth when they plated six tallies on as many hits. Singles by Brooks and Bovay, doubles by Thompson, Russell and Gerry Goyer plus a home run by Harvey Stoliker, told the story.

Trenton took an early lead with three in the first and another trio in the second. They added two more in the third. Five walks and a single by Bob Burns got them rolling. Burns homered in the second after Austin's triple and Drake's single. A hit batter and base hits by Austin and Drake plated two in the third and brought on Tommy Thompson, the third Belleville hurler.

Thompson gained the win over the rest of the game. He allowed five hits, two runs, fanning five and walking two. Dave Feeney started for the winners, but Al Adams came on in the first frame and lasted until the third.

Gord Maroney accepted the loss for Trenton after relieving Edwards and Cole in the fifth. They gave up 15 hits between them while whiffing three and walking six.

Russell, Stoliker, Bovay and Gerry Goyer hit safely in the initial frame to net the Marine's first two runs.

Plate umpire Mike Whalen ejected Trenton coach Charlie Drake and players Leroy Wannamaker and Don Cole in the ninth frame when they argued over a call at the plate, calling out a Trenton runner at home.

Harvey Stoliker with a homer and two singles, Gerry Goyer with two singles and a single and Wayne Bovay with a trio of singles led the victors at the plate. Paul Russell had a single and double, Gary Goyer a double and Keith Bertrim, Leo Goyer and Bob Brooks singles. Bobby Burns with a homer and two singles paced the Juniors. Guy Austin collected a triple, double and single and Roger Drake three singles, while Leroy Wannamaker doubled and Ron Willman had a one-bagger.

Gisele Has Gone Long Way And She Will Go Further

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Gisele MacKenzie has gone a long way since she arrived here from Canada six years ago. Chances are she'll go even further.

The Winnipeg - born songstress was on a rocket-like schedule this week. She flew here for three days' rehearsal for a show with Pat Boone, then returned for her Hit Parade stint in New York tonight. At midnight she takes off for Hollywood again to do the Boone show Sunday night.

She returns for her last Hit Parade show next week, then opens with Jack Benny at Las Vegas' Flamingo late this month. Next September she'll have her own Saturday night TV show on NBC with Benny's company producing.

Some schedule! But it doesn't seem to phase cool Gisele.

"I just take things as they come along," she commented.

STARTED IN TORONTO

Things started coming when she was a radio singer in Toronto. CBS tabbed her as a winner and imported her for Bob Crosby's Club 15 radio show — "I never would have had the nerve to come here on my own."

She went with Hit Parade four years ago and never regretted it.

"It was the greatest experience in the world," she said. "I sang every kind of song and acted in every conceivable role. I learned things in a Hurry. I learned to do things in a hurry. I learned like the stock company used to be."

Her alliance with Benny began when she was appearing in Las Vegas with Bob Hope. Then on the comedian's radio show. Benny saw her and later enlisted her for his touring vaudeville show. Not until rehearsals did he learn that she also fiddled. Their duet on his program was one of TV's warmest moments.

"I played the violin nearly all my life up until I was 20," she remarked. "I even took an advanced course at the Royal Conservatory of Music at Toronto. But my heart was never in it; I played mostly because my parents wanted me to.

"The time came when I had to choose between playing the violin and becoming a singer. It wasn't hard to do. I became a singer."

AT THE BELLE — Lovely starlet star Anna Maria Alberghetti, plays her first screen-up romance role in "Merry Widow", Technicolor musical entertainment, "One Thousand Bedrooms", Dean Martin heads an all-star cast which also includes glamorous Eva Bartok, Dewey Martin, Walter Slezak and Paul Henreid.

Election Campaign

Wants to Have United Canada -Diefenbaker

MONTREAL (CP) —Progressive Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker says the Liberals, thinking they have divine rights, have been "infringing" on provincial rights.
In election speeches in two Montreal constituencies Friday night, Mr. Diefenbaker said the Liberal government has preserved in peace time some wartime-type powers. Trade and Defence Production Minister Howe held power that "should not be possessed in times of peace."
"My purpose is to have a united Canada in which all will enjoy full rights," he told a near-capacity audience of about 450 persons at one meeting. About 1,200 attended the other meeting in Notre-Dame-de-Grace.

SAYS DISTURBING

Earlier at a press conference he said the "conservative party's spirit of unity is "very disturbing" to the Liberals. Mr. Diefenbaker is making his third brief swing through Quebec areas.
He feels provincial "provincial autonomy" is a political talking point. Mr. Diefenbaker—speaking in French and English—said in his Laurier meeting that the Liberals have been invading provincial rights since 1945.
The Liberals were centralizing authority in the country. The Conservatives would restore the rights of Parliament.
At his Notre - Dame - de - Grace meeting, Mr. Diefenbaker said Conservative Senator Bill English has been singled out by the Liberals for political "liquidation" because of his opposition to government tactics in the pipeline fight.
HAVE BEEN "MARKED"
"People who dare to challenge the all-powerful have been marked for liquidation and he is one," Mr. Diefenbaker said. "This is because he dared to stand up to the government."
Dealing with the federal government's connection with the financing of the $375,000,000 natural gas pipeline now being constructed from Alberta to the East, Mr. Diefenbaker said:
"Mighty Texas tycoons have made millions at the expense of the degradation of Parliament."

Bishop Decries Hydrogen Bomb Use in War

LONDON (CP)—As graphic accounts of Britain's latest hydrogen bomb explosion fill London newspapers today, an Anglican bishop condemns the dread weapon, declaring that its use in war would be worse than defeat.
Most Rev. William D. L. Greer, bishop of Manchester, told the Manchester Diocesan conference:
"Russia's conventional arms are overwhelmingly in our favor—some ultimate sanction. But do we dare to use it? I do not think any conceivable circumstances use it! My answer is an unhesitating 'No.'
"It would be better to be defeated than to engage in such warfare, for when the last bomb has exploded you have lost what you were fighting for."
The bishop said he advocated the immediate cessation of the use of H-bomb, paving the way for abolition of all nuclear weapons and a general reduction of conventional arms.

The Daily Telegraph says:
"It was a robust and reliable weapon in a properly designed aerodynamic casing that could be dropped from any of Britain's four-jet engined V-bombers without modification."

Defence Costs Will Be Same Says St. Laurent

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MATANE, Que. (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent, resuming his election campaign tour of Quebec after visiting Newfoundland, has indicated that if his government is re-elected June 10 defence expenditures will continue at about the same level as at present.
Mr. St. Laurent's main theme of his Quebec campaign — the "papa de famille" who wants all children of his large family to share equally in the nation's prosperity—was extended to include concern over possible aggression.
The prime minister spoke of his defence policy as the most important unit in a nation, that children are its greatest wealth, and that providence is the master of the destiny of nations.
But just as the head of a family had to buy insurance to protect his own home against loss by fire, so had a nation to take measures to guard against aggression.
A defence program must cost one-third of the national budget. The nation was a member of the United Nations Treaty Organization and as such had obligations to fulfil.
Canada was prepared watch against possible attacks. Canada, as a member nation, would go to the help of any other UN partner nation which became the victim of aggression.
Mr. St. Laurent said he wanted to make it clear to Quebec voters that defence spending would continue as before if his government is re-elected. That was the best insurance policy against aggression, he said.
He said he does not believe no clear weapons will be used now that all nations have their own destructive power. But if any nation did use them against Canada, or any other country there would be immediate reprisals.
Mr. St. Laurent drew audience applause when he said one reason he was not elected sooner was he let voters see how old he really looked.
In every election since 1949 opponents circulated rumors he might resign before the balloting but the stories were not true, he said. Then the Conservative prime minister quipped, amid chuckles of the audience, that the "same story would probably be circulated when he campaigns in the next election in four years."

BRITAIN'S SECOND

The fireball, he said, would not touch the water, and the remains of the bomb would condense into fine particles swept up into the stratosphere in the mushroom cloud.
"These particles will take from months to many years to come back to ground level." Cook continued. "This delay before they return to the earth in any one area but will be world-wide.
"Some of the most last series will make to the world-wide fallout of fission products which will occur from the U.S. and Russian tests already made will be very small indeed."
Britain's government launched the Pacific tests despite bitter opposition at home and abroad. The Japanese government urged in repeated diplomatic notes that the operation be called off.
In Tokyo, the latest blast was termed a "deliberate challenge to humanity" by Kaoru Yasui, director of the Japan Council against Atomic and H-bombs.
Yasui told a reporter he will launch "one more powerful movements" to bring a total ban on all of nuclear bombs.
Britain's Prime Minister Macmillan said the tests would endanger mankind's future health. The explosions, he asserted, would in no way harm the peoples of the Pacific islands.

Study Relations Between Papers And Hospitals

SASKATOON (CP)—Opinions on the subject of relations between news media and hospitals ranged from a blunt "tell them nothing" to "increased" co-operation at the annual Western Canada Hospital Institute.
In a session of speeches and panel discussion, representatives of the press, legal medical staffs and hospital administrators Friday reached some agreement on a suggested method for releasing information which now varies considerably from hospital to hospital.
Most felt that administrators should appoint a medically-trained person as the sole source of information for newspaper, radio and television reporters regarding patients.
However, N. V. Buchanan, chief district court judge, Edmonton, said that from the legal point of view, "for complete safety the rule should be, 'tell them nothing.'"

UNDER OBLIGATION.

"Hospitals, like physicians, are under a legal obligation not to insist respect the professional confidences of patients except under circumstances of interest such as patient consent, witnesses in court, legislative enquiries and general good of society."
If a hospital decided in the interests of public relations to give the press information, it should tell them as little as possible, said that of the incuous variety."
Philip V. Wade, news editor of the Saskatoon Star-Phoenix, suggested there is much need for improvement in hospital-press co-operation, which, in most cases, "is extraordinarily bad."
Part of the responsibility is that of the press for inaccurate, slight-imaginative reporting. But "a large portion of the responsibility" is that of the hospitals which usually release only "routine, meaningless" information.

SHOULD BE ONE

At every hospital there should be one person on duty at all times who could supply "all pertinent" information to news outlets, he said.
Such a system would not involve the release of ordinary medical treatment but those incidents, accidents, emergencies where speed is essential "for the reassurance of friends and relatives."
Gordon B. Grant, chairman of the Regina General Hospital board of governors, suggested there should be a spirit of co-operation between news outlets and the hospital.
"The press is doing a good job but their continuous look to the hospital for more information than they should."

Police Blotter

City and provincial police reported a quiet Friday night with no vehicular accidents or a major nature occurring in the city or immediate district.
City police received a complaint of a Kingsbury man that his auto had been stolen from a parking lot on the rear of a Front street place of business. The car was missed shortly before seven o'clock last night.
And mischievous boys were charged with responsibility for the disappearance of a number of garbage pail lids on the East Hill this morning.

MARKET FOR ART

LONDON (CP)—A total of 334 works has been sold for £15,690 at the Royal Academy summer exhibition, compared with 245 works for £13,248 in the same period last year.

Presentatiaons Made to McCrea Family

4TH THURLOW — The Rev. R. J. and Mrs. McCrea, and Kathleen called on Tuesday evening from Moscow to Liverpool, England. They left to spend three months visiting Mrs. McCrea's parents in England, and Mr. McCrea's mother in Ireland.
The McCreas came to Canada four years ago. They spent two years on the Nipissing charge near North Bay, before coming here to take charge of the four churches on the Cannifton charge.
Recently, after church service they were presented with a lovely set of travelling cases and Kathleen with a pair of pyjamas by the Bethany W.A.
Their many friends wish them "God speed" and a wonderful holiday and will be looking forward to their safe return.

DEFENCE

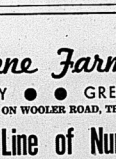
MINISTERS SPEAK

Two cabinet ministers took advantage of free-time CBC radio and television broadcasts to talk about the election of four political parties in Canada and family allowances.
Justice Minister Garson, speaking over the CBC trans-Canada network, said Canadians for some years "have been playing around irresponsibly with a four-party parliament."
He warned that "unless we give more careful thought to the makers of a four-party parliament than we have so far, we can easily get ourselves into some very serious difficulties indeed."
Veterans' Affairs Minister Lapointe, appearing on the French television network, said family allowances have resulted in higher daily school attendance and have enabled parents to keep their children in school for more education.
The Canadian Labor Congress got into the controversy of pay increases for federal civil servants. In a letter to Mr. St. Laurent it said it is deeply concerned that the matter has become a political issue in the election campaign.



CCF VIEWPOINT

In Whitby, Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario CCF leader, said the record of the Conservative party since the First World War reveals the party to be "bankrupt." Since the First World War, the CCF had produced the only real alternative to a Liberal government at Ottawa.
Tories in Western Canada were "ashamed of the party's record and its name that the words "Progressive Conservative" appeared, if at all, in small type down in the corner of ads or billboards. The remnants of the Tory party "now had reformed themselves into a 'Diefenbaker fan club'."
George Hees, former president of the national Progressive Conservative Association, said that officials of the unemployment insurance commission were "sawdust Caesars" who treat job applicants with insolence and arrogance.

TRIBUTE PAID

Speaking in Toronto, Mr. Hees said "this type of attitude stems right from the top and comes from the cabinet, which sets government policy." A Conservative government would overhaul the commission so that it would serve as it was intended to "instead of as a source of frustration and annoyance to most Canadians."
Elizabeth Jamieson, national president of the Women's Progressive Conservative Association, said in Halifax that under the Liberal administration Canada digs natural resources out of the ground and ships them to the United States for processing while Canada exports the primary industries, the wages involved in processing and then buys back the processed goods.

The Week's News

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Britain struck out on its own with a new China policy, against the wishes of the United States.

Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd told an applauding House of Commons in London that Britain's trade with Red China will be expanded to the level of its trade with Russia and the Soviet bloc countries of Eastern Europe.

Officials predicted this might mean a doubling of business for hard-pressed Britain from the current £10,000,000 annual volume of commerce with China.

The United States countered emphatically that it will continue its "total embargo" on Chinese Communist commerce. President Eisenhower's administration had been striving for months to induce its allies to maintain more rigid trade controls on China than on Russia.

In Ottawa, officials said Canada regrets that a division on the China question arose between the United Kingdom and the United States. Canada's trade with China is small.

HUMPHREY LEAVES

George M. Humphrey, a powerful figure in the Eisenhower administration as secretary of the treasury, announced his resignation. President Eisenhower nominated Robert B. Anderson, who formerly held two high posts in the defence department in the present administration, to succeed Humphrey.

Both men are well known in Canada. As a steel magnate, Humphrey played a large part in the development of the Labrador iron ore fields. Anderson, since leaving government in 1955, has been president of Ventures Ltd., a Canadian mine holding company.

NEWSPAPER CHANGES

Big changes were announced by newspapers in Vancouver, which often is termed one of the hottest newspaper cities in Canada.

The Province began in 1933 and the city's only morning newspaper, announced it will fold July 15 because of economic difficulties and despite increasing circulation.

Vancouver's two evening papers —The Sun and The Province—announced they are pooling their publishing facilities with The Province, entering the morning field.

The newspapers are forming a new company, Pacific Press Ltd., to own and operate "all buildings, plants, machinery and equipment."

However, the editorial, circulation and advertising aspects of the newspapers will remain separate, a joint announcement said.

HAITIAN HIATUS

Daniel Fignole, 43, who describes himself as a presidential candidate, held power in Haiti, the Caribbean Negro republic that has been teetering on the verge of anarchy.

Fignole was too strong for Brig.-Gen. Leon Cstave, the army chief of staff, who took charge of the country briefly but was deposed in a bloody uprising. Cantave was kicked out as army chief and replaced by another brigadier, Antonio Kebreau.

There are 10 presidential candidates in the republic of 4,000,000 and one of these candidates Louis Dejoie—appealed to the United Nations to end violence and turmoil in Haiti. He claimed the republic's troubles are caused by "25 or 30 men wanting power at any price."

GERMAN PLEDGE

Chancellor Konrad Adenauer held three-day talks with President Eisenhower and delivered a stirring talk to the U.S. Congress.

"On my word before God," nobody in Germany plays with the idea of using force or war," said Adenauer, chief of West Germany.

Eisenhower and Adenauer, in a statement aimed at Moscow, said Soviet acceptance of a limited arms reduction plan could lead to a "comprehensive disarmament agreement" which would control atomic hydrogen and conventional weapons.

And Adenauer pleaded for a foreign ministers' conference "within a reasonable time" after such a limited East-West agreement to consider a settlement for the problem of divided Germany.

ARAB VIOLENCE

The army crushed an outbreak of political violence in Lebanon, where the tug-of-war between East and West is strong.

It was the first serious trouble in advance of parliamentary elections set to begin June 9 in the traditionally pro - Western Arab nation. The elections are looked upon as a test of strength for pro-Egyptian forces, also supported by Moscow, and pro - Western forces.

The fatal rioting flared when troops and police tried to stop a demonstration and general strike led by two former premiers who are in opposition to Premier Sami Solh.

QUINTS ARE 7

The parents of the quintuplets, Mr. and Mrs. Oliva Dionne, spent the day quietly at their home near Callander, Ont.

Marie was in a Montreal hospital taking radium treatment for an old leg ailment. Cecile and Yvonne also were in Montreal.

Annette, the fourth, was writing examinations at her convent school in Nicolet, Que.

Emilie, the fifth, died Aug. 6, 1954.

Your Car

Faulty Chokes Need First Aid

By EUGENE MILMOE

A troublesome automatic choke will fail to provide a rich enough fuel mixture for cold engine starting, or when the engine is quite warm, the choke may develop a mixture that is too rich. As many drivers know, you can aid a faulty choke in such emergencies.

When the engine is cold, the choke valve should be closed. Take off the air cleaner and look down into the carburetor. If the valve stays open, the engine can be started by holding your hand over the carburetor throat opening to cut off the flow of air (thereby enriching the mixture) while someone cranks the engine.

When the trouble is due to a choke valve that sticks in the closed position with the engine warm, starting procedure is just as simple. Reach into the carburetor to hold the valve open and have the engine cranked until it starts.

C.P. asks: "Please explain why the heat control valve is needed."

(A) The heat control valve aids good carburetion when the engine is cold. It routes hot exhaust toward the intake manifold to heat the air-fuel mixture. Then, as the engine warms up sufficiently, the valve closes and allows exhaust gas to go directly out the exhaust manifold.

H.K. writes: "The other day while I was at a service station, a mechanic was working on a new car and I noticed that he wore safety goggles. I've never seen anything like this before—why the goggles?"

(A) The car must have been equipped with air conditioning, and the mechanic was safety-wise. Freon, the refrigerant used in car air-conditioning systems, can be harmful to the eyes. It's under pressure in the system and may spray or splatter when units are loosened or disconnected.

From V.M.: "My brakes were working all right, then one day they just locked completely and the car would not move. Luckily, I was near a service station. They cured it quickly. The mechanic had bled some fluid from one of the wheel cylinders and the brakes released. Why did they lock in the first place?"

(A) Dirt in the fluid will cause this, and it's wise to have the system drained, flushed and refilled with fresh fluid.

C.C. asks: "When driving at night, I meet many oncoming cars with bright headlights that almost blind me. This occurs within the city limits, too, where traffic is busy. I thought there was a law against using the high beams."

(A) There are state laws regarding the use of high beams and most drivers observe them. But there are too many cars on the road with lower beams that are misdirected—they are too low or elevated so that they glare right into the eyes of oncoming drivers.

SAFETY IS NO ACCIDENT

BECOMES "HERO"

HONG KONG (AP) — Soviet President Klimenti Voroshilov today became a Hero of the People's Republic of Mongolia. Peiping radio said the title was conferred upon the touring Voroshilov by President Samba in a ceremony at Ulan Bator, the Mongolian capital.

MORE STATIONS

HONG KONG (Reuters)—China now has a network of 1,400 meteorological stations stretching from Tibet to Mongolia and northern Manchuria, the Peiping radio reports. This is nearly 12 times as many as when the Communists took control in 1949.

Garden Notes

Give Your House Plants a Rest

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

Potted plants become a nuisance in the house during the summer. We are happy to fuss with them during the cold months when greenery and blossoms are at a premium. Come spring we are glad to have the tables and windows they occupied bare. The plants will be good for them too if we arrange a suitable place for their holiday, or rest period.

Most house plants need shade, or semi-shade. Pick a spot in the shrub border, a corner of the back yard or under a tree where they will receive only a few hours of the sun each day. Sink them in place by digging out six inches of soil, or wide enough to have the rim of the pot flush with the surrounding soil.

Trim off any straggly growth, weak branches or unwanted growth. Many ferns and foliage plants could be cut back to inches to encourage new growth. Knock the plant out of the pot. Slice off the lower half of the roots and soil with a sharp knife. Roll the remaining roots on the table to loosen the old soil.

Scrub the pots and scrape off crusted salts from water and plant foods. Place a cork in the bottom of the pot to keep the earth worms. Add a piece of broken clay pot and fill half of pot with fresh potting mixture. Set the plant a little lower in the pot than it was before. Add more soil and firm around the roots. Water the plant thoroughly.

Set the pots in the prepared place leaving plenty of space between them. Fill in the space between pots with granulated peat moss. This will hold moisture and simplify summer care. Soak the moss when plants are in place.

Give each plant a thorough drink the summer to keep the plants from wilting. You are not trying to encourage active growth. With hold plant food until fall.

Small plants and new cuttings may be placed here also. Feed these lightly and water more generously to have them in good form for winter house plants.

Philodendron and African violets (Saint Paulias) do not like outdoor conditions. Move them to a type with flecks of silver. There is a smaller leaf type with thick green and white leaves. Sometimes the white is tinged with pink. Do not put these out in the garden.

3 Dead, 23 Hurt As Motorcyclists Take Over Town

26 Jailed at Angels Camp As 300 Ride Like Demons

ANGELS CAMP, Calif. (AP)—After the noisiest weekend this town has seen since the gold rush, Angels Camp was quiet today. The bark of some 4,000 motorcycles was gone.

Three cyclists were dead as the result of accidents, 23 others were in a hospital and 26 had been jailed overnight, mostly for drunkenness and disturbing the peace.

The town itself was undamaged—partly because local police and highway patrol were reinforced from the California highway patrol and the Calaveras county sheriff's office.

200 CAUSED TROUBLE

Trouble started when cyclists on a "gypsy tour" poured in from Nevada, Oregon, Washington and from other parts of California for the American Motorcycle Association race at nearby Frogtown Fairgrounds.

Police Chief Joe Spinelli blamed the trouble around dusk on some members of the AMA and praised the association of its help in organizing a degree of quiet.

The 200, he said, staged gang fights up the narrow main street and littered the town with beer cans and bottles. But by 2 o'clock before police help arrived it was not safe to cross the street.

Then the 200 left in packs at each end of the town and on Monday the main street—and by race time Sunday afternoon they had control.

JERUSALEM (AP) — Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion today asked parliament to approve Israel's acceptance of the principles of the Eisenhower doctrine.

The 70-year-old premier said in the cabinet May 31 statement supporting the American anti-Communist doctrine was dictated largely by Israel's security needs.

The two dissenting parties, Achdut Avoda and Mapam, may abstain in the vote and thus avoid a break-up of the coalition.

The left-wingers opposed taking a public stand on the Eisenhower doctrine because of the possibility the action might hamper chances of Jewish Russia and other Communist lands emigrating to Israel.

Apparently trying to overcome these objections, Ben-Gurion said Israel's declaration identifying itself with the U.S. policy did not contain any anti - Communist statement.

NEWLY-ELECTED MAYOR PLEDGES OUST GANGSTERS

Riot Act Read Before Election

VILLE JACQUES - CARTIER, Que. (CP)—J. L. Chamberland, elected mayor of this hamlet-type suburban municipality north of Montreal Saturday in a turbulent municipal election which saw the Riot Act read, has pledged to "kick the gangsters out of town".

"If they don't get out while the getting is good, we're going to kick them out and keep them out," he said Sunday night.

"The reading of the Riot Act permitted the citizens to express themselves, and they left no doubt about their choice for the mayoralty. Most of the hoodlums who took part in the trouble were imported from elsewhere, but they didn't make any difference in the outcome."

The Riot Act was read at noon Saturday by retiring Mayor Julian Lord when it appeared that 200 stragglers from Montreal—men paid to disrupt normal election procedure and stuff ballots—were for the candidate paying them—were trying to take over the polls. Intimidation failed.

The act provides that within 3 minutes of its reading no more than 12 persons may gather together and gives police authority to fire after due warning.

The retiring mayor said he expected the act to stay in force until midnight.

More than 200 police and special constables patrolled the streets to put down budding disorders. During the day, windows were smashed, cars were overturned, furniture was destroyed and about 20 persons were arrested.

The election was "not too extraordinary for Ville Jacques-Cartier". It was marked by violence on the riot act with preventing a much more serious situation in this city of 2,000.

Most of the victims of the attacks were members of a citizens' committee, a citizens' group formed to ensure "honest election". It had endorsed Chamberland, mayor, who is head of the school board, and a municipal council slate supporting him. The new mayor's supporters won three of the six aldermanic seats at stake.

BEATS TWO

Mr. Chamberland defeated two Montrealers, Jack Kent, bar owner, and Georges Chamberland, no relation, for the mayoralty by a big majority.

Marcel Delisle, organizer for the Montreal Catholic labor body but publicity had defeated his boss.

Forty-four-per-cent of the eligible voters turned out at the polls Saturday. There were few goons who roamed the streets in cars. Ville Jacques-Cartier has been noted for its turbulent elections since it mushroomed into a city during the Second World War. When police launched a crackdown on gambling establishments in Montreal, many underworld characters moved across the St. Lawrence River and set up shop.

Many homes are little more than shacks. There is no water, sanitation, all decisions of its council require approval of the Quebec municipal commission.

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—A 32-year-old onetime resident of British Columbia was charged here today for attempted bank robbery following a series of phone calls between a newspaper and police in which he tried to collect a reward.

Fred Gardner of St. Catharines and University of Victoria was arrested by plainclothes detective James Bryan and police under the charge of attempted robbery.

Police charged Gardner with the theft of a gun from a branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

Mr. Smith said a man called him Saturday morning and asked what it was worth for information leading to the arrest "of that fellow who tried to hold up that bank". The man said he would call later. As soon as he hung up, Mr. Smith received a second call and suggested he play along.

Or the fourth call, the man finally said he was the one who had made the attempted robbery attempt, would surrender to Mr. Smith and the police Monday if he got payment of the reward but in the meantime, wanted $10 to help him over the week-end.

Mr. Smith agreed to meet the caller downtown and described his appearance although not himself. Detective Bryan set out in Mr. Smith's car and Mr. Smith told the man who checked a fifth time that her husband was parked in front of The Standard Offices and a man was waiting in the car.

The man opened the door and slid into the front seat.

"Are you looking for this?" asked the detective, holding a plain envelope filled with brown paper.

"I know you," the man said startled. His right hand, Bryan said, was thrust into his coat pocket as though gripping a gun.

"Don't be a fool," the detective warned. The man gave himself up.

HOBO PAINTER IN MONTREAL

Self-styled hobo Paul Hubbard stands beside his lavishly-painted auto during his stopover in Montreal on his 64th tour of North America. Hubbard paints to support himself in his wandering way. He paints at a furious pace, about 2,000 pictures a year which he sells at from $1 to $10, mostly $1. His pictures are nearly always highly-stylized gature studies. He plans to retire this autumn in a little shanty in Arizona. (CP Photo).

Voter-Hunting Season Moves Into Final Week of Campaign

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

The open season on voters has a week from today to run. The pace should be thunderous.

With the quarry set to end the chase next Monday, June 10, at the polls, the federal election campaign woods rang with hunters in full cry during the weekend.

Social Credit Leader Solon Low, in Aylmer, Ont., Saturday accepted Prime Minister St. Laurent's offer to let another privy councell member survey the prime minister's correspondence with Britain last fall during the Suez crisis. Mr. Low chose Conservative prime minister Meighen.

Meantime, CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell, first Canadian television shot from Regina at John Diefenbaker. He said "understanding" between the Progressive Conservative leader and Ontario Premier Frost might mean a larger share of federal taxes for the central province at the cost of "less fortunate" provinces.

Mr. St. Laurent told Quebec listeners they should vote out his liberal government if they oppose spending on Canada's defence and guard against Communist aggression. His meaning was clear; otherwise, return the liberals to office.

Mr. Diefenbaker told a Minto, N.B., audience "power - mad" members of the Liberal federal government are forcing provinces and municipalities into the position of begging out if a Conservative government were elected, he said. A federal-provincial municipal conference intended to relieve the "freighted load" he said the non-central governments now are carrying.

Khrushchev Predicts Final World Victory of Red System

NEW YORK (AP) — Nikita S. Khrushchev, top man of the Soviet Communist hierarchy, entered millions of American living rooms Sunday through the medium of television. He exuded confidence that the ultimate world victory of the Soviet system and predicted that the grandchildren of his viewers would live under such a system.

But, said the reigning world Communist boss, the Soviet Union does not want to go to war to impose its way. Instead, said Khrushchev in his world TV debut, the USSR wants to compete with the United States economically and culturally.

Khrushchev's appearance, his story-making in itself, added fuel to the world's knowledge of Soviet claims. Most of what he said in an hour-long discussion before the Columbia Broadcasting System's Face the Nation program had been said before, either by the party leader himself or other Soviet leaders.

Khrushchev chatted amiably, grinning at his own humorous sallies, but left no room for misunderstanding Khrushchev's words as he talked, talked in a monotone. But although his own voice was inaudible, Khrushchev's gestures reflected the interpreter for the questions put to him were unrehearsed, but the Soviet party chief had been told beforehand of the general subjects to be covered.

Khrushchev refused to wear theatrical makeup, and looked a little pale before the cameras. The interview was also carried by CBS radio.

The Soviet Communist party secretary repeated Russian proposals regarding disarmament, troop withdrawals and other international questions. At one point he indicated the Soviet Union had gone just about as far as it intends to go in the matter of concessions in the current disarmament negotiations. Khrushchev now is waiting for counter-proposals, he said.

Says Atomic War Results Would Be 'Unthinkable'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The doctor who directed treatment of Pacific islanders accidentally showered with H-bomb fall-out said the next nuclear war would have "unthinkable" results on "all living things."

Dr. Eugene P. Cronkite said in testimony prepared for a U.S. Senate-House of Representatives atomic energy sub-committee hearing that a danger that multiple H-bomb explosions in such a war "would produce radiation hazards for all living things and for generations to come."

War, he said, can no longer be considered "a calculated risk," and that "every conceivable kind of diplomacy" must be made to avoid it.

At the same time, however, Cronkite cautioned against undue preoccupation with world - wide fall-out" resulting from weapons tests. Scientists must keep close watch on it and other sources of radiation, he said. But he stressed there are other problems to watch, such as non-radioactive pollution from industries.

Cronkite, now attached to the Brookhaven National Laboratory on Long Island, N.Y., was designated director of a special medical team flown to the Marshall Islands in March 1954 when an unpredicted wind shift scattered fall-out from a U.S. H-bomb test over inhabited atolls and ships.

The exposed persons have been kept under observation since.

FEAR 5 DROWNED AS BOAT FOUND UPSIDE DOWN

Recover One Body Off Port Stanley

PORT STANLEY (CP)—A 16-foot boat was found upside down in Lake Erie Sunday morning and the five people it carried on a fishing expedition are feared to have been drowned.

The body of Mrs. Margaret Leckie, 40, of St. Thomas was found about six miles off this fishing port 20 miles south of London.

A search for the others by persons, including one by planes and tugs until darkness Sunday night, was to resume at dawn today.

The Leckies have three younger. Lave five children.

Police said the capsized boat was found about noon by Capt. George Boyd of Port Stanley and towed to shore.

Two hours later one of the searchers, Cecil Lawson of St. Thomas, found Mrs. Leckl's body about six miles from Port. He shipped a life preserver around it, came to shore and left the body to be recovered by the coroner. Police said the body was clothed except for a shirt.

Roy Haney, father of boat-owner Stanley, told police his son borrowed the boat from a party in London Saturday night and said he intended to go fishing Sunday morning. It is believed his fishing companions had been at the party with him.

Death of all five would make it the worst marine accident in this area in 13 years. In 1944 the cruiser Olga capsized and 17 persons were drowned.

Queen Will Ride In Plane With Tragic History

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth is going up in a Comet Tuesday in a test flight aboard one in the four-engined jet with a tragic past. She is making the flight at her own request.

The original Comets, with which Britain hoped to gain civil air supremacy, were grounded on commercial routes in 1954 after a series of disastrous mishaps traced to a weakness in the skin structure. Sir Geoffrey de Havilland, the designer, never gave up hope in the Comet, which ironically is the belief that he might be wavering the streets in a state of shock.

Kezak was treated in the emergency room at Sisters Hospital, but he walked out, saying he wanted to be with his wife and friends, 38, in Emergency Hospital.

2,000 American Scientists Urge Atom Tests Cease

Signatures to Petition Obtained in Just 4 Days

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Two thousand American scientists have signed an appeal urging international agreement now to stop the testing of nuclear bombs, a Nobel prize-winning biochemist announced today.

Dr. Linus Pauling called it "an appeal by America scientists to the governments and to the people of the world."

The statement says "each added amount of radiation causes damage to the health of human beings all over the world." It warns of "an increase in the number of seriously defective children . . . in future generations" and adds:

"As scientists we have knowledge of the dangers involved and therefore a special responsibility to make these dangers known."

AS INDIVIDUALS

Pauling, head of the division of chemistry and chemical engineering at California Institute of Technology in Pasadena, said the statement was prepared by him and Dr. Edward Teller, co-author of the hydrogen bomb.

"The 2,000 signatures were received in four days—last Wednesday through Saturday," he said. included two other Nobel prize-winners—Dr. H. J. Muller, Indiana University, Sunday morning. It is believed his fishing companions had been at the party with him.

Death of all five would make it the worst marine accident in this area in 13 years. In 1944 the cruiser Olga capsized and 17 persons were drowned.

"They are signed as individuals and not through their institutions," he said.

"About half of the scientists who signed the appeal are biologists, and many of the others are biochemists, chemists or medical scientists," Pauling said.

Dr. Pauling won the Nobel award in 1954 for research in chemistry. He said in a television interview Sunday on ABC's coast-to-coast program, Medical Horizons—that fallout from nuclear tests will cause 20,000 children to be born each year 30 generations to be mentally or physically defective.

Critically Burned

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Stephen Kezak critically burned in a fire that killed his wife and child, was treated by his brother and three children, walked heavily bandaged through the hospital lobby Sunday to calmly turned up at another to visit his wife.

The 31-year-old man was missing for nearly 10 hours. Police, meanwhile searched frantically for the belief that he might be wandering the streets in a state of

CHRISTMAS ISLAND (AP) — Britain's second H-bomb blast generated heat nearly 2,000 times that of the sun's surface and set up island ablaze.

Dr. Ralph Cook, chief scientist for the British nuclear tests in the Pacific, called Friday's explosion a "complete success in every way."

The heat generated, Cook told reporters Sunday, was rated at 70,000,000 degrees Centigrade, (126,666,666 degrees Fahrenheit). The average heat of the sun's surface is 35,000 degrees Centigrade (63,000 fahrenheit.

The bomb, reported to be equal to 5,000,000 tons of TNT, was dropped by a Valiant jet bomber at 10:30 a.m. (6:30 p.m. Sunday, Ottawa time) from a height of 45,000 feet high, near the small Pacific atoll of Malden, 2,000 miles south of Christmas Island.

The British bomb is believed to be about half the size of the H-bomb the United States tested at Bikini last year.

Cook said the blast set timber afire over Malden's five - mile length. Fewer hours later fires still raged, he added.

Dozens pieces of wood washed up on the shore appeared to be blazing," Cook said.

The explosion, recorded by scientific instruments placed on Malden, caused no radiation contamination on the island, he said.

Cook said that according to speculation the British may have perfected a "clean" bomb that could be used in war, but not tested.

British nuclear scientists taking part in the operation said such a bomb could be used as a field weapon. It would provide a high degree of safety for our own troops moving into the blast area once direct radiation had cleared—probably within a few days.

They stressed, however, that for such a bomb to be used safely it must be touched off at least two miles high. Any lower, they said, could imperil troops on both sides.

Pilots flying over Malden after the blast reported the absence of Percy, the wild pig, only living thing left on Malden among a complex of barometers and radiation measuring instruments. Percy came through apparently unscathed after Britain's first nuclear blast on May 15.

Pflimlin Waits To Take Stand

PARIS (Reuters)—Catholic politician Pierre Pflimlin today braced himself for the most decisive day in his weeking attempt to form a new French government.

The success or failure of his efforts hinged on the attitude of the Socialists, who headed the government led by Premier Guy Mollet and overthrown 13 days ago.

Pflimlin, 50-year-old minister in 4 governments since the Second World War and leader of the Popular Republican (Catholic) party, was present in a "consultative" role by the major non-Communist parties in Parliament. But he made his main hopes on the Socialists.

He has sought the quickest possible end to the crisis so he can tell President Rene Coty Tuesday whether he feels he can go ahead with forming a new cabinet.

The powerful Socialist Federation of Seine-et-Oise Wednesday announcing about one-tenth of the party membership. On Friday, Sunday approved a resolution hostile to any participation in the new government.

Pflimlin argued that the Socialists must participate in the national government if France is to successfully tackle her major problems such as the Algerian nationalist insurrection and the saving of the status of the franc.

Pflimlin intended to report Sunday night to President Coty on his progress and then go ahead with the visit because or a talk with Robert Lacoste, Socialist resident minister in Algeria, scene of a 30-month revolt against French rule.

United Church Moderator Lays Date Stone for New Building at Albert College

On Sunday afternoon the ceremony of laying the date stone for the new building at Albert College Manor took place with many dignitaries and friends present. This building, with its fine modern architecture of yellow brick to harmonize with its surroundings, will house forty students and three teachers, and was made possible by the satisfactory response to the Centennial campaign.

Chairman of the Board of Governors E. B. Warriner presided over the proceedings, and paid tribute to the genius of the teachers, and to the farmers who long ago mortgaged their farms that Albert College might be established. The present assembly was to dedicate the first unit in the expansion of the school. Mr. Warriner stated that he was going to Vancouver and while there was going to put three bottles containing messages from Albert College into the Pacific Ocean in which they would be carried somewhere around the world.

MAYOR SPEAKS

Mayor Jane Forrester brought greetings from city and expressed the hope that Albert College would flourish in the historic occasion. She especially welcomed the visitors to the city. The Mayor remarked that Belleville was extremely proud to be the home of Albert College, and she hoped that this occasion would further cement the bonds between the city and the school.

Mr. Hugh Murray, in charge of the construction of the building, spoke of pride in the tradesmen who had contributed their talents to building the residence, working in close harmony, and sharing the pride in its construction.

Principal Rev. Jessie Gilbert expressed her happiness and gratitude to God for the vision of those who had gone before. She paid tribute to those who had planned for the building, and expressed the conviction that the girls who came there would amply repay the hopes and faith for their future.

Principal A. E. MacKenzie heartily welcomed those whose presence showed their interest in the school. "We have been looking forward to this moment for years," said Dr. MacKenzie, and "Albert's history has been one of continuous struggle. This building will provide additional space and facilities badly needed, and will be a tremendous asset in the years ahead."

Dr. Harold Young, secretary of the Board of Colleges and Secondary Schools of the United Church in Canada sent a letter, which was read by the Principal, in which he made the statement that in the 100 years of its existence Albert has made significant contributions to the life of Methodist and United churches of Canada. Through its halls had passed an unbroken succession of young men and women in quest of knowledge and character development, and from its doors these had gone forth to enrich the life of the church and to give leadership in educational communities within the borders. The influence of this institution which thus contributes so directly to a nation's living is impossible to estimate, but the part it has done has had results of the greatest worth over the whole of the land.

Dr. Young read the list that was placed in the date contained the following items: A copy of the 1957 prospectus; the program for the day; the Alumni weekend program; a copy of the Ontario Intelligencer telling about the Alumni Centennial weekend; the list of Board of Governors, faculty and 1957 graduating class; the list of officers and of the Board of Governors; statement of the Board of the Board of College and Secondary schools.

DATE DATE STONE

The Right Reverend James S. Thomson, Moderator of the General Council placed the date stone, using the same trowel that was used in 1925 by Rev. W. W. Chown on the occasion of the opening of the new Albert College.

Dr. Thomson stated that an occasion of this kind gave one an opportunity to look back, look ahead, and expressed the opinion that the whole story of Canadian education is the story of the interest of people had not made the progress that they could look back now with gratitude and thanksgiving. The country is expanding, the population increased, wealth being multiplied, and the demand for more education provided tremendous pressure to provide more facilities for this purpose. Secular groups stressed the need for more scientific training but Canada could not become a great country if we limited its training to technological subjects, he said. Leadership must come from those who had the natural arts, philosophy, history and literature. A practical expression of this was a concrete embodiment in the opening of the new Albert College. The great days of Albert College were in the future. This occasion was a rededication to the service of schools officials of the interest of the church in the welfare and problems of the school.

Etenin shrdlu ctaoin cmfwyp as SCHOOL SONG

The Albert College hymn was sung by the school choir with Mr. A. H. Mackenzie directing. Dr. Bert Howard pronounced the benediction. The assembly joined with the Moderator in recitation of scripture, and asked a blessing on the project with the following prayer in unison:

"O Lord Jesus Christ, Son of the Living God, who art the brightness of the Father's glory, and the express image of His Person; the one foundation and the chief corner stone, bless what we now do in laying this stone in Thy name, and be Thou, we beseech Thee, the beginning, the increase, and the consummation of this our work, which is undertaken to Thy glory; Who with the Father and the Holy Spirit livest and reignest, one God, world without end."

The two oldest members of the Board, Messrs. George F. Ostrum and H. W. Ackerman, were called forward by Mr. Warriner and presented to the assembly.

A tour of the building enabled everyone to see the ideas incorporated in the plans, which although not yet complete show the size of the rooms, halls, staircases and lighting. The Governors' tea was given after the ceremony.

Graduating Class, Students, Governors of Albert College Attend Baccalaureate Service

Following a custom established many years ago the Baccalaureate service of Albert College was reverently observed on Sunday morning when the school joined the worshippers of Bridge St. United church to commemorate their one hundredth anniversary.

Entering in procession to the organ prelude of "Lantana" with the members of the clergy presiding, the faculty, capped and gowned, the Board of Governors, the graduating class and the students followed.

At the front of the church tall white standards of spirea sprays with red peonies flanked the altar. On the platform were the minister of the church, Rev. H. M. Davis, who pronounced the invocation and the Right Rev. Dr. Howard who read the Scripture lesson; Mr. E. B. Warriner, chairman of the Board of Governors, who led in the responsive prayer; Rev. W. J. Kenzie, Principal of the school who introduced the guest speaker; and the Moderator of the General Council of the United Church of Canada, the Right Reverend James S. Thomson.

The choir was heard in two anthems directed by Mrs. Gerald Sale. Gordon, "Song in Praise of the Lord" and "Mine Eyes Have Seen the Glory".

In introducing the Moderator, Dr. MacKenzie spoke of the deep appreciation to Bridge Street church for allowing the school the privilege of using their church. The Principal said he felt honored and deeply encouraged by the good wishes of the friends of the school who had endeavored to serve the youth of the nation. The Moderator, who has been in Belleville before, acted at the University of Glasgow, had a long career as an educationist, as minister, author and a wise teacher, with a keen sense of humor. It was a privilege and a privilege to be in the happy position of welcoming Dr. Thomson to the city and a pleasure delight as a student to his teacher.

Dr. Thomson brought greetings to the congregation as the representative of the United church and expressed his happiness at being with them on this auspicious occasion. Special greetings were given to the students, staff, principal and governors and to the young ladies and gentlemen of the graduating class. He assured them of the prayers of the church on their behalf.

Reading the sermon on the invitation of Jesus to His disciples, "Follow Me", the minister asked the question, "What does it mean to be a Christian?"

STANDS FOR MANY THINGS

"Christianity has a stand for many things, certain beliefs, belonging to the church or to some particular church, a way of life expressing itself in our conduct. Being a Christian has seemed to stand for diverse characteristics.

"If we go back to where it began we find that basic Christianity did not have a system of beliefs, but we find something more interesting, a young man in company of other young men. His rules were expressed in simple words 'Follow Me'. God had all He wanted to say through one young man. God renews the life of the world generation by generation. So into the life of mankind there is a continual renewal of youth endowed with the virtues of the world needs, the spirit of adventure, hope, high spirit of freshness, but what they are going to do with it is a great responsibility.

"Today there is a great deal of interest in the study of history. It is difficult for people to look forward, the prospect of the future is darkened. Many are turning back to the pages of history with interest to fulfil that understanding of the unintercepted conversation of the wisdom of yesterday and the wisdom of today. Christ is the story of men who came and changed the history of the world. Christ called a group of young men simply to follow Him and made the greatest world history changing the entire course of civilization.

"Life becomes different to young people when someone calls them to a sense of reality. Jesus spoke as Someone-having authority, full of grace and hope, annoufcing the Kingdom of God.

LOOK FOR BETTER WORLD

"Many are looking for a better world. There seems nothing but frustration at present. They need to know that the kingdom of God is here. Students particularly question the meaning and purpose of life. Jesus gave no smart 'answers, no books to read, He brought the answer in the concrete form of His own existence, and it was good news to those who had lost their way.

"It is a most wonderful experience to discover the meaning of life in Jesus Christ, the most marvellous thing that can happen to a human soul. It completely changes the whole existence. Jesus never said 'Follow Me' is an act of sheer faith, adventure and trust. It is not necessarily pleasant or bright and it led to the place of execution. "What am I going to be is not so important as what kind of person am I going to be. Jesus says to put first things first and everything else falls in place. Nothing could be more unspeakably dull and a life that is all planned with no changes. New turns in the road, new problems come with the call and are much more exciting and interesting. May God help us all to come to the experience of the call to Jesus."

To the recessional music of "Allegro Assai Vivace" the congregation and the graduates filed out of the church bringing to a close the ceremonial observance of Baccalaureate Sunday.

Forever your memory will be that as you were.

Nearly $600 Taken From Safe In Trenton Store

TRENTON (Special) — Some time between closing of the Canadian Tire store on Saturday night and Sunday morning, the safe in the office was smashed and between $500 and $600 was taken. The burglars gained entrance to the store by jimmying the fire door at the rear of the store and proceeding to the office, smashed off the safe door to secure the money.

Mr. William Adams, manager of the store, made a large deposit of money shortly after the store was closed on Saturday and when he went to the store on Sunday afternoon, discovered the robbery.

The Trenton police department was notified and the investigation is now being carried out.

Two Break-ins Reported But Little Taken

Two break-ins were reported to city police over the weekend, one at Shaw's Men's Wear, where the intruders were apparently scared away before they accomplished their mission and the other at the Legion Hall on Pinnacle St., where a quantity of cigarets was taken from a vending machine.

A Sunday afternoon visit to his store by Mr. Shaw is believed to have scared away intruders at the men's haberdashery store.

As Mr. Shaw entered his store he heard a noise from the basement. He notified police but a search of the premises failed to reveal any intruders. Later, however, police discovered bar marks on the rear door of the store.

At the Legion Hall on Pinnacle Street, intruders forced a cellar window and pried open the cigaret vending machine. The intruders had a definite liking as no cigarets with only two brands being taken from the machine.

The men were returned to Belleville from Kingston penitentiary to face a charge of armed holdup of Brown's Bread here a year ago when the manager was tied up and $4,000 in cash and cheques stolen.

HIGH FINANCE

Canada's finance companies are paying as much as 12 per cent interest on money loaned to them. That is one of several interesting facts on Canada's consumer credit problem given in a brief (250-word) article by Peter Newman in the current issue of Maclean's Magazine.

Finance companies, says Mr. Newman, are outbidding banks for the ready cash of individuals and corporations. With large sums in savings thus being freed for circulation, inflationary tendencies are continuing. Government controls may be the only way to slow down Canadians' borrowing, says Mr. Newman. He does not add the obvious — that any action on such controls is almost certain to be postponed until after the Federal election.

If one feels sympathetic towards investment companies forced to pay as much as 12 per cent for money loaned to them, as the result of the tight-money policy having reduced their ability to borrow from the banks, one's sympathy is wasted. These companies in turn charge 26 per cent annual interest on small loans up to $300. Presumably they still make a profit on the 12 per cent margin — which suggests that they must have been doing even better than alright when they could borrow at a much lower rate of interest.

Finance companies, though, must have heavy expenditures. Because they make loans on slight security, they sometimes are not repaid. Since about 5 per cent of debts are not collected, according to Mr. Newman, it would appear that they would have to charge approximately 5 per cent interest on loans to even recover their capital. Then there are administration costs which because of the nature of the loans would be relatively high in many instances. That 24 per cent interest, therefore, is far from being all profit. That, however, does not alter the fact that Canadians who borrow money from finance companies are paying dearly for the privilege of pre-spending their future income.

Canadians are spending in advance in no half-hearted fashion. Mr. Newman reports that consumer debt averages about $900 per Canadian family. About 12 cents out of every dollar earned is now pledged to repay past loans, says Mr. Newman. Fortunately many families have more than one wage-earner; otherwise, the repayment of loans would take an even bigger bite out of every dollar earned, a little arithmetic convincing us that the average Canadian wage-earner does not receive enough to meet a $700 debt with a mere 12 per cent of his annual salary.

ACCIDENT OR DESIGN

A story on the preparations for launching the first earth satellite from a Florida station early next year says that once the 20-inch ball-shaped globe is launched volunteer observers will supplement official checkpoints in tracing the satellite's path across the heavens.

A map prepared by the Associated Press shows the paths the satellite will follow in orbital travel around the globe ranging between latitudes 40 degrees north and 40 degrees south.

The majority of the world's inhabitants live between these latitudes. Yet the Associated Press map indicates that the satellite will girdle the globe in a fashion which is chiefly remarkable for the manner in which it dodges densely populated areas. Much of the satellite's path will be over water, southeastward from Florida over the South Atlantic to the Cape of Good Hope, then northeastward over the Indian Ocean, across the East Indies to the Pacific and then turning south again to sweep across part of South America, chiefly jungle, and out into the South Atlantic once more.

Though the satellite will be 300 miles up, it would seem reasonable to suppose that the best view of it would be obtained from those parts of the world directly underneath its path. If this is so, it would appear, offhand, to be extremely difficult to lay out paths between latitudes 40 degrees north and 40 degrees south which would have produced fewer volunteer observers than the one chosen.

H-Bombs Kill Today

Manchester Guardian

So where does the prime minister stand?

To be fair to him, in his statement to the Commons he did no more, when speaking of the strontium hazard, than to quote what had already been set out from in the Medical Research Council's report. It is true that the document says that "the present level (of radioactivity) would produce no detectable increase in the incidence of ill-effects." In other words, 50,000 deaths from the bombs so far exploded spread over the next 20 years will be lost to sight in the noise of the other 1,000,000,000 that will occur from natural causes in the same period.

This is the kind of comfort which the report has offered the prime minister.

The effects of its conclusions are less amnestic.

And in two consecutive paragraphs it says, first, that if the present rate of testing continues strontium will be ten times as concentrated in people's bones and, secondly, that if this level were reached "immediate consideration of the situation would be necessary.

It looks as if the heads of the three states now testing bombs will have to go back to their specialists, in a body or so, and ask how they can get out of the mess which testing has brought them.

For by then, if tests continue, decisions of others will have become "detectable" in the world's bones. By then the things do not come to such a pass, wise men will suppose that some will have been lost, caused by those to be exploded at Christmas Island.

New Vaccine Poses Perils

Ottawa Journal

We had braced ourselves against most of the alarms of modern invention but we are taken unaware by Parisian science. They have a new Misery! — invented a vaccine which makes ducks lay eggs. This is obviously one that can be done for ducks can be done for humans, in time. In brief if you are white and want to be black the vaccine will do it and vice versa.

The prospect frightens us but we must hardly diplomats. Mr. Evan Gall: who will be Canada's first high commissioner to Ghana, obviously would be expected to reach Accra as a white man and leave changed as the driven snow. And there is nothing in our reports from Paris to indicate whether a person, after changing his color, may shape and size can take another injection and get back to what he was.

Thus far in the human story we have had to make do with our given color, our gargoyle faces and our assorted bodies. Now we have the opportunity of making ourselves over strength and imagine dreadful strength and international courtesy. Not only that: we shall become a home-loving wife looking speculatively at her husband and saying, "Dear, I don't think the color of your face today quite suits the shape of your drapes and don't think you should try a new shade?" Or we can imagine dreadful husbands wondering about changing shapes — not their own but their wives.

All told, this could be the end of everything.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

IT MUST MAKE A DIFFERENCE

The story is told of an old preacher in a Scottish theological seminary who was noted for his curmudgeon ways. He was a man of few words and most of these were severe to the point of devastation. One day a student brought this teacher a sermon to read. The old man let his eyes travel up and down the pages with great deliberation and the severity of his expression indicated that he was not exactly enthralled by what he read. Finally the student got up courage enough to ask: "Will it do, Sir?" And the old preacher replied with: "Do what?"

There was considerable wisdom in the old teacher's query, for religion, in all its manifestations is supposed to be redemptive to us and for us. It was said of the first-century Christians that they had turned the world upside down. The day Christ was crucified there was a great earthquake. Christian Church was born on the day of Pentecost amid the sound "as of the rushing of a mighty wind." The Christian religion is more than a pleasant theory of life unless it gets into the heart and into our souls and does something to us. It must make a difference if it's the real thing.

Religion that doesn't make a person a better prayer, better employee, son, daughter, spouse, and citizen is certainly not the Christian religion. It is a spurious something that constitutes excess baggage for anyone who tries to carry it along.

Flag dedicated at St. Thomas' Church. On Sunday morning the ceremony of unfurling and dedicating a church flag was conducted on the lawn at St. Thomas' Church. The vested choir, under the direction of Mr. Ernest Wheatley, took up position at the entrance to the church while singing, with cornet accompaniment, the hymn, "Fling Out the Banner." The Apostles' Creed was recited by the large congregation assembled upon the lawn and prayers for His Majesty the King and for the King's force were said. The prayer of dedication was recited by the rector of the parish, Archdeacon, the Venerable C. B. THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The season for quick thinking is at hand. On a blustery, cold wet day, some friend's of mine were travelling in a fast motor launch in unfamiliar waters when they struck a rock whilst negotiating a channel between some reefs and the mainland. Their propeller shaft was smashed; but what was a lot worse, the transom, which is the stern of the boat, was damaged, and the little craft began to sink.

It was about forty yards to the nearest reef, a bare rock rising out of the water; and two hundred yards to the shore. On the mainland, of course, were trees.

The life belts that are now mandatory in all pleasure craft were hastily distributed to the three women and two children, and the situation started scrambling into the water, which was icy cold, and heading for the rock reef near at hand.

One of the men was a quick thinker. He commanded everyone to start for the mainland. They were all swimmers, and the life belts were good.

What he and now was the quick thinking. Reaching into his pocket, he snatched half a dozen matches. Removing his hat, he placed the matches on his hair, and clapped the hat firmly back in place.

As the launch sank on its shoal, the five swam heavily and in concert towards the land, a long two hundred yards to shore. In a group, they made it. And in three minutes, with his dry matches under your hat, the quick thinker had a fire started; and in another ten minutes a roaring fire in the warmth of which the castaways could huddle and begin drying their clothes.

In a little while, they felt good enough to start hunting around for such branches of evergreens as they could break off to get larger fire on the point. And it was not long until a passing craft sighted the castaways, noticed their figures frantically signalling, and came inshore and effected the rescue.

It is true, somebody would have come along in due time, within an hour, or three or five hours; for this is the fishing and summer cottage season.

But it could have been cold, cold waiting, out on that rock reef, or on shore, without a dry match.

A citizen of Alten, Norway, walked down the Fjord with his German shepherd dog, learned what devotion dogs are capable of. The boat having capsized, the dog managed to bring his master, who could not swim to shore. The canine did this after treeing itself on the top of a tall tree, 15 up. The master had intended to drown it.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

Symptoms That Do Not Occur

Many correspondents tell me they have derived great benefit by reading my articles, but rarely explain what particular teaching or in what way. Hence I get discouraged, because I hasten to tell me how much better his or her health and happiness is since I began to cease the physic habit. For instance:

"Following instructions, I have succeeded in breaking the physic habit which I had for over 30 years. I never now until now how it feels to be perfectly well. May the good Lord give you many years of happy life — Amen."

(W.L.H.)

It is largely the fear of "auto-intoxication," "toxemia," and the innumerable evils conjured up by charlatans that keeps so many persons in the habit of using one or another "aid" and believing that such "aid" is indispensable to maintain health or prevent illness.

And so, when I receive a report, such as W.L.H.'s, I feel reassured that it is worthwhile to keep pounding away at it.

People who depend on any kind of artificial "aid" to maintain "regularity" belong in the same category with those poor geeks who thing they must have a "dose of digitalis every day, lest . . ." and with the enthusiasts who, for a while, keep going on saltrin, acetanilid and other pain-killers; and with the degenerates who deliberately resort to decadrine, amphetamine, benzedrine, tranquilizers, barbiturate, heroin, alcohol or other drug to banumb their inferiority feelings for a while. While under the effects of these subnormal people feel equal to, if not better than everybody else.

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

PATIENCE

Patience is one of the "old fashion" qualities, but it will never be discarded. It is the greatest of all virtues and is needed in almost every ourselves lives. We would be more truly loved, and have quieter nerves, if we learned to have patience in everything where there is need of it.

The Bible has a saying along this line where it tells us to possess our souls in patience. Learning to wait is a great acquirement. History is full of illustrations and examples where men and women have waited their time and opportunity, and have a serious mistake or blunder is made because patience was exercised.

Many a war has been prevented by being patient. Nations can well afford to wait and be patient when war itself might be the end of all civilization. There would be gain—just total loss. In our daily lives a lack of patience may be the whole difference between success and failure. In a serious dispute it always pays to wait and be patient.

Patience is a virtue that all of us should make one of our greatest assets—and what an asset it is! It so often prevents bitterness and resentment. It was Lincoln's patience that so endeared him to all posterity. If he became angry he would never never replace him until he lost all his anger. Then he was kindly at all times.

I recently came across this line on "unknown author. He said—"A little more persistence, a little more effort, and what seemed a hopeless failure may turn into a glorious success." Patience is a great teacher in the school of character.

Letter To The Editor

Supports Mayor On City Manager

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:

As a city taxpayer and resident of Bellevile, I feel compelled to write this letter on the recent controversy in city council concerning the elimination of our city manager, Mr. Wendle R. Herring.

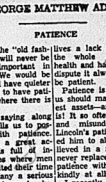
In my opinion, not only has a great injustice been done to Mr. Herring and his family, by this change in policy in council, but the city of Belleville has placed itself in a precarious position. Council of the second city, for a city manager, the public voted for a city manager, Belleville needs a city manager, a city manager. Compared with other cities of its size and population, it is backward in many aspects, it holds many potential possibilities for development in the future, but first we must have stability in our council, no petty tactics, and work co-operatively for the benefits of our city as a whole.

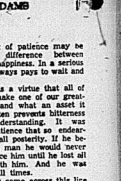
I might mention in connection with the recent issue raised in council over the question of the payment of the $12,000 salary to be paid to Mr. Herring as city manager, as being too great a sum, that I understand our hospital administrator receives $10,000 plus car allowance, which I believe to be perfectly justified; however in comparing the two positions, I can see the objection when job evaluation is concerned.

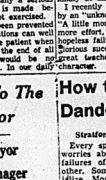
In concluding this article, I might say, that we should congratulate our present mayor, who in my opinion is doing her level best to bring this city up-to-date, and make it something the public can be proud of.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Elmer A. Risto,

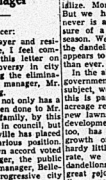
How to Fight Dandelions

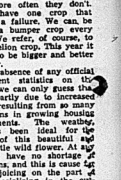






Stratford Beacon-Herald





Every spring brings its own worries about unwanted crop failures of one kind and another. Sometimes these are manifold. More often they don't. But we have one constant reminder of failure. We can be sure of a bumper crop every spring in the form of, of course, to the dandelion crop. This year it appears to be bigger and better than ever.

In the absence of any official government statistics on the subject, we can only guess that this is partly due to increased acreage created from so many new lawns in growing housing developments. This, we suppose, too, has been ideal for the growth of dandelions, particularly during the wild flower. At any rate, we have no shortage of dandelions. We have had a great rejoicing on the part of lawn fires specializing in the extermination of dandelions weed-killers. Home-owners are more appreciative of their lawns.

Probably they do not realize that there is one sure and certain way of getting a lawn of dandelions at practically no cost and without any work. All need do is induce a number of the neighbors' children to come and play on the lawn, along with their dogs. In a few days the dandelions will be gone from the face of the earth. But that is to be denied.

It is a comparatively simple matter these days to black-list any undesirable individual. It is smooth and hard. Then you have a permanent trouble-free surface. No grass or dandelions no more weeding. And if you have a large property, you can always paint it green.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

The 9th Belleville Cubs have two packs, 69 in all, and Scout Troop of 28. The ladies who prepared the annual banquet had a little trouble with the colors—tartan — but the profusion of flowers and the well laid tables took care of that. Scout Peter Scarth, who thanked Mrs. Jean Smith and the mothers auxiliary "for such a lovely dinner", expressed the sentiments of all present.

Fathers and sons totalled 160, and after grace, by Rev. L. A. Page, were quickly served by the efficient ladies. From remarks overheard their efforts were fully appreciated.

Jim Ritchie, chairman, introduced the guests: Padre L. A. Page; Don Allan, S.M. 4th; A. S. Robb, L.A. president; district commissioner O. C. Owen; A. D.C. Phil Allcorn; A.D.C. Les Boyle; C. F. Leggat.

After dinner Al Banting and Bill Todd led the singing. The films were projected on the sheet and everybody packed up their troubles and stocked Macdonald's farm with great fervor.

WELCOMES FATHERS

The chairman welcomed the fathers. He said their chief endeavor was to implant the cub motto "Do your best and the Scout motto "Be Prepared", in the boys' minds. Scouts are taught not to be satisfied with just getting by, but to be prepared spiritually and bodily to be a help to their fellow man. Mr. Ritchie is also Cub master. He thanked Cliff Wheeler, Bob Wood, Tony Janitsch, Bill Parsidis, Bob McIsaac, Lee Trip, Fred Platt, Jim Ward, Alex Jamieson, Jack Holmes, Chic James and Wulf Stephanson for their assistance with the Cubs, and Don Allan and John Clarke who take charge of Scouts.

Cub Richard Levine gave the toast to the fathers. Ed Whyte, replying, offered sincere thanks to all the leaders in Belleville.

Stu Robb explained that the Local Association was more of a service organization than an executive body. It attends to camps, insurance, training, sponsors Jamboree Scouts and has committees which are available for assistance to any group. He invited leaders and committeemen to attend L.A. meetings and acquaint themselves with the many services offered.

BADGES PRESENTED

Scouts Peter Scarth, Colin Male, Arthur Alyea, Garth Stephanson and Allan Cleary were given their "Leaping Wolf" badges. A.D.C. Phil Allcorn awarded pennants to the Red Six of "A" Pack and the Grey Six of "B" Pack for gaining the highest points. Each Cub also received a crest. The Red Six are Cubs Ronnie Levett, Fraser Ritchie, Howard Goldberg, Gary Lovell, Bobby Murray and Arthur Carveth. The Gray Six are Cubs Dick Storey, Charlie Parker, Doug. Glenn, Jimmy Flindall, Lorne Huston and David Storey. Bob Banting and his Beaver Patrol of Scouts, Bob Campbell, Garth Stephanson, Gary Gray, Peter Searth, Chris Rendall, Al Cleary and Carl Jones, were awarded a similar pennant and cresta by A.D.C. Les Boyle.

Cub badges presented by Chris Legget were collected by Cubs David Colden, Mike Hume, Arthur Carveth, Fraser Ritchie; Artists, to Cub Robert Murray; House Orderly, to Cubs Peter Lipes, David Spring; Homecraft, to Cub Forrest Smith; Toymaker, to Cub Ronnie Lovett; Teamplayer, to Cub Brian Knudson; Swimmer, to Cubs Peter Lipes and Robert Murray. Cub Tommy Seymour, who at the age of 10 was awarded the Silver Cross by the Governor General for saving two people from drowning, belonged to the 9th.

COMMISSIONER SPEAKS

Mr. Oliver Owen complimented the Cubs and Scouts on their smart appearance. Unity is the aim of Scouting, the Commissioner said, and the best place to start it is in the home. The interest of parents is very important, and—fathers were urged to get closer to their boys.

First stars were presented by the D.C., to Cubs Arthur Carveth, Owen Stephanson, John Desmond and Larry Harrington. Second stars to Cubs Richard Levine, Peter Lipes, Forrest Smith and Bill Slovin.

We congratulate Jim Ritchie for a well organized evening, and we heartily congratulate Mrs. Jean McGhee on being named "Cub of the Year." Next year a shield will be awarded to the best Scout Patrol and will have the names of 1st Class Scouts inscribed on it.

Will Launch Suggestion Plan

Ontario Hydro employees, whose ideas and suggestions contribute materially to still greater efficiency in the commission's operations, are to be rewarded with cash awards, beginning today, when a province-wide employee suggestion plan will be inaugurated.

The maximum award of $1,000 will be given for a suggestion which results in a calculated net saving of $5,000 or more in the first year. Where the value of the suggestion is of an intangible nature, the top award will be $100, while a minimum of $5 will be paid for acceptable proposals.

There are about 18,000 Ontario Hydro employees and all are eligible to participate in the plan.

RCEME Marks Anniversary Of Formation

On Tuesday evening, May 28, a banquet was held in the Army, Navy and Airforce Veterans' hall marking the 15th anniversary of the formation of the Royal Canadian Electrical and Mechanical Engineers as a corps of the Canadian army. The dinner was sponsored by the local militia unit of RCEME, 27 Squadron, but was attended by ex-RCEME personnel as well as members of the local unit.

At 7 p.m. the gathering sat down to a table decorated with the flag and symbols of the RCEME Corps. A very tasty turkey dinner was prepared and served by the Women's Auxiliary of the Army, Navy and Airforce Veterans Association.

Following the meal the catering was addressed by Capt. K. D. H. Willcocks, Officer Commanding 27 Technical Squadron and Major E. J. O. Harvey from Eastern Ontario Area Headquarters, in Kingston.

Capt. Willcocks spoke of the organization of the RCEME in 1942 and followed progress of the corps through to the present. He asked those people to stand who had entered RCEME at the time of its inception. There were seven people present in this category: WO1 J. Cranfield, WO2 S. K. Smith, WO2 F. Green, S/Sgt. C. Marriott, S/Sgt. L. Furney, Sgt. J. Lewis, L/Cpl. Kirby. Of these WO2 Smith, Sgt. Lewis and L/Cpl. Kirby can now members of the local unit. Capt. Willcocks also gave a short outline on the operation of the local militi unit and pointed out the fact that trades training was available in the militia which would benefit an individual in civilian life. Trades being taught at the local unit are vehicle mechanic and telecommunications (radio) mechanic.

The theme of Major Harvey's talk was the Canadian Militia. He compared the militia to a service club in that citizen is serving in the militia were providing the country as a whole with a body of trained men and men who could provide the nucleus of an emergency force at any time. He praised the militia on its contribution to both the forces required for the Korean war and the Canadian contribution to NATO in Europe. He ended by expressing his hopes that citizens would continue to realize the need of a militia and that they would support it with their service.

Following Major Harvey's address members of the 27 Tech. Squadron displayed and explained several items of army equipment including an anti-tank weapon and various telecommunication instruments. After this a film was shown which had been taken when the unit was at summer camp at Camp Borden in 1956. It showed how the unit while at camp operated as a field force under conditions similar to those on active wartime service.

The RCEME birthday dinner will become an annual affair in Belleville. It is hoped that any ex-RCEME personnel in the area, who were not advised of this year's dinner, will make themselves known to the local unit so that they may be included on next year's invitation list.

Two letters of correspondence were read and a thank-you. There was no report from the sick committee.

Mrs. C. Keeble and Mrs. G. Palmer volunteered to go to the convention to be held on June 4 at Roslin.

The "Home Economics and Extension" course was discussed, and the W.I. chose "Salads, and How to Make Them," to be held some time in the future.

Central Council H-S Association Workshop Held

The Central Council of Home and School Associations for Belleville and district sponsored a workshop in the Wesley-Willis Churchill School, Thursday evening.

Mrs. Bruce Smith, Mrs. D. Carigey and Mrs. R. Jones were in charge of the guest and register each as they entered. Representatives from 16 associations were present.

In the auditorium a display of books from the Corby Public Library held special interest for most parents, as it stressed "Adult Education". These books are available on all the subjects of children and youth and easily obtained by a visit to the library. Mrs. Lockyer was in charge of the display.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Watson had a large and varied display of booklets and pamphlets from the Ontario Federation. A number of films proved popular with the majority and were soon picked for future publication tables at association meetings.

SPEAKER PAMPHLETS

Mr. Musgrove, of the Quinte Secondary School, had an interesting display of books and pamphlets on "Choosing a Career".

A most arresting group of posters, made by young artists of the Belleville Collegiate School on the theme "Careers" and "Home and School" were admired by everyone. Congratulations to this group and to Mr. Musgrove on their display.

Mrs. Charles Powell, president of the Central Council, welcomed some 75 delegates and members to this meeting and pointed out that it is gratifying to see so many from out-of-town: Deseronto, Picton, Frankford, as well as those from the Belleville-Trenton area.

Mrs. Powell presented the following:

CLASSROOM SHOPS

The workshops in the classrooms were then held as follows:

Presidents and vice-presidents: Mrs. R. Jones; recording and corresponding secretaries, Mrs. N. O'Neil; Mrs. Dowell and Mrs. Godwin; programs, Mrs. Parnell, Picton, who enjoyed their roles as did the other members.

Soon the divided audience was called together again on the stages of this particular problem.

Spokesmen from each group were asked to give an oral review of their deliberations and many worthwhile answers were given.

Mrs. Brooks, in conclusion, gave an example of the vowels, A E I O U; A for atmosphere, as friendly as possible; E, enthusiasm, Home and School members responsibility; O, opportunity, a chance for all to learn; U, usefulness, give each and every one something to do in this way Home and School Associations will never lack members.

THANKS TENDERED

Mrs. S. Genya thanked Mrs. Brooks for the wonderful way of involving an audience and making each feel so well informed.

Mrs. Powell, on behalf of Central Council, presented Mrs. Brooks with a gift, also adding her thanks.

A large display poster of the Hastings Mental Health Association, depicting the Bates-Convalescent Home at Plainfield for mentally retarded infants, drew considerable interest. An invitation was issued for anyone to drive to this home and inspect it at any time. A fenced-in play yard for the tots is the newest asset to this home and will be beneficial to them this summer. Literature on "Retardation" was also available.

Mention was made of the annual meeting of Central Ontario Council to be held at the Corby Public Library, June 6th, to be presided over by the district governor's Town Room.

Mrs. L. Gordon, newly elected vice-president, of Ontario Federation for this area, will be present. An invitation was extended to as many as possible to attend.

Hastings Pr. Edward W.A. Presbytery Meets in Trenton

The 35th annual meeting of the Hastings and Prince Edward Women's Association of Belleville Presbytery of the United Church of Canada, convened in Grace United church, Trenton, on Thursday, May 30th. The attractive programme, blue with silver lettering, was typical of the many delegates as they entered the church for the devotional period. The president, Mrs. J. K. Marsh, Belleville, conducted the business of the convention in a most efficient manner.

Miss E. Johnston welcomed the convention to Grace United Church and invited the guests to partake of the noon day meal, the comforts and conveniences of the church. Mrs. R. Stafford of Redneersville, graciously replied.

Greetings were brought from the Bay of Quinte Conference Women's Association by the newly appointed president, Mrs. Claude Ives of Shannonville; from the presbyterial organization Mrs. Lincoln Elliott, Tweed, president of the Missionary Society, Belleville Presbyterial, and from the Belleville Presbytery, by the moderator Rev. Stanley Rowley, chairman of Presbytery.

Mrs. Howard Adams, Massanga, gave a comprehensive report of the year's work as secretaries reported the splendid response to the various departments showing the vast amount of enthusiasm of the women who work unreservedly in the 88 associations with over 2800 members and have raised over $65,000.

WIDER FIELDS' SERVICE

While the success of the manses and parsonages is an important phase of the W.A. work, the W.A. has branched out in wider fields of service through departments of Missionary and Christian fellowship; Christian citizenship; Christian education; Christian stewardship; literature and organization.

Mrs. Norman Crawford, Picton, had an excellent display of literature and reported increased sales which registered that women are reading more and more.

The morning devotional period was taken by Mrs. Kuntze, Mrs. N. Pyear, Mrs. MacDowell of Belleville Eastminster Federation, who presented a meditation at was presented by Mrs. Cronk of Wellington W.A.; Mrs. Howard Hodgin, King St., Trenton, sang the 91st Psalm (McDermott). She was accompanied by Mrs. Gordon Little. Mrs. R. C. Jackson, Madoc, sang "How Great Thou Art," accompanied by Mrs. A. N. Pyear.

In the president's report, Mrs. J. E. Marsh stated she had greatly enjoyed her work. Seven new units had been organized. She had attended conference and Dominion Council with 11 sessions held in four days and had visited several local associations in Presbytery.

PAST PRESIDENTS HONORED

After Mrs. Marsh read a historical sketch of the Hastings and Prince Edward district, the secretary presented Mrs. A. E. Lott of Frankford, was called to the platform and Mrs. G. E. Dobbs pinned a lovely corsage on her dress in appreciation of her 25 years of faithful service. The remaining ten past presidents were likewise recognized: Mrs. C. Makins, Mrs. G. F. Lent, Mrs. J. McKeown, Miss A. Brickman, Mrs. G. Dobbs, Mrs. N. Pyear. It was deeply regretted that Mrs. E. Ward, Mrs. Harold Elliott, Mrs. J. M. Wood and Mrs. M. R. Davidson could not attend this 25th annual meeting.

The guest speaker of the convention was the Rev. Homer R. Lane, Toronto, associate secretary of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service of the United Church. His subject was "Putting a Glow on Life's Sunset." Canadians are living longer and growing older.

"Because we are living longer our total population is aging. Communities are becoming concerned about the welfare of our senior citizens. There is need for friendship and fellowship. The proper care is the first claim of the state. Our senior citizens are the builders of our country and founders of our institutions and they have a claim on our rights. We recognize the need to provide for our elderly people is an act of justice.

CHURCH GIVES LOVE

"Why should the church enter this field? The answer is that more is required than the State can equalize it and give. It is the duty of the State to give justice but to justice must be added mercy. Therefore the church seeks to administer God's love to the aged," said Mr. Lane. The church and state need to work together at this job. Every age needs to feel that it is wanted, that it is a part of the whole.

In God's eyes we are all of intrinsic worth. Everyone is worth a great deal to the other person just by being ourselves. When we grow older we often play our part by what we are and what we stand for. There is the hope also for sufficient strength and independence to live out our lives under our own man and secretary of Belleville Presbytery were present and Rev. S. F. Dixon chaired the meeting.

A nominating committee set up that day brought in a slate of officers for the year following. A committee on constitution brought in a recommended name for the new Presbyterial Women's Association as well as constitution rules. Oral reports were heard, each scoring giving its number of members, study secretary and how expended for the year.

FUND RAISING MEANS

Quiltings, bazaars, teas, chicken-pie suppers, were but a few means of the means of raising funds and were used to augment the envelope paid into building funds and mortgages, for repairs to parsonage upkeep, repairs and decoration, and when there was a balance it was turned over to the Board of Management. The societies reported that the Ladies' Aid was the backbone of the church and that the church board of management were a little inclined to depend too much on the efforts of the women.

At the meeting in June 1956, 46 delegates responded to the roll call. Their members had raised a total of $9,674.84. Thanks was given by the convention to the delegate coming the greatest distance, Mrs. Ives, R.R. 2, Madoc. 45 societies again reported and the remaining one in existence of the 51, letter was read from the Extension Committee of the three Toronto Presbyterial Women's Associations that they were most willing to help in the work of the city or through the columns of the New Outlook in connection with the formation of Presbytery Associations.

MEMORIAL SERVICE

At the sixth annual meeting a memorial service was held for the deceased Reverend S. F. Dixon, who had given freely of his thought and energy in putting the Presbyterial Women's Association on the way to greater achievement.

At the seventh annual meeting 48 societies reported. The first outlook was given for the 1957-58 twentieth anniversary when Reverend Lydia Grurby, of Toronto, chose as her theme, "Twenty Years On The Place of the Women's Association in the Church" and Mrs. Falls, of Dominion Council, was guest speaker. Each year from then on will be observed throughout the Presbytery.

Following an enlarged executive the locals were contacted and definite goals were set. The membership of the executives met in busy times addressing local meetings and presenting the Dominional contact to promote the aims and objectives stressed by Dominion Council and Presbytery at times to broaden the horizons of the women in keeping with the wider work of the Presbytery.

NINETY-FIVE SOCIETIES

The Presbytery W. A., along with other groups, sponsored the two-week Templeton Mission in Belleville in 1953. This effort was successful in every way with as exceptionally large attendance. Also sponsored was the Quin-Mo-Lor Young People's Camp at Madoc and the Albert Memorial Camp at which are located in our own Presbytery.

We have grown through the years. Our membership has increased to a total of 95 societies with a membership enrolment of 2,705 plus 59 life members. The money raised for missionary and maintenance ship, $67,812 being raised last year.

Since we have always had capable literature secretaries we have become aware of the Dominion Presbyteries in the use of W. A. literature and program helps. Our report will show the local literature secretaries in the use of W. A. literature and program helps. Our report will show the local literature secretaries in the use of W. A. literature and program helps. Our report will show the local literature secreta

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

MAYBE YOU CAN STRAIGHTEN THIS OUT YOURSELF

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

Recently my mother remarried, and to a man much younger than herself.

Now, every time this man and I are alone, he makes advances toward me. I want to tell my mother, but she loves him very much and I don't want to cause trouble between them. He seems to love her, too, so I don't know why he should want to do this.

Do you think it would be best for me to leave home, since I'm 17 and could support myself?

— Miss M.B.

Dear Miss M.B.:

First, let me tell you that you are an unusually thoughtful and mature girl and a most devoted and understanding daughter. Your mother is a very fortunate woman to have such a daughter. I'm sure, too, that you're equally fortunate in the mother you have.

I can see that you have a very difficult and trying problem on your hands. But since you're so aware of the need for the utmost tact and care in handling it, I believe you'll be able to work it out without creating an unpleasant situation in your home, as a less mature girl might impulsively do.

I don't think it would be advisable for you to leave home at this time. Seventeen is a little too young for a girl to strike out on her own. But you might keep the idea in the back of your head as something to be seriously considered, say, when you're a year older, if it seems to be a wise move then.

As for right now, there are two things I think you might do.

One is to try to avoid being alone with your stepfather. This may be a little difficult some times, but it shouldn't be impossible. You can always make an errand for yourself that would take you out of the house, or go to see one of your friends, unless it's too late in the evening for such things, and if it is late in the evening, it would be perfectly natural for you to simply say goodnight and go to your room. See how clever you can be in doing this without making too obvious a point of it. If you do it consistently, your stepfather should soon catch on and take the hint.

If he doesn't, however, then the next time he makes any move that you feel isn't proper, simply come right out and say something like: "Please don't do that. It makes me very uncomfortable, and I'm sure Mother would be unhappy if she knew about it. My mother loves you very much, and I know you love her and don't want to do anything to hurt her, so what do you say we forget about this and pretend it never happened?"

After that, if, by any chance, there should be still another time when he doesn't behave as you think he should, then you ought to go to some older woman relative who is close to you and whom you are sure would be wise in the matter, and tell her just what is going on. Say that of course you want to keep this unpleasantness from your mother and are only anxious that everything shall go smoothly at home, but that you've tried every way you know to put an end to the trouble and you're at a loss to know what to do next.

You could also, of course, consult your minister or priest, if you prefer.

But see what you can do on your own first, before bringing anyone else into it, and I hope you'll let me know if you're able to get it all straightened out by following what I've suggested.

SUMMERTIME CARE FOR TIRED FEET

Illustrated by Mary Frances Spurlock

Epsom salts and bicarbonate of soda in warm water pep up tired feet.

This is the season of the year when more woman than ever complain of ailing feet. Hot and humid days frequently bring on ankle swelling, excessive perspiration, blisters, scorching and burning, and shoes which seemed to fit comfortably just a few months ago seem unbearably tight now. You don't really have to suffer, however. Make a firm resolution to stop complaining about ailing feet and do something about them. This resolution is easy to keep. Just follow a few pointers and you can step out as airily as you do in mid-winter.

The most important thing to remember to be careful in the selection of your shoes. New leathers and new foot designs have resulted in such a multitude of comfortable shoe styles that there is no excuse for hobbling about any more. And, if your feet have been ill-used, buy shoes a size or a half size larger. Shoes that will guarantee foot-happy days must be well-constructed, have plenty of room for the toes (sharply pointed numbers won't do at all), and should have flexible leather soles that act as shock absorbers.

A nightly pep bath will give relief to tired feet. To a basin of warm water add a tablespoonful of bicarbonate of soda and an equal amount of epsom salts. Friction with a coarse towel and massage with oil. Keep a foot powder on hand. Sprinkle it in your shoes, especially on warm days, to absorb moisture. It is the chemicals deposited by the sweat glands that cause the flesh on the soles to smart and burn.

Change hosiery daily (it is no trouble to launder nylons before going to bed) and see that they are plenty long, a full inch longer than your longest toe.

A good way of putting new life into weary feet is to do a few simple exercises that work all the muscles and ligaments that have become tense. You might start off with something as simple as toe wiggling which you can do at odd moments during the day, even when you have your shoes on. Curling and uncurling the toes will strengthen the arch muscles as well as whipping up the circulation.

Remember, too, that corns are the scars of vanity. Wear well-fitting shoes and you will never have them. If they have already

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

WHAT TO WEAR AT EVENING CHURCH WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have received a formal invitation to an evening wedding in a large church, and to the reception following in a hotel suite. I have a new short pink-chiffon dinner dress which I am sure will be appropriate, and I have the right accessories—except that I am not at all sure if I should wear some kind of hat to a church wedding, even if it is in the evening. Please advise me. — Sue D.

When the ceremony takes place in church, even in the evening, it is best taste to wear some sort of head covering. This needn't, of course, be a hat, even a so-called evening hat . . . with today's styles it is easy to find or make a simple decorative arrangement of a sheer little veil or a design of a few small flowers. Actually this arrangement can add a charming and harmonious touch to your costume.

PROPER WAY FOR FORMAL WEDDING INVITATIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My fiance and I are making our plans to have a large, formal church wedding and reception. I am a doctor, 30 years old, and my prospective bridegroom is a lawyer. I live with my parents, and the formal invitations will, of course, be issued in their names. A question most important about these invitations: Should the "Dr." be used before my name?

— Bride-to-be

No. Formal invitations of this kind, issued by your parents, would read:

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lee Smith request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter Helena to Mr. Arthur Morrison
etc.

In other words, just as "Miss" would not be used before the bride's name in this conventional form, so "Dr." would not be used before your name.

developed, do not attempt bath-room surgery. Seek the services of a chiropodist.

Hostesses who spend long hours on their feet should take a tip from uniformed nurse and enjoy extra foot comfort—by wearing a pair of the new washable white leather informal shoes which are foam padded to ease strain. These shoes can be scrubbed with soap or detergent suds, dried away from the heat, and then revitalized to keep them looking as pretty as they feel.

Temptation Devil's Cake

By Mary Moore

By surprise Pete walked in—I was studying some recipes and after welcoming him, I said, "Hon — I'm going to make a cake of some kind. What would you like?" "Chocolate."

So because he likes chocolate cake best, I whomped up one and added trimmings like a Date Cream Filling with a Mocha 7-Minute Frosting and it rated and received raves from all consumers.

Combine in the top of a double boiler, 2 unbeaten egg whites, 1½ cups sugar, 5 table-spoons water, 1½ teaspoons corn syrup. Beat until thoroughly mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water, beating constantly with rotary or electric beater, and cook for 7 minutes or until frosting will stand in peaks. Remove from boiling water, add 1 teaspoon vanilla and continue to beat until thick enough to spread. Fold in 1 tablespoon instant coffee and spread on top and sides of layer cake. Sprinkle top with nuts if desired.

Just as Well Throw in The Title, Too

SARNIA (CP) — Club trustees announced today Sarnia Sailors will move up to Ontario Hockey Association Senior A competition next season, provided that:

They can raise $80,000 over the summer; they can obtain a working agreement with a National Hockey League club; they receive assurance from the OHA they will be competing in a well-balanced league; they receive a promise of player help if needed from the OHA.

Sailors played in the OHA Junior B league in the 1956-57 season. Trustees say the biggest obstacle for moving is the $80,000, which they hope to raise through season ticket sales and by sponsoring dances and shows this summer.

Five teams played in Senior A western division last season. Stratford parks and arena board has announced Stratford Indians will not return to the league unless new sponsors are found. Other teams were Kitchener-Waterloo, Chatham, Owen Sound and Windsor.

Sailors are negotiating with eight new players and will name a coach by the time season tickets go on sale in August, the announcement said.

LEAD GOLF COMPETITION

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A well balanced team representing the Hamilton golf club, took a solid lead in the opening games of the Somerville Cup matches played at the London Hunt and Country Club Sunday. Hamilton scored 43 points. The host club was second with 35½ while Brantford had 27½ points.

Win French Tennis Title

PARIS (AP)—Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif., and Britain's Shirley Bloomer won the women's doubles title in the French national tennis tournament Sunday by defeating Lela Ramirez of Anne Maria Reyes of Mexico 7-5, 4-6, 7-5.

The men's doubles went to Mal Anderson and Ashley Cooper over Mervyn Rose and Don Candy in an all-Australian final, 6-3, 8-0, 6-3.

It was the second championship of the tournament for Miss Bloomer, earlier winner of the women's singles. Sven Davidson of Sweden defeated Herb Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., in the men's singles final Saturday.

Miami Player Jumps Club After Scuffle

HAVANA, Cuba. (AP)—Frank Herrera, slugging first baseman of the International League Miami Marlins, "jumped the club," his manager said, after a ruckus with a teammate between games of Sunday's doubleheader with Havana Sugar Kings.

"He took a punch at Conley, told me he would never play again under me and jumped the team," manager Osborn said.

In Miami, Marlins general manager Joe Ryan said the former Schenectady, N.Y., ballplayer was suspended for the time being.

"I'm anxious to talk to Osborn and get the complete details," Ryan said.

Reports Say Royals' Boss May Be Out

MONTREAL (CP) — Reports were current in Montreal baseball circles during the weekend that unless the International League Royals win the pennant, manager Greg Mulleavy will be replaced.

General manager Rene Lemyre was non-committal. He wouldn't say yes or no.

Royals, who were expected to be a top contender, have slid steadily down the team-standing until they now are in last place.

Lemyre indicated that if Mulleavy should be let out there would be no trouble finding a successor. Names that have been mentioned in current gossip are Al Campanis, Joe Becker and Clay Hopper.

The club's collapse has been no nothing of an enigma, Several recent changes haven't helped matters particularly.

British Soccer Ups Pay to Stop Raiding

LONDON (AP)—England's soccer bosses handed out pay increases Saturday to their professional football players in a bid to check the lure of wealth foreign clubs.

The Football League decided to increase the winter maximum weekly wage of £3 to £17. The summer weekly wage also was stepped up by £ to £12. Officials additionally agreed to hand out more bonus money and to pay the players extra for a new pay deal after Leeds United transferred John Charles to Italy's Juventus team for a reported £50,000. Charles also received an estimated £10,000 from the Italians.

Under English soccer rules a player can receive only £10 when he moves from one club to another, regardless of the transfer fee.

American Wins Rowing Title

PORT DALHOUSIE (CP)—Peter McCusker became the high school singles champion of two countries Saturday with an easy win in the Canadian Secondary Schools Rowing Association regatta here.

The 17-year-old from Blessed Sacrament High School, New Rochelle, N.Y., finished in 6:19, an eighth of a mile ahead of Bill Hildebrand of Toronto Central Tech and third-place Pat Maccachlo of Toronto St. Michael's College. McCusker won the American schoolboy title in Washington nine days ago.

St. Catharines Collegiate Institute had a 19-point team edge as Canadian high school aggregate champions, winning the Cosgrave Trophy with 84½ points. Canisius College of Buffalo, N.Y., was second with 65½ points and St. Joseph's High School, also of Buffalo, third with 61½ points in the 12 boats and nine finals.

Set Records in Northern Meet

SUDBURY (CP) — Nine, and possibly 10, records were set in Saturday's Northern Ontario Secondary School Athletic Association track and field meet.

Officials are wondering whether John McKibbon of Sudbury High set a Canadian interscholastic record for throwing the discus. McKibbon threw the three - pound nine-ounce discus 149 feet, 9¼ inches.

The only available list of records was published in 1953 by the Canadian Amateur Athletic Union. The mark then was 153 feet, 10 inches, set by Ray Pella—then of Sudbury Tech, and more recently of Canada's Olympic team—but the discus used then weighed four pounds six ounces. The lighter discus has been generally used since 1954.

Sudbury High School took team honors for the fourth straight year with 46 points. Sudbury Tech College of Sudbury followed with 45 and North Bay Collegiate came third with 44.

Grant McKee of North Bay set three sprint records in the intermediate division. He had times of 10.2 in the 100, 24.1 in the 220 and 52.6 in the 440.

Other records set included: Senior 440—Thibault, Cobalt, 52.5; intermediate broad jump—Yamka, Kirkland Lake, 20 ft., 4 in.; intermediate pole vault—Scott, New Liskeard, 11 ft., 1 in.

SIGN ANOTHER BOOMER

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos have announced the signing of end John Bell, 1401 Okahoma Boomer to join the Western inter provincial Football Union club since 1953.

SETS SPEED RECORD

LANGHORNE, Pa. (AP)—Johnny Thomson, of nearby Boyertown, who finished 12th in this year's Memorial Day 500-mile classic at Indianapolis, Sunday established a world and American record of 100.194 miles an hour in winning the 100-mile $10,000 U.S. sclosed sport National championship auto race at Langhorne Speedway.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The powerful Point Anne, riding mainly on the strength of the good right flipper of perennial winner Pat Mancarlo are breezing along undefeated at the top of the Belleville District Softball League. Goyer's Marines, also yet to taste defeat are in second place with a 2-0 mark, one behind that of the Ox Pointers.

Belleville Merchants and Frankford are enjoying a .500 record with the Merchants splitting four decisions and the Shoemen two. Trenton, Bobcats and Madoc follow in the order named.

Tonight at the CNRA park the Trenton youngsters meet the Belleville Bobcats and the going won't be so easy for the Trenton crew. Trenton has played in three one-run decisions games, one to their credit and have shown they will be a force to be reckoned with. Game at seven o'clock.

Tomorrow night the Point Anne squad take on the Madoc crew and all signs to date indicate that the Ox Pointers should wrap up their fourth consecutive victory. At the same time in a tilt that has the earmarks of being a thriller the Bobcats and Merchants tangle at the CNRA park. Wednesday night in what some of the fans thinks will be the game of the week Point Anne hooks up with the Goyer Marines at the CNRA park, and that one should be a thriller.

In Commercial League circles the Ontario Intelligencer Comets (a comet is a star with a lot of tails; we don't know the star of these Comets, but it's seen a lot of the "tails") hook up with the Police squad. Now there's a fine combination. The newspaper guys might end up in handcuffs and the cops might have their subscriptions cut off. This game takes place at King George field at 6.45, while at the Fair Grounds the Corbins and Bakelite squads tangle in another C.L. tussle.

In soccer circles, Batawa played at Campbellford on Saturday and we have no results of that game at time of writing. Tomorrow at seven, the RCAF meets Batawa on the latter's field while on Wednesday Northern Electric is the guest of Trenton. Kickoff at 7.00.

In baseball the Picton McFarlands, who seem to have plenty of power under playing coach Keith MacDonald, swamped the Trenton entry in the Bay of Quinte league by a 26-0 score. Tonight Belleville plays at Trenton Phillips while the McFarlands trek to Trenton to play the Juniors of that town on Wednesday, starting 6.45.

Bob Phillips' squad of target shooting marksmen who have made a fine name for themselves in secondary schools competitions are going to try their trigger figure at something new. On June — they will be the guests of the Quinte Trap and Gun Club at its shooting range and will try their hands and guns at knocking the clay quails out of the sky. The sharpshooters of the schools had better look to their laurels as those BCI young-sters are regular Davy Crocketts with target rifles. And with the spread allowed by a shotgun, the top-shots of the club may be given a battle.

PEEVER'S LAMENT

"Ole" Peever stood in the graveyard there,
A tear in an eye—and his head it was bare,
His manner dejected, his mien it was glum,
As he visioned the end of the trail as a "Bum."

For the newspapers had it in headline array
That his Brooklyns were headed for sunny L.A.
And so were the "Lynis," those Coogan Bluff "joiks",
"Who cares," murmured Peeve, "who gave dose guys da woiks."

"Tis sad," gurgled Peeve, "May da saints smile upon us,
With da Bums far away from da fragrant Gowanus
Howinell can dey click wit de air clean as sandy,
And no 'Molder da Bums' roarin' down from da standa."

No 'Kill'm' (da umps) whistling shrill from da gals,
No 'hit it ya Bumya' from golter-stand pals
No 'Whaddid I tellya" as Camp or da Duke
Sent da ball whistlin' Bedford-ward, backing up-Newk,

Split Twins With Detroit As Yanks Stop Birds at 3; Smith Crew Reaches Second

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Mayo Smith's slightly startling Philadelphia Phillies, who have displaced Milwaukee and Brooklyn as Cincinnati's foremost rival for first place in the National League, have hit upon an old but ever-effective winning formula.

They simply are getting strong front line pitching, excellent relief hurling, clutch hitting and airtight defence.

Does a team need any more?

The second-place Phillies got all of that Sunday as they made it three in a row over Brooklyn with the 7-3 victory which boosted them to within two games of the Redlegs. The triumph was Philadelphia's ninth in its last 12 games, during which time the Phils picked up 4½ games on the Red legs.

It took a grand slam homer by Bob Thurman to give Cincinnati a split in its doubleheader with Chicago. Cubs came back to win the second game 4-2 after a 6-4 defeat.

Milwaukee climbed past Brooklyn into third place with a 3-1 victory over St. Louis and Pittsburgh swept a doubleheader from New York Giants 3-2 and 2-0.

LOSE THEIR HITS

Phillies collected only seven hits against Don Newcombe in utilizing six of them in scoring their five runs, Richie Ashburn tripled in one starting pitcher Bob Miller who had singled in the third. Rip Repulski's single, Harry Lowrey Lawson's double and Stan Lopata's home run produced three runs in the fourth. Earl Harrist relief pitcher Dick Farrell in the eighth closed out the Phils' scoring.

Miller allowed Brooklyn only two hits until he was relieved by Farrell, with two on and nobody out in the fifth. Farrell stopped the Dodger threat and yielded only three hits in five innings to register his fourth relief victory against one defeat. Although the Philadelphia starter failed to go the route Philly pitchers have completed 17 games, the most in the league.

On defence, the Phils played errorless ball for the sixth time in their last 12 games and contributed five double plays with shortstop Chico Fernandez almost leaving in four of them.

Cincinnati's dazzling slammer for Cincinnati came in the fourth inning, when Chicago starter Moe Drabowski got a pitch that he wild pitched himself out of the game. The boom right-hander walked three and hit two batters during that five-run inning.

Hersh Freeman, who hurled three-hit ball in the last five innings, won his third without defeat for Reds.

PULLS LEG MUSCLE

Bob Muncrief and Don Elston stopped Reds with three hits in the nightcap. Rush won his first game in ten decisions but pulled a leg muscle in the sixth inning and had to give way to Muncrief who had to give way to Elston. The big righthander is expected to be sidelined for about 10 days.

Bob Buhl won his fourth game in five decisions for Milwaukee, but it took a splendid relief job by Ernie Johnson to nail down the victory. Johnson took over in the ninth after Buhl had walked the first two Cardinals. He got pinch hitter Walker Cooper to hit into a double play and struck out Don Blasingame to end the Braves' three-game losing streak. Bobby Thomson's two-run single off Larry Jackson was the big blow.

First baseman Dee Fondy's five hits helped Ronnie Kline gain his first victory and Bob Purkey his fourth in Pittsburgh's first doubleheader sweep of the season.

Fondy drove in what proved to be the winning run in the opener and knocked in the first Pittsburgh run in the fifth inning of the nightcap. Purkey permitted only four hits in the nightcap and stopped Minnie Minoso after he extended his hitting streak through 21 consecutive games in 1956.

SATURDAY'S GAMES

On Saturday, Cincinnati set the season's high for the majors as they blasted Chicago 22-2. New York edged Pittsburgh 3-2; Philadelphia blanked Brooklyn 2-0 and St. Louis whipped Milwaukee 7-1.

Snead Rallies To Win Round Robin

NEW ROCHELLE, N.Y. (AP)—Sam Snead, a firm believer in signs, figures this finally may be his year to win the elusive National Open golf championship. He documents his reasons.

Eight points behind Masters champion Doug Ford starting the final round and 32 points back through the first four holes, Snead put on a tremendous spurt to win by eight points. He shot a 66 in same foursome with Ford, who scrambled to a par 71; his old rivals, Ben Hogan and young Ken Venturi, each of whom had 70.

At the end of the 90-hole, four-day tournament, which each pro struck matches his score with others in the 16 man field in four-some play, Snead was 23,000 richer with plus 41 points. Ford, hottest man in the event for two days, was second with plus 33 after losing six points then came Hogan too, with Tommy Bolt, plus 14.

It was the fifth round robin crown for Snead, who won his first one in 1938—the year before he won the first of many Opens with a horrendous eight place at the Philadelphia Country Club.

Snead, although conceded to be one of the greatest golfers alive, hasn't quite got the open today. This is the second time in 20 years that Snead has been automatically qualified for the blue ribbon event of golf, which is slated at the Country Club in Toledo, Ohio, June 13-15. The other time was 1939.

Number of Golfers Trimmed Champions Balding, Stewart

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

First reports from courses across Canada indicate a hefty number of golfers beat champs Al Balding and Marlene Stewart Streit in national title weekend.

Incomplete figures showed more than the 74 shot Saturday by scores (gross minus handicap) better than the 74 shot Saturday by Balding, Canadian PGA champion from Toronto, and the 80 entered by Marlene, Canadian Women's Open titleholder from Fonthill.

Possibly the youngest is earn an I Beat the Champ certificate was 13-year-old Teddy Heldrick of Winnipeg. He carried a 95 and with his 23 handicap his net was 64.

In contrast, 57-year-old P. S. Thompson of Edmonton carded a 71 with an 18-stroke handicap and an 89 gross.

CAN STILL COMPETE

Complete figures won't be available for several days since golfers who missed the weekend chance to pit their scores against the Balding-Streit efforts at Toronto St. George's may enter during the rest of the week.

The competition, sponsored by the Royal Canadian Golf Association, is designed to find material for a kid of junior golf in Canada. In the first five years more than $22,000 was contributed to the fund in the form of $1 entry fees.

Rain and a fairly tough course combined to give Canadians almost double the figure it took at Balding's 36-38 — 74 was two over men's par and Marlene's 42-42—84 was four over women's par.

The two toured the course with Ontario PGA president George Clifton who had a 87-39—78 and Canadian Junior champion Gary Cowan of Kitchener with 36-40—76.

722 TRY AT 'PEG

At Winnipeg, 733 golfers took up the challenge on 18 courses. Balding's score was beaten by 182 men, but without his handicap, while 30 women beat Marlene's tally.

Among those to beat Balding were amateurs George Knudson and Harry Critchley, both members of Manitoba's 1956 Willingdon Cup team, Knudson had a 70 and Critchley one of 68.

About 650 made a try at Edmonton's five courses with 102 men beating Balding and 18 women taking Marlene's measure.

At Dartmouth, N.S., officials estimated 25 to 30 equalled or bettered the champs' scores while in Halifax 32 men and five women beat Balding.

In the Ottawa area 90 were successful out of 427 attempts.

Columbus Nips Richmond 5-3; Toronto Wins

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Columbus Jets finally came up with the right combination to stop the Richmond Virginians—and it took rookie pitcher Charlie Douglas and veteran Johnny Lipon to do it.

Douglas, 22, turned in a neat nine-hit route-going performance and Lipon, a former major leaguer, drove across four runs in pacing the Jets to a 5-3 victory over the International League-leading Virginians, Sunday. The triumph snapped a seven-game Jet losing streak and Richmond's seven game winning skein.

In other games, Rochester manager Cot Deal marked his first pitching start of the season with a 9-0 shutout over Buffalo in the second game after the Bisons had romped to a 10-2 decision in the opener.

SPLIT DOUBLEHEADER

Miami and Havana split their doubleheader, the Marlins winning the first 6-5 and the Sugar Kings the nightcap 7-0. Rocky Colavito's 10th inning home run gave Toronto Maple Leafs a 4-3 victory over Montreal Royals in the first game of a scheduled twin-bill. The second game, which was to have gone seven innings, was halted by Toronto's Sunday curfew with the Leafs ahead 7-0 in the bottom of the sixth.

Nelson drove in three of Toronto's four runs against Montreal in the opener. Royals took a 2-0 lead in the second inning on John Rosebore's double and Clyde Parkers seventh home run. Leafs came back with three runs in their half of the seventh on three singles, a fielder's choice and a sacrifice fly. Royals tied it at 3-3 in the fourth and both teams played scoreless ball until Nelson's blast broke it up in the 10th.

Miami Leafs scored once in the first inning and added three more in the fifth before the game was stopped by curfew in the sixth.

In Saturday games, Montreal defeated Toronto 6-1, Richmond downed Havana 3-1 and Rochester won over Buffalo 7-4.

The Richmond defeat Sunday also stopped a string of six consecutive victories over Columbus. Douglas had only two bad innings, the fourth and ninth, when the Yees pushed all their runs across. Lipon drove in his first two runs with a two-out double in the third. His other two runs came in on a single and a sacrifice fly.

HOW TO BUY A GOOD USED CAR

BE SURE OF ELECTRICAL SAFETY . . .

Without proper testing equipment about the only check you can make of the electrical circuit is to see that there are no bare wires or frayed insulation under the hood. A short circuit could start a fire or perhaps cause headlight failure while driving at night.

It is also wise to check the operation of horn, turn signals, stop lights and dimmers including the foot switch that controls the driving and passing beams.)

General speaking, any electrical faults are inexpensive to adjust or repair, but for your own safety it is well to find them before driving the car. Pinder's thorough inspection BEFORE their cars go on the lot is your assurance of safety as well as better value. Ask anyone who owns a Pinder used car!

Don Bowden First American To Break Four-Minute Mile

BY JACK STEVENSON

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — It may be some time before the first American to run the mile in less than four minutes takes another crack at Australian John Landy's world record of 3:58.

Determined Don Bowden, who grew from boy to age of the Baxter Stadium track at Stockton, Calif., Saturday night in 3:58.7, plans to challenge the half mile the rest of this season.

The University of California law student finally cracked the foreign domination in the "four-minute mile club" with his virtual solo effort.

There were four other runners in the race. But Don set his own pace from the start and continually widened the gap until he hit the tape nearly 15 seconds ahead of his second man.

NO PLAN CHANGE

The 20-year-old native of San Jose, Calif., plagued by a heel injury last year, said his performance hadn't changed his plans for concentrating on the 800-yard run.

He won the latter event in a Pacific Coast Conference meet with a mark of 1:47.8.

"I like the half mile better, and I feel that I'm not strong enough to run several fast miles yet," he said.

Asked if he wouldn't like to run later against some of the foreigners who also have beaten four minutes, Don replied, "Yes, I would like that some time in the future."

Bowden's was the 18th mile run in less than four minutes. Only two others, both Australians, have done it faster. Landy holds the world record at 3:58 and Jim Bailey ran a 3:58.4 in beating John at the Los Angeles Coliseum a year ago. Bowden's time smashed the American citizen's record of 4:00.5 by Wes Santee.

Wants Advice on Survival If Majors Move Westward

BY ALAN CLINE

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—The Pacific Coast League went to the majors today for advice on how to survive if big league teams come to the west coast.

The PCL directors also had a few survival suggestions of their own.

President Leslie O'Connor said the league leaders, in a closed door-hotel session Sunday, directed him to write major league officials for their views.

"You created our problem. Tell us what you can do to help us survive," the directors told him.

"The problem" is the National League directors' decision for Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Giants to go west, presumably to Los Angeles and San Francisco.

NOT APPROVED YET

O'Connor emphasized the shift has not yet been approved. He said Walter O'Malley, president of the Los Angeles Angels, reported that as far as he knew only the major league owners of the club involved know when a decision will be reached.

The directors, O'Connor said, were adamant on two points:

1. The Pacific Coast League will not be lowered from its "open" classification to a lower one.

2. All this talk of the majors moving west is hurting PCL attendance, Bob Cobb, Hollywood Stars president, estimated a $500,000 loss at league gates this year because of the reports.

O'Connor said the directors unanimously agreed that there is no year-old league will be doomed unless the majors help it by giving new cities to replace any lost teams. He said no potential cities were mentioned.

The PCL also wants a percentage of radio and television money from west coast major league operations, he added.

O'Connor said the question of indemnities for PCL teams did not come up. He indicated damages might not be sought if the league obtains help on new franchises plus the TV-radio money.

At The Belle

Laughs Galore in "Baby and the Battleship"

Starting today at the Belle Theatre is "The Baby and the Battleship," an outstanding new comedy hit, which stars John Mills, Richard Attenborough.

The film hilariously relates how two sailors, Lisa Gastoni, John Mills and Knocker, Richard Attenborough, go ashore when H.M.S. Gillingham arrives in Naples. Knocker knows an Italian baker who, he remembers has the prettiest daughter in Naples. They decide to pay him a visit and Knocker is completely infatuated by the eldest daughter, Lisa Gastoni. He wants to take her out for the evening but Papa will only agree if she takes his youngest child, a six-months old baby boy.

Later that night they all become engaged in a brawl with the police and Maria and Knocker flee, leaving Puncher literally holding the baby. Fully expecting Maria and Knocker to meet him at the quayside, Puncher waits there in vain with the baby. Finally Puncher smuggles the baby aboard the battleship H.M.S. Gillingham. When he wakes up in the morning the ship is at sea, and there is no sign of Knocker, who has been left in Naples.

This, then, is the highly amusing situation which develops in "The Baby and the Battleship," until it becomes a side- splitting roar, and with John Mills and Richard Attenborough in top form you will have very little to complain about when you see the film starting Monday at the air-conditioned Belle Theatre.

A special added attraction on the same program is Rolandson's "England," an interesting and highly entertained adventure film, a Merrie Melodie cartoon "There They Go," and a nite color novelty "Animals and Kids."

As now used by most masterful players of bridge, opening three bids are for interference purposes. Usually it expects to hear nothing but a pass from partner. But not always.

Here is world championship deal number 97:

NORTH
♠9 5 4 3
♥A 8 6 2
♦10 6 2
♣10 8 2

WEST
♠K 6
♥J 10 5 ♥9
♦A K J 4

EAST
♠A Q J 10 8 2
♥8 7 4 3
♦Q 5
♣A K Q 6 4 3

SOUTH
♥K Q
♣J 9

Room one bidding leaped out like this:

North	East	South	West
Pass	4 S	All Pass
Pass	Pass	3 C	Dbl

Room two made less bones about it, like this:

North	East	South	West
Pass	3 S	Pass	4 S

The play in each room was exactly the same in every respect. South cashed two top clubs and shifted to the nine of north won with the ace. A return heart was ruffed by east.

Declarer pulled trumps and when diamond queen fell on the second round, declarer claimed the rest and made his contract flat. It could not have been otherwise if trained seals played it.

With space enough left for a few more words on opening three bids, you may like to hear my lesson to beginners on this subject. It is short and sweet. It goes like this: Don't use three bids.

When time permits elaboration, my lesson is extended for the advancing players. A few words are added. Then it is: Unless you have had the same partner for years, don't use three bids.

Thanks to many charges by my partners, players are in a turmoil over opening three bids. They are not sure what each new partner means by his responses to opening three bids Say, why use bids the meanings of which your partner does not understand? The answers to which you can not reply?

Plate Trials Start Today At Woodbine

TORONTO (CP) — The Plate Trial, feature of today's opening day program at the $12,000,000 New Woodbine race course, will be raced in two divisions, each with a purse of $5,000.

The trials will be the final test for Canada's top three-year-olds before next Saturday's 80th running of the $35,000 Queen's Plate, North America's oldest annual turf classic.

The only notable absentee will be Ali's Pride, the pre-race favorite for the Plate.

The first division, carded as the sixth race today, will have Lyford Cay, Henry D. Good, Onlooville, Porter Grata, The Schreiber, Flying Atom, West Four and Holiday Toy entered.

The second division, today's seventh race, will include Polaritos, Bolitha, Epic Night, Chopedette, Count Teddy, Lad Ator and Everround.

Greaves Wins Over Neal

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio (AP)—Will Greaves of Edmonton and Pittsburgh scored knockout over Johnny Neal of Milwaukee in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round bout Saturday night.

Greaves weighed 158 pounds, four more than Neal.

Neal was bleeding from the nose and a bad cut over the left eye when referee Al Perrone stopped the fight after two minutes of the sixth. Greaves was unmarked.

Greaves concentrated on a body attack during the early rounds and then switched to Neal's head. He started blood flowing from Neal's nose in the fifth round and then opened the cut over his eye in the sixth.

MRA Provides Glorious Answer In Pacific Area

MACKINAC ISLAND, Mich. (AP) — Dr. Frank Buchman, founder of Moral Re-Armament, said Saturday MRA has provided "a glorious answer to years of costly failure in the Pacific."

Buchman delivered an address to the summer assembly at MRA headquarters on this northern Michigan resort island.

MRA, based on principles of complete unselfishness, reconciled the national leaders of Korea, Japan and the Philippines "who stand united by the force of this idea," he told 1,000 conference leaders. Dr. Buchman said, have renounced their former property claims in Korea and promised to try to solve issues "on the basis of a humble heart."

"We should change as the Japanese have changed," Dr. Buchman said. "That is the real spirit of MRA."

More than 850 delegates from 31 nations are attending the sessions.

Mr. Low previously had said correspondence from Mr. St. Laurent to then British primes minister Eden "more than anything else caused British and France to terminate their activities in Egypt." Mr. St. Laurent had forted that Mr. Low's claims Canada threatened Britain during the Suez crisis amounted to a "downright lie."

The prime minister said he was forbidden by his Privy Council oath of secrecy to disclose the correspondence contents he requested by Mr. Low, but offered to let the Social Credit leader study one of the more than 50 other Privy Council members to read the correspondence and make up his mind that it contained "no threat whatsoever" to the British government.

TO READ IT ...

Mr. Low said Saturday night he would ask Mr. Meighen, prime minister in 1925-26, to read the correspondence and say whether he felt it "had had effect on the actions of the governments of Britain and France in withdrawing" from the Suez.

Mr. Low added that he is still waiting for the prime minister to apologize for calling him "a liar."

Discussing the British - French landing in Egypt, the Social Credit chieftain said Britain and France had "a right to go into the Suez and "Canada should have reported them and that they completed their mission."

On Conservative Premier Frost's support of Mr. Diefenbaker, Mr. Coldwell said he has "no doubt there is some sort of understanding between the two leaders, although I have no personal knowledge of it."

Mr. St. Laurent, appearing at Brockville on the 50th anniversary of the birth of Premier Leslie Frost, told an applauding audience local projects sought from the federal government should be talked over with their member of Parliament, Jean Paul St. Laurent is seeking re-election in Temiscouata, which takes in Riviere du Loup.

OTHER SPEAKERS

Defence Minister Campney told a Courtenay, B.C., meeting he thinks the federal government would be ready to put in writing that it would give $300,000,000 for Columbia River power development, "But the provincial government can't make up its mind what it intends to do, where it intends to tie it down."

Premier Bennett, in Kamloops, B.C., said Social Credit would not enter a coalition "with any party," but if Social Creditors didn't agree with the party in power, they would "combine to defeat the government."

In Toronto, Ontario CCF Leader Donald MacDonald said Canada has "one of the most regressive tax/structures in the Western world." The Liberals were unwilling to tax enough corporation wealth to meet basic needs of the people.

He was speaking to 150 persons in the predominantly French-speaking village near Edmonton in support of R. F. L. Hanna, seeking election to Parliament June 10 as member for Edmonton-Strathcona.

IN QUEBEC

The senator said the Conservative chieftain visited Quebec at the outset of the 1956 election campaign to meet party members "who had turned their back on him" at the Conservative leadership convention.

"But in that province, Senator Pouliot said, Mr. Diefenbaker told audiences who "received him politely but with no enthusiasm," that he needed 700,000 votes to be prime minister.

"Then I saw in yesterday's newspaper that he is changing and he needs 1,000,000 votes to become prime minister," Senator Beaubien said. "He needed 300,000 more votes, Mr. Diefenbaker was "going the wrong way to get a prime minister in reverse—a Wrong-way Corrigan."

BACKS AGRICULTURE

Agriculture Minister Gardiner said Yorkton, Sask., that agriculture prices have brought better results to Canadian farmers than industrial prices. Farmers' income which comes under the Agricultural Prices Support Act.

This is a result of this act passed in 1944 no troublesome surpluses of any farm products under it but has resulted, he said. Meanwhile, "the United States was trying to get rid of its parity price system.

Donald Fleming, Progressive Conservative member of the last Parliament for Toronto Eglinton, in Estevan Lake, Sask., that Canada "is putting her trading eggs more and more in one basket."

"The government," Mr. Fleming said, "was using the tax system to defend the loss of markets, particularly in the United Kingdom." As other markets were lost Canada's dependence on sales to the United States increased.

"It is a dangerous thing that the Canadian economy can be changed overnight by decisions made in Washington," he added.

Defence Minister Campney said at Courtenay, B.C., that family allowance payments of $28 a month for the family of four make British Columbia Premier W. A. C. Bennett's $28-a-year tax rebate for parents look sick.

The minister also attacked Social Credit policies on old age pensions and sales tax in his address to a federal rally of 55 people. "If the Socreds want $100-a-month pensions, let them match the $67,000,000 we are spending in B.C. That would give pensioners $28 a month right there," Mr. Campney declared.

U.S. Death Toll Below Forecast

CHICAGO (AP) — United States motorists wounded the four-day Memorial weekend Sunday night with a better safety record than expected.

There were 400 accidental deaths on U.S. highways for the holiday period. The toll was about equal to a comparable non-holiday period in the summer, officials said.

The toll, however, was well above the 347 traffic deaths recorded on the last previous four-day Memorial Day weekend in 1956.

The latest count of accidental deaths for the period from 6 p.m. last Wednesday to midnight Sunday included 400 highway fatalities, 133 drownings and 113 from miscellaneous causes.

The National Safety Council commented:

"We congratulate drivers and law enforcement agencies for holding down to over the long weekend."

The council had predicted about 625 motorist could be expected to die on any four-day summer period not involving a holiday.

Civil Servants Want Decision On Request

TORONTO (CP) — More than 2,000 members of the Civil Servants Federation Sunday supported a motion asking Premier Michener St. Laurent for an immediate decision on their request for a national salary increase.

The government announced salary increases for provincial civil servants May 9. Since then meetings have been held across the country demanding a general increase.

Stressing that the meeting was not a political rally, F. W. Whitehouse, president of the 70,000-member federation, urged civil servants to refrain from making political utterances that might find their way into newspapers.

The members also endorsed the federation's move to have the question of civil servants' salaries left out of the political arena. Mr. Whitehouse said the federation received the fact politicians have made a political issue of their salary.

DON'T LIKE IT

"We don't like it and we are not going to stand for it," he said.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said in an election campaign address at Cobourg last month the government was postponing until after the election the matter of general salary increases for civil servants. Progressive Conservative leader John Diefenbaker later urged that the increases be announced now.

Commenting on an Ottawa newspaper's estimate that civil servants' wages would be increased by from 4.5 to seven per cent, Mr. Whitehouse said, if the estimate is accurate, the federation would never accept it.

PLEDGES AID

MAKE PILGRIMAGE

ST. THOMAS (CP)—About 2,000 Anglicans from Elgin and Middlesex Counties Sunday made a pilgrimage to old St. Thomas Church built in 1824, as part of a program of thanksgiving in the Diocese of Huron now celebrating its centennial year. The pilgrimage was led by Rev. George N. Luxton, Bishop of Huron.

"We have asked for a 10-per-cent interim increase and if we do not get it by July it will have to be a 15-per-cent hike," he said.

LONDON (Reuters)—The British Labor party in a new manifesto on colonial policy issued Sunday pledged that the next Labor government will devote an average of one per cent of Britain's national income to help backward and colonial territories. The manifesto, prepared for submission to the party's annual fall conference, said a new economic bondage had replaced slavery in the colonies.

Hearts Stony, Cold as Ice Says Graham

NEW YORK (AP)—"You laugh at the idea of being saved by Christ. You sit there rationalizing, cynically, smirking. Your hearts are cold as ice. Your hearts are like stone."

Evangelist Billy Graham flung the words out at 18,500 people Friday night, declaring that the smug modern generation defies God's plan of redemption through Christ—because they can't see how it works.

"You shake your fist in God's face, and say, 'Sure, I'm going to leave, but I'm going my own way. I can't understand how Christ's death on the cross will save me, so I'll use my own system.'

"But," Graham said, is the road to doom, because God has set rules—and the only release he offers men from their inevitable sin is through accepting Christ, who died to reconcile the world to God.

BIGGEST RESPONSE

"There's not a person in America—in all the world, who understands all about salvation," Graham told his huge Madison Square Garden audience.

At the end of Graham's sermon, 769 people came forward at his plea for them to "accept Christ." This brought the total of such decisions to 10,729 in 17 nights—the biggest response Graham has ever achieved.

These days most people work under pressure, worry more, sleep less. This strain on body and brain makes physical fitness easier to lose—harder to regain. Today's tense living, lowered resistance, overwork, worry—any of these may affect normal kidney action. When kidneys get out of order, excess acids and wastes remain in the system. Then backache, disturbed rest, that "tired-out" headed feeling often follow. That's the time to take Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's stimulate the kidneys to normal action. Election Campaign

Prime Minister Stresses Unity Across Canada

STE. GERMAINE, Que. (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent, winding up a campaign in his native province, has stressed the importance of bilingualism in the development of national unity.

"Both French and English are official languages in Canada and always will be," he said Sunday in a speech to a group of farmers in the farming region south of Quebec City.

"The time is coming when those who are in official posts will have to speak both languages. It is in this way that we will move toward national unity."

The prime minister said a third of the North American continent of the Common spoke some French and should each section "proof that that language is gaining in importance.

"Perhaps some day Mr. Diefenbaker will learn to speak French in a passable manner and he must some day be prime minister. But I don't believe he is ripe for that yet."

ONTARIO NEXT

Mr. St. Laurent is scheduled to finish his Quebec tour with a speech in Montreal tonight. He then leaves for a campaign trip in Ontario.

He said that as a child he learned to speak both French and English. As a young man he concluded that the French element could never be absorbed by the English-speaking element of the country.

"The only sensible outlook is that French and English elements should learn to live in harmony side by side."

The 76-year-old Liberal leader said he "created something of a scandal" in the House of Commons when he said it was his opinion that some day any person who wanted to sit in a front row bench of the House of Commons on the government side would have to be bilingual.

NOW BEING ACCEPTED

That view now is being accepted more and more, he added. Several English-speaking politicians try to memorize two or three sentences of French which they are proud to deliver.

"Mr. Diefenbaker is to be complimented for his efforts at speaking the language."

The prime minister said their efforts show their good will and their desire to recognize in practice the official position of French.

Cheaper Power For Maritimes Promised by PCs

HALIFAX (CP)—John Diefenbaker, fresh from a Sunday free of formal political activity, moved to the south shore and Annapolis Valley of Nova Scotia today in the last week of his appeals to the voters to elect a Progressive Conservative government June 10.

Mr. Diefenbaker flew here Sunday from Fredericton after lending support to J. Chester MacRae in his bid to unseat Liberal Labor Minister Gregg in York-Sunbury.

The Conservative chieftain, speaking to party supporters in the coal - mining community of Minto, N.B., said "there should and must be a subvention on coal transported within these provinces for power purposes."

Cheaper power for the Maritimes and assistance for the coal industry could be obtained, he said, if subsidies were provided for inter-Maritime coal shipments.

TORY POLICY

During discussion of the federal government's decision to join in the financing of coal-fired thermal power plants in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, Mr. Diefenbaker said the Conservative party's policy "is to give provinces a type of co-operation they have not had in the past."

Mr. Diefenbaker promised too, that if he is elected prime minister of Canada next Monday, his government will call a conference of federal-provincial and municipal officials to see what can be done to ease the frightful load being carried by non-central governments.

The federal government is taking more than its share of national tax monies and the power and Liberal party is leaving the provinces and municipalities in the position of beggars, he said.

Mr. Diefenbaker speaks today in the Digby-Annapolis-Kings riding where Conservative George C. Nowlan, only PC elected in Nova Scotia's 12 constituencies in 1953, is seeking re-election. He will also speak in Queens-Lunenburg, won in the last election by Works Minister Winters. He is due to return here tonight.

Soldier Stricken With Polio In Thailand Flies Half-Way Around World in 'Tin Can'

Editor's note: A United States Army polio patient has arrived at Washington's Walter Reed hospital after a 13,000 - mile flight in an iron lung. The story of that flight is told here by a reporter who went along.

By FRANK CAREY

WASHINGTON (AP)—We were nearing journey's end with a helpless soldier polio patient who is his own words had flown "half way around the world in a tin can."

The soldier's "tin can" was one of nearly a dozen iron-lung respi-rators which had kept him alive on land and air and stations in a 12,600-mile journey from Bangkok, Thailand, to Washington.

On a seat near the iron lung ley a 12-day-old premature baby son of a woman patient aboard the air ambulance, snoozing in a cardboard box strapped to the seat. He had come aboard at Honolulu.

A LONG WAY

Ahead of us lay the start of an intensive rehabilitation effort for the polio patient, PFC Dale Bryant, 24, a Williamstown, N.Y., dairy farm worker. He was stricken with polio while serving as an army helicopter mechanic half a world away from his native "highest hill in Oswego County."

Behind us lay a land and water agony that at least eight people will never forget — Bryant; his pretty, 19 - year - old wife, Joan, who was rushed to Manila to join him when it appeared that he might die; a special polio "team" of the Military Air Transport Service which flew from the U.S. to evacuate him; and this reporter, who accompanied the team.

For-seven of us, it was memorable for the observation of a plucky guy; for Bryant it involved several close calls with death.

Aside from close calls linked with his polio, the trip also involved:

Two ground delays due to mechanical troubles with two of the four aircraft which carried Bryant.

WOULD RATHER WALK

A temporary threat of another delay because of the meanderings of a typhoon in the Pacific.

A refueling in Denver because of tornadoes and hailstorms ahead of us. This necessitated an overnight stay at Fitzsimmons army hospital.

Bryant was in three different hospitals after we left the Philippines. Each time meant a switch to a full-sized iron lung from his airplane "portable"—and each hospital stayover involved a logistical manoeuvre almost as intricate as moving a field gun, yet worked with smooth efficiency.

When our plane touched down in California Bryant, lifting misty eyes to his wife from his "tin can" on the deck of the aircraft, said: "Well, Joanie, you're not a foreigner any more. But, gee, I'd feel a lot better if I was walking into the United States, instead of coming home in this set-up."

Between Bangkok and Manila the batteries had failed on the iron lung that encased him—and two doctors and a medical technician hand-pumped the device for five hours to keep their patient alive.

9 Arab Nations Tighten Boycott Against Israel

Arab League Stepping up Economic Warfare Drive

CAIRO (AP) — The nine-nation Arab League has decided to step up its economic warfare on Israel.

Its economic council adopted these recommendations made by the permanent Arab boycott committee

1. Blacklisting motor firms that sell vehicles to Israel.

2. Blacklisting foreign firms that are under contract to provide Israel services or goods.

3. Creating a unified boycott system to control exports and imports between Arab countries and others in order to prevent Arab goods from reaching Israel directly or indirectly as well as to prevent Israeli products reaching Arab nations through third countries.

Servicemen Start Casting Ballots In Election

OTTAWA (CP) — Members of Canada's armed forces have already begun to cast ballots for the June 10 federal election, but the results of the service vote won't be known until June 15.

About 117,000 members of the forces, 7,000 servicemen's wives overseas and 8,000 veterans in federal hospitals are eligible to vote in the special service poll, which began Monday and lasts all week.

In Egypt Monday, for the second Canadian soldier and airmen of the United Nations Emergency Force began voting in temperatures higher than 100 degrees. The polling booths are at Rafah, Abu Suweir, Gaza and El Quassaima.

Servicemen, wherever stationed, the service members apply in their home constituency. For guidance in filling in ballots, they are given a list of candidates with the political affiliation of each.

PARTIES REPRESENTED

Ballots are counted by civilians at London, England; Halifax, Edmonton and Ottawa, in the presence of scrutineers representing the four parties in the Commons.

As soon as the votes are counted, the totals are sent to the chief electoral officer Nelson Castonguay in Ottawa who will announce the results June 15—a birthday following election day.

While the military vote made no changes in winners in the 1953 general election, it has in previous years resulted in upsets in many constituencies when added to the civilian vote.

Liquor, Beer Available at New Woodbine

TORONTO (CP) — Liquor and beer were available Monday in the clubhouse and turf club at New Woodbine race track, it was announced by the Ontario liquor control board said.

It was reported that the Ontario Jockey Club, which operates the race track, has made individual applications for permits for each day of racing until June 15, the date the liquor licence commission meets to consider application of the club for a permanent licence.

The track's spring meeting opened Monday.

Two Workers Drowned

BLIND RIVER, Ont. (CP)—Two construction workers, recent immigrants from Germany, were drowned early Monday in a lake near the Algoma Uranium Mines, 30 miles north of here, when a boat in which they and two other persons were travelling capsized.

George Brier, 25, and Manfred Fischer, 23, both of Kirkland Lake, and both non-swimmers were the victims. Each was unmarried.

Leo Bassos, 30, and Frank Sulyock, 33, swam to shore.

Fischer's body was recovered.

Today's Chuckle

Passenger (trembling): "Which direction?"

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synoptic: Cool air invaded Northwestern Ontario during the night and should push southeastward across the province today and tonight. There is very little activity associated with the approach of the cooler air, so that skies will be mainly sunny throughout the province both today and Wednesday.

HENRY HOSKING, LIBERAL MEMBER, DIES IN GUELPH

Wellington South Will Not Vote in Election

GUELPH (CP)—Liberal candidate Henry A. Hosking died here Monday and the riding of Wellington South will vote about a month later than other Canadians as a result.

Mr. Hosking, the riding's member of Parliament since 1949, died at 68 from a pancreas ailment. He had been in critical condition in hospital since he was taken from his home Thursday night.

Returning officer H. B. Gibson said Mr. Hosking's death means a postponement of the vote to have been held in the constituency June 10 as in the rest of Canada.

The law says new nominations must be held on 30 days' notice within 30 days of a candidate's death, if it occurs between his official nomination and the closing of the polls. The deferred election will be held about June 10.

Two other candidates have been nominated in Wellington South, Alf Hales, CCF, about whom little is conservative, and Thomas J. Withers, SWA.

WAS IN 1940

Chief election officer Nelson Castonguay said today a writ to name a candidate died in a federal election campaign was in 1940, when Thomas Langlois, elected in Trois-Rivieres, died March 25 a day before the vote.

Mr. Hosking, operated on for his ailment last year underwent a second operation in Toronto last April after he was taken off an Ottawa-bound train at Oshawa suffering from a recurrence.

Mr. Hosking was born at Bobcaygeon, Ont., in 1888 and for the same year moved with his family to Fergus, Ont., where he worked for his father, Henry S. Hosking, still lives there.

He was educated in Rockwood and Guelph and graduated from Ontario Agricultural College in 1909 with a bachelor of science degree.

During the Second World War he was a captain with the Royal Canadian Engineers, working on various overseas defence projects which included construction of airfields in Britain.

After the war he entered the garage business in Guelph. In 1950 he resigned to devote time to politics.

He was elected to Guelph city council in 1946 and 1949. In 1948 he was defeated as a Liberal candidate for the provincial legislature but a year later won the same seat in the House of Commons. He was re-elected in 1953.

Mr. Hosking leaves his wife; his father; two brothers and a sister.

Urge Pickering Reject Scheme For Town Site

PICKERING (CP) — Planning consultants here recommended that Pickering Township council refuse to allow development of a $185,000,000 town site in the township.

Two months ago Irmac Corporation presented plans to council for a development which they said would lead to a community of 50,000, the size of nearby Oshawa.

Planning Consultants Ltd. of Toronto, in their report Monday night said: "Development of the area at this time would be premature. We feel it will not be ready for development until 1975."

Township council and the Pickering planning board will study the report.

Woman Charged As Armed Bandit

TORONTO (CP) — Jacqueline Piche, 25, was charged with attempted robbery shortly after a man said he had managed to capture a woman who held him up with a pistol.

Police said Gregory Bassos of Toronto was driving to work when he saw a young woman standing in the middle of the road at a downtown intersection.

The woman told him she needed to get to a downtown department store in a hurry. Bassos started to drive her there when he felt a pistol in his ribs.

He said she demanded all his money and he gave it to her—$1. Then she ordered him to stop the car and as she got out, she tripped.

Bassos said he grabbed and held her until he could summon police.

Fifteen German Soldiers Drown

MUNICH (Reuters) — A public outcry was heard across West Germany today over the deaths of 15 airborne troops who were drowned Monday in the worst disaster in the history of the German army.

The multiple accident occurred when the soldiers were trying to ford the River Iller near Kempten, southwest of Munich.

South African Tribe Defies Order To Give up Rich Farming Valley

TZANEEN, South Africa (Reuters)—Defiant Marnatholia tribesmen today challenged emergency police forces called in by the South African government to remove them from their rich farmland in the Letsitele Valley near here.

"I would rather die of starvation than be moved," declared one senior headman of the 400-family Transvaal tribe.

The department of native affairs ordered the tribe to move because it said their primitive farming methods were endangering the watershed of the Letaba River.

The chief of the Marnatholas, who agreed to move the tribe to Mica, near here, has been abducted by his tribesmen and can-

Think Radiation Will Harm Lives of Future Millions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three noted geneticists told Congress today that radiation from nuclear weapons tests can be measured in shortened, damaged lives for thousands or perhaps millions of people in coming generations.

Radioactive fall-out at the present level will add only a fraction to the total of human death and misery, they said. But irreparable harm already had been done to hereditary materials which contribute the misery to the human race is cast.

And any increase in fall-out, the scientists agreed, will increase the damage proportionately because from the standpoint of genetics there is no "safe dose" of radiation.

In statement prepared for the Senate-House of Representatives atomic energy committee exploring fall-out hazards, these views were given by Dr. James Crow of the University of Wisconsin, Dr. Bentley Glass of Johns Hopkins University and Dr. Hermann Muller of the University of Indiana.

Crow summed up his conclusions:

"... The number of persons exposed to fall-out is as large as the world population, and therefore we can be sure that several thousands, or perhaps more persons will be diseased, or deformed, or will die prematurely, or be otherwise impaired as a consequence of fall-out if the present rates of testing continue."

Muller said the number of lives that will be "seriously curtailed or injured" over the world in future generations as a result of tests already held "is in all probability in the hundreds of thousands, or millions, and is therefore enormous."

Glass testified that studies on the fruit fly indicate that about one-fourth of all changes in genes and chromosomes are lethal or semi-lethal, while 15 to 20 per cent produce sterility in one or both sexes and nearly all the rest reduce vitality.

Miscellaneous Items Push Price Index to New Record

OTTAWA (CP)—Living costs in Canada reached a record high level during April, pushed up mainly by increased prices for miscellaneous goods and services.

The consumer price index, yardstick of living costs, edged up two-tenths of a point in the month, the bureau of statistics said today.

The food index was unchanged at 117.7 and the clothing index unchanged at 108.5, but the catch-all index for "other commodities and services" jumped 0.6 to 136.7 from 135.1.

In the latter group, prices advanced for a wide variety of items including theatre admissions, street car and bus fares, haircuts, newspapers, beer and auto insurance rates.

In the food index, a sharp increase in the price of tomatoes, and higher prices for apples, eggs and beef were largely balanced by decreases for coffee, tea, most fruit juices and some fresh vegetables.

In clothing there were scattered price increases for such items as women's and girls' dresses but men's clothing was down slightly for women's spring coats and men's shoes.

The household operation index decreased to 119.2 from 119.4 as a result of seasonal decreases for coal which were partially offset by small scattered increases for such items as soaps and household supplies.

The shelter index rose to 154.2 from 134.0 as both rent and homeownership components advanced fractionally.

Scrutiny of Voters' Lists Enlivens Election Picture

By Canadian Press Staff Writer

There was quite a bit about a lot of things in Monday's campaign for the June 10 federal election, from talk with a view of dishcloths doings in Toronto and a touch of tragedy.

Both Prime Minister St. Laurent, in Montreal, and John Diefenbaker, in Prince Albert, set lashes of widely diversified election topics before their listeners. Both drew good crowds and Mr. Diefenbaker drew some lively heckling.

CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell in Regina charged the Liberals with "retresting" from promises made in the past in the fields of health plan.

Social Credit Leader Solon Low, meantime, said Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen former Conservative prime minister, has agreed to take the effect of a telegram sent by Prime Minister St. Laurent to the British government during last November's Suez crisis.

Progressive Conservative Leader Diefenbaker also took a serious note before a crowd calling for last ballot votes which he said was sent to all members of the armed forces over the name of Mr. St. Laurent.

Complaints by Progressive Conservative, Liberal and CCF candidates in the Toronto constituency of St. Paul's resulted in Nelson Castonguay, chief electoral officer, appointing Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of Ontario to investigate reported padding of voters' lists there.

Mr. Castonguay announced in Ottawa that an "open organizational meeting" of the returning officers would be held today by Chief Justice McRuer at Osgoode Hall in Toronto. Counsel for St. Paul's and the general public could attend.

Tragedy's shadow fell across the campaign with the death in Guelph of Henry Hosking, Liberal member for Wellington South in the last eight years and candidate again this election. As provided for by law, the election there will be postponed, likely to July 8 or July 15.

Hosking at Montreal did not defeat Mr. St. Laurent from defending his government's external affairs policy, backing its use of debate-limiting closure in last year's Commons debate and declining describing the Liberal party as "the historic defender of provincial rights."

He said that while the Conservatives and CCF accused the Liberals of riding roughshod over Parliament in the plane debate, "what they really mean is that Parliament has refused to ride with riding roughshod over it."

At Kentville, in a crowded day that took in many Nova Scotia points, Mr. Diefenbaker said the Liberals' letter has been circulated to all servicemen while his own party has not had access to the list of service personnel's names.

Mr. Coldwell, about 700 persons out in Regina that at the present rate, it will take the Liberals another 25 years to bring in a full national health plan, which they had promised in 1919.

Mr. Low said in Ottawa he has written to Mr. Meighen asking him as a member of the Privy Council to read the St. Laurent telegram and say whether it is fair to set the effect on the governments of Britain and France in withdrawing from the Suez. Mr. St. Laurent has denied there was any threat in the telegram, and officers of the PC Association seeking re-election in Truro - Rivers-ra, said there hasn't been such a strong anti-government feeling in Quebec for many years as there is now. The Liberals could consider no more than 10 seats in Quebec as safe this time.

Starting the same 15 minute radio broadcast from Montreal, Marc Drouin, federal campaign director for national campaign committee, shared Mr. Balcer's position for party chairman. Rt. Hon. Mr. Balcer, the province "is going Diefenbaker in a big way." Mr. Drouin said the same program, William Hamilton, Montreal Notre-Dame-de-Grace member was turning to the Conservatives because they don't condone the Liberals' "creeping socialism."

ORDER DU PONT CUT TIES WITH GENERAL MOTORS

Far-Reaching Ruling Made by U.S. Court

WASHINGTON (AP)—A United State Supreme Court ruling calling for separation of Du Pont from General Motors Corp. has resulted in some congressional arguments as well as confusion in industry.

Senator Richard O'Mahoney, Wyoming Democrat who presided over a long inquiry into General Motors a year and a half ago, predicted Monday that the high court decision will give fresh impetus to new anti-trust bills pending in the U.S. Congress.

"I think this decision will be a memorable one in the history of the Supreme Court in the strict interpretation of the anti-trust laws," O'Mahoney said.

The court's 4-to-2 decision Monday, on the other hand, prompted Delaware's Democratic Senator J. Allen Frear to predict that the ruling "could in my opinion have an adverse economic effect on the country at large."

HAS GONE FAST

"It seems to me the court has gone far and wide and found only a tenuous connection on which to reach its majority decision," he said. Mr. Frear is incorporated in Delaware.

The court ruled that the huge chemical firm must give up its "commanding position" in General Motors. It ordered the case sent to a district court in Chicago for determination of just how it should be accomplished.

Du Pont's 23-per-cent stock interest in GM, the high tribunal decided, results in violation of the Clayton Anti-Trust Act. Du Pont started buying that stock 40 years ago and says it now holds 63,000,000 shares. Other sources put the total at more than 64,000,000.

Justice Willaih J. Brennan, Jr., speaking for the four-judge majority, asserted that du Pont "purposely employed" its stock to get upon the General Motors market to enrich itself," although he said officials of both firms "acted honorably and fairly" in behalf of their respective companies "without any desire to overreach anyone."

TWO DISSENT

Justice Harold Burton, in a dissenting opinion in which Justice Felix Frankfurter joined, protested that the ruling is based on "artificial fact-finding made by the trial judge in its conclusion that there existed in fact the Supreme Court's "theory of illegality."

The trial judge, Burton said, declared he had failed to prove conspiracy, monopolization, restraint of trade, or any reasonable probability of a restraint.

Urge Exemption From School Taxes Be Granted Pensioned Homeowners

TORONTO (CP) — Higher old age pensions, more aid toward housing for the aged and exemption from school taxes for pensioned homeowner were called for in resolutions adopted by the Ontario Federation of Labor here.

At its closing session Monday night delegates agreed to improve the lot of citizens over 65 were approved by representatives from 50 social, welfare, labor, professional industrial and labor groups and government departments.

The suggestions were turned over to the provincial government under Dr. J. D. Griffin, general director of the Ontario Mental Health Association The committee was instructed to ask provincial and municipal health officials, heads of physiotherapists, occupational therapists and social workers which would visit small centres.

One resolution recommended that the Ontario welfare department make a survey of financial needs of those receiving assistance supplementary to old age pensions to determine how much assistance would be required to maintain decent living standard.

Report Britain Will Cut Short Tests Of H-Bomb

Success of First 2 Tests, Labor Pressure Factors

LONDON (AP) — Two London newspapers say Britain will cut short her current hydrogen bomb tests in the Pacific after her next and third blast. It had been understood that the government planned to touch off four explosions.

Government officials refused to confirm or deny the reports by The News Chronicle and the Labor party's Daily Herald in dispatches from the test centre at Christmas Island.

These reports say the tests will be curtailed because of

1. Pressure brought by the Labor opposition in Parliament to keep radioactive fall-out to a minimum.

2. Success of the two tests held thus far and the opinion of experts that one more test will provide information they need at this time.

Prime Minister Macmillan, while refusing to accede to demands to call off the tests, has pledged they will be held to a minimum.

In Brighton, Most Rev. G. K. Bell, Anglican bishop of Chichester, called on Britain today to take the initiative in persuading the United States to abandon further tests.

The disturbance followed a union meeting in the town. Mrs. Bedard said about 2,000 persons — "500 strikers and 1,500 persons from farms" — attended the meeting. When it ended they staged a parade through the town in their cars.

Some cars apparently stopped near the mine entrance, Mr. Bedard said, but "nobody tried to get into the mine."

There was not an argument developed with police and the officers used their sticks and tear gas to disperse the crowd.

The town was reported quiet two hours after the incident although police cars still cruised the streets.

Tempers Frayed In 84-Day-Long Strike in Quebec

MURDOCHVILLE, Que. (CP)— One person was reported injured in a clash between provincial police and striking members of the United Steelworkers of America (CLC) as tempers frayed in an 84-day-long strike.

Union spokesman Roger Bedard said police used tear gas and clubs to break up a union demonstration near the entrance to the Gaspe Copper Mines Limited property. One thousand union men walked out on strike at Gaspe Copper last March 31 in a dispute over certification. The company said it will not negotiate with an uncertified union.

Lieut. Gerard Timlin, head of the 18-man provincial police detail, said he could not confirm the report that a policeman was injured, only one person came in for treatment, a man with a head cut requiring a few stitches.

Bombs Explode In Lamp Posts, 9 Dead, 87 Hurt

ALGIERS (AP) — Three lamp posts exploded like giant fragmentation grenades in downtown Algiers Monday night, killing nine persons and wounding 87.

Powerful time bombs placed in the cast-iron bases of the big posts went off almost simultaneously. They sent jagged chunks of metal hurtling into terrified thousands thronging the evening streets.

The outburst was the first serious bombing incident in this capital of rebellious Algeria since Feb. 10, when time bombs killed 15 persons and wounded 50 in two crowded football stadiums.

The lamp post explosions were reported in the crowded newspapers for the last 24½ years, he became ill a year ago although he was able to maintain his job for a period last fall.

Low Tells Madoc Meeting Liberals, PC's Carry Canada 'Straight Into Socialism'

MADOC, Ont. (Special)—Social Credit Leader Solon Low opened his "old parties" either ignorantly or willingly, have been carrying Canada "straight into socialism and would be better if they had continued on.

Addressing a political campaign meeting attended by 10 persons in the town hall here last night, he said the June 10 federal election is issue is clear. "We stand firmly against the movement to socialism and communism."

The Progressive Conservative and Liberal parties long ago turned their backs on the principles on which they were founded, Mr. Low said.

"We are getting socialism from the very people who say socialism is their enemy."

SEES GOOD FEELING

He said that judging by the operations of the agriculture affairs department, there was a lot of good feeling toward socialism.

Mr. Low said he opposes the idea of world government which, he maintained, is being established by External Affairs Minister Pearson and others. Concessions and power given such a system would result in selling Canada into bondage.

Speech in support of Social Credit candidate Cecil Jenkins in Hastings-Frontenac and Basil Kuzniak, candidate in Hastings South, Mr. Low quoted from Karl Marx's communist manifesto to show how, he said, Canada is on the path to socialism and communism.

He labelled the Succession Duties Act a "stealth Communistic imposition" and said succession duties are no heavy it is almost impossible to hand over anything worthwhile to one's children.

HITS HEAVY TAXES

Increased property taxes had reached the expropriation stage. The government could do a better job if it had thrown in its lot with Marx.

Mr. Low said the Conservatives recall themselves champions of freedom, yet in 1944 they brought in administration established a central bank which held the monopoly on credit.

The Bank of Canada now was dictating to every chartered bank. "It is a powerful central monopoly there," he said, controlling the credit of the country on a theory of state monetary control advanced by Marx.

Mr. Low said the tight money policy of the Bank of Canada is a state inflation.

He said the CBC and Trans-Canada Airlines are examples of governmental expansion of government in business and declared both Crown corporations

Heart Surgery in Hospital Successful on Little Girl

Thanks to a successful operation performed at the Belleville General Hospital a week ago to correct a congenital heart condition, a four-year-old Belleville girl, Shelby Jean Hall, is now well on the road to recovery.

The girl's attending physician, Dr. James E. Nelles, 100 Victoria Ave., said the little girl would soon be ready to go home. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Russell Brant, 5th Street, Bellerville.

The operation, performed in Belleville for the first time, was done by Dr. Harold Newman of Kingston, a member of the medical staff at the Belleville hospital. Previously such an operation would be performed at The Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, but modern facilities of the new pediatrics wing at Belleville, plus the fact that specialists are available, now make the surgery possible here.

Dr. Nelles said the operation on the little girl's heart was done to close off a small communication between the main vessels of the body and the main vessels to the lungs, which had failed to close off normally at birth.

The defect would have shortened the girl's life unless it was corrected," Dr. Nelles said.

Coy Changes Plea to Guilty

Bruce Saunders, 23, and George Coy, 35, inmates at the Hastings County jail in Belleville, appeared before Magistrate T.Y. Willis this morning after their cases were remanded for one week.

Today Saunders asked the court if he could be tried by a judge and jury. Yesterday he elected trial by a magistrate.

Magistrate Willis said he had no power to change the original election.

Coy today changed his plea, on an attempted jail breaking charge, to guilty. He also pleaded guilty to robbing a bank in the Nipissing district on October 25, 1955.

Saunders is alleged to have been a party to the hold-up at the bread company in which $4,000 was taken and the manager, Lloyd Dump, jr., trussed up and gagged.

Saunders and Coy attempted to break out of jail here last week after moving a dummy pistol at two guards. They fled into the exercise yard at the jail and surrendered to provincial police when they found they could not climb the high walls to freedom.

Replica of 'Silver Dart' Unveiling on Air Force Day

History was relived for a short time yesterday at RCAF Station, Trenton, when the Trenton Ferry lifted its newest creation on a project which LAC Lionel McCaffrey, R.R. 3, Belleville, has spearheading.

There they glimpsed for the first time, an amazing likeness of Dr. Alexander Graham Bell's Silver Dart biplane that made headlines around the world on February 23, 1909, when James A. D. McCurdy flew it one-half mile over ice-choked Baddeck Bay in Nova Scotia.

That flight by McCurdy has been recognized as the first successful one of a heavier-than-air craft in the British Commonwealth.

LAC McCaffrey's replica has a 49-foot wing span and is about 20 feet long. With the pilot aboard it is expected to weigh about 850 pounds.

McCaffrey hopes to get his aeroplane airborne, if and when he can get a suitable engine. S/L Wood said, the Canadair Aircraft Co. in the U.S. hinted it may lend an antique airplane engine to the Belleville airman. The crew can try to get the Silver Dart into the air.

CHARTED LAST FALL

Work on the project started last fall when S/L Wood and LAC McCaffrey flew to Baddeck, N.S., and visited the Alexander Graham Bell Museum, where the original "Dart" is displayed. Museum officials kept them for one hundred per cent with them and even went so far as to lend them the original blueprints of the Silver Dart. After returning to the Trenton Air Station, they had photostatic copies made of the blueprints and started the original. While at the museum they also took pictures and visited Aerodynamical Association's papers on McCurdy's plane.

Armed with blueprints and reams of notes, McCaffrey recruited many volunteers and the project got underway.

MANY CO-OPERATE

S/L Wood said yesterday that the officers and men connected with the machine shops on the station and at No. 2 Repair Depot co-operated with McCaffrey's team in the hand-crafting of hundreds of small incidental-looking, but essential, bits and pieces.

Yesterday the 1957-versions of the Silver Dart was almost complete. Although there is yet a good deal of work to be done on assembling it and getting it out of the attic.

But no one is worried about getting the machine out of the attic. Even before the plane was begun to take shape careful measurements had been taken of all entrances to the attic.

Silver Dart will pass through without a hitch.

S/L Wood said jokingly that he isn't worried about not getting an engine. All he will have to do is take the "Dart" out in a 40-mile-an-hour wind and she will "fly" herself. "It's all wing."

In fact, because of the large wing surface, the movers will have to be cautious about how high a wind they do attempt to move it across the 800 years of the beautiful Trent waterway side of the highway.

The undercarriage of McCafrey's Silver Dart is a duplicate of that which was on McCurdy's plane. Tricycle fixed landing gear will be mounted soon on the craft. S/L Wood picked up three rubber tires with metal rims in Winnipeg from a bicycle manufacturer. The wheels were originally made to fit a sulky.

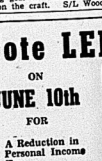
The fuselage of the machine is made of bamboo, while the spars are made of ash and Sitka spruce.

The propeller will be made of laminated wood.

McCaffrey's Silver Dart follows almost identically Bell's original "Dart" and, except where duplicates of original parts could not be found, the remainder of the "Dart" is an exact likeness to the original.

The 125 turn-buckles in the wing structure and on over 150 guy wires. The ship is covered with oanvas fabric (McCurdy's was a silk fabric) and coated with clear dope to give it drum-head tightness. It will be doped silver later.

The Silver Dart is an oddlooking machine and, in modern times manufacturers come out with full-scale production of such similar aircraft as the plane, modern militarists would look askance at it and say "impossible" to Mr. McCurdy's flew twice.



The first time was during the month of 1909 and the last was on August 1, 1909, at Petawawa, Ont., when the craft crashed in a heap after its undercarriage collapsed in a heavy landing.

One of the helpers who has been of invaluable aid to LAC McCaffrey is Mrs. Gladys Patrick, who spent two weeks recently sewing fabric, while in this area on a two-week vacation from Bowden, Alberta. Mr. McCaffrey is a retired shoemaker and now works at a boys' correction school in Bowden. He has returned home and will not be on hand to see his son's creation, when it is displayed for the first time to the public on Air Force Day this Saturday.

But one person who will definitely be present will be the man who flew the original Silver Dart 48 Years ago—James A. D. McCurdy, former Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia.

McCaffrey and several stalwarts have been working on the "Dart" for many months—all of which was done during offduty hours.

IN MEMORIAM

McNISH, — In loving memory of our dear mother who passed away June 4th, 1950.
There's no end to our sorrow,
There's no end to our pain,
For the one we love most
Will never come again.
—Her sons can divide:
For today in memory's garden,
Each dawning day brings
Flowers (Mary) Hubbell passed away
Each evening day brings
Memories of the one we loved best,
And always will be there.
—Ralph and Vera Mickleborough
sadly missed by her daughter Gertrude and son Clarence and family.

MORRIS, — In loving memory of my dear Grandma who passed away June 4th, 1950.
To me she has not gone away,
For I can see her face,
Just as smiling as it was that day,
When we left her at the gates ajar.

BRADSHAW, — In loving memory of our dear mother, Mary Jane Bradshaw, who passed away suddenly on June 4th, 1953.
Dearest mother, how I miss you,
Your face,
Or hear her say "Good Night."
But God took my daughter and
He took with a heart of gold,
Who was more to us than wealth or gold.
—Sadly missed by daughter Ethel.
Without farewell she fell asleep,
Without a word she went away,
We have lost, but God has gained,
One more angel in heaven.
—Sadly missed by the world
Too dearly loved to be forgotten.
Too kindly spoken of to die.
—Inserted by Lena, Ded and Mona, loving son-in-law Florence and children.

Special Meeting Of City Council Called by Mayor

A special meeting of city council has been called by Mayor Jane Forrester for Wednesday evening to continue the debate on the motion calling for the termination of the city's contract with City Manager Dennis P. Herring.

Mayor Forrester said today that the notice of the special meeting had gone out to aldermen Monday evening. The meeting is scheduled for 7.30.

Debate on the motion presented by Alderman Don Whalen calling for termination of the city manager's contract was broken off at last week's regular session of council when time ran out at eleven o'clock.

The motion had turned the meeting into one of the longest sessions in recent years and has stirred up city-wide interest.

At last week's council meeting two petitions were presented asking that the matter be deferred until all factors were considered fully.

And last evening a third petition was circulated throughout the city and was said signed by over 1,100 names.

The petition asked that no further action be taken on the matter until an investigating committee was appointed to look into the problem and report to council. The petition also asked that a special meeting of council be called for Wednesday evening to deal with the petition and that the meeting be made public and broadcast.

This morning the petition was presented to Mayor Forrester at city hall.

Mayor Forrester noted today that the special meeting had been called prior to the circulation of the petition.

She said the request by one of the aldermen for the special meeting had not stipulated a closed meeting. She therefore presumed it would be open to the public.

Mines Minister Phillip Kelly Discusses Tax-Sharing Plan At Tweed Conservative Rally

TWEED (Special)— The Hon. Phillip Kelly, Minister of Mines for Ontario, speaking here last night, explained in what he termed "plain facts" the reason he came to the people of Hastings - Frontenac and Hastings - South on Federal politics. He appeared here in the interest of George S. White, M.P., Progressive Conservative candidate for Hastings - Frontenac and Lee Grills, Progressive Conservative candidate for Hastings South. An estimated 1,000 people jammed the pavilion and sat in cars parked solid in the grounds outside the hall to hear the message from the mines minister and the two candidates seeking election.

Up until two-and-a-half years ago the Ontario government had its own job and duties to attend to, he continued. The Federal government entered appeals for consideration to lightening Ontario's ever-growing tax burden and continued to accept the lion's share of provincial revenue payments. Mining deposents gave provided $15,000,000 in taxes last year, the Federal government received $12,000,000 leaving $3,000,000 for the province.

The Minister contended that unless the present tax sharing set-up was changed it would not pay Ontario to open any mines or new mines. He maintained the province requires better representative at Ottawa if Ontario people were to get a fair deal. "I tell you the time has come for Ontario to assert herself," he declared.

The Minister who claimed his message was on a basis of economics instead of political promises and inuendoes cited that the Federal government granted Canada's wealthiest province, Alberta-$14,000,000 last year and gave Ontario nothing. He made other comparisons, pointing out that the Federal government offered 50 per cent assistance to development in Manitoba and British Columbia while Ontario granted 50 per cent of the Federal government's tax dollar and received only 10 per cent in return.

George S. White, M.P., said that he was naturally interested in the plight or the farmer because much of the riding he represented was agricultural land. He said he was concerned because the farmer today was caught in a squeeze between rising prices and the rising cost of producing things to sell.

Mr. White also expressed concern about the problems faced by the cheese producers. He recalled that he pleaded with C. D. Howe to put an embargo on cheese imports, "Mr. Howe said it could not be done but two weeks from election he suddenly attempts to do something for the domestic cheese producer. I wonder what Mr. Pearson is going to tell his constituents of Manitoulin Island about the Federal gov-

POPULAR CITIZEN HONORED

That very happy function which took place in the city on Friday night was a well deserved tribute to the man in whose honor it was held. We refer to the dinner tendered Mr. Newton Thompson and Mrs. Thompson on the occasion of the former's retirement from forty-two years' service with the railroad.

Surrounded by friends and associates, including many top names in the railroad world, Mr. Thompson must have recalled, as though it were yesterday, his humble beginning in his chosen work that was culminating in honored retirement with the good wishes of everyone ringing in his ears.

He could well recall a lifetime filled with accomplishment and Christian living. He would be the last to voice these thoughts, so we will mention a few facts culled from our files . . . Besides his work with the railroad as chief clerk to the superintendent of the C.N.R. Belleville Division, Mr. Thompson (we always think of him as Newt) has been outstanding in his work with young people. He helped form the Teenage Club of Belleville and acted as its head for several years. He has always been interested in the activities of Bridge St. United Church and for six years served as chairman of the Stewards' Board. He also was president of the YMCA for two years. Fraternally, Mr. Thompson is a Mason and an Odd Fellow, being Past Master and Past Grand of each lodge respectively. Always a baseball enthusiast, Newt in his early days with the railroad acted as secretary-treasurer of the famous Grand Trunk Senior Club which won two Ontario championships, the first in 1910 and the second in 1928. He was also a member of the Grand Trunk bowling team at about the same time.

Well earned compliments were showered on Newt at the dinner and he, in turn, lauded his office associates, both past and present, as well as others who had been with him during his career. He thoughtfully voiced a graceful tribute to his wife by saying that he owed what success he may have achieved to the wonderful help and inspiration he had received all during their married life.

Such generous acknowledgment to others is characteristic of this fine citizen, but we may be sure that had it not been for his great sense of fairness and his willingness to share the load and responsibilities of his office those wonderful tributes paid to him last week would not have been forthcoming.

Noting that Newt now has a typewriter we hope he will devote some of his leisure time to writing those memoirs mentioned in the press interview. We trust, too, that we may have the privilege of publishing them in this newspaper for there are too few interesting recollections of railroad life in existence. Mr. Thompson's lively sense of humor and flair for anecdote, along with a wonderful memory, certainly would produce an outstanding book.

In extending our best wishes for many years of good health to Mr. and Mrs. Thompson to do the many things they have long planned, we know we are putting into words the unspoken thoughts of a multitude of friends in Belleville and elsewhere.

BLACK YEAR ON DISTRICT HIGHWAYS

Statistics just released by the Motor Vehicles Branch of the Ontario Department of Highways show that 1956 was a black year on Hastings County roads. The death toll jumped over a third. Percentage-wise, Prince Edward County's record was even worse, the number of fatalities being tripled. This district's record looks even darker when we consider the fact that for the province as a whole the number of deaths increased by only nine per cent. The number of persons killed per 100 million miles travelled actually declined, from 7.7 in 1955 to 7.6 in 1956. The ten-year average for the province, from 1947 to 1956, was 9 persons killed per 100 million miles travelled.

The record of Hastings and Prince Edward counties while giving cause for concern, should not cause panic. In the case of Prince Edward, the death toll is so low, six in 1956, that it is obvious that coincidence can cause a sharp fluctuation in the relationship between one year's toll and that of the next. As for Hastings, travel is heavy on Highways 2 and 7, particularly the former, and the toll of deaths must be compared with the heavy traffic flow. The 41 deaths in this county last year, though, was exceeded by the toll in only five Ontario counties or districts. York County headed the list with 156 deaths, followed by Middlesex, the London area, with 56; Kent, the Windsor area, with 47; Wentworth, the Hamilton area, with 45; and Sudbury district, with 45. In 1955 there were only 29 deaths in Hastings. In 1956 the 41 deaths occurred as the result of 29 accidents, while in 1955 the 29 fatalities were caused by 22 accidents.

NOISY NEIGHBOR

My neighbor rises with the dawn
While still asleep am I,
And loudly sounds his motor horn
To bid his wife goodbye.

A very pleasant man is he
But this I wish I knew:
Why he must always waken me
To bid his wife adieu.

Beside the door we always stood
When leaving her was I,
I never roused the neighborhood
To bid my wife goodbye.

I wish that he would think of me
In slumber settled down.
I do not ask informed to be
When he starts off for town.

Those Unspoken Words

New York Times

Webster defines a word as "the smallest unit of speech that has meaning when taken by itself." Note the reference to "speech", and then consider the last eight of the many words which are seldom, if ever, spoken.

Seen on a dictionary page these words cannot be differentiated from the entries of "wick," "food" or "gorgeous". But the eight are rarely, if ever, say, unless forced, such words as calcitrate, "evianb" and "beautcheon."

The hand is less restrictive. Holding a pen or pencil or typewriter, the hand accepts words which would rattle the tongue. It may even be said that the hand prefers words which the tongue rejects—especially when the task to which the hand has been set involves impressing the words on other people. Spelling, too, would refer to impressing the reader with one's learning. Writing, like tongue-lashing, was a condition finds its way onto the page.

Almost any printed page carries several words which the tongue cannot form if it undertook to convey the same message. Open a book at random to a page in the dictionary. It is a safe bet that, whatever the page, it includes at least one word, of no more than two syllables, which you never then heard (or even heard of, maybe.) Page 438 of Webster's New Collegiate opens with "abaca" and ending on Page 737 one finds schuh, schwa, scifroid, scirrhous, sizzle and sizzler.

It is strange what a plethora (there's that uncritical hand at work again) of words we have in the English language and how short we are of words for others.

There are, for example (and this would bear looking into), words to describe a shrill, nagging woman—harridan, hoyden, scold, virago and shrew. But the language suffers from what H. L. Mencken called as "the lack of singular pronouns of common gender." All we have are clumsy combinations like "his or her." Each person must like his or her best when the bell sounds. How much easier if there were a word like "sher" or something comparable to use in such situations.

Probably the loose rein kept over big words by the hand is at the root of gobbledygook, that nifty word coined by the late Representative Maury Maverick to describe what has also been called Federal Prose in which the writer is concerned about as unlike words used in ordinary communication as is humanly possible, except maybe by lawyers. Here is a run-of-the-mine sample: "Following appropriation of funds, additional funds will be required for distribution of the applicable forms, the amendment of agreements with the insurance companies, the sending of the forms mailing to insurers, and, of course, the nationwide publicizing of the availability of the protection."

The tongue wouldn't use those words probably would put the matter this way: "After we get the money we'll need time to issue the form, sign up the insurance companies, tell the agents and insurers what to do, and get word of the project to the country." . . .

There is a time when the tongue must fail or fail in its editorial function. That is when one is making a speech. Words just talking. Leave aside the many speeches which are full of gobbledygook. The tongue in those cases must say what is written. It is the only speech which consistently causes trouble. If the tongue could be brought to produce such a speech at all, it is liable to lose its instinct for finding words and for what might be called verbal gobbledygook. Doubtless this is an effect of stage fright. Many a word becomes a "unit of speech" only in such times.

On Talking to Oneself

By E. J. Penny in the Stratford Beacon-Herald

That man in the white coat, with the butterfly net, is out talking to himself. You'd better look out for him, especially if you're one of those folk who talk to themselves—and that means just about everybody, according to a survey recently made by a Minneapolis paper, which asked a cautious question: "Do you ever talk to yourself?" What do you think of people who talk to themselves? The answers to the replies were most enlightening.

"It makes a most interesting conversation," said one young man. "When I ask myself a question, I usually get an intelligent answer." This, of course, doesn't square with the story of the political candidate, who paused in his speech to remark: "Now I'll pause and you ask myself a question." Whereupon a heckler in the audience interjected: "Don't worry, mister, I'll answer you'll get."

An older man, married apparently, had a little more difficulty in the matter of talking to oneself. "It's perfectly all right," he found, "as long as you start talking to himself until after he marries, and then he better not hear you talking to himself." A woman reader had an interesting theory on the subject. Quoth she: "The people who talk to themselves can't get anyone else to listen to them, and, besides, they don't get any back talk," which, that certainly is a consideration.

Another male reader was content to admit: "I talk to people to themselves. "Who doesn't?" he asked. "I don't bad habit talking to yourself, but it is bad when you start cussing at yourself. Where can I buy a halo?" As a matter of fact, that man hit upon the basic psychological principle. All the psychologists tell us that talking to oneself is not necessarily a sign of mental derangement—unless one does it out loud. On the contrary, they claim, it is a highly intelligent thing to do, provided one says the right things to oneself. They call it "constructive affirmation", and urge that, in order to get anywhere in life, a man must convince himself that he has the ability to accomplish his aims. "He can who thinks he can." is one of their maxims, and it is perfectly true—up to a point. And it is perhaps absolutely true to say that "He can't who thinks he can't."

Yes, the value or harm of conversing with oneself depends a great deal upon what is said. We can recall, for example, a disastrous conversation we had with ourself many years ago. It was during our first term in College. The surroundings were new, the teaching stimulating, and we really buckled in and worked. When the mid-term exam results were announced we headed the class. That's not meant to be boastful, but is merely a statement of fact leading up to what followed. We had a conversation with ourself about it.

It went something like this: "Boy, you're good. You don't have to study. You're a natural at lessons? Play football. Have a good time. You'll be smart enough to make the grade at midsummer." Well, we somehow took that to mean, after the time was lost, whether it was ourself or the voice of a certain mysterious being who, reportedly, exists on earth for the sole purpose of leading us astray. At any rate, we took the advice, and the result of that full-term exam was sad indeed, as far as we were concerned. But it is a lesson, perhaps, that we were a bit more careful in what we say to ourself.

So what? We all talk to ourselves every now and then or do it all the time as they put their best thoughts into paper. Hemingway, for instance, has to provoke public discussion on live topics of the day. But, alas, he, too, has pulled some terrific boo-boo in his article in the editor section of Life on his readers. So far as he knows, he's been talking to himself.

Ministers have it tougher still. Twice every Sunday they stand up in the pulpit, and talk to themselves. At least nobody in the congregation dares to get into the act with them. The preacher shoots an arrow into the air, it is said, but he knows not where. The poor man has to rely on faith for ammunition for some of his shafts hit the mark.

And radio broadcasters are often that they are talking to themselves, particularly if nobody writes in or phones or drops by to plug in the microphone. Hence the necessity for consulting at anything we say to ourselves is both interesting and instructive. Otherwise nobody benefits.

13-Ton Load Dropped

London Times

A Blackburn Beverley four-engined military transport dropped a load of 29,000 pounds (about 13 tons) by parachute at Brough, Yorkshire, on Monday. The load was of steel plates and other ballast, and Blackburn and General Aircraft claim that it is the heaviest single item dropped from an aircraft. The American record is 27,000 pounds and the previous heaviest British drop was 26,000 pounds.

Personal Health Talks

By Dr. W. MAC STEWART

He Tries 'Em All

What this Elmira lady says may reassure a thousand other wives who have been wondering:

"My son and I like yeast-rainbed buckwheat pancakes, made with sour-thickened buttermilk and served with sausage or bacchews for Sunday breakfast." (With plenty of pure maple syrup from Pennsylvania or Vermont, I have been known to see where they have hurt us at all. But my husband insists that such food is 'impure' and not fit for human consumption.

"He tries every 'cure' for arthritis — takes it for a week, perhaps; and if it doesn't cure him, out it goes! In the past month he has bought no less than seven such cures.

"At 46, I'm still healthy and able to do a full day's work. At 52, he is ready for the corner rocking-chair. "Son and I like to fish, and camp out, but he can't hand tatog all such 'foolishness'.

"Can you tell me why?"

(Signed) Mrs. ——

In the first place, the Sunday breakfast you describe is fine for the health of anybody over the reasonable amount of general exercise daily, as you and your son do. A reasonable amount of general exercise would be any general activity equivalent to walking three to six miles daily.

"I am, I learned by sad experience that it is dangerous to tell the truth in public, to say the behavior you describe is irrational. Your husband should consult a psychiatrist, preferably together with his wife, or at any rate with his wife should go by to join the conference if the doctor so proposes.

I base my long-distance opinion rather on the man's fussing about what his wife and son like to eat. If he can have what he likes for breakfast, his fussing is just plain insanity.

The silly business of "trying" each new "arthritis" cure is only exaggeration of a common practice of Yankee wiseacres.

Yankee wiseacres, being exploited by trick specialists and clinic racketeers for "arthritis," seem content to drift along towards permanent disablement while waiting for some one to discover a medicine, diet, or something that will cure arthritis.

Might as well wait for a magic cure for the thinning of the hair, whitening of the skin, and hardening of the arteries. Lifelong habits of overeating and their gullible customers call "arthritis" is not that inflammation at all, but physical degeneration of joint tissues due to lifelong nutritional debility.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

This is the "do-it-yourself" era. And how stupid we all have been not to have realized long before now that the artists have been trying, in their dumb, inarticulate way, to lead us into the "do-it-yourself" era far in advance of the carpenters, cabinet makers, tile layers, home plumbers and lamps-out-of-whiskey-bottles "creations."

I wonder we couldn't understand modern art and modern music! We were labouring under the delusion that these artists and composers were professional bores forming fans beyond our comprehension, when all the time, they were dimly trying to tell us how to do it ourselves. Painting, in former times, was an art requiring years of study and long lean years of practice. So was plumbing. So was plastering. Composing was supposed to be so rarified an art that only peculiarly constituted people could attempt it. So was electric wiring. So was cabinet making.

It is queer that we have had the "do-it-yourself" era three or four year back with carpentry, weaving, hooking rugs, painting, converting cellars, building cupboards, installing taps, rewiring houses and all manner of complex enterprises, never tumbling to the easy-day in the do-it-yourself era.

Instead of all the "do-it-yourself" media—the arts, they were called—we just must have been feeling, these past few years, the way we gave vent to the joy.

And it is so simple. It is far easier to paint an abstract than to paint a picture of concrete fact. And so for music. I have a friend who has a child of four who has been trained to play modern music on the piano, simply by running up and down the keys and forward on the keyboard. I swear it is the equal of anything I have ever heard played. Sculpture, of course, is the most enticing of all. You don't have to have clay or plaster, you don't even get your hands dirty any more. You just take some wire and a few old horse shoe nails and string them up, and, in a masterpiece, pregnant with meaning. Or, if you must have clay, you make something with a hole in it.

Since a good many of the do-it-yourselfers are getting tired of woodwork or tile laying and those, like myself, are artists, we might be grateful to the less hampered artists, whose work doesn't require tools, for their example, and await new field of activity, a new line of art in the do-it-yourself era.

Barbers Find Dad Handicap

Hamilton Spectator

Mr. H. A. Prosser, president of the U.K. National Hairdresser's Federation, indicated the other day that barbers in the Hairdressing suffers from one very serious handicap—British men. The culprit is "Dad" who strangles creative impulses in barbers. Canadian barbers as he goes to any lengths to retain the same hair style he has worn for 30 years.

Dad's views of modern youth's interest in hair styling, apparently, is not very complimentary, but very understandable. He wants "short - back - and - sides" and "leaves" and "no fancy work" he says, or words to that effect.

"It was the long-haired men who won Britain her Empire," said Mr. Prosser, with an eye to business.

Its almost certain, however, that if Dad switches to Duck-tail, Curly-top, Brush, Permanent, Victorian (with or without cowlick) or Sideburn styles, barbers will be encouraged to go for independence may resort in desperation to "short back and sides" and cease to base prosper for Mr. Prosser.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

COLLECT FRIENDS!

For years I have collected etchings and rare books. I love books for what is in them, but to treasure a first edition is the height of joy. The life of the dream and struggle of the author as well as the failures and disappointments are behind that first edition. Illiam Bellocc, the famous English writer once said, "Books are not written for the head read the first edition of a great book." Many editions are uninteresting to him!

These two hobbies that I have had for most of my lifetime have given me no end of joy and pleasure, but I have loved the collecting of friends far more! Values in material things leave me cold, but a kindly, appreciative friend is far better than gold! We may lose a great part of what we collected in material things, but genuine friendship is an undying thing. There is no adequate replacement.

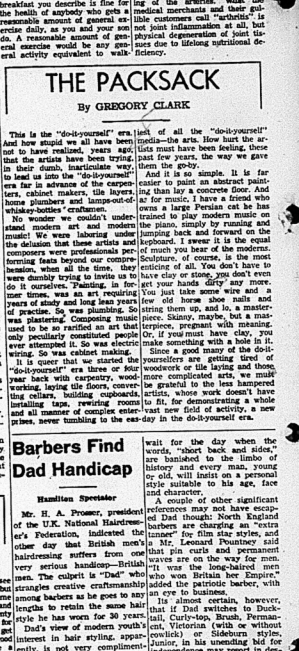
I love my friends. I may see comparatively little of them, but they are always in my heart. The world with me I feel happier and more comfortable. I have plenty of moods—but I have a friend for each one! And then, when you get discouraged or need good advice, there can always be a friend to whom you can go when you may be. The sad thing is to lose friends—but how we treasure friends we have.

I began early to collect my friends, and not too early, for as many leave us for the long journey, God has given others to replace the void left by those who are not wholly alone. And then there are the silent friends whom you have only met in their books. They become very real. I read my Emerson, Thoreau, Hawthorne and scores of others whose books have come to me in this world when I began to collect and read them. Books are such deathless things.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

AN EVERLASTING COMMANDMENT



In the sixth chapter of Deuteronomy occurs the famous Shema. It is the commandment that we love God with all our hearts, souls, and might. It is the basis of God's commandments to our children, and that we bind them for a sign upon our hands and write them as frontlets between our eyes. These later references have to do with the practice prevalent at the time Deuteronomy was written, binding on the arm during prayer a little box containing these precious verses, and wearing one of these little boxes suspended on a string bound about the forehead.

The meaning is clear, and very beautiful. No commandment of God means anything to us until we really make it a part of our own lives. In order to do this we enters ink and paper or a spoken word, it can only be written in the realm of theory. It is only when we take it into our lives and make it the law of our actions and decisions, that it really becomes God's law to us.

Binding God's law on the arm! Our acts are to be guided by God's precious teachings. Wearing God's words as frontlets between our eyes! This indicates the necessity of thinking in a sound, straight, pure fashion, and of looking upon life with a sense of mission derived from the word of God.

Students Congratulated by Premier

Wearing her birthday honors proudly Albert College celebrated her one hundredth anniversary on Monday afternoon at the Centennial Convocation in Memorial Chapel. Pictures and more pictures were taken to commemorate the day on film and to keep a record of the colorful scene without and within the school.

The girl students were as pretty as a flower garden as they entered the chapel in the procession, dressed in long white gowns with bertha collars of lace, long white gloves and carrying nosegays of sweetpeas and rosebuds. The young men in blue coats and grey trousers wore ties striped with the Albert colors of black and gold. The teachers were capped and gowned and wearing their hoods. To complete the academic procession were the guests, representatives from the Board of Governors and clerics.

Mr. and Mrs. Egerton Boyce presided at the organ and piano with Mendelssohn's "March of the Priests" as the procession entered. The chancel was tastefully decorated with flowers of many colors, gladioli, 'mums and ferns, the gift of the staff of the late Jack Ackerman. It was announced that the library will be named the Jack Ackerman library in his honor.

Rev. Bert Howard, D.D., Principal Emeritus, gave the Invocation.

Principal and Headmaster Rev. A. E. MacKenzie, B.A., D.D., presided as he commenced and expressed his delight that such a splendid number of people had come for convocation. He lauded they would find the proceedings most enjoyable.

"This is a notable milestone in the history of Albert College," said Dr. MacKenzie. "To be 100 years old in a nation as young as Canada is noteworthy. To be able to look back for one century with gratitude and pride for what has been accomplished is cause for great rejoicing. To be in a position to look forward to the coming century with the expectation that it will be full of challenge, inspiration and enlargement of opportunity for service is a thrilling prospect. Both of these things we are able to do. However, if the days ahead are to be as bright as the promises of God, we shall have to work as diligently and faithfully in the future, as we, and others before us, have in the past."

Dr. MacKenzie paid tribute to the faithful work of the teaching and maintenance staffs, and to the Board of Governors for their faithful support, especially Judge Anderson, Q. C., Morrison and Lorne McDougall, the committees of Belleville and vicinity, who had done excellent work.

STUDENTS CONTRIBUTE

It had been a good year, with the students voluntarily contributing over $700 for the support of their foster children. There were present at the service two Hungarian boys aged 16 and 17, Steve and Leslie who were happy and had contributed much good in the school.

The Valedictory address was given by Miss Kaye who remenisced in a humorous vein about the members of the graduating class. "Many students are capable of developing the power of learning," said the speaker, "but it is the environment at Albert which makes the difference. Friendship is one of the things in meeting with people of different backgrounds and faiths. We are in close touch with our teachers here and get personal help. The sense of unity which has been taught will help those who go to University. We will always be grateful for all Albert College has done for us."

The graduating class presented the school with the gift of a revised pulpit edition of the Bible. In making the presentation, president of the class, Jim Baker, noted that Albert is not only an institution but a basis for life. Each person left an imprint, but the graduating class felt it should leave a tangible token, in accepting the gift for the school, Principal MacKenzie said it would be a lamp unto our feet and a guide unto our path.

Several students who had graduated in 1897 or earlier were presented with golden anniversary certificates. These included Miss Jessie B. Tuite, Mrs. Leo B. Riggs, Mr. Fred Sprague, Lt. Col. W. Arthur Steel, Mr. Roy Sills, Judge Edgerton Lovering and Rev. H. Hume Hillis.

MUSICAL PROGRAM

Musical members were provided by a ladies' quartette composed of Misses Evangeline Reilly, Jean Mitchell, Martha Mundy and Dorothy Smith who sang "An Indian Lullaby"; and by the school choir directed by H. MacKay, which was heard in two selections, "May the Good Lord Bless and Keep You" and "Onward Christian Soldiers." They were accompanied at the piano by Mr. D. B. Hoare.

The guest speaker, the Hon. Leslie M. Frost, Premier of Ontario was introduced by Chairman of the Board, E. B. Wartiner. "I consider the Prime Minister one of the outstanding citizens of Ontario, said Mr. Wartiner. "He has a smile as reassuring as the twenty-third psalm. He has no sense of pretext, he is dignified but warm, spiritual but not sanctimonious, high-minded but human. We have all been to Palm of the Province a man who is safeguarding our resources, encouraging industry and education."

The Prime Minister received a hearty warming reception as he brought good wishes and appreciation from the people of Ontario to the Principal and staff, their predecessors, and the students. He wished to speak to everything good in the years to come.

PURPOSE TO LOOK BACK

"It is proper to look back at this time", said the Premier as he dismissed some of the details of Dr. Waldo Smith's history of Albert College. He was impressed by the number of graduates of fifty and more years which encompassed more than half the life of the school, so young in history was our country.

"In 1857 we would have witnessed a very different country," the speaker told his audience. "The Supreme Court of the United States had just ruled that a man or women could be owned as a chattel. Lincoln and Douglas had to engage in their great debate, which was to change the ideas of the times profoundly. The northern frontier of Ontario was around Peterborough, Lindsay and Orillia. We were governed under the uncertain rule of the Act of Union. The idea of Confederation was uncertain. Such was Canada in those days, a series of settlements and townships unconnected.

"This college was born in that atmosphere. Ryerson's idea of universal education was entirely new. In a nation as new greatest problem is still education. Communities have altered in so many ways it is difficult to recognize them. Sewers, roads and buildings must be built. A billion dollar development is now in progress to bring gas into Ontario. These are days of great opportunities and the greatest problem is developing the human resources to meet the challenge of the times.

GREAT CHALLENGE AHEAD

"Twenty years from now will see two pupils in school for every one now. The universities will have four pupils for every one now. The greatest challenge is unquestionably to take care of this. "It is written on the wall that Albert College will assume the stature of a university of the future. We have to expand very quickly and this school stands in a preferred position.

"Upon the foundation of well-educated people we will build our future. With mounting school population the magnitude of the task becomes immense, and the problem is to make the dollars go around.

"We are going to need men and women devoted to the betterment of mankind. The need for technical skills is becoming more pressing. Our shortages of man-power with education, the knowhow to do the job. Our opportunities will attract a human tide of immigrants, and we must develop every possible one of our human sources.

"To young people is given one of the greatest opportunities in history. The task of this generation is to win the battle of peace. They must devote their talents to the improvement of our way of life. Upon you young people will come great perplexities but great opportunities. We wish you the best of success in the great tasks ahead of you."

DANCE RECITAL

Miss Freddine Smith held her first Stirling dance recital on Friday evening and it was a successful affair with over 300 tickets handed in at the door. People were amazed that all the pupils were so well advanced in such a short period of time. The show lasted two and one half hours and the applauding was hearty for each and every act, with one act as good as the other.

Weddings

FARNSWORTH — BISDEE

Tall standards of large, white chrysanthemums, mingled with pom pom 'mums, pink snapdragons and ferns, formed an attractive background for the lovely June wedding in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, on Saturday, June 1st, at three o'clock, when Helen Noreen Bisdee of Belleville, R. R. 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Bisdee, became the bride of Dennis Bellamy Farnsworth, of Belleville, son of Dr. and Mrs. J. F. Farnsworth, Belleville. Rev. Harry M. Davis, B.A., pastor of the church, officiated in the double-ring ceremony.

Mr. S. Alec Gordon, church organist, presided at the console of the organ, and rendered the traditional wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, Mr. Gerald Bisdee, the bride was radiant in her floor-length bridal gown of Chantilly lace and white taffeta, featuring a fitted bodice of lace over taffeta with scalloped boat neckline accented with white sequins and seed pearls. The long, "V"-pointed sleeves were of matching lace, and the gracefully full skirt fell from a princess styled waistline.

She wore a coronet studded with sequins and seed pearls, with finger-tip veil of tulle illusion, and carried a white Bible crested with red rosebuds and white stephanotis, with rose-knotted streamers.

Miss Mary Jo Farnsworth, also of Belleville, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaid, was gowned in yellow crystalette made on similar lines to that of the maid of honor, with matching shoes, white headdress, and carried a Colonial bouquet of white daisy 'mums.

Miss Mary Jo Farnsworth, also of Belleville, sister of the bridegroom, as bridesmaid, was gowned in yellow crystalette made on similar lines to that of the maid of honor, with matching shoes, white headdress, and carried a Colonial bouquet of white daisy 'mums.

The bridegroom was attended by Mr. James Hill, of Toronto. Mr. Bill Deacon, and Flying Officer W. F. Bird, both of Belleville, acted as ushers.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held in the church parlors, where the bride's mother, attired in a pastel green sheath gown and matching duster, and accessories, and corsage of yellow roses, received. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a turquoise sheath with matching duster, white accessories, and corsage of pink roses.

The bride's table, with white damask, was prettily appointed with tall, white candles in silver holders flanking the three-tier wedding cake, topped by a tiny bride and bridegroom, and wedding bells, and clouded about the base with white tulle.

For traveling through the Laurentians, the bride chose a beige and brown-striped sheath dress, with brown duster, white accessories, and corsage of white roses. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Farnsworth will reside in Belleville.

Guests present from Toronto; Trenton; Picton; Kingston; Bowmanville, and Belleville.

Showers honoring the bride were held in Belleville at the homes of Mrs. Donald Finkle, aunt of the bride, and Miss Barbara Keel. A community shower was also held at Tobe's County Cinema.

Melrose W.I. Holds Interesting Meeting

Mrs. N. Demill opened her spacious home for the May meeting of the Melrose W.I. last Wednesday evening and a splendid attendance proved the popularity of these evening sessions.

Mrs. C. Weeks, president, opened the meeting and conducted a lengthy business period which included final arrangements for the district annual at which Melrose W.I. is hostess.

Substantial donations were made to the Salvation Army and to the Babies' Convalescent Home near Plainfield, for equipment to the playgrounds. It was also decided to buy curtains for the Melrose community hall and a committee was appointed to look after same.

Since "Victoria Day" had been celebrated so recently it was most fitting for Mrs. G. McLarson to give a brief talk from the "Commonwealth and Citizens' Program" wherein she explained the qualities of a good citizen, one who has the spirit of helpfulness; one who strives to make Canada a better place to live in; one who is loyal to Canada, the Commonwealth and the world, living evidences of citizenship.

Community singing of patriotic songs followed with Mrs. F. Robinson acting as pianist, after which Mrs. Wm. Corby-ville demonstrated the making of "Wood-Anemones." She proved most interesting. She showed skill and dexterity in creating one by explaining every step in detail and each lady was given a chance to try her skill in making one.

INSTITUTE WORK

Mrs. C. Weeks, who had attended the recent Officers' Conference in Guelph, in honor of the 60th anniversary, gave a comprehensive report of same where they learned much about the work of Institute work. The good fellowship that prevailed, the inspiration derived, the active participation among the membership made each one of the privileges of belonging to the great Institute family.

There were eight discussion groups with qualified leaders as chairmen, much knowledge was gained by the "Question and Answer" procedure used in the groups. The motto as you enter MacDonald Hall is "Your actions today will determine your place tomorrow," a most appropriate rule for the girl. Members who attend this Padre W. Young outlined the courses taught at OAC and stressed agriculture because food is very necessary and hence all farmer has to know so much about everything.

Miss McKercher, director of home economics, said, "Our motto is 'For Home and Country' is carried on at home is here to stay and home economics isn't just a frill but very necessary. Any member who repeats the 'Ode' will be impressed with the thankfulness expressed in it".

Mrs. Adams, president of FWIC, stressed the great need for a national office and mentioned the national convention to be held in Ottawa this fall.

A few recommendations were: to have one as secretary, change order of business occasionally; stress the importance of the audience, and let all talk inventory of themselves.

The Club leader, Mrs. J. English, with her assistants, Mrs. T. Howard and Mrs. V. Pascoe, all of whom completed the St. John First Aid course, gave a most instructive demonstration on bandaging and with deft and clever movements showed how to properly bandage the finger, thumb, elbow and foot.

They also demonstrated the various uses of the St. John sling and outlined what to do in case of accidents. All three ladies proved well qualified to be First Aid instructors and their presence served to demonstrate "Respiration" at a future meeting.

The roll call "What Gives Me Pep" revealed many amusing ways to develop that extra energy.

The president thanked the hostess.

After the meeting closed refreshments were served.

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

MAYBE IT'S NOT AS HARD AS IT SEEMS

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'd like to know if you can send me a booklet on how to start a conversation with boys or something like that.

You see, my girl friend and I know these two boys whom we like, but every time we walk with them we never know what to say, and we feel like jerks.

Please help me if you can.

— R.M.P.

Dear R.M.P.:

I don't have any booklet on just the one topic of how to start a conversation with a boy, but I do have a sheet of suggestions on how to become popular, which I think would give you some helpful ideas. Since you gave me your name or address, suppose you send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and I'll put these suggestions inside and mail it back to you.

I might add right here that it isn't really as hard to start a conversation as it may seem. If you are somewhat acquainted with these boys, you must learn some of the things they do at school, like sports, for instance. So think up some questions you might ask them about their activities along this line and they'll probably be delighted to have an opportunity to talk about what they do.

You might also go to your public library and take out a book called "Miss Jackson's Guide to Dating." In it, you'll find a chapter headed: "What Shall I Say To My Date?" This will give you some good ideas.

Another book, called "Teen Talk," by Marion Glendining, has something to say about "When the Situation Calls for Conversation."

Good luck, and let me know how things go.

DON'T BE ASHAMED OF YOUR HOME

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm a girl of 13 and would like your advice on something very important to me.

A boy that I like very much has called me several times for a friendly chat. I took it for granted that he liked me, but now I think he's been calling other girls, too. I think that some way or other he's found out that I like him. Could that be the trouble?

He has asked me several times to date him, but Mother thinks I'm a little young to go out nights. He also wanted to come to the house lots of times, but I told him No, and made up some excuse, because I'm afraid if he comes to the house he'd get the wrong idea of the kind of people we are. He'd tell me he doesn't care where I live, but if he should come here, I'm afraid that would end everything. — M.

Dear M.:

If you like this boy, and he likes you, why don't you just regard him as a nice friend to have and don't worry about whether he calls other girls or not? At your age, and for some years to come, girls and boys should have lots of friends, and not think that any one friend should be theirs exclusively.

You don't say how old this boy is, but, whatever his age, you don't want him to think you're a foolish little girl who wants to have all his attention. That might make him drop you entirely, as you've suggested yourself.

I think you're making a mistake to try and keep him from coming to your home. It's too bad if you happen to live in a place which makes you feel embarrassed to have others see, but if you're a friendly, happy girl, people are going to like you for yourself and want to be with you no matter where or how you live.

So the next time this boy asks if he can come to see you, tell him Yes, that you'll be glad to have him come, and then make him welcome when he does. If he were to stop being your friend because of the way your family lives, he's not worth having for a friend.

BEAUTY

By MME. QUI VIVE

DON'T BE AFRAID TO BE CALLED "ECCENTRIC"...

There's nothing to perk up the spirits like a gay hat—whether a woman's 16 or 60

Want to stay young? Then don't let other people put you into a social straitjacket. In other words, be yourself.

That's the advice of Thomas C. Desmond, a New York State Senator who urges men and women of middle age and over to start living their own lives.

"Don't mind being called eccentric, if your eccentricities make sense to you," he says in a recent issue of the Journal for Life-time Living, and goes on to prove how so-called "eccentricities" brought fame and fortune to many.

Throughout history, he points out, the great men and women have been those who dared challenge senseless taboos and cared nothing about keeping up with the Joneses. Pasteur did not abide by the traditions of the Joneses that said their way even into science. Ford ignored the business practices of the Joneses of commerce, and Frank Lloyd Wright achieved success by ignoring the stick-in-the-mud architectural conventions.

Many older people are often made "elderly" simply because they let themselves be cast into stereotyped roles we commonly associate with age. The Joneses of the world may approve of mature men and women sitting in rockers, caring for grandchildren, or puttering around house and garden. But they look askance at anything they think is not "dignified."

Some taboos, may, of course, have a basis for existence because they are designed to help protect an older person's health, safety or well-being. But many, if not most, are simply remnants of the Victorian era.

This is particularly true in the case of many middle-aged women who, no matter how young their hearts, are still imbued with the idea that, because they've passed

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

TODAY'S COURTESY HINT: ON BEING KIND

"Nothing is so popular as kindness," wrote the wise Cicero, long, long ago. And how true, how very true, this is today, when kindness is so much needed, so longed-for by so many troubled hearts.

IS MARRIED ATTENDANT A "BRIDESMAID"?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a young bride-to-be, and naturally have young friends. But I have asked an aunt of mine, who is older than I am, to be my matron of honor. I have a young girl friend who was recently married, and I would also like her to be one of my attendants, but have been told that because she is married, she cannot be called a "bridesmaid." If this is true, what would she be called in the write-up of the wedding? — Bride-to-be a certain birthday, interest in beauty, fashion and other feminine "frivolities" is now "unbecoming."

Your young friend would be called a "bridesmaid," even though she is married.

And utter nonsense!

Why should a modern woman go around in drab colors, minus make-up and wearing a bonnet just because she's passed forty? Because Grandma said it was "dignified"? She can be—as those sands are—just as dignified wearing a becoming frock and a gaily flowered hat. And, certainly, she will be a much more cheerful person to look at if she takes advantage of every make-up miracle available today.

It's the same with travel, with sports, with entertainment. No one but the stodgy bats an eye anymore if Grandma wants to fly around the world, or maybe learn to pilot a plane herself. And if she wants to get out and play 18 holes of golf a day or dance away half the night, more power to her!

So why bury your secret yearnings, Grandma? If you want to go out and get that bright red hat, go and get it—providing it's becoming of course. And if you want to join a gym, slip into a pair of shorts and whittle down your figure, go to it. In time, you'll look as young as you feel—and you'll be a lot happier.

As Senator Desmond says:

"My plea is not to play the fool at 50 or 60 or 80. It is simply not to be hog-tied by unreasonable taboos. Examine the restrictions on your activities, your way of life, and your way o thinking, imposed by others. Then start living your own life!"

The other evening neighbors, who are faithful readers of your column, as well as myself, think it is about time you kept us caught up on the activities of Marianne, and that adorable Gary Stephen — do you realize you haven't mentioned them for months and months. Please - we demand you let us know how they are. Does Gary talk now? Does Baby can walk, talk, has 2 teeth and so much hair that she wears a ribbon.

What I am planning to do is to go and see the little pet for myself then when I get a person-to-person interview I'll report again. But beware of exaggerations.

One day Marianne was caring for a girl friend's baby girl, a little younger than Gary and both babies were creeping on the living room rug. For some reason some puffed wheat was around and got on the floor. Can you imagine her surprise to see both youngsters picking it up by their lips like birds picking up crumbs? So much for a nurse's sterilizing routine!

P.S. When you read this I will be in Calgary with Marianne and Herbie and Gary, all smiles.

PC Leader Shows Willingness To Trade Blow for Blow As Campaign Warms Up

OTTAWA (CP)—Harder punches are being thrown as the federal election campaign nears its climax and John Diefenbaker shows a willingness to trade blow for blow.

The Progressive Conservative leader followed a tougher line during his two-week Western Canada campaign. He is continuing it during the wind-up of his tour in the East.

There was sharp personal criticism in Mr. Diefenbaker's reply to two lines of attack taken by Prime Minister St. Laurent involving federal-provincial fiscal relations and family allowances.

In the light of Premier Frost's backing of the federal Conservatives, Mr. St. Laurent has suggested Ontario would get preferred treatment over other provinces in any new tax-sharing agreement under a Conservative federal government.

EQUAL FOR ALL

Mr. Diefenbaker said that was "one of the biggest prevarications in Canada political history." He pledged equal terms for all provincces, with none receiving less than it now does in tax-rental payments from Ottawa.

The Liberals were "running scared," Mr. Diefenbaker said. Mr St. Laurent had "launched on a program of irresponsibility" to fear that his re-election chances "have been Frost-bitten."

Mr. Diefenbaker's second counter-attack began after Mr. St. Laurent had said Conservatives opposed introduction of family allowances 13 years ago and added: "Do you think that any Canadian party can win through an election with a program designed to repeal the Family Allowances Act?"

Mr. Diefenbaker replied that the statement was "either frivolous or false or both." The prime minister "knows better than that."

PLEDGES RETENTION

He pledged the Conservative party to maintain all social security measures "at a high standard" and said pensions would be increased to match the cost of living and to keep pace with national productivity.

Each of the four had said $6 was enough, he said, and that was why all other premiers were getting no greater increase.

This theme has cropped up in nearly every speech since and invariably draws a chortle.

VIGOROUS CAMPAIGN

Mr. Diefenbaker has been waging one of the most vigorous campaigns a fiery party leader in recent years. During a strenuous schedule of speeches and travel he keeps up his strength with frequent cat-naps and drinks of milk.

He told reporters recently: "I never felt better in my life . . . I seem to be gaining in energy."

The question of federal-provincial tax relations has recurred in his speeches. He has promised a larger share of tax revenues to the provinces and denied Mr. St. Laurent's claim that this would require higher taxes.

Various liberal cabinet ministers have put price tags on the cost of carrying out Conservative promises, ranging from $1,000,000,000 to $2,000,000,000. Mr. Diefenbaker's reply has been that these figures are based on compilations of unofficial proposals made by private Conservative MPs and that the party platform of current expenditures would not cost more than $800,000,000 a year to carry out.

He has counter-attacked on the question of election promises, relating to a series of pledges and busts made by the Liberal leader. Mr. St. Laurent had begun his campaign on a "no promises" platform but had become "the most promising prime minister in history."

Mr. Diefenbaker has been making promises too, on top of pledges to cut taxes, increase pensions and give provinces a new tax deal.

His farm policy is a major one: flexible price supports to assure farmers a fair relationship between their returns and operating costs; extension across Canada of the conservation policies of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration; strict application of existing anti-dumping tariffs on imports of United States food stuffs.

Fire Department Not Needed in Near Drowning

CAMPBELLFORD — Campbellford fire department rushed a respirator and a rescue boat to the scene of a near-drowning in the Trent Canal opposite the fair grounds on Front St., on Friday shortly after noon, but luckily they were not needed.

John Moran, 16 - months - old son of Mr. and Mrs. Noel Moran of Timmins, was playing near the water with two other children when he apparently tumbled into the water. The other two children, aged 3 and 2, began screaming and attracted the attention of Mrs. Moran, who ran out to see her youngster bobbing in the water.

She waded in and brought him to shore.

Before she went after the youngster, she called to Mrs. Jack Tinney, who lives nearby, that her son was in the water. Mrs. Tinney went to help while Mr. Tinney called a doctor and the fire department. Dr. D. W. Burgess, who examined the child, said he was none the worse for his experience.

Mr. and Mrs. Moran have been living in a cottage on Front St. North for several weeks. Mr. Moran is employed with the construction crew who have been repairing the town bridge. They were leaving for Timmins this weekend.

Bobcats Hand Trenton Legion 6-0 Shutout

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Vic Allen, big right-hand ace of the Belleville Bobcats, hurled the first shutout of the Belleville and District softball season last night, a 6-0 whitewash job over the Trenton Legion Juniors.

The victory was the first of the year for the Bobcats and vaulted them into fourth place, one-half game ahead of Trenton.

A three-run explosion in the opening frame was all Allen needed to work with. He scattered six safeties, all singles over the route and chinned ten on strikes. He issued only two walks while receiving errorless support from his mates.

The Cat's had their biggest inning of the season in the first when they plated three runs on five hits. Ken Dunsbury led off with a single and John Casey went out a bunt. A passed ball and wild pitch netted one run. Faulkner fanned for the first out but Cousins drove Casey home with a base hit to centre and was out trying for a double.

Allen and Bob Wood hit back to back doubles, for the third marker.

They completed their scoring in the third with another trio. Casey walked, Bert Faulkner lined a single and Earle Cousins also singled to centre for two markers. A wild pitch allowed the sixth. A good throw by Mel Kennedy nailed Wood at the plate following a later double by Harry Wardhaugh.

Ron Wannamaker toiled all the way for the Junior crew and fired hitless ball in all except the first and third frames. He was touched for eight hits in all, issued four on strikes and passed five.

Trenton got only one runner as far as third base, this in the third inning on base hits by Wilman and Ron Wannamaker with one out. The visitors had a good chance again in the fourth on singles by Doug Alexander and Willy Kennedy with one down but Allen fanned Burns and got Wilman on a pop-up.

Neither team threatened after the fourth, the winners having only three runners via walks and Trenton but four runners. Drake's Junior left eight men on the paths while Bobcats were stranded on five occasions.

Catcher Earle Cousins drove home a pair of runs to pace the city nine with a brace of hits. Wardhaugh, Wood and Allen had doubles while Duesbury, Casey and Faulkner also hit safely.

Guy Austin was the only Junior with two hits, one each going to Doug Alexander, Willy Kennedy, Don Wilman and Wannamaker.

LINEUPS — Trenton: Austin, Drake, Alexander, M. Kennedy, W. Kennedy, Burns, Wilman, Lewis, R. Wannamaker, H. Cole. Bobcats: Duesbury, Casey, Faulkner, Cousins, Allen, Wood, Culkin, H. Wardhaugh, Creegan.

Colorful Knox Signs With Chicago Bears

CHICAGO (AP)—Ronnie Knox, one of the most widely publicized football players in Pacific Coast annals, has signed with the Chicago Bears, owner George Halas announced Monday.

Knox, former UCLA quarterback, did not finish his senior year and last season played for Hamilton Tiger-Cats of the Big Four Football Union and Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

He left Hamilton in mid-season after drawing a reported $1,000 a game following a dispute between the club and his stepfather, Harvey Knox, who criticized coach Jim Trimble for not playing Ronnie as his first-string quarterback.

Ronnie played the last half of the season with Calgary but was unable to lead the Stampeders into the WIFU playoffs. He became a free agent after the season ended and Toronto Argonauts obtained Canadian playing rights to him for this year by putting him on their negotiation list.

Harvey demanded a no-cut contract from Argos but the Toronto team refused to consider such a clause and no headway was made in the negotiations.

In Los Angeles, Knox's stepfather, Harvey, called a press conference and told reporters the signing culminated "14 years of work for Ronnie and me."

The elder Knox did not disclose terms of the contract but commented:

"We turned down an $1,750 contract from the Toronto Argonauts of the Canadian league, so that gives you some idea."

Knox said the Bear contract is for three years and that he and Ronnie are happy with the deal.

Taylor Wins At Woodbine

TORONTO (CP)—E. P. Taylor, a leading figure in Canadian racing, took a stranglehold on next Saturday's 89th annual running of the $28,000 Queen's Plate as Lyford Cay and Chopadette won both divisions of the Plate Trial Monday at New Woodbine.

Both colts were bred by Mr. Taylor. Lyford Cay scampered the mile and one sixteenth in 1:46 4-5, only one fifth of a second over the track record.

Chopadette which won his division of the trial very easily and carry the colors of Mrs. Taylor on Saturday.

There were two notable absentees from the Plate Trials. These were Ali's Pride and Senor Teddy which is a certain starter in the Queen's Plate. Senor Teddy beat Chopadette last season.

Lyford Cay and Chopadette both were ridden by Avelino Gomez. There is a rumor that Eddie Arcaro will come from New York to ride one of the pair in Saturday's classic. However, Gomez, who is the contract rider for the Taylor stable, will have his choice of mounts.

Henry B. Good was second and Flying Atom was third behind Lyford Cay. Chopadette was followed by Lad Ator with Count Teddy third.

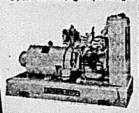
Tosses No-Hitter Hits 3 Homers Team Scores 47



GALT (CP) — Alex Lister struck out 17 Highland batters and pitched a seven-inning no-hitter for Manchester Aloms in a Galt Minor Baseball Association game—not let in nine runs.

It didn't faze him a bit, however. Alex sat by most of the time Saturday as his team scored 47 runs. He hit three homers himself to make up for the 19 bases on balls he gave up.

Yankees Even Best in 'Fine' League

CLEVELAND (AP)—The $5,500 fine levied against six players by the New York Yankees ranks as the largest total docking every administered by a major league club —but falls short of the top player fine in history.

Tops for individual fines were the $2,000 assessments slapped on Yankee Babe Ruth in 1925 for a dispute with manager Miller Huggins, and on Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox for his 1956 spitting episode.

Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, late commissioner of baseball, levied the largest fine of all time—$12,000-plus—in 1921 against the Yankees' Ruth, Bob Muesel and Bill Piercey. Landis fined each his world series share, figured at a little more than $4,000, for breaking his rule against post-season barnstorming.

Padres Snaps 3-Hitter Before Alston Cracks Whip; Giants Dunked

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

STILL HERE!

The Whitby Dunlops did more than win the Allan Cup and the chance to represent Canada at the world hockey didos in Oslo come February next. They kept hockey on the summer sports pages. At least thus far—and there seems to be no let-up on the puck theme.

That coiner of phrases and repeater of oldies, Wren Blair, the "Voice of the Dunlops," stirred the scribes in all parts of the country with his now almost famous: "It is great to be a winner but it is even greater to be a dignified loser." No doubt a number of the ink-drenched wretches will think that one away in Pigeon Hole Number One for reference next winter, or whenever it will be deemed necessary to use.

However, there is a dissenting voice coming out of the Pembroke wilderness. At "Bishop" Sheehan of the Observer-star thataway, who directed large chunks of northern crew after the Dunnies swept the hockey board, writes in his column "As a dignified loser, however, Blair rates close to the worst in the country."

He goes on: "To be or not to be dignified is the question if European referees run afoul of 'Bus' Gagnon or and Wren Blair. . . . The Pentiction V's solved such problems, or at least, most of them, by remaining calm and collected. They also adjusted themselves to conditions which were changed at short by referees' insistence that the rules as written must be enforced."

Has Sheehan such a short memory? He says: " . . . In the event Gagnon crowns more than one head, we will refer the matter to the League of Nations."

A Belleville lineman who was a "crowned head" as the result of being Pembroke playing coach laying a set of knuckles on his jaw—and who since admitted it, was referred to the League of Nations, the OHA, and what happened? Nothing remembered the "laying-down" charges of that Lumber Kings when Whitby was defeated by Kingston in a game that meant much to Pembroke's playoff chances? "Close to the worst loser, huh?"

Be that as it may. All over the province the crying towels are dripping on the wringing league clotheslines. There is no word out of Pembroke as to how the new sponsor will lean. 'Tis said he favors the southern association of the NOHA, but Mr. Lanser may find the last-empty when he attempts to find stall space for his new hockey charger.

He was told (and resented it) in no uncertain terms by the "Voice of the Dunlops" that if he entered the northern loop this season, he might find the unwelcome sign out another year if license he wanted to come back east.

Now comes to bat Pete Palangio, boss of the North Bay Trappers. Says Pete after hearing about the proposed northern set-up of the regular four clubs, plus Pembroke, Hull and Ottawa: "It's all well and good to adopt an optimistic attitude but I'm sure everyone would rather face reality. Right now the chances of the Trappers being in the southern group again are awfully slim."

And, of all people, El Miguel Rodden of Kingston, east o' here, adds a salty tear or two. Writes Michael: "In more articles vein it can be said that the OHA eastern senior group faces a future clouded in doubt. With Whitby out of championship contention and the Pembroke situation unsettled, only Cornwall, Belleville and Kingston might be left in the group title chase. A Peterborough entry, if strong enough, would be appreciated but mounting costs might act as a deterrent to such a plunge."

Down in the western part of the province where wealthy Windsor and Sarnia-Port Chatham appear to be the remnants of the senior division, there are strange goings-on, 'tis rumored. Seems with Stratford and Owen Sound out of the running, for the nonce, at least, Chatham and Windsor are wooing another loop for next season activities.

And the latest senior "A" news is that the Sarnia Sailors want in, providing they can get just about everything but the Allan Cup before they make the jump. They want to raise $50,000 (better take an oath on some mates, that won't be enough), a good flotilla in which the puck tars can cavort without running into too many heavy Detroit-Windsor agreement with one of the flat-tops of the National League Fleet, and replacements from the flagship OHA, if needed. They supply their own arena.

Ah, well, perhaps it is much ado about nothing. By the time the various pots simmer down to cooling point all may be well. As King Solomon is reported to have said after tiring seven of his wives into pretzel knots, "These things will straighten themselves out." Or will they?

Quiets Ambitious Phillies Pulling Brooks Into Third; Bucs Make It Three in Row

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Johnny Podres, Brooklyn's stubby southpaw, emerged as the Dodgers' No. 1 stopper today, just when manager Walt Alston had decided to crack down on his slipping National League champions.

The Brooks, who had lost seven of their last 12 games to fall into fourth place, received a "no more rack tracks" order from the skipper Monday after dropping four in a row. Alston figured his champs were chumps for the horses and weren't paying enough attention to baseball.

Then along came Podres with a neat three-hitter that quieted the ambitious Phillies 4-0. It was Johnny's fifth victory and his fourth shutout.

With the victory over Phillies, Dodgers climbed into a third-place tie with the idle Milwaukee Braves. Three games behind the idle first-place Cincinnati Redlegs. Phils, who have lost only two of their last eight in their surprising surge, remained in second place, 3½ games back.

BUCS THIRD STRAIGHT

Pittsburgh Pirates made it three in a row over New York by beating Giants 6-5 in the only other game scheduled in the loop.

Bob Friend, with a three-hit, 1-0 shutout against Pittsburgh in his last start, walked the first and walked four while dropping his earned run average to 2.25 and saving the finale of a four-game set in Philadelphia.

Pete Burnside, who had been out-hit only once during the four-game skid, smacked nine hits including home runs by Gil Hodges and Gino Cimoli, to beat Don Cardwell, one of Phillies' bright rookies. Cardwell gave seven hits, struck out seven and walked but two before giving way to a pinch-hitter in the seventh.

Hodges, whose 14-game hitting streak was ended Saturday night by Phils' rookie Jack Sanford, was two-for-three and scored three runs.

Pirates, swinging for 11 hits off five pitchers, ran up a 3-0 lead in the second against starter Ruben Gomez. They came back with two in the third against loser Joe Margoneri after Giants had tied it.

WINS OWN GAME

Nelson King, who struck out White Mays and Dusty Rhodes to put down the Giants' comeback third, won his first in relief of Terry Law, but needed a mop up relief job from Elroy Face. King's squeeze bunt scored the clinching run in the fifth after Johnny O'Brien had tripled.

Cincinnati Reglins its second invasion of the east tonight at Philadelphia while Milwaukee plays at New York. Chicago Cubs are at Brooklyn, with St. Louis at Pittsburgh.

Redlegs swept the east the last time around, starting a 12-game winning streak that hoisted them from fourth place into the lead.

In the American League, Chicago White Sox stake their five-game lead against the east, opening against Boston tonight. The second-place New York Yankees are at Cleveland, with Washington at Detroit and Baltimore at Kansas City.

WINS SPLIT DECISION

NEW YORK (CP)—Cut badly over the right eye in the third round, undefeated Stefan Redl of Germany and Passaic, N.J., came from the brink of defeat to outpoint Frankie Ippolito Monday night. Redl was awarded a split decision in the bloody 10-rounder at St. Nicholas Arena.

Leafs Lose To Richmond; Jets Nip Royals

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

If Toronto Maple Leafs are serious about making the most of their showdown four game series with the International League leading Richmond Virginians now is the time to start.

Virginians, just as determined to hold on to the lead, racked up Leafs, 5-1, Monday night behind the four-hit pitching of southpaw Bob Wiesler. This means Toronto has to win the remaining three games of the four game set to overtake Richmond.

In the only other game scheduled Columbus Jets scored two runs in the ninth inning to nip Montreal Royals, 3-2.

Wiesler, who was optioned to Richmond by Washington Senators because he was too wild, fanned six and walked four Maple Leafs in posting his fifth victory of the season. He also connected an 11-hit Richmond attack off Toronto starter Jim Pearce and reliever Jack Crimian, with four hits.

LOSES SECOND

Pearce lost his second game of the campaign after a six-game winning streak. Richmond scored a run in the first, two in the third and the final two in the seventh. Wiesler left Pearce in trouble in the sixth on two singles and an infield out.

Johnny Powers' second home run of the game, a drive over the right field fence, tied the score for Columbus in the ninth. When Jets got two more runners on base shortstop Dick Barone singled to bring home the winning run. Bobby Del Greco's double off triple in the sixth off Columbus starter Ron Blackburn, followed by two singles and an infield out gave Montreal a 2-1 lead. Powers first home run came in the first inning.

Monday night in Kitchener the Dutchmen did it again with three runs in the ninth to beat St. Thomas 8-6.

Rumors Rife In Yankees Camp After 'Nightclubbers' Get Heavy Fines

Reports Say Martin, Bauer Placed on Trading Block; Rift Between Casey, Weiss

CLEVELAND (AP)—New York Yankees have set up a habit. Last 15 games, they've been fined for playing night games in a plush saloon—and the game hasn't been fined yet. Trouble is, it wasn't the world champions who did the pushing.

Word leaked out Monday that the club had fined Hank Bauer, Mickey Mantle, Yogi Berra, Billy Martin and Whitey Ford $1,000 each, and Johnny Kucks $250, for the fist fracas in a New York night-club early in the morning of May 12.

This no sooner was confirmed by the players than up popped

1. A report that Bauer and Martin are on the trading block.

2. A report that manager Casey Stengel and general manager George Weiss are on the outs. (Both later denied there is friction between them).

Bauer and Martin commented "it's great to be a Yankee, with Martin adding "I hope it doesn't happen. I'm afraid to think how it would feel to play against the Yankees.

Bauer has been mentioned as trade bait since before spring training. So has Martin, particularly since he batted .257 last year which broke up his 29th birthday party.

Martin and Mantle are pals, and a rumor has it the Yankee front office is afraid Martin may give Mantle some bad habits.

It was reported Monday that Martin, Mantle, Bauer, Ford and Mickey McDermott had been fined $250 each less than a year ago for cruising a train in Boston. McDermott since has been traded to Kansas City. Another trade, naturally, could break up the remaining quartet.

Berra, a three-time winner of the American League most valuable player award, and Kucks apparently are newcomers to the crowd.

Kucks, admitting he was fined $500, at first was thought to be among the $1,000 sufferers, prompted Stengel to observe "that poor boy oughtn't to be fined to the same as the rich players."

Kucks' salary is estimated at $15,000. Berra hauls in $50,000, Martin $60,000, Ford $35,000, Bauer $27,500 and Mantle's $21,000.

Only Mantle had a record resembling that of a high-priced player as the club opened a western tour against the Indians tonight—a sluggish five games behind the league-leading White Sox.

Mickey had a .342 batting average (but with only two hits in his last 19 at bats). Bauer is hitting .255, Martin .244, Berra .222 Ford, with a 2-1 pitching record. Kucks is 2-3. Ford won 19 last year, Kucks 18.

Juveniles Win Opener From Trenton 7-1

Belleville Juveniles built up a 3-0 lead in the initial frame and went on to claim a 7-1 victory over the Trenton Phillies in their first start in the Belleville and District Baseball League last night. The game, played at Trenton's Bayside Park, was called because of darkness at the end of the seventh.

Gordie Bell's young crew was never in trouble, adding single-tons in the third and fifth and two in the seventh. The Phillies tallied their lone marker in the seventh to spoil Moe Huddleston's shutout bid.

Huddleston hurled fine ball while scattering eight hits. The lanky hurler set 11 down on strikes, while walking only two.

K. Hartman hurled for Trenton, and was tagged for 13 safeties over the distance. He bagged one on strikes and was charged with ten walks.

Three walks and singles by Gord St. Louis, Bill Foster and Gord Fuller netted the Juveniles three in the first. Another free pass, an error and a single by Foster accounted for the fourth marker. Miller Ryan and Gord Irwin singled and Huddleston doubled to make it 5-0.

Ab Wright's single with two out paved the way for another pair in the seventh. Bob Wannamaker tripled him home with a 6-3pnz smash and scored himself on Jack O'Neil's base hit.

Huddleston had trouble in the bottom of the seventh, walking two, giving up a single to Torrer and a double to Vic Burtt. One was out on base and three more were left but Trenton plated their lone tally when Huddleston balked.

Bob Wannamaker with a triple and single paced the winners while Jack O'Neil and Bill Foster each had two singles. Huddleston doubled with the other base hits going to Ab Wright, Gord St. Louis, Miller Ryan, Keith Bly, Gord Fuller and Gord Irwin.

Vic Burtt with a double and single in as many trips topped the Phillies batters while L. Istead and D. Burr each claimed a brace of singles. J. Scott and Torrer also added to the hit column.

Big Four Builds Western Football Supremacy Causes Shake-up in East

Canadian Press Staff Writer

The task of revamping literally for a new season had never been made with greater determination by the Big Four Football Union clubs in the light of the league's record in the last three Grey Cup finals and the West's rise to football supremacy.

Montreal Alouettes' loss to Edmonton Eskimos for the third successive year in the 1954 final ended all further doubts about the relative strength of eastern and western football and that, more than anything else, lies behind the rebuilding by each Big Four club for the season ahead.

Major changes in the lineups will be made, with the league champion Alouettes have lined up the most impressive array of American imports and the last-place Toronto Argonauts have undertaken a complete rebuilding, involving a new three-man coaching staff, a new quarterback recruit, Canadian players and a reorganization of the club's directors.

NEW MANAGEMENT

Lew Hayman, former general manager of the Alouettes and Montreal Canadiens, has been given the job as managing director in an effort to make Toronto a winner again. The new coaching staff is headed by Hampton Pool, assistant with the Los Angeles of the National Football League for three years, and Ralph (Shorty) Isbell. Assisting him will be line coach Joe Thomas and backfield coach Tommy Hinchcliffe.

Teddy Morris, a Canadian who coached Argos to Grey Cup titles in 1945-46-47, has come out of retirement to be the club's chief recruiter for new Canadian players.

The front office reorganization involved the addition of several prominent businessmen to the board of directors, including Eric Bradford, former president of the Alouettes, stock broker Charlie Burns and publisher John Bassett, Jr., of Toronto, who remains in the hands of the Argonaut Rowing Club.

Hayman has announced signing of 19 new imports and expects to have about 25 try out. Most of last year's imports, with the exception of Jim Letcavits, Edmonds Bucky Curtis and tackle Bill Lucky, are expected to return.

WANT 3 APIECE

The Alouettes, with Doug (Peahead) Walker back for his sixth year as head coach, have signed 12 new imports, six of last year's Americans will also try out. The Black, Dan Loucks, Ed Mc-Montreal backers are quarterback Sam Etcheverry, backfielder Pat Abbruzzi, Hal Patterson, Ted Tully, Red O'Quinn, tackle Billy Shipp and centre Tom Scott.

Jimmy Dunn again will be Walker's chief assistant and a line coach may be added. The club have also made a slight front office change with the appointment of Germain Kennedy as managing director.

Success in getting Ottawa Rough Riders into the playoffs last season for the first time since 1951 earned head coach Frank Clair and line coach Bill Smyth new five - year contracts. The Riders have disclosed the signings of only 19 new imports so far but Clair expects 28 on hand for pre-season training, including at least seven of last year's squad.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats, who also have announced the signing of only 10 new Americans, will have George Tuttle, former Michigan State backfield coach, to help head coach Jim Trimble and line coach Ralph Sazio. The Tiger-Cats expect to have nearly 20 new Americans trying out along with at least seven from last year.

FEWER BIG NAMES

The cost of the player war between the NFL and Canadian pro leagues and the determination of the NFL teams to sign their top draft choices have considerably lessened the number of "big name" players among the new imports. Montreal has grabbed two of the top college players, tackle Don Owens of Mississippi Southern and the American halfback Johnny Majors of Tennessee.

Owens, a top draft choice of Pittsburgh Steelers, also signed with that club after accepting a bonus from Als and a settlement of the dispute is expected soon.

The Als have signed five other new tackles: Chuck Hamilton, Texas; Norm Hamilton, Texas Christian; Ed Stuart, Denver University; Emmett Zelenka, Delaware; and Ed Heuring, Maryland. In addition to Majors they have lined up five new halfbacks: Jon Wells, Clemson; Ken Owen, Georgia Tech; Jeff Hicks, Jacksonville State Teachers College; Ed DiSimone, Rhode Island; Harrison Lee, Larry Ruffin, Georgia Tech.

The Als have also signed two new guards: Jim Martin, Missouri, and Al Malavolti, Florida University, who was with Montreal in 1953; and three ends: Fred Dugan, Texas; Jim Carolina, Larry Ross, Denver and Sam Babcock, formerly of Washington and Lee. Babcock played with Toronto Beaches in the ORFU last season.

ARGO ACQUISITIONS

Argos have signed two new quarterbacks: Bob Reinhart, San Jose College and Dave Doane, Missouri; six halves: Wayne Aits, South Dakota State, Ernie Clark, San Francisco 49ers; Art Powell, San Jose State College; Tommy (Cowboy) Mc-Mick, San Francisco 49ers; Boyd Carter, Santa Monica City College and Ron Stewart, Kingston; Ida A and M; four ends: Les Bouchard, Fla.; Ed Cousin; Pete O'Garro, University of California; and Tony Hosek, Nebraska; and five guard: Bill tackles: Chuck Weeks, Southern Colfax, Dick Coutts, Los Angeles Rams; Dalva Allen, Houston; Burt Delevan, Chicago Bears; Myers, Missouri. Argos hope to negotiate a new contract without the option clause. He was out of action for all league games last year after injuring a knee.

Ottawa has lined up one new quarterback: Tom Dimitroff, University of Miami, Ohio; four halfbacks: Jim Rountree, Ohio State; Bobby Judd, Xavier; John Ferruolo, Villanova; Dean Porter, University of Miami, Ohio; two centres: Bob Pawlowski, University of Miami, Ohio and Fred Roly, Michigan State; two tackles: Larry Wesley, University of Florida; and Don Chalf, lowa; one end: Bernie Flowers, formerly of Hamilton and Ottawa who played for the Riders in 1953.

The Rough Rider import of last season who will be back are tackles Keye Vaughan and Milt Graham; halves Don St. John, Tom Lewis and Avatus Stone; quarterback Hal Ledyard and end Tom Aldcorn.

FALONEY WITH TICATS

Hamilton's new Americans include quarterback Bernie Faloney, the split-T ball handling magician who led Edmonton to the Grey Cup title in 1954. He has been in the U.S. Army for the last couple of years.

Among the Ticats' other new imports are halfbacks: Gerry McDougall, UCLA; Lee Hobley, Chicago Cardinals, and Gerry Zaleski, San Francisco 49ers; guards: Harry Lee, Alabama; John Barrow, University of Florida; and Dave Sandusky, Detroit Cardinals; tackles P. W. Underwood, Mississippi Southern; and Dreher Gaskin, South Carolina; end Jim Hinsely, Michigan State.

The Ticats' imports returning are quarterback Tony Curcillo; halves Earl Wagoner and Steve Goldston, Cookie Gilchrist; linemen Gene Donaldson, Jim Norman and Bob Cole and end Ron Howell.

The Tiger-Cats also have signed quarterback Jerry Dubravski but he'll be classed as a non-import this year. He was picked up on waivers last season by Ottawa who failed to report and now Hamilton has obtained him in exchange for a couple of intermediate players.

SIGN FOR TITLE BOUT

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A National Boxing Association bantamweight champion Raul Macias and Filipino Donmy Ursua signed contract Monday for a 15-round title fight at the Cow Palace June 15.

The bantamweight world title picture remains clouded since Alphonse Halimi of France is recognized as champion by agencies other than the NBA after defeating Mario D'Agata of Italy.

Crepello Is 9-4 Favorite In Colorful English Derby

EPSOM, England (AP) — The greatest of all sporting extravaganzas, the English Derby, will be run Wednesday with an expected half million people packed into Epsom Downs for the 5-year-old classic first raced in 1780.

No annual single day sports event outdraws The Derby.

The top contenders for the 177th running of the race which gave horse racing the word "derby" are Crepello and Doutelle.

Crepello appears to be a super horse in the making. Doutelle is owned by Queen Elizabeth and has a fair chance of becoming the first royal winner since Minoru won for King Edward VII in 1909.

With 24 hours to go before post time (9:30 a.m. EST) odds on Crepello were nine-to-four.

Crepello is owned by Sir Victor Sassoon.

Sir Victor owned Pinza, the last English-bred, trained and raced horse to win a Derby in 1953.

Since Pinza took the race in coronation year, winning horses have been the American, Nereo Say-Die, and two French horses, Phil Drake and Lavandin.

Dozens of stories and rumors have swirled about London betting shops that Crepello has gone lame or that the chestnut colt is sick and has a fever brewing.

Sir Victor scotched these stories saying, "He is looking very well indeed. My trainer tells me he has never been ill for a moment."

An Irish sweepstakes is decided by the Derby which carries top money of $52,245.

After the scratching of Bellborough, 22 colts were expected to start.

Patterson Meets Hurricane For Heavy Crown July 29

Norris Lashes Government in Own Defence

NEW YORK (AP)—While a federal judge today mulled over the penalties to mete out to the International Boxing Club, IBC president James Norris lashed at the government in his own defence.

Judge Sylvester J. Ryan, who already had found the IBC guilty of monopoly charges said he would hand down a final decree on June 24.

Monday, he concluded two weeks of hearings designed to give both the IBC and the government their full say before he decided on a punishment.

While Judge Ryan made no official announcement of his intentions, he had hinted during the hearings that he was thinking along two lines:

1. Dissolve both the IBC of New York and the IBC of Illinois and restrict the activities of Norris and his partner, Arthur Wirtz in boxing promotions.

2 Make Norris and Wirtz decide between operating Madison Square Garden or the Chicago Stadium, They have controlling interests in both arenas.

Meanwhile, in Miami, Norris said he was "sick and tired" of the government measures taken against the IBC.

"I might get out of the fight game altogether if it weren't for the challenge of the thing," he said. "I don't like being asked out. . . forced out.

"My practices have not been questioned in other businesses. I don't like having them questioned in this one."

NEW YORK (AP)—Emil "the giant killer" Lenco, an avowed independent promoter, has $175,000 for radio-TV rights and a definite date, Monday July 29, for Floyd Patterson's first heavyweight title defence at the Polo Grounds.

Although Tommy Hurricane Jackson, the challenger, told reporters he would like to fight for nothing "to make the world happy," his manager, Lippe Breidant James Norris lashed at the government in his own defence. cent for this rematch of a June 8, 1956 fight that he won on a split decision.

Lenco announced his deal at a press luncheon Monday and revealed New York and a surrounding 75-mile area would be blacked out on TV.

The TV people normally don't like to risk an outdoor show but they are taking a chance on this one. In case of rain, Tuesday, July 30, Monday Aug. 5 and Tuesday Aug. 6 have been reserved.

TALKS LIKE FAVORITE

Jackson, a four-to-one underdog, talked like the favorite when he discussed the fight.

"We're not personal friends anymore," he said, referring to an earlier friendship with Patterson. "Nothing I can see now but blood, all the way from the beginning."

Asked if he thought he could knock out the champion, the Hurricane was deadly serious.

"I'm talking about it," he said. "Wait 'til I get there; I just can't get there fast enough."

Patterson said he thought the rematch would be a tougher fight for him. "I'll be punched harder and a little more aggressive," he said.

Hotspurs Lose First Match To BC Club

VANCOUVER (CP)—The proud Tottenham Hotspurs, England's famous soccer club, were humbled by the B.C. All-Star team at Empire Stadium here Monday night.

A crowd of 9,164 cheered themselves hoarse as the defeat of Tottenham—Hotspurs' first in their six touring matches in Canada.

Leonard Plays In U.S. Open

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Stan Leonard of Vancouver, B.C., Canadian professional, and amateur Bob Prall of Salem, a University of Oregon student Monday won the two final qualifying berths in the U.S. Open golf championship.

Prall's card for the 36-hole qualifying round at the Alderwood Oaks course here was 68-73-141. Leonard, who now plays out of Lacombe, Alta., had 68-73-141.

The Open will be played at Tacoma, Ohio, June 13-15.

Prall's six-under-par afternoon round opened with three birdies on the first four holes.

Lorraine Bendix Tells How To Lose 197 Pounds in Year

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I think maybe God made it happen this way so I'll be able to help others."

This is how Lorraine Bendix explains her willingness to talk about how she dropped 179 pounds. The daughter of actor William Bendix, she weighed almost 300 pounds a year ago. Today she is a svelte 118.

Her story is one of frustration and courage. She spoke freely about it and answered all questions.

A lot of people ask me if I'm not embarrassed to show pictures and talk about how fat I was," she said. "I'm not at all. This is crusade with me."

"People who are as fat as I was aren't really living; they're just existing. For the first time in my life, I'm starting to live. I want to help other people realize that they too can conquer their obesity."

Lorraine was always a fat girl.

"It was due to hyper-tension and high blood pressure," she said. "I didn't eat big meals—I never ate breakfast at all. But I was always consuming starches and sweets. I'd eat around the clock.

She grew up and married Dick Munro, NBC film editor, and they had a daughter, now 7. But Lorraine continued eating and gaining weight.

"It was just a year ago Mother's Day that I made the decision," she said. "I was 297 pounds, which is a lot of weight for a girl who is five feet, 2½ inches. My blood pressure was getting so high that the doctors gave me two months to live.

They advocated a new kind of treatment — surgery that causes the food to bypass the digestive process. I figured my life was at stake, so I underwent the operation.

For a year afterward, she led a normal life. She continued eating normally, though she found her appetite was curtailed. The pounds melted away.

A week ago, she left the hospital after another operation to restore her digestive track to normal. At 118 pounds, her blood pressure and physical condition is as it should be, the doctors say.

Now 27, Lorraine intends to pursue an acting career. She is rehearsing for a local stage production of Bell, Book and Candle. And in the fall she'll become a regular on the Bendix Life of Riley show, enacting her father's niece.

"Baby and the Battleship" Outstanding New Comedy Hit

John Mills, whom we last saw in a comedy role when he played the cobbler in "Hobson's Choice", returns to this sphere in his latest film, "The Baby and the Battleship." In this hilarious comedy he plays the rather dimwitted sailor called Puncher, and is co-starring with him is Richard Attenborough who plays another sailor, Knocker. The two of them find themselves in Naples, where their ship H.M.S. Gillingham arrives there for a brief visit. Knocker, who has been there before, remembers an Italian baker who has several pretty daughters, and they decide to make his bakery their first port of call. When Knocker sees Maria (Lisa Gastoni), the eldest daughter, he wants to take her out for the evening, but her father will only agree if she takes the youngest child with her, a six-months-old baby boy, whom he refers to as by name Baker. Later that night they all become involved in a squabble with the police and Maria and Knocker flee, leaving Puncher alone with Baker.

Puncher promptly makes for the quayside, anticipating being that Knocker and Maria would meet him there, but time passes by and there is no sign of either of them and he decides to smuggle the baby aboard the ship. This he accomplishes successfully and with the assistance of one of the crew, Professor Bryan Forbes, he manages to keep Baker safely concealed. When he wakes up in the morning H.M.S. Gillingham is at sea — the ship is selected to take part in a NATO exercise — and to complicate the situation, the Marshal, Andre Morrell, head of a friendly state, is the guest of honor on the ship. Furthermore, Knocker has been left ashore in Naples. The problem now facing Puncher and his friends among the crew, is to feed and keep Baker clean, and ensure that neither the officers nor the important guests discover the little stowaway.

This novel and intriguing situation makes "The Baby and the Battleship", one of the most delightful and laugh-packed pictures you are likely to see this year. It can currently be seen at the Belle Theatre.

"Animals and Kids", a cute, cunning and clever comedy, and a Merrie Melodie Cartoon, and the News of the World, precede the feature attraction.

TV—Radio Column

Things Columnist Finds Out By Reading All His Mail

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't read his mail:

That there are now more than 900 women commentators on radio and television in the United States . . . But, with the possible exception of Mary Margaret McBride, has the fair sex produced a commentator to compare with Ed Murrow, John Daly or Hans Kaltenborn?

That, speaking of talking, did you know this is "national listen to your barber week"? . . . The thing we'd like to hear from our barber is whatever happened to the two-bit haircut.

VALUABLE WINDOWS

That during the reign of the first Queen Elizabeth glass windows were so valuable they were treated as family heirlooms. . . . And a man would sometimes specify in his will which relatives were to get his.

That Chicago means "wild onion place" in the Paiute Indian language . . . A famous Chicago is one city that always left us breathless.

That pin-up girls originated not in modern Hollywood but in ancient China . . . The emperors picked their boudoir buddy for the evening from paintings of ravishing lass hung on their palace walls.

SHE HAS A POINT

That songstress Ilene Woods, the blonde lead of Ted Williams, believes that if baseball players are to be judged by their batting averages, umpires should be rated by the score they make on eye tests.

That a kangaroo is only an inch long at birth . . . the girls are born with a small change pocket.

And a polar bear at birth weighs only a pound.

That superstitious girls on the Isle of Man believe if they carry a pinch of salt with them they'll have a happy marriage . . . On the other hand, there's an older theory that a little pepper never hurt any gal's chances.

NEW FILM BASED ON WEIRD STALIN STORY

Based upon a theory that Red Dictator Joseph Stalin did not die when the Kremlin said he did but escaped alive, "The Girl in the Kremlin," the Universal-International picture now at The Odeon McCarthy Theatre, tells a sensational tale of how he was discovered in hiding and eventually met the end he so richly deserved.

The new U-I picture co-stars Lex Barker, Zsa Zsa Gabor and Jeffrey Stone, and the featured players are headed by Maurice Manson, who depicts Stalin; William Schallert and Aram Katcher. They also include Natalia Danyl, the girl who has her head shaved in the most sensational scene of the film.

Russell Birdwell directed and Albert Zugsmith produced the feature from a screenplay by Gene L. Coon and Robert Hill.

US Golf Body Accused of Cheap Practice

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP)—Jimmy Demaret, one of the top personalities of professional golf, accused the U.S Golf Association of "cheap practices" today and said some day the pros may boycott the U.S. open.

"It is stupid—absolutely ridiculous—to make a great champion like Sam Snead qualify for the Open," said the 47-year-old three-time Masters winner from Hot Springs, Ark., ETAOINSHRDLU mesha Lake, N.Y.

Snead qualified for the June 13-15 Open along with a' bevy of ranking professionals at the Knollwood and Metropolis Country Clubs here Monday with a score of 141—best for the district.

Demaret, second leading money winner of the year, also was forced to prove his right to play in the tournament at the Inverness Club in Toledo, Ohio. He shot 74.

"Making Snead play 36 holes to qualify for the Open is as insane as asking Mickey Mantle to go two-for-four on the day before the world series, or be benched."

The USGA two years ago sharply cut down the list of exempt players from the top 20 finishers in the previous Open tournament to the top 16. It also was cut to the last five winners of the championship. Previously all past champions were exempt.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By FRANCES DRAKE

For Wednesday, June 5, 1957

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — An interesting, challenging day with artistic and practical matters, study, research, many other lines of endeavor under fine aspects. Check carefully to see if you can make valuable improvements.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Invigorating rays from Mars, the Moon and Mercury can be used with benefit now. Excellent aspects for personal advancement if you manage your schedule with wisdom, smart application. Don't rush.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — This day's influences are stimulating, encouraging, beneficial. Few gains are likely; also good rads that may bring fresh opportunities. Keep your eyes open; don't lose out through inattention.

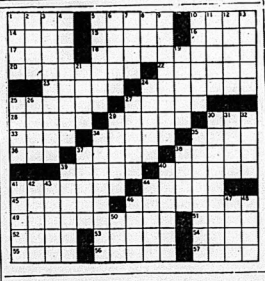
June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Some aspects warn against doing things too rapidly, making drastic changes in things running smoothly. Otherwise, a steady, purposeful program can bring profitable results.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Influences are not wholly generous but they can be helpful if you analyze carefully. Excellent aspects from the Moon and Mars promote aggressiveness, mental alertness. Take care in making decisions, promises, but do be progressive.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Mercury and Jupiter aspects should impel you to increase efforts in fields offering gain, advancement. Finances, business matters favored.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — This stimulating day should help you plan manoeuvres for a bigger, more prosperous month on the whole. Financial, business and occupational gains possible; work for them. A good day for hobbies, too.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — There are many fine influences to give your interests a big boost now. Your help will be needed, of course; your intelligence, judgment, suggestions and management. But don't strain.



November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Do not let trifles irritate you. Your innate sagacity and good judgment, which should be at a peak now, should help you along the road to achievement.

December 22 to January 19 — (Capricorn) — Give permanence, security to what you do. Stimulating rays! Don't waste time on unessentials but give all necessary activities the needed time and attention. You can achieve.

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — Good intentions carried out through good work should bring good — and lasting results now. Trades, laborious work, artistic and scientific professions highly sponsored.

February 20 to March 20— (Pisces) — Maintain uniformity of effort, neither rushing nor lagging behind. You will be gratified at returns, at the smoothness with which things can run. Let your gracious manner pervade everywhere.

You born today usually have a gay, entertaining and magnetic personality. You are full of bright ideas; are creative and ingenious but may not always stick to a task or undertaking until it is finished. Don't be so restive and changeable since you are capable of accomplishing a great deal if you will apply yourself consistently, patiently. Formulate plans carefully, think calmly. Be progressive always. Birthdate: Adam Smith, Eng. economist.

CAMPBELLFORD— Four persons were injured when the driver of a late model car lost control of his machine while attempting to pass another auto on Highway 2 at the half-way point of the village of Havelock on Saturday evening. Havelock is 12 miles north of Campbellford. The car skidded about 300 feet, clipped off a telegraph pole and rolled over, coming to rest on its wheels in the southditch.

Injured were one from Campbellford and one from Norwood rushed the injured to Peterborough Civic Hospital.

Injured were the driver of the westbound car, George Murray, 24 of 483 Broadview Avenue, Toronto, who suffered a dislocated hip, fractures of the spine and face cuts; his wife, Gertrude, 52 who received several broken ribs and head lacerations and shock and a daughter, Ina Morrow, 19, who suffered cuts and severe body bruises and shock. A passenger, Douglas Fox, 21, of the same address escaped injury.

Investigating officer was constable Gerrard St. E., Toronto, received multiple cuts and bruises and was detained in hospital overnight.

The injured were treated at the scene by Dr. R. B. Pritchard of Havelock. OPP Constable Malcolm Rutherford of the Campbellford detachment investigated. The car was a complete write-off. Hospital authorities reported all the injured to be in satisfactory condition on Sunday evening.

CHILDREN HOSPITALIZED

Two children were hospitalized following a two-car accident on Highway 62 near here on Saturday evening. The accident happened when a car driven by Cecil Eastwood of RR 3 Stirling crashed into the rear of an auto driven by Clayton Robertson of 200 Cherry Street, Campbellford, which had just turned off Garry Street onto Bridge, travelling east.

The Robertson vehicle came to rest near an embankment on a lawn off the north shoulder of the roadway, while the Eastwood car stopped on the south shoulder on a lawn.

Passenger in the Robertson car included the driver's wife, who was not injured, and three sons, Gerald, age 8, Ronald, age 6 and Paul, age 2. Gerald received concussion and cuts to his face. He will be detained in Campbellford Memorial Hospital under observation for the next couple of days. His brother, Ronald, received a fractured left facial lacerations, but two year old Paul was not injured.

Driver of the other vehicle, Cecil Edwards received a cut to his face requiring several stitches to close, and a passenger in the car, Richard Bannon, 12, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Bannon of RR 4 Campbellford received cuts to his face and mouth and concussion. He also is being detained in Campbellford Memorial Hospital under observation for the next few days.

The injured were treated by Dr. W. W. Baker of Campbellford. Total damage amounted to about $900. Chief Constable Sam Baird and Constable Clarence Duncalfe investigated.

Diefenbaker Raps Liberal Letter To Servicemen

HALIFAX (CP) — Progressive Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker charged westward to Montreal early today, his appeal to Maritime voters to help elect a Conservative government June 10 at an end.

During a speech-packed swing through Nova Scotia's Annapolis Valley and the province's south shore, Mr. Diefenbaker Monday produced a letter urging servicemen to vote for Liberals as a Liberal government and "safeguard the future of our country". The letter, signed by a stenographer in the office of the chief of the defence staff, was mailed to every Canadian serviceman eligible to vote. He said the letter was distributed by Liberal scrutineers, who received a list of voters from defence officers in charge of the service vote.)

Telling about the letter in Liverpool, Mr. Diefenbaker said his party had been unable to obtain a mailing list of service voters personnel.

Later, in Kentville, the Conservative chieftain said "No more serious thing has been done in my political experience."

"What manner of conduct is this?" Mr. Diefenbaker asked in a 40-minute address to a large audience to turn out to hear him in the Maritimes. "It is a letter from the prime minister to the armed forces!"

In Kentville, too, Mr. Diefenbaker said the Canadian people have been fooled for a long time by Liberal promises. He pledged special adjustments to equalize the economic positions of all the provinces if a Conservative government is elected June 10.

MUST EXPAND

Earlier, at Lunenburg, he told fishermen voters there must be an expansion of the whole Canadian fish: Before an open - air meeting of 300, he also promised establishment of a Canadian coast guard because "we believe in action South Shore men and women in their difficulties and for the safety of the lives of those who go to sea."

His Lunenburg campaigning took him into the riding where PC Lloyd Crouse is seeking to defeat Works Minister Winters and Dr. Digby - Annapolis - Kings where George C. Nowlan is defending the only Nova Scotia seat won by the Conservatives in 1953.

Informal outdoor meetings were the order of the day. Fifty people took hands with him in the hamlet of Western Shore. 150 people met the Conservative leader in Chester and 250 turned out in Mahone Bay.

Four Guilty On Two Counts Of Entering

CAMPBELLFORD — Three Campbellford youths and one juvenile were found guilty on each of two counts of entering a dwelling when they appeared before Magistrate R. B. Baxter here on Thursday. The four were charged with entering a Market St. home more than a week ago, and stealing a case of beer, and later entering another home in the opposite end of town. They were chased from the second place by the owner.

James Antrew, 17, Ray Pethrick, 17, and Eddy Collins, 18, as well as the juvenile were remanded out of custody until June 27th for sentence, during which time the probation officer, Harold Bigelow, will present a report. The charges were laid by Chief Constable Sam Baird.

Martin W. Duprey of New Toronto, was fined $100 and costs when he pleaded guilty to having liquor in a place other than his residence.

A Morganston man, James Typhir, 24, of RR 1 Morganston, pleaded guilty, along with two juveniles, to the theft of a calf from Bill Ross' of RR 1 Brighton. Evidence showed that Typhir sold the calf at the livestock sale barns at Hoard's Station, nine miles east of Campbellford. OPP Constable Mac Rutherford investigated. Typhir was remanded to June 5th for sentence, pending a pre-sentence report.

St. Laurent Given Typical Sendoff at Two Meetings Closing Quebec Campaign

By MEL MORRIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Montrealers, who like their politics loud and boisterous, gave Prime Minister St. Laurent a typical send-off at two meetings winding up the Quebec leg of his election campaign.

The prime minister was besieged Monday night by hecklers and interrupted frequently. About six persons were forcibly ejected from one meeting and one man was detained by police.

The worst outbreak was in the traditionally - Liberal east end, where between 5,000 and 6,000 persons packed into the Show Mart for the meeting. About 50 youths, described by Liberal party officials as members of an ultra-nationalist group, began heckling when the prime minister rose to speak and continued the interruptions until they were escorted outside by building attendants, party supporters and police.

STOPPED SPEECH

Mr. St. Laurent was greeted with cries of "When do we get our Chateau Maisonneuve?" and "What about a national flag?" he was forced to stop his speech four times as the attention of the crowd turned to the hecklers seated near the front.

The prime minister was about half-way through his address when the hecklers were told to leave. They scraped their chairs and shuffled their feet but most left peacefully. About six went to the back of the hall but refused to leave the building. Police and uniformed Show Mart attendants grabbed them by the arms and pushed them outside. The man detained was described as the leader of the group.

Mr. St. Laurent did not appear flustered by the interruptions. At one point, when attention strayed from him to the hecklers, he said:

"Oh, I don't think there's much going on there. I think we'll just go ahead with the meeting."

SLEEP WELL"

As the hecklers left, he called after them: "Goodnight and sleep well."

Nationalist groups have staged several protest demonstrations since the CNR announced it was naming its new hotel here the Queen Elizabeth. They argue it should be named Chateau Maisonneuve after the founder of Montreal. A Canadian flag also has been an issue for some time among nationalists.

The heckling at the prime minister's first meeting of the night was good-natured. There were a few cries of "Tell us about (Trade Minister) Howe," and "What about cloture," referring to the procedure adopted by the government to end debate on the pipeline issue.

"Well," replied the prime minister, "I don't know if you think you should apply closure (to me, but I assure you I'm going to apply it to myself pretty soon."

IN BOTH TONGUES

The prime minister spoke in English at the first meeting, in Montreal Notre-Dame-de - Grace, the only riding in Western Quebec represented by a Progressive Conservative in the last Parliament. He repeated the same speech with slight variations later in French to his French-speaking east-end audience.

Referring to attacks on the government's external affairs policy, Mr. St. Laurent said the Conservatives "seem determined to make a political football of anything and everything they can find."

He said Conservative speakers have accused the Liberals of trying to harm Canada's relations with the United Kingdom and the Commonwealth.

"This is simply a crude attempt to play on the affection and loyalty of a great number of Canadians for our British heritage," he said. "During the Suez crisis, Canadian prestige soared abroad and Canada has been hailed as one of the important peace and freedom-loving nations."

"This Tory accusation reminds me of the army saying—'everybody's out of step but Johnny'."

British Doctors Hunt Vaccine To Fight New Flu

Expect Far East Epidemic Will Spread to Europe

New Italian Govt. Weathers Its First Test

ROME (Reuters) — Italy's minority Christian Democrat government has successfully weathered its first major survival test by winning a Senate confidence vote.

It was the first time since the war that an Italian government has accepted a parliamentary mandate partly dependent on the support of the Neo-Fascists and the Monarchists, both extreme right-wing groups.

The Senate confidence vote Tuesday night paved the way for a debate on the government's program beginning today in the lower house and expected to end in another confidence ballot Friday or Saturday.

In Tuesday night's test, the Christian Democrats, the Neo-Fascists and the Monarchists tided up 11 votes for Premier Minister Adone Zoli's minority Democrat government.

WILL BE NEEDED

This support will also be needed to enable the government to win a confidence vote in the Chamber of Deputies.

The Senate confidence vote came at the end of a four-day debate on the government program, which has high priority for quick ratification of the European common market and Euratom atomic pool projects, signed here last March.

The 246th cabinet took over May 19 after the centre coalition led by former premier Antonio Segni was toppled by the withdrawal of Social Democratic support.

The new government, whose declared ambition is to last 10 months until the general election next spring, is likely to face toughest opposition from members of its own Christian Democrat party.

Former premier Mario Scelba has already called on the government to resign if it cannot win a non-party confidence vote without Neo-Fascist backing.

LONDON (CP) — The British Medical Research Council said today "it is likely" the new form of influenza sweeping the Far East will spread to Britain and Europe.

"How soon it gets here, I cannot say," an official added.

British specialists are working around the clock at the world influenza centre in London to find a vaccine capable of fighting the disease—a new strain of influenza virus A.

There are two main types of influenza — viruses A and B—of which the former generally gives rise to epidemics.

BROKE OUT IN APRIL

The spokesman said specimens of the new strain were flown here from the Far East in mid-May and the search for a suitable vaccine has gone on since.

The epidemic first appeared in Hong Kong in April, and thousands were soon affected.

Already 185 epidemic deaths have been recorded from the Philippines, 21 have died in Bombay and 10 in Calcutta. Hundreds of deaths have been reported, however, and Britain officially reckons it is not yet threatened.

A health ministry spokesman said no special instructions had been issued to port and airport medical officers, although they would check passengers arriving from the Far East in the normal course of their duties.

SCHOOLS CLOSED

South Korea, meanwhile, reported the first outbreak in its borders. The health ministry said the disease is spreading rapidly across the country with more than 100 affected.

Schools throughout the Far East have been closed and springtime holidays extended in an attempt to curb the disease.

Hundreds of thousands have been affected by the disease since it appeared in Hong Kong and Japan last December.

Symptoms of the disease, according to Asian medical reports, are severe headaches and general pains, with a temperature of up to 103 degrees fcr two to three days. This is followed by about four days' disability.

Confiscated Cars Sold by Auction

TORONTO (CP)—An official of the suspension department of the department of transport said today that the Ontario government has sold hundreds of confiscated cars in the province since last fall to the company, after government experts tested the vehicles. He said the government must pass an order-in - council to authorize the transaction.

Truman's Daughter Gives Birth to Son

NEW YORK (AP)—Mrs. Clifton Daniel, the former Margaret Truman, gave birth to a six-pound eight-ounce baby boy. Mother and son were reported "doing fine."

"Margaret is very happy," said Daniel, "and I'm tired but happy."

The baby is their first.

Former president Harry Truman and his wife, Bess, said they, too, were "very happy" about their grandchild, Margaret, 33, is their only child.

Daniel, who is a member of the staff of the New York Times, phoned the news to the Trumans.

A CASE OF MUTUAL AFFECTION

Love at first sight is the story of Bambi, the one-week-old deer at the Children's zoo in New York City, and 10-month-old Sue Beckroth. Put into the cage with Bambi, Sue put out an exploratory hand to caress the deer and was immediately rewarded with a kiss.

FAST COVERAGE TO COLLECT VOTE BEING PROVIDED

Special Instructions To Returning Officers

OTTAWA (CP)—Special instructions aimed at bringing the Canadian people the fastest possible news of the federal election results have been issued by chief electoral officer Nelson Castonguay.

Mr. Castonguay has urged returning officers and their deputies to do everything they can to aid The Canadian Press and other news media in promptly collecting accurate returns in the June 10 election.

This fast collection of returns, and the fact the Liberals swept to victory immediately, helped CP to flash the return of the Liberal government at 8:01 p.m. EDT in 1953 and at 8:16 p.m. EDT in 1949. This was little more than an hour after polls closed in Ontario and Quebec, which elect most of the Commons members.

SOON AFTER POLL CLOSES

In each polling station established in the locality of the returning officer's office, the deputy returning officer has been instructed to telephone or telegraph the appropriate officer of the outlying polling stations has been instructed to telephone or telegraph the appropriate officer of the returning officer as soon as the count is completed.

Mr. Castonguay said:

"This procedure will be uniform in all constituencies.

PROGRESSIVE BULLETINS

"The returning officers also have been directed to furnish the public and the representatives of The Canadian Press and other news media with progressive bulletins giving the state of the poll at various intervals during the evening of polling day.

"In order that the public throughout Canada may be informed of these progressive bulletins, it is of the utmost importance that the returning officers and deputy returning officers take care to see that their instructions on the subject are carefully carried out.

"Returning officers have been requested to advise candidates or their official representatives of the arrangements that are being made for the collection of election returns and to request the candidates or their representatives with progressive bulletins, upon request, as soon as these are available."

Possibility of Minority Govt. Predicted by Low

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Will Canadians elect a minority federal government June 10?

Said Tuesday there is a "distinct possibility." Prime Minister St. Laurent also mentioned such a circumstance.

"At the moment," said Mr. Low in a television broadcast, "the situation seems so hazily confused that the possibility of no decisive result seems fairly strong."

Getting in some final licks, Mr. St. Laurent told a St. Catharines meeting the Progressive Conservatives have no chance of forming the next government. Even if opposition party estimates of election gains came true, the Conservatives would be able to rule only by teaming with Social Credit.

And "it would be a sorry day for Canada to be ruled by a Tory-Social Credit coalition," Mr. St. Laurent said.

Meantime, Progressive Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker motored almost 300 miles through Quebec in a final-week bid to enhance his party's fortunes in that province.

His travels took him to Trois-Rivieres, where an estimated 2,000 persons turned out Tuesday night to find a member of Quebec Union Nationale government—Hon. Jean-Louis Barbeau, presiding officer of the legislative council — on Mr. Diefenbaker's platform.

CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell was at work in his Saskatchewan constituency of Rosetown - Biggar. Meanwhile, Stanley Knowles, party whip last Parliament, was holding re-election in Winnipeg North Centre, told a television audience that Liberal federal government's meagre $6-monthly old age pension increase is a symbol of its "unwillingness to give Canadians a fair share of what they produce."

Nuclear Tests 'Small Risk' To Take to Guard Freedom

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atomic energy confidence-man Willard F. Libby told Congress today that nuclear bomb testing is a "small risk" that must be measured against "the risk of annihilation . . . if we surrendered the weapons one."

Libby's testimony was prepared for a Senate-House of Representatives atomic energy sub-committee which seeks to determine the effects of radiation and fallout. Other scientists have testified that excessive man - made radiation from bomb tests and other sources can cause persons now on earth to develop cancers and do even more damage to generations yet unborn.

"It is not contended that there is no risk," said Libby, an atomic physicist of international reputation, but he contended that there are various risks in many human activities.

He mentioned the 40,000 high-

Child, 3, Dies Of Injuries by Manure Spreader

CREEMORE (CP) — Peter Miller, 3, Tuesday after being mangled by the beaters of a manure spreader on his father's farm.

His father, John Miller, said he did not realize the machine was in gear when he began to tow it with his tractor. The boy's hand was caught and he was dragged into the mechanism.

Creemore is 35 miles southwest of Orillia.

Raising of 'Dollar Curtain' On U.K. Tourist Travel Praised

LONDON (Reuters) — British newspapers jubilantly greeted Tuesday's government decision to ring up the "dollar curtain" on tourist travel to the United States and Canada.

Cries The Daily Sketch in its biggest, blackest front-page type "Now, you can go."

It announces a contest offering a free trip to New York for two couples and prints a photograph—bordered by dollar signs—of the Statue of Liberty.

Other newspapers, though more restrained, agree with The Sketch that the freeing of controls first imposed in 1939 was a good move.

Peter Thorneycroft, chancellor of the exchequer, told the Commons that the £1,000 British tourists spend on foreign currency yearly for tourist travel to non-dollar countries would be switched immediately to include visits to North America.

About the only way for a tourist to "not working for the government or on business—to visit North America through the post-war years was by the charity of Canadian or American friends.

The Manchester Guardian declares Mr. Thorneycroft has blown a hole through the Dollar Curtain. It is splendid news. . . ."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: A low pressure area centred in the Dakotas, Wisconsin and Minnesota is expected to move into the Great Lakes region early Thursday, and as a result shower activity should begin to affect southwestern sections tonight.

D. BECK PLEADS NOT GUILTY OF EVADING TAXES

Teamsters' President Faces Two Charges

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Dave Beck, teamsters union international president, pleaded not guilty Tuesday to charges he evaded the payment of some $56,000 in U.S. federal income taxes in 1950.

The head of the 1,500,000-member labor union also entered a plea of not guilty to a charge that he aided in preparing a fraudulent return the same year for a subsidiary of the union, a Seattle building association.

He still remain free on $5,000 bond pending trial.

Legal circles have forecast the trial will be in late autumn. In September, the international convention of the union, whose presidency Beck has said he will relinquish, will be held. Beck's term expires in December, when he will receive a $50,000 annual pension.

CHANGE FAILURE TO PAY

Beck is charged specifically with failing to pay $56,420 in taxes on $82,828 of unreported 1950 income for which he and his wife filed a joint return. A second count contended that he aided in preparing a fraudulent tax return that year for the teamsters' joint, contributing $8 building association in Seattle and a $1,000 interest amount than the reported $18,718 was spent for building payments and alterations.

In event of a conviction, each count carries a maximum sentence of five years imprisonment and-or a $10,000 fine.

Queen Sat in Co-Pilot's Seat Of Jet Airliner

LONDON (AP)—Queen Elizabeth sat in the co-pilot's seat of a Comet II jetliner flying here from Scotland Tuesday night at 450 miles an hour.

The flight from the Leuchars RAF base in Scotland took about 72 minutes.

The Queen asked for the ride. It was a display of faith in the sleek new-style four-jet airliner on which British commercial aviation has pinned its hopes.

The original Comet was taken out of service in 1954 after four disastrous crashes blamed on a design fault which has been corrected. The new models were redesigned to eliminate the fault.

On the trip to Scotland her husband, Prince Philip, took a turn at the co-pilot's controls.

The 31-year-old Queen, dressed in a jaunty pink hat and green coat, also had a chance on the Comet's flight deck coming home.

The plane's pilot, 32-year-old Sqdn. Ldr. Donald Harper, said the Queen asked intelligent, well-informed questions—"A little above that of the ordinary passenger," he said.

Body Recovered

MASSENA, N.Y. (AP) — The body of a man believed to be a worker on the St. Lawrence River power project was recovered from the river Tuesday night.

There was no immediate identification, but state police said they believe the body was that of Richard Carr, 22, of Exeter, N.H., who was believed to have been drowned May 19 when he drove his bulldozer off the Barnhart Island causeway.

Crepello covered the 1½ miles in 2:38.4, a record for the race. It 2:33.8, set by Mahmoud in 1936.

Crepello was the shortest-priced favorite since 1934 when Lord Derby's ancestor Bahram won the classic at 5 to 4 on. It was 22 years ago.

STRETCH DRIVER

Piggott, 21, brought Crepello to the fore on the final stretch on the undulating course to overtake Ballymoss.

The big surprise of the race was the showing made by Ballymoss, cheered on by an Irish contingent which crossed to England to see him run.

Pipe of Peace barely edged out Tempest, who was a weak start but threatened toward the finish.

Royaumont was fourth, Doutelle seventh, Albergo eighth, Prince Taj ninth, and Doutelle, the Queen's colt, 10th.

BLOW TO BOOKIES

Ballymoss surged in front two furlongs from home with Crepello almost even with him. Piggot made his big bid then and he sent Crepello to the front 3½ furlongs from the winning post and raced away strongly.

Crepello's triumph gave Sassoon his second derby in four years. He had won with Panza in 1953.

The result was a great blow to bookmakers, legal in this country, who were loaded with big bets on the favorite.

Here are some of the hundreds of Algerian children who have been given sanctuary in neighboring Tunisia and who are the subject of an appeal by Tunisian Premier Habbib Bourguiba to international organizations to provide for them. They are the families of Algerians who are accused by the French of trading with the rebels and who fled to Tunisia rather than tolerate the tightened French military surveillance.

Canada Develops New Type Suit For High-Altitude Jet-Age Pilots

TORONTO (CP) — Canada has developed a new kind of high-altitude suit for jet-age test pilots, it was learned today.

The pressure suit, to employee paper published by Orenda Engines Limited of suburban Malton, said Orenda crews are working with the Institute of Aviation Medicine to perfect the suit under "actual operating conditions."

"The suits are a safety measure to give pilots time to restore altitude," the story said. "In the event of the cabin's air pressure system failing above 48,000 feet, the crew finds it extremely difficult to breathe even when oxygen is fed into the face-mask under pressure.

"The suit allows normal breathing for a short period."

It said Orenda test pilots undertook "dry runs" in decompression chambers at the defence research medical laboratories at Downsview, another Toronto suburb, before wearing the suits in the air.

One of the pilots said the pressure suits and supplies needed in an emergency "are not cumbersome."

'Miners' Poet' Dies Listening To Interview

HALIFAX (CP)—Danny Boutilier, for more than 40 years the miners' poet, died here Tuesday in a studio of station CJCH listening to a playback of an interview during which poems with new rhythm Hugh Dunlop.

He died of a heart attack, the same ailment that in 1947 forced him to quit the mines where he had worked from the age of 12. He was 58.

He was born and lived his life in Springhill, N.S., where he raised his seven children.

It was about children that the miners' poet liked best to write.

His verse was simple, charming, gay and oft-times serious.

About a storekeeper yearning to be fishing, he wrote:

"... By the fishin' bug he's bitten, one can tell by just a glance, For he's written on each patron as though he's in a trance."

Unidentified Subs Operating Off Coast Says Cmdr. Bovey

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Cmdr. Sydney J. H. G. Bovey, chief of Canada's naval forces in Newfoundland, says that unidentified submarines "have been operating off North America."

Cmdr. Bovey, speaking Tuesday night through radio, television and newspapers for speedy and detailed reports of sightings off the Newfoundland coast, said close attention to detail might lead to identification of the underwater craft.

"It is known that unidentified submarines have been operating off North America," he said, "and information concerning them is of vital interest to us all."

He said reports of unidentified submarines during the last few months "have been most useful even though some have taken rather a long time to reach the appropriate authorities."

Reports of submarines have trailed off in recent weeks but in early and mid-May there were reported at Harbor Grace, Bell Island, and several points along the south coast.

Officials at naval headquarters at Ottawa have said recently that reports of submarine sightings are always noted with interest. However, the number of such sightings had not been excessive.

BACK TO A THREE-PARTY SYSTEM?

Will Britain return to the three-party political system?

A question like that may sound strange to Canadian ears, particularly at a time when a Federal election campaign has produced many declarations that the parliamentary system of government works best when there are only two parties contending for votes.

Circumstances, though, alter cases and the circumstances in Britain are sharply different from those in Canada.

To all intents and purposes Britain now has a two-party system, only the Conservatives and the Labor Party commanding sufficient support to have a chance of forming a government. Between these two parties, though, there is a deep cleavage, with the Labor Party pledged to socialism and the Conservatives, while accepting a number of "welfare state" concepts which would be considered extremely left wing in Canada, nevertheless devoted to the principles of private enterprise. Hence, when the British voters become tired of a government, whether it be Conservative or Labor, they cannot turn a party out of office without altering the direction of the country's economic policies.

That this is a weakness of the present system in Britain is fairly self-evident. The Suez Canal crisis and the government's handling of it has caused deep discontent amongst a large segment of the voters who normally support the Conservative party. Disapproval has varied from opposition to the government's attempt to seize control of the canal by force to consternation at the manner in which the government bowed to the wishes of the United Nations, hailed its military operations and withdrew its troops. The fact that there is no unity amongst the disgruntled Conservative voters does not, however, alter the fact that they are opposed to the government's policy. The most effective way to express this opposition is by voting, and these voters are not prepared to do this at the price of supporting socialism, which they would be doing if they cast their ballots for Labor candidates.

In a by-election at Edinburgh last week these voters found a solution by supporting the Liberal candidate, William Douglas-Home. That, at least, is the interpretation which is being placed on the large vote he polled, 7,439 compared with 9,781 for the Labor candidate and 14,421 for the winning Conservative nominee. As a result the Conservative's majority was cut by almost two-thirds from that enjoyed at the last general election.

The Liberal party in Britain, once a great power in politics, fell on evil days when it was squeezed between the upper and nether millstones of the long-established Conservative party and the rising might of the Labor party. It may be, though, that the future will see this trend reversed. Certainly the Liberals got increased support not only from those who normally vote Conservative yet are displeased with the present conduct of that party but also from many who, while not doctrinaire socialists, have in the past voted the Labor ticket in the belief that measures for the amelioration of the lot of the British working class were essential.

NOT SO COMFORTABLE

One advantage of living in a small town, in this day and age, is the conviction that, no matter how highly one may value one's home community, it is impossible to convince oneself that the Russians would consider it important enough to waste an H-bomb on it.

This comfortable feeling has now been dispelled by "The Printed Word" of Montreal, which refers to a Washington dispatch that Canadian cities within 75 miles of Buffalo, N.Y., are getting protection from installations at Niagara Falls, N.Y., equipped with "long-range atomic-headed missiles, which will ride 100 miles to destroy an enemy striking from that south." U.S. authorities say Canadians need not be alarmed, the missiles will explode so high in the sky that fall-out will be harmless. "The Printed Word" hopes that "any enemy who launches his attack on the United States will be considerate enough to keep his jet planes flying so high that Hercules will destroy them without inconvenience to Canadians." It does not mention the fact that, even if enemy planes are destroyed high in the air, what is up must come down and that includes any H-bombs the destroyed planes may be carrying.

Belleville and district residents will probably be just as happy that, being more than 75 miles from Buffalo, we are not receiving this type of "protection" against enemy bombers.

APPLE PIE

There are dishes that I like;
There are dishes that I don't;
There are some I'll gladly eat
And the other kind—I won't.
But in spite of all the doctors,
And the sweets which they condemn,
And the threat of indigestion,
I will fall for apple pie.

I can do without your spinach
And the broccoli I'll pass,
And I'll say the yellow turnip is
A food devoid of class.
My mother used to tell me,
much too finicky was I;
But I welcome with affection
(though I shouldn't) apple pie.

They've ordedred me to follow a thing:
typewritten diet sheet.
But upon it, top to bottom,
there is nothing good to eat.
On the list of foods I mentional
I have cast an eager eye,
Finding hay and oats permitted,
but no word of apple pie,

I'm acquainted with the angulah
of all gastronomic ills;
To relieve them I have taken all the powders and the pills.
To obey the doctors' orders, three times daily now I try;
But I'd rather take their tablets than pass up the apple pie.

Dutch Railways Perfect

By MARK GRANT

The total length of Dutch Railways is only about 2,000 miles, yet every day their trains cover a distance equal to four times the circumference of the earth—and make an annual profit of $750,000. Goods trains roll only at night, but income from them before being 500,000 passengers carried daily. Since the modernization began in earnest in 1953, more than half the passengers have been attracted, by 1958 the 'de-steaming' process should be complete. This article tells how the Dutch check their watches by their fast and punctual trains which pay their way.

"Why", a Dutch friend asked me ingenuously the other day, "are British Railways not a growing concern? Our own railways, albeit nationalized, pay their way and more."

I shook my head incredulously. How do the Dutch do it? Their railway system is nearly perfect. It transports a million passengers daily and as a consequence derives most of its income from them and not from goods traffic. Next to Switzerland, the Netherlands has the most developed electrified rail network. About 64 per cent of the entire number of passengers rail traffic has been electrified.

Already the "de-steaming" of the Netherlands' railways is highly advanced. By the end of the present the Dutch railways use 256 steam locomotives, 97 electric locomotives, 1,000 engines and 253 diesel-electric engines. There are 193 smaller engines. By May 1958, it has been announced, Dutch Railways will operate exclusively by diesel or diesel-electric engines.

Dutch trains are almost painfully punctual. A train which arrives three minutes late creates quite a stir among travellers. It just is not done. The train that links the Nederlandsche Spoorwegen, Dutch Railways, is an advertisement. Some trains work to the average trip of a Dutchman on his railway covers a distance of 100 miles.

The 100,000 seats are generously padded with foam rubber; travellers can settle down to read in perfect comfort, the neon lighting providing exquisite illumination. No wonder the Dutch like their railways and are not surprised when they make a profit of about $750,000 a year.

The 25,000 goods wagons roll only at night when there is no domestic passenger service. During daytime Dutch trains cover a total distance which would span the circumference of our earth nearly four times — and yet the total length of the network is only about 2,000 miles.

If you miss a train at one of the excellently appointed railway stations in the Netherlands you need not worry. Within an hour another train is bound to go, and if you are waiting on the line between Amsterdam and Rotterdam the wait will only be half an hour.

Punctuality is the result of the timetable which is broken down to a constantly repeating pattern. One can say that a fast train to Amsterdam always runs at 10 past the hour, at 30 past and to the hour. And hour for hour it comes in at exactly the same minute, be it 10 or 30. You check your watch on that. Everyone in the Netherlands, practically, knows that the trains between Nijmegen and 's Hertogenbosch take four minutes past the hour and arrive 14 minutes to the hour.

This is the sound rigid and dull, but it does make for absolute punctuality and the Dutch commuters are fravred. The Dutch miss this punctuality as much as a countries and they find it rather difficult to make head or tail of it when they visit other countries as trains outside the Netherlands simply do not run according to a time table constantly repeated schedule.

Dutch Railways employs 2,000 clerks and 35,000 other personnel of whom 25 per cent are in the age of 45. They get 14 to 18 days leave a year. Engine drivers are pensioned at the age of 55. The pay is not above that of other railways but the wages and benefits are generous. Dutch railwaymen are very windmills at breathtaking speed, rocketing over the moors and polders which are part of the Netherlands skyline. Statistically it is not difficult to work out that the average trip of a Dutchman on his railway covers a distance of 100 miles.

Pope Writes An Editorial

Cleveland Plain Dealer

Pope Pius XII has used the occasion of an audience, with a French group devoted to sending underprivileged children to fresh air camps, to criticize one of the great social evils of our day.

Noting that even in the richer European countries the slum population has increased 10 percent or even 20 per cent for the nation, the Pope said the body of laws which had failed to eliminate slums must be "made more effective." Some of the laws found for the bad functioning of social assistance organizations and other forms of exploitation must be vigorously suppressed."

The Pope not long ago called the evil and remedied it in time," continued the spiritual leader of 300 million Catholics, "society will have to spend enormous sums to maintain a disinherited whole apparatus for the repression of delinquency and to pay for the consequences found in sanitoria and hospitals.

"Not many millions are spent in curing ills that could more easily and more cheaply be prevented.

"Deprived of air and light, living in filth, the indescribable promiscuity, adults and above all children quickly become prey to contagious maladies.

"But the moral harm is still greater: immorality, juvenile delinquency, loss of the taste for life and for work, interior revolts against a society which liberates such abuses, which ignores and allows to stagnate in their way human beings who little by little are transformed into wrecks."

And the prelate attacked exploiting gangs and landlords whose properties "bring in big revenues without costing them anything."

The Pope, we might say, has ideas that the columnists he dare not reflect written an editorial; any addition would be superfluous. Even so, the observations ascribed is not limited to Europe.

Man Shortage

Brandon Sun

Brandon bachelors have a slim chance of retaining their single state. Census figures show there are only 98 males to every 100 females in this city. The competition therefore should be keen.

Drug 'Pusher' Given Life

Windsor Star

There are suggestions from time to time that Canada should invoke the death penalty against narcotic "pushers." We may come to that yet, in the meantime it is interesting to note what can happen in a state that has a law providing capital punishment for the sale of narcotics, but an ancient as it is modern. The words were written by a Greek author about 2100 years ago.

Feeling sorry for ourselves is as bad a habit as they come. It is a habit that is not only better for people 2100 years ago than it is today. It is a habit that is not only better for people who are not sorry for ourselves, but who are not sorry for ourselves.

Instead of feeling sorry, why not

The grass is growing fast in Canadian cities now but not enough yet to hide the litter left by winter. Some of the litter—junk that has been accumulating steadily since last fall—is the work of careless people, car, or the airport or to some picnic spot and not cleaned up. It can be neat anywhere, to the grass, or the airport or to some picnic spot and not cleaned up. It can be neat anywhere, to the grass, or the airport or to some picnic spot and not cleaned up. Canadians must be about the untidiest of civilized peoples. When they come to the last cigaret, or candy, away goes the empty box in the gutter or on someone's lawn.

We like to boast about our shiny bathrooms, our spotless kitchens, and our vacuumed carpets. We speak with condescension of the sanitation and primitiveness of other peoples. But when we go outside our own door too often we act as if the garbage can had never been invented.

COUNT YOUR BLESSINGS

"As for clothes, the only dress I've got in the world is such an old rag that I'm ashamed to be seen with my friends." A familiar modern complaint, a good many husbands would say. Familiar, yes, but as ancient as it is modern. The words were written by a Greek author about 2100 years ago.

Feeling sorry for ourselves is as bad a habit as they come. It is a habit that is not only better for people 2100 years ago than it is today. It is a dangerous habit, too. It eats away our self-respect, and fruitlessly consumes energy that might otherwise go to alleviating whatever made us feel sorry for ourselves.

Instead of feeling sorry, why not feel glad? What are our blessings? We live in a free democracy, governed by men of our own choice. We can worship in whatever church we please. So much food is raised in our country that we have trouble disposing of it. The best medical care is available. Most of us will probably live at least a few years longer, on the even wealth are open to all.

Why be sorry? Let's be glad of the many things we have, and start out in a cheerful mood to do our right whatever is bothering us.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Among my acquaintances is a very fat lawyer man who, ten years ago, developed that fat wheezy laugh which goes with too much adipose tissue. It is a good, fortable, chuckling, wheezy sort of laugh constantly referred to as a whiskey laugh: though my friend does not drink.

He is just an eater. For years he has been warned by doctors to take off weight. His wife and family, his friends, have all pleaded with him, needled him, forced him, to so avail. He is one of those men who rejoices in his lard. Wheezily, he scoffed at all admonitions.

A couple of days ago, after not seeing him for a year, I met him on the street and scarcely recognized him. He must have lost fifty pounds. He had that baggy look that comes from rapid loss. His pants sagged. His coat hung.

Naturally, I expressed my astonishment.

"I suddenly decided," he confided, "to take off weight."

"How?"

"By not eating," he said. "The doctors assure me these is only one way to take off weight. Don't eat."

"What made you decide, at last?" I asked, remembering all the years of needling and pleading.

"It all happened," he said, "in a minute. We have a tape recorder in our office, and a bunch of us took it down to a convention, to record a couple of speeches. For fun, we also did a little recording of our own. I never knew what the usual convention shenanigans were going on. We played gazzle of a sound. Right then and there, I decided to reduce. Next thing I knew, chuckling sort of wheezy, and I heard myself laugh."

"Oho!" said I.

"I could scarcely believe my ears," went on my friend, grimly. "Was that wheezy old guy me? I made them play it back a couple of times. I never have a more disgusting sound in my life: a wheezy, fat, chuckling sort of gazzle of a sound. Right then and there, I decided to reduce. Next morning I started on a diet."

And there was no fat man whoeeze.

Iodin Deficiency and Feeling Cold

A reader writes from Kittery, Maine:

"I am 44 and have been troubled for several winters with severe colds and run-down condition. But last October, I began taking the Iodin ration. Now I feel fine and have had no trouble with colds all winter. I thank you and hope you will keep the articles going in the paper."

In the first place, I haven't the least idea what ails a person purporting to have a severe cold or a slight cold.

From the letter, one might infer that I (Brady) advised or suggested Iodin as a remedy for any of the common respiratory infections which are so frequently spread via conversation spray, such as measles, scarlet fever, diphtheria, infantile paralysis, meningitis, mumps, pneumonia, influenza, acute sore throat and tonsilitis.

In the pamphlet, The Iodin ration, I say nothing about prevention of C R I (common respiratory infections), although I do give many reasons why every one should get a wee bit of Iodin every morning, at least daily, however, that for years readers have been reporting, as the letter writer man does, that, since they began taking the Iodin ration, they have become less susceptible (please excuse the word) to "colds."

It is beyond my ken to affirm or deny this. I just don't know whether Iodin deficiency makes one more susceptible to any or all respiratory infections or whether an adequate intake of Iodin has any specific influence on natural immunity. All I can say about it is that an adequate daily Iodin ration, as described in the pamphlet, can do no harm in any circumstances. At the same time, I advise you never to take a medicinal dose of Iodin or Iodid except by direction of your physician.

Smelling The News

Christain Science Monitor

Our attention was caught the other day by the story of an Oklahoma newspaper that soused its ink with perfume as a publicity stunt. Now, there is nothing particularly strange about this—various American newspapers have been doing it occasionally for years.

But in this case the scented edition accidentally carried on its front page a photograph of Defence Secretary Wilson apparently holding his nose. Presumably it was bothering him, but it looked for all the world as if he were assailed by fumes drifting over the editorial workshop. Next, we wondered, would the paper of the future be one in which the reader could sniff at its pages?

Well, first it would have to rearrange its pages. The book page would be the first page of leather, could not be allowed to fall opposite the sports page. The page lest the pungent odor of onions in the spaghetti sauce interfere with the delicate remembrances of Marcel Proust. Then the financial section, with its biting scent of smelters and oil refineries, would obviously have to be relegated to the delicate lilac essence of the gardening page.

Politics we would probably let alone—the written description of a politician's character is less we occasionally snuck in a

How to Tell City Limits

Kingston Whig-Standard

The traveller on Highway 2 in the Kingston area has hundreds of every city in his path. They are marked by the immediate deterioration of the road surface.

We do know to the hairline where Kingston's city street end and a reasonable road begins (the nearest level crossing will help in this, instance too).

As he gets to Belleville he will again be aware of it. Belleville's city streets are roomy, than any other city's on the 165 mile journey from here to Toronto.

It may be that the cities on Highway 2 are the level roads like that to curb the speedsters. But this is a pretty weak theory.

Do we have to get every child into an air-conditioned, roomy, glass-walled school, and every scrap of sewage properly treated before we can have money to build city streets which will make them an obvious part of this century rather than of last?

MESSENGERS

Long before there were railroads in this Western World there were messengers who carried news from neighbor to neighbor as well as to those near at hand. Little by little there came stage coaches and we had the mail by foot and horseback, as well as messengers by steamboats. Then trains and airplanes, as we have today—a network of messengers by which man can't forget the service of the mail men, who deliver to our doors messages in printed newspapers and magazines, as well as the looked-for letters that are important in our daily lives. And there are other messengers that carry cheerful tidings of good will and hope to us all. This newspaper is a messenger to multitudes who looks for the columns and inspiring features that make this messenger an anointed friend.

In our business world are thousands of messengers always at our call. And we must not forget the telephone that carries millions of messages at all hours of the day and night—today taking many a message around the world. We have neighbors as never before! Would to God that there were messengers of peace as well as work forever encouraging the duty of Happiness.

I think John Galsworthy: "Grant me one prayer: Doom not the hereafter of mankind to me. Make my last breath a bugle call, carrying Peace o'er the valleys and across the hills to the nations." The incentive, the increased hope, and friendly interchange of ideas the world were suddenly flooded by messengers of Peace and good will rather than a multitude of fears and forebodings!

Unbeaten Point Blanks Madoc 11-0 As Merchants Thump Bobcats 15-7

By GARRY ALEXANDER

POINT ANNE (Staff) — Unbeaten Point Anne rolled to its fourth consecutive victory here last night, defeating the youthful Madoc entry in the Belleville District Softball League by an 11-0 score.

Behind the two-hit hurling of Ray Brannigan, the Or Point Annethundered 16 hits off Ken Pidgen, Madoc hurler, two of them solid home runs, the rest an assortment of triples, doubles and singles.

Brannigan's tantalizing slow-ball baffled the Madoc hitters. Whitman, the shortstop being the only batter to fathom the drifting shoots. He got two of his team's three clouts, both singles.

The Or Point second stringhurler aided his own cause with a towering home run and a double and was helped by his mates one error fielding.

Jack Elliott's booming bat accounted for a homer, single and three-run triple. Davey Jones had four singles for five and youthful Lloyd Maracle had a double and single. Pat Gilmour had a pair and Wardhaugh, Sexton and Batchelor each hit singles.

Pat Maracle took over in the eighth and while touched for one hit whiffed three in a no-run two innings job.

Point Anne loaded the bases with two outs in the first after Pigden had walked three and Jones bunted his first pitch. Elliott stroked a base-clearing triple after Pigden walked one run and sent home another on a passed ball, to give the Pointers a 5-0 lead.

They scored two in the fourth off Brannigan's homer and singles by Jones and Gilmour. Three hits and two passed balls accounted for another pair in the sixth. Elliott's four-bagger was good for one in the seventh and Johnny Batchelor doubled home Gilmour in the eighth for the final counter.

Madoc never threatened seriously. They got only one man as far as third base. On two other occasions snappy Point Anne double plays nipped their threats. Blank burn was the other Madoc hitter to connect safely.

TEAMS:

MADOC — Burnside, Holland, Bateman, Tufts, Johnston, Whitman, Stickwood, Hagerman, Ried, Demille, Blackburn, Pigden.

POINT ANNE — Wardhaugh, D. Jones, Hull, Gilmour, Green, Batchelor, Elliott, L. Maracle, Brannigan, P. Maracle.

Belleville Merchants pulled into undisputed possession of third place in the B. and D. softball standing last night by rocking up a wide open 15-7 victory over their intercity rivals, Temple's Bobcats.

Eleven savory and 13 base hits proved too much for Bob Twinned, loser, which suffered its third loss of the season against one victory.

Merchants scored all their markers in the first three frames, four in each of the first two and seven big outs in the third when 11 men came to the plate. The Cats netted a pair in the first, singletons in the second and fifth and three in the ninth.

Bep Guidolin posted his second triumph, going all the way after relieving Bob Bunton in the first frame. Bunton went out after throwing 12 consecutive balls to walk the first three batters. Guidolin gave up eight hits, claimed three on strikes and walked seven. He also hit one batter but came through with men on base, leaving 12 stranded.

Wally Baran took the loss in relief at last. He worked two big innings plus, charged with 12 runs and nine hits. He received poor support from whiffing none and passing three. Rolly Cardin, another new comer, was his successor and allowed four hits, only one after the third inning, fanned none and passed three.

Keith Stacey sparked the Merchant's drive slamming a double and two singles, driving in a pair and scoring one run himself. Keith MacDonald and Cardin, another newcomer, contributed two safties while Wayne "Wiener" Brown poled a long two-run homer.

Claude Carr had a two-run base hit, a sacrifice and two walks while Denny Hayden and Guidolin helped with doubles. Doug Soule and Doug Bone added singles.

Ken Bunsbury and John Casey each banged a brace of singles for the Bobcats while Duke Doran smashed a two-run triple. Herry Wardhaugh, Stan Creeggan and Wally Baron also hit safely and Creeggan was robbed of another hit when Wayne Brown reached up while running away to stab his long smash in the seventh.

The Cats scored two without the aid of a hit in the first but the Merchants got four on Harry's double, Brown's homer and back to back doubles by Hayden and Stacey. plus one error. Three miscues in the second along with hits by MacDonald and Guidolin made it 8-3. The bottom of the third was a nightmare with a costly error wedged among safties by Barclay, Carr MacDonald, Stacey, Bone and Soule. A walk and MacDonald's steal of home helped.

French Kill 125 Algerians In Bloody Battle

ALGIERS (AP)—French military authorities today said 125 nationalist rebels were killed and 25 captured in a bloody battle in a remote mountain area 60 miles east of Algiers.

The French put their own losses at 18 soldiers killed and 15 wounded.

The clash occurred Tuesday in Soummam Valley in the Grande Kabylie Mountains. Few details of the fighting were disclosed but it apparently broke out when a strong French patrol found a large rebel band hiding in the region.

French spokesmen said they captured 11 submachine guns, 32 rifles, 34 shotguns, nine automatic rifles, three mortars, 25 mortar rounds and 22 rockets.

In another action, three rebels were killed and a dozen wounded in an attack on a French Senegalese infantry post at Nemours.

Two hundred Algerians living in France were flown today to Algiers as volunteers to serve with French military units. They originally lived in the Melouza area, where the rebels massacred more than 300 Algerians last week.

Isolated outbursts of violence also continued in France. One North African was killed and two were wounded in what officials called a "settling of accounts."

He Is 'Unrepented Sinner' If It's Wrong to Urge All Vote Liberal--St. Laurent

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Prime Minister St. Laurent says he did no wrong in asking the armed forces to vote Liberal on June 10.

But even if he had, he would continue as an "unrepented sinner" until voting day urging all Canadians to support Liberal candidates if they feel such support would be good for the country.

The Liberal leader, launching his final appeal for Ontario's vote, replied Tuesday to John Diefenbaker's criticism of the armed forces vote appeal at two rallies at Brockville and St. Catharines.

The Progressive Conservative leader in a Kentville, N.S., speech Monday questioned whether the prime minister in his letter to the armed forces was not in fact ordering servicemen to vote Liberal on June 10.

"What manner of conduct is this!" Mr. Diefenbaker had asked. "What goes on here?"

READ WITH "HORROR"

Mr. St. Laurent said he had insisted only that servicemen be allowed to vote for the Liberals. He had read with "horror" Mr. Diefenbaker's statements with "great horror." He had done no wrong.

The party could appeal for the service vote. Mr. Diefenbaker claimed to have been under the impression that the Liberal party had some advantages in obtaining a list of names of servicemen. He evidently had been misinformed. Vote scrutineers at all four political parties had received the lists on May 27. They could make any use of the lists all four got.

"To have anyone say that the letter amounted to ordering the armed forces to vote Liberal must be quite as repugnant to the members of the armed forces as it would be to any other citizen," Mr. St. Laurent said Tuesday night.

Anyone who knew anything about politics would realize that Canada's armed forces were not made up of the kind of people who could be told what kind of opinions to hold or express on voting day.

The prime minister, accompanied by his wife and daughter Mrs. Mathieu Samson of Quebec, moves today to Chatham and Windsor. He winds up his Ontario tour with a monster rally in Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens Friday evening.

Mr. St. Laurent spoke at Brockville before an outdoor crowd of more than four hundred Tuesday noon. At the night rally in St. Catharines where a crowd of about 1,000 filled the local high school auditorium, Mr. St. Laurent came prepared to speak from a prepared text. But he laid the text aside after reading a few paragraphs, launching into an extemporaneous address on Canada's history and economic future, the need for land reform and military strength.

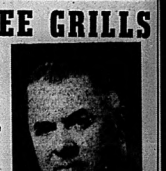
Mr. Diefenbaker, he said, had described himself as a pessimist. He was being aided in his Ontario campaign by Premier Frost. But a booklet issued by the Frost government had tended to support the Liberal party's contention that Canada had prospered under a Liberal administration.

The booklet reviewing the 1956 economy said Canada had broken economic records. It was "a pretty good testimonial" to progress which coincided with a Liberal administration. Mr. Diefenbaker had criticized the Liberal party for providing public financing to initiate construction of the trans - Canada pipeline but the Frost government in its booklet had stated the pipeline was a good thing for Ontario.

Mr. St. Laurent said Niagara Peninsula garden farmers had expressed anxiety over heavy production competition from the U.S. The problem was being studied not solely for the producers sake but for the sake of aiding the entire economy.

Some Hair Sprays Inflammable Says Fire Inspector

BANFF, Alta. (CP)—Delegates to the Alberta Fire Chiefs Association convention here were told that "of the 30 commercial hair sprays on the market today, half of them are so highly inflammable that they could ignite adequately as blow torches."



Law Marks, inspector with the Calgary fire department, said Tuesday "many bombs and flame throwers" exist in households without many persons being aware of them.

To make his point Mr. Marks held a match under the spray of a common hair preparation. The fluid, ejected by compressed gas, ignited immediately and formed a sheet of flame a foot long.

Mr. Marks said that a woman could be burned fatally if she happened to be smoking while applying nail polish remover or hair spray. A check should be made when purchasing liquids to determine if they are nonflammable.

Diefenbaker Promises New Deal if Government Elected

TROIS RIVIERES, Que. (CP)—Canadians can be assured of a new deal when the Progressive Conservative party takes over from the Liberals, John Diefenbaker has declared in his last Quebec campaign address.

His party will reduce taxes, maintain present social security payments and "make sure the provinces and the municipalities get a fair share of the available tax dollar," the Conservative leader said Tuesday night.

Speaking in both French and English, Mr. Diefenbaker appeared before about 3,000 persons in support of Leon Balcer, national president of the Progressive Conservative association and seeking re-election in Trois-Rivieres. The speech capped a fast one - day sweep through the eastern townships and into this pulp and paper town, from which he left Tuesday night for a last burst of Ontario campaigning.

Mr. Balcer said the Liberals "are trying their best to make some political capital out of the fact that I supported another can-

WEDDINGS

BLATHERWICK — ROWSOME

On Saturday, May 25, 4.00 p.m. a lovely, Maytime wedding was solemnized in Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, by the Reverend Harry M. Davis, B.A., pastor of the bride, when Elizabeth Joan Rowsome, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Rowsome, became the bride of Thomas Bruce Blatherwick, also of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Blatherwick. Tall standards of white and yellow gladioli, large, white chrysanthemums, interspersed with ferns, formed a pretty setting for the ceremony. The guests pews were designated by white, satin bows.

Mr. S. Alec Gordon, church organist, rendered the wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Roger Riedel as she sang, before the ceremony, the Lord's Prayer," and during the during the signing of the register, "I Love You Truly."

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was a charming in her imported bridal gown of Swiss point d'esprit and Chantey lace, designed with tiered bodice with jewel neckline and cap sleeves and panel skirt. The gracefully, bouffant skirt cascaded into a chapel train. Her waist length bridal illusion veil was caught to a coronet of seed pearls and lace and she carried a semi-cascade of white, feathered carnations. White mitts, trimmed with lace and pearl and earrings completed her ensemble.

Her matron of honor was Mrs. Russell Kirkconnell, of Belleville, and the bridesmaids, Mrs. Douglas Woodley, of Belleville; Mrs. Ross Blatherwick, Belleville, Miss Marcia Blatherwick, of Belleville sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Marilyn Carter, also of Belleville. All were identically attired in floor length, ruched Swiss organdy with white taffeta midriff and bows accenting the sweetheart neckline. The skirts were in full cotillion style. The bodice of each attendant wore a yellow picture hat and carried a semi-cascade of yellow Shasta daisies. The little bridesmaids wore white picture hats, and carried semi-cascades of white and yellow Shasta 'mums.

Mr. Douglas Woodley, of Belleville, supported the bridegroom; while Messers. Robert Blatherwick, of Belleville, brother, Sherwood, Donald Hawbolt, of Oakville, and Russell Hunter, of Otter Lake were ushers.

The reception was held at Bellevue Lodge, where the bride's mother, gowned in grey chiffon and shell pink with corsage of Bellevue Lodge carnations, received the many guests. She was assisted in the receiving line by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in blue chiffon and lace with corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

The bride's table was appropriately appointed with white decmask, centred by a three-tier wedding cake topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom and flanked by tall white lies-of-the-valley and sweetpeas. White tulle was misted about the base.

For the wedding trip to Toronto; New York City and Florida and via "Staten Dan" the bride chose a companion travel costume of beige sharkskin tweed, and corsage of white gardenias. Mr. and Mrs. Blatherwick will reside in London, England, where the bridegroom is taking a post graduate course in commercial art.

Guests attended from Toronto; Ottawa; Cornwall; Oakville; Kingston; Belleville; Brockville and Athens.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was the honored guest at a linen shower held at the home of Mrs. Russell Kirkconnell, Belleville.

BIRD — BURGESS

A very lovely double-ring wedding ceremony was solemnized in St. John's Anglican Church, Stirling, by the Rev. H. C. Secker, when Lois Evelyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Burgess, Stirling, became the bride of Mr. Robert Arthur Bird, son of Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Bird, Toronto.

Tall white standards filled with spirea, tulips and iris enhanced the chancel and on the altar were bouquets of white lilac and red peonies.

Miss Ruth Mumby played the traditional wedding music and accompanied soloist, Mrs. Bruce Glenning, who sang Handel's "Where'er You Walk" and "Still as the Night" by Paul Bohn.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, looked radiant in a floor-length picture gown of white Chantilly lace and tulle, fashioned with a strapless bodice and rhinestone studded lace inserts on the full skirt. A long-sleeved lace jacket completed the costume. She wore a matching finger-tip veil of lace and tulle illusion caught up with a seed pearl head-dress and carried a bouquet of white carnations and peach gladioli.

The bridesmaid, Miss Marjory Eva Burgess, was charming in an azure blue ballerina-length full skirted dress of silk with a shirred bodice studded with rhinestones. She wore a matching blue beaded pillbox and gloves. Her flowers were soft yellow Shasta 'mum daisies interspersed with deep-blue cornflowers.

The best man, brother of the bridegroom, was Mr. William Garth Bird and the ushers, Mr. Don Nealon and Mr. Howie Cousins. The bridegroom and his attendants were in military dress as members of the RCAF.

At a reception held at the Queensway Hotel, Trenton, the bride's mother received wearing a periwinkle blue crepe dress with beige accessories and corsage of red roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Sydmer Bird, in a navy and white dress with pale blue grey flowered hat and corsage of yellow roses. Also in the reception line was the bridegroom's sister, Miss Dorothy Bird, charming in poudre blue silk gown with white accessories and pink carnations.

Guests were present from Toronto, Ottawa, Kingston, Oshawa and Belleville.

TOPPING — BRISCOE

Tulips, lilacs and ferns adorned the interior of Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, on Saturday, May 18, for a lovely spring wedding when Miss Beverley Lois Briscoe, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Topping, became the bride of Robert Eldon Topping, of Trenton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Topping. The Reverend C. W. Coleman, pastor of the church, officiated.

Mr. Clifford Templer furnished the wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in her white, floor-length gown of pale blue nylon chiffon over taffeta, featuring a bodice with cowl neckline and taffeta with scoop neckline. She wore a matching bow-style headdress, shoulder - length veil; gloves and shoes, and carried a bouquet of pink roses centred in the white.

Mrs. Raymond Coulter, eldest sister of the bride, was her only attendant, attired in a waltz - length gown of pink, tulled lace over taffeta, fashioned on princess lines, and featuring three-quarter length sleeves and sweetheart neckline. She wore matching gloves, shoes, and carried a nosegay of pale blue sweetpeas and lily-of-the-valley with headdress of pink nylon net.

Mr. Raymond Coulter, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom, and Mr. Robert Cassidy, of Trenton, was usher.

The reception was held in the church parlors where the bride's table was appointed with white damask, centred by a three-tier wedding cake, and flanked by crystal candelabra with white cassi, and white candles in silver holders.

The bride's mother chose Yorker daughter's marriage a navy and white figured sheath dress with matching jacket and navy and white accessories, with red carnation corsage. The bridegroom's mother assisted in receiving the guests, wearing a turquoise silk print sheath dress with white accessories, and corsage of pink carnations.

For the wedding trip around Lake Ontario, the bride chose a white, wool suit with tan and white accessories, and corsage of yellow and bronze 'mums. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Topping will reside in Trenton.

Those attending were from Peterborough, Ottawa, Finch, Brockville and Belleville.

The bride was entertained, previous to her marriage, by the office staff of the International Hardware Company when she was presented with a dinner - shower; also at the home of Mrs. P. Cole, of Corbyville, where a miscellaneous shower was held.

UBDEGROVE — COREY

Ferns and summer flowers formed a pretty setting in Kingdom Hall, Belleville, on Saturday, May 18, at 2.00 p.m. for the marriage of Eva Helen Corey, of Shannonville, R. R. 1, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Corey, to Vernon Kenneth Ubdegrove, of Huntington Hills, Rochester, N.Y., son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ubdegrove. The officiating minister was R. J. Carrick, of Toronto.

Mrs. Dorothy Johnston rendered the wedding music which included Kingdom songs.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a full-length bridal gown of white satin and net featuring tiers of ruffled lace, trimmed with seed pearls and sequins. She wore a matching headdress and fingertip veil detailed with seed pearls and sequins, and carried a bouquet of red roses.

Mrs. Violet Bagar, of Shannonville, R. R. 1, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, gowned in full length dress of pink with matching headdress, and carrying a bouquet of pink roses and white 'mums.

Mr. Roy Ubdegrove, of Perth Road, Ontario, attended his brother; while Mr. Elwood Corey, of Shannonville, and Mr. Sheldon Ubdegrove, of Perth Road, brother of the bride, and bridegroom, respectively, were ushers.

Following the ceremony, the reception was held at the home of the bride in Shannonville, which was adorned with flowers, ribbons and wedding bells for the occasion.

The bride's table was pretty with its white satin cloth and three-tier wedding cake topped by a tiny bride and groom beneath a heart-shaped arch of pink roses and decorated with pink roses and white swan pillars flanked by tall white candles.

The bride's mother received attired in a teal blue suit with corsage of red roses She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore a grey suit with corsage of red roses.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

There are so many new articles and products appearing on the shopping front, that curiosity will overwhelm you if actual need does not.

First, have you heard of the new tea towels made in Ontario of terry cloth and called "terrific terrys?" They are of generous size, towel size, with gay, bright stripes with very small loops, a fact which does not make them too bulky.

You will probably ask, "Do they leave lint on the wishes?" They do not.

And quickly, glassware shines like magic—a new star is born.

Camping days will soon be with us and there is something new in this line too. Sleeping bags so essential on a camping trip, but once useless for most of the year, are being designed for every day service in the home. Bags are being made in gay colors to be open out and used as bed comforters when otherwise they would be stored in the attic. Since it is usually the outer shell and the lining are of nylon, a zipper down the side and across the bottom makes it simple to quickly convert the bag into an ordinary bed covering.

The filling is new, too, of fluffy white man-made fibre. It makes possible an extremely light and warm bag since it is moth, vermin and mildew proof, it poses no storage problem, is not wanted for a bed covering. If it becomes damp, it dries more quickly than ordinary fillings. They make wonderful comforters as regulars or extras at the cottage.

We have seen everything from pickles to bolts being sold in polythene bags and now it's goldfish. This innovation, the result, of several years of research and experiment, does away with all the aquarium apparatus. The tidy package, a water-filled envelope containing two common goldfish, can be transported without fear of injury to the fish or of spilling water. The contents, water and all, are emptied into a fish bowl when the customer arrives home.

Fisheries experts have tested and approved the fish-in-a-bag method and consider it a safe and humane way to pack goldfish. The water contains all the necessities of life required by goldfish for at least two weeks. Modern packaging is indeed wonderful.

We may be past the season for this item which is certainly not a housewife's common purchase, but it is interesting as a sign of the times. Some of us have visited a Canadian farmer's sugar bush operation in the spring and most of us have seen pictures of the farmer going from tree to tree emptying each individual sap bucket into a pail and, when the pail was full, into a sap tank on a sled to be drawn to the boiling-down house. This past spring, the sap bucket was replaced in some sugar bushes by a pipe of plastic no bigger than your little finger, which connected the spout in each tree with a larger pipeline leading directly to the evaporator. This method does away with the odd pail and sled, bark, dust and other impurities which at some point found their way, cannot fail to collect. So, even if this is not a shopping problem for the housewife, it is just another indication of the trend. In this case the romantic and picturesqueness gives way to efficiency.

Good shopping!

If you are shopping for a non-fiction book for yourself or as a gift, you might be interested in securing "Half the World's Children." It was written by Spurgeon Keeny and has an introduction by the world's premier children's delight, Danny Kaye. It is a diary of the author's work in Asia. Mr. Keeny is regional director of programs in Asia under UNICEF. It is an important and enlightening book on the conditions under which children in Asia are born and raised. The book came out last Friday, May 31st.

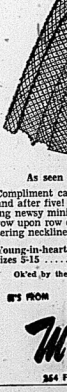
BRIDGE STREET UNITED WA

Bridge Street United Church Women's Association held its monthly meeting for May with Mrs. W. Claire, president, in the chair for the business period, after which the devotional was conducted by Mrs. J. Demeza, vice-president.

Mrs. V. Barkley sang a solo, entitled "Forgiveness," which was accompanied by Mrs. Guthrie.

The lesson followed most appropriately on the subject "Forgiveness," and the Scripture was read from Matthew 18: 21-35 by Mrs. H. S. Hudson.



The lesson, read by Mrs. H. Fuke, stressed God's forgiveness as was no much greater than human forgiveness and that one can show his Christianity by not querying hatred and grudges. For God's love is unconditional. He forgives and forgets.

Mrs. E. Denyes led in prayer. Mrs. V. Barkley favored with a second solo, "God is Love."

Mrs. A. Clare reported on the delegate to the 25th annual conference of the United Church at Trenton at which Mrs. J. Marsh was president for this district.

Mrs. H. Parker thanked the church for her lovely conditions, and all who took part. Later the group visited St. Thomas' rectory for tea.

As seen in leading fashion magazines.

GOOD MANNERS

HOW TO SAY 'THANK-YOU' FOR SHOWER GIFTS

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I am to be married soon, and I know that I will be having at least one shower. Our family and friends always invite the prospective groom to a shower. When I send "Thank-you" cards for the shower presents, is it proper to sign them with both our names—Nick and Vera"? — V.

Please don't send "Thank-you" cards for any kind of present . . . they are not in good taste. To thank for each shower present you should write a friendly note of appreciation, thanking first for the thought, and then for the gift itself. You sign only your name to the notes, but in the body of the note express the appreciation and enthusiasm of the groom-to-be.

PROPER WAY TO INVITE CO-WORKERS TO WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I am to be married in August. I work in an office with about forty women, all of whom are married. Naturally I have a few very close friends, but I would like to invite the office staff to my wedding. Should I just post a single invitation on the bulletin board, or send an invitation to each one? — Miss C.

Posting a single invitation to all the office staff is not really correct. Each of your co-workers should be invited individually. The best procedure is, if convenient, to send an invitation to each co-worker and her husband, whether or not you have met him. Or, as with your other friends, you may invite your close friends in the office, and their husbands, to both the ceremony and the reception, and the not-close friends and their husbands to the ceremony only. Or if you are not sending formal invitations, and your wedding is to be a comparatively small and semi-formal wedding, you may extend your invitations verbally to those co-workers you wish to invite. The important thing to remember is that it is the way-of-courtesy to invite each person individually . . . this gives proper compliment and honor.

CHARMING IDEA: THANK-YOU NOTE AFTER DINNER-PARTY

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My husband and I have been invited to dinner at the home of a professional associate of his. I do not know this couple at all well, indeed I have met the wife only once. We are very appreciative of this kind of invitation, and we are anxious to do the right thing. Is it correct or necessary to send a note of thanks after the dinner? — V.

My advice to you is that you write the very finest note of appreciation you can possibly write . . . if possible the day after the dinner, to show your "at once" glow of enthusiasm. Thank them for their gracious invitation to share their hospitality, tell them how very much you both appreciated the warmth of their hospitality and their friendliness, and say what a memorable occasion it was. If there were other guests, tell them how much you both enjoyed meeting these delightful friends. And of course speak enthusiastically about any other feature of the occasion. If you wish, you may enclose your note with flowers, as additional messengers of your appreciation.

CORRECT PROCEDURE FOR WELCOMING-IN-TO-THE-FAMILY

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

To settle a difference of opinion, will you please answer this question? A says that after the engagement is announced, the groom-to-be's mother calls the girl's parents, writes to them, and invites them to her house to meet them. B says the girl's parents invite the boy's parents to their house. — M.

The correct procedure is not actually like either of these suggestions. First, the important relationship between the two families should be established before . . . not "after" . . . the engagement is announced. Second, it is the fiance's parents who make the first social move. The proper procedure; just as soon as the engaged man tells his parents that the engagement has been decided on, and that the girl's parents have given him "official welcome" to their family, naturally they are expected to get in touch at once with the girl and welcome her into the family. If they live near where she lives, they will go to call on her and her family (telephoning to them first to find out what time would be convenient). If they don't live nearby, the fiance's mother and father may telephone to the girl and her mother and father, or they may write notes of welcome-into-the-family, and if convenient, invite her to visit them.

"Arry Go Find The Baby — There's A Good Lad"

By Mary Moore

I watched the English mother pushing a grocer cart, rounding up her brood of 5, before she went through the grocer's station. In it there were 8 loaves of bread and 6 packages of ground beef that I could count, besides a load that overflowed the cart and cost her $28.76. I knew because I was next in line.

Mentally I wondered what I would do with 6 packages of hamburg and here are some of the better ideas I conceived. I only wish I could pass them on to 'Arry's mother.

CHILI HAMBURGERS:

One lb. ground beef, 1 cup each chopped onion and chopped celery, 2 tablespoons shortening, 1 teaspoon chili powder, 1 teaspoon salt, dash of black pepper, 1 can (1¼ cups) condensed tomato soup. Brown the beef, onion and celery in shortening; stir to separate meat chunks. Add remaining ingredients; simmer about 15 minutes. Serve on toasted buns or toast.

GROUND BEEF: THREE VARIATIONS: BASIC BEEF MIX:

Two-thirds cup evaporated milk, undiluted, egg, 1½ lbs. ground beef, ¼ cup cracker crumbs, 1¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, ¼ cup grated onion, ¼ cup chopped green pepper. Blend all ingredients together until smooth.

HAMBURGER KEBABS

Make 24 small balls from meat mixture. Put tomato slice, hamburger ball, onion slice, hamburger ball, second tomato slice on each of 12 skewers. Broil for 5 minutes on each side.

MEAT LOAF:

Put the meat mixture into a paper-lined pan 8" x 4" x 2". Bake in moderate oven, 350 deg. Fahr. for about 1 hour. Let loaf stand in pan 10 minutes; turn out on platter. Slice for serving.

BROILED BURGERS:

Form the meat mixture into 6 large patties. Broil patties 10 minutes on one side; turn burgers. Top with seasoned tomato slice. Broil another 10 minutes; serve at once.

MEAT BALLS IN TOMATO SAUCE:

To 1½ lbs. hamburg add 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper. Mix well and shape into 1-inch balls. Brown meat balls on all sides in a small amount of fat in large skillet.

TOMATO SAUCE:

¼ cup finely chopped onion, 1½ cups each tomato paste and canned tomatoes, 2 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce, ¾ teaspoonsfuls chili powder, 1 tablespoon vinegar, ¾ cup water, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¾ cup finely grated, strong cheese. Brown onion in small amount of fat. Add remaining ingredients. Pour over meat balls and cook slowly until meat is done and the sauce is thickened, about 30 minutes. Serve over cooked spaghetti. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

NOTE:

If desired, cheese may be sprinkled over meat balls in tomato sauce just before serving.

ADVICE To the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

MAYBE IT'S UP TO YOU, GIRLS

Woone fault are petting parties —the girls' or the boys?

Many of the girls who write me complain that it's impossible to have just a nice, friendly time when they go out on dates because sooner or later the boys want kisses. On the other hand, many of the young men tell me that when they take girls out on dates, practically all of them seem to expect a little petting.

Let's take it from the girls' point of view this time and inspect a few of the letters which give their ideas on the subject.

Here's one, for example, from a 16-year-old, who says:

"I don't have very many dates and I guess it's mostly my own fault because I'm very particular about who I go out with. I've had some experiences with boys that I don't like at all, and I don't want them repeated, so unless I'm perfectly sure that I'm going to be treated with respect, I'd rather stay home.

"It seems to be expected that when a boy takes a girl somewhere in a car, he should stop the car on the way home and neck, and when I make it clear that I don't go for that sort of thing, I'm never asked again.

"What makes a fellow act this way anyhow?"

Another girl, a year younger, has had the same sort of experience.

"I love good times," she writes, "but I don't go in for that stuff they call heavy petting. I know it is wrong and shouldn't be done.

"Most fellows these days don't seem to have the respect for girls that they used to have and unless a girl is willing to pet, they leave her strictly alone.

"What's your idea about this?"

In one town a group of six girls decided to try and solve the problem by organizing a club.

"We took turns giving parties and inviting the boys," she tells me, "but all they seemed to want to do was neck. None of the boys know how to dance and we were not able to think of anything else to do at the parties, so we're giving them up."

Well, when boys want to spend so much time necking, the chances are that nobody has taken the trouble to get them really interested in other things. For unless a boy's normal interest becomes so warped that his thoughts center on sex all the time, there are many activities that will appeal to him if presented in the right way.

The club idea was a good one, but the girls just didn't go at it right. It would have got off to a better start if, in advance, they had enlisted the help of their parents, or other adults interested in young people, in planning a definite program. The club could have been made a hobby group, with each one working at whatever hobby most interested him or her. Practically every teenager either already has a hobby, or will be came intrigued with one if it is presented in the right way.

As for the boys who didn't know how to dance, perhaps the latter part of each evening could have been devoted to teaching them to dance, either with the girls acting as instructors, or, perhaps, with everyone chipping in to pay an instructor who would make it a lively project in which both the boys and the girls would have real fun.

Then there's another thing that might be considered.

That is, the young people might organize a recreational center for the teenagers of their town, hunting up older people who would be glad to help in such a project. These days, there are public-spirited men and women in every community who are aware of the problems of modern teenagers and who would be willing to give their time and help to setting up such a center.

Young people can do a lot for themselves if they want something enough to be willing to work for it. And since in many cases it's the girls who want good times that don't include necking, why shouldn't they be the ones to be the prime movers in promoting a project that does without it?

How about it, girls?

TUB-TIME TIPS FOR THE GLOBE-TROTTER

That cleanliness, which is the basis of beauty, is something of a fetish with Americans, is proven by the fact that over 90% of the bathtubs in the entire world are located within the United States, and a good many of the rest are strategically spotted around the globe where Americans are most likely to be found. In fact, "bath-tub culture" is a phrase which many non-Americans are inclined to use somewhat derisively when discussing the foibles of Uncle Sam's sons and daughters . . . and who, we might add, don't seem to care.

Discussing the differences in national bathing customs before a group of women editors recently, Hov W. Peet, Manager of the American Soap and Glycerine Producers, Inc., told his listeners some amusing incidents which have served to "floor" Americans travelling abroad, and tipped off future travellers among us as to what to expect if we're going to do any globe-trotting in the near future. We quote from his address—for your edification, if you are signed up for the Grand Tour; for your amusement, if you have not. Said Mr. Peet:

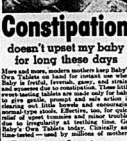
"In Europe, the word bathroom is likely to mean just what it implies . . . literally, a room to take a bath in. It may be the size of a ballroom, but don't necessarily expect it to have all items of plumbing. The fixture you're least able to do without is likely to be banished to a small closet at the end of a long corridor . . . and your allotted mileage may be boosted considerably.



"Even if all fixtures are put together in one room, the globe-trotting tourist will still have some surprises in store. Take the chap who was one of the first guests to register in a fancy new hotel in the Caribbean island of Haiti. Yes, he was told, there will always be hot water. But the proprietor did not bother to add that the plumbing had all been installed by inexperienced help. The guest turned on one gleaming faucet after another in the luxurious bathroom . . . each tap ran as cold as a mountain stream. Yet there was hot water, all right, as the guest found out in due time. Every lavatory in the hotel was gently steaming.

"If there is ever a place where hot water is an elusive commodity, it's the Left Bank of Paris, especially among the small hotels. One young student, who was 'doing Europe' on a budget, searched the whole Left Bank district until he located a little pension that promised hot water. The promise was a somewhat boastful one . . . on a sign at the entrance at least a foot high. The student registered and went happily upstairs to take a hot bath. Hours later, he was still testing the taps for a hint of warmth. Finally he made an indignant protest to the desk, claiming the hotel was advertising hot water under false pretenses. 'But we have hot water,' the clerk explained. 'It comes on promptly the first of October and is turned off the first of April.' Unfortunately, the student had arrived in July.

"In Latin countries, it isn't so much the hunt for hot water but sudden finding of it that hurts. Probably millions of blisters have been raised on American hides learning that the letter "C" stands for hot . . . not cold throughout Spain, France, Italy, and Latin America. Calda, chaud and caliente are all words meaning "doggone hot." The cold water taps are marked "F" for frigida, froid, or frio.

"And here's another warning regarding continental bathrooms you may find useful some day. When you're relaxed in a warm bath and happen to see a little cord hanging just over your left ear, don't pull it. Or if you notice a tantalizing button just within reach don't press it to see what happens . . . that is, unless you don't mind company. Both the cord and bell are summons for help . . . which is likely to arrive in the form of a six foot tall hotel employee with a bristling mustache and a stack of extra towels. It was my good fortune in Naples to draw a cute little Italian Miss . . . with curls.

"I have heard it said that there are women tourists who go through Europe looking hopefully for these buttons and cords, but I don't believe it. After all, every Italian is not a Rozzano Brazzi. And how many people who have gone to Paris have ever seen another Charles Boyer?"

St. Michael's Regis Club Elects 1957-8 Officers

The final meeting of St. Michael's Regis Club for the season was held on Sunday in Knights of Columbus hall. President Mary McDougall opened the meeting.

Elections were conducted by Wayne Johnson. The final results were as follows:

President, Bob Burke; vice-president, Marg Whalen; secretary, Mary Dunlop; treasurer, Bernard Mascaro.

A presentation was made to Mary McDougall by Bob Burke on behalf of the Regis Club members.

Plans were discussed for summer activities. Among the suggestions were a boys' baseball team; a wiener roast and picnic. Members will be contacted individually as to dates of these activities.

The spiritual committee led a discussion on mixed marriage. This was followed by a film on fishing shown by Gerry O'Brien.

The meeting was concluded by a social evening and refreshments were served by the social committee.

Dr. Empson Talks On Inoculation Of Children

The regular meeting of the Shannonville Home and School Association was held on Thursday evening of May 31, with 30 members present and Mrs. McKenzie presiding.

Treasurer's report showed a bank balance of $109.33 and cash on hand, $10.36.

Mr. Fuller thanked Mrs. Spencer for having the euchre at her home for the benefit of the Junior ball team.

Parents' attendance went to teacher Mr. Sherry.

It was suggested that the children of the village entertain the members for the June meeting on June 24th.

Mrs. Spencer and Mr. McKenzie tendered a vote of thanks to all the men who helped to do the work on the ball diamond screen, which was a great improvement to the park. There is to be another swing added to the others for the small children.

Mrs. McKenzie, Mrs. Cook and Mr. Fuller gave a report of their trip to the convention in Toronto on what was of most interest to the organization.

Mrs. McKenzie moved that a thank-you letter be sent to Mr. A. Cook for his generosity toward the ball screen.

Mrs. McKenzie introduced Dr. J. Empson, of Roslin, as guest speaker, who gave a talk on the inoculation of children, which was of most interest to all, and also held an open discussion on everything in general.

Mrs. Harrington thanked Dr. Empson for his visit to the association.

Doughnuts and coffee were served by the lunch conveners.

FINE FOUNDATION

BY GRACE THORNCLIFFE

The strapless bra-slip, a boon at all times of the year but especially during the warm weather, is better than ever. New fabrics and new blends of natural and synthetic fibres are available for every taste and type. This one is of a dacron and cotton blend, cool and easy to care for. Cups and front section are of eyelet embroidery as is the hem. An elastic back makes for a snug, good fit. The petticoat is slightly flared and there is a side zipper. A fine foundation for a slim strapless dress, or a slim skirt and filmy blouse.

Churchill H-S Assoc. Elects New Officers

The first annual meeting of the Sir Winston Churchill Home and School Association was held on Monday night at Sir Winston Churchill school, with the president, Dr. H. L. House in charge.

Mrs. D. Garlepy, recording secretary, read the annual report of the year's activities. She noted that donations had been made to Cub and Brownie packs, and the Minor Hockey League. A "Fun Fair" held in March was quite successful as was a skate sale held in November. The Student Accident Plan introduced in September was also of benefit.

The treasurer, Mr. Bruce Kerr, reported that a bank balance remained after all expenses had been paid.

The attendance prize was awarded to Miss A. Robertson's class.

Mr. E. Fairman, chairman of the nominating committee, named the officers for the ensuing year: President, Dr. K. House; vice-president, Mrs. J. Connell; recording secretary, Miss C. Wilson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. B. Nemtin; treasurer, Mr. Bruce Kerr; executive members, Mrs. R. A. Alyea, Mrs. J. Brown, Mrs. W. Fothergill, Mrs. Blake Kerr and Mrs. S. Riley. The executive will be installed at the next meeting.

SKIT

A skit, directed by Mrs. B. Nemtin, was a decided success. Mr. Bennett enacted a father of a teen-age son and daughter, and Mrs. Blake Kerr as a worried mother; Mr. R. Rowe as the son and Mrs. R. Rowe as the daughter, gave a realistic performance of a mal-time scene when youth clashes with parental authority. A lively discussion period followed, chaired by Mr. Bruce Kerr.

The Barbara Dimont dancers were the highlight of the evening. The pupils, in solo and groups, in costumes appropriate with their acts, were colorful and entertaining. All were exceptionally good, but two girls, who performed an acrobatic turn, brought repeated applause from the audience.

Mr. R. Howood thanked Mrs. Barlow and her helpers on behalf of the association for bringing her group.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. M. Rigby and her committee to bring the evening to a close.

Land Grants, Subdivisions Complicate Search for Oil And Natural Gas in Quebec

QUEBEC (CP)—Historic land grants and subdivisions, some dating back to the era when Canada was New France, complicate the search for oil and natural gas in this province.

Exploration is expected to be intensified this year following the discovery of natural gas at Batiscan, 90 miles southwest of Quebec City, by the Bald Mountain Oil Company Ltd. The well flowed under good pressure at about 3,500,000 cubic feet daily.

Arpents, seigneries, parishes, lots, concessions—these are words in the Quebec oil seeker's vocabulary which his western counterpart rarely hears.

"A western land man would be lost here," said one Quebec oil man. "On the Prairies, land divisions are fairly orderly. But not here."

COMPLICATED, VAGUE

In Quebec there is no such uniformity. The French, the British and the 19th and 20 century Canadians all had a hand in making the land subdivisions picture what it is today.

"What complicates things even more than the lack of uniformity is the vagueness of the boundaries of the old subdivisions, some of which date back three centuries," said Dr. I. W. Jones, a native of Edmonton and head of the province's geological service.

He is one of the government officials responsible for the administration of the mining act which governs mineral exploration and development.

In the days of early French settlement, land grants, or seigneries, stretched back from the St. Lawrence River and frequently were irregularly shaped.

Parishes were also formed. These were divided into concessions, which in turn were carved up into lots. Towns and villages were established by government decree.

Later the British made an effort to subdivide regularly the land south of the St. Lawrence River. But even the eastern townships, as this area later became known, are not absolutely regular. However they were the result of the first attempt in Canada to divide land into regular ranges and lots.

TOWNSHIPS FORMED

More recently, the provincial government has formed townships, each 10 miles square, in many areas. Practically none of the land considered worth exploration for oil and gas, however, lies in this area.

"What adds to complications are subdivisions made by individual farmers. A father who wanted to give each of his sons some land subdivided his farm into strips," said Dr. Jones.

Mineral rights — the ownership of the oil, gas and other minerals found, are another headache.

"In most cases the mineral rights belong the crown," said Dr. Jones. "But every title has to be checked. In some cases the French King reserved only the gold and silver for himself when he made the land grants. In other cases he kept all minerals."

Generally, the owner of the land also owns the minerals found on it if it was patented before 1890. But seigneries are an exception. Invariably the king reserved all minerals for himself when he made these grants.

MOVES CAREFULL

An oil man must know who owns the mineral rights and make appropriate arrangments before exploration. If the farmer owns them, the oil man must make a deal with him individually.

If the crown owns the rights, companies must deal with the provincial government — a process most oil men prefer. Until three years ago, companies wanting to drill merely staked claims, but staking was withdrawn because it created many problems and became a nuisance in the heavily-populated lowlands, Dr. Jones said.

An exploration company that wants land now applies to the provincial government for a mineral exploration licence covering a specified area.

Oil companies have also simplified the land phase of their operations by obtaining licences only on the old seigneries, on which mineral rights generally are owned by the crown.

Few Quebec landowners will make fortunes in the oil business unless they own the mineral rights. The farmer who owns the surface rights receives payment for the value of the land on which the drilling rig is located plus compensation for crop damage, severance and inconvenience.

SLOWING DOWN

TOKYO (Reuters)—Japan's natural population increase in 1956 fell below 1,000,000 for the first time since the last war, the ministry of welfare reported. The net increase was 940,000, bringing total population to an estimated 90,400,000.

TIGHTENING UP

GAZA (AP)—Maj.-Gen. Mohammed Abdel Latif, Egyptian governor of the Gaza Strip, has warned all residents of the territory to dispose of Israeli goods in their possession before July 1 or risk prison terms.

HOPEFUL HUNGARIANS

A group of Hungarian refugees look hopeful toward their future in Canada on arrival in Winnipeg but the job of becoming Canadians is not always easy. Some of the main problems they face are the inability to speak English or French, lack of suitable jobs for some immigrants and the lack of low-rental housing. About 72 per cent of the 2,060 refugees in the Winnipeg area have jobs and accommodation although the most difficult problem is finding homes at rents which the refugees can pay. (CP Photo).

SCHOOL OUTDOORS

Lack of Housing at Moderate Prices Causing Hungarian Refugees Plenty of Trouble

By JOHN E. BIRD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Hungarian refugees are buckling down to the job of becoming Canadians, but the road could be an easier if there was more low-rental housing available to them.

A cross-country survey by the Canadian Press showed that lack of housing at moderate prices, inability of refugees to speak English or French and lack of suitable jobs for some immigrants, notably laborers, are the main problems facing Hungarians.

Reports from most centres stress the newcomers' desire for work. Language classes are well attended in all cities.

The government's decision to bring in at least 28,000 Hungarians, and perhaps as many as 32,000, continues to be supported by most Canadians. But there has been some criticism of federal aid granted refugees, most recent by the Quebec and British Columbia commands of the Canadian Legion.

FEW INCIDENTS

Problems of housing, language and employment have resulted in relatively few incidents involving Hungarians and, except for a few isolated cases, no desire among them to return to their homeland. Federal officials are confident that most will have jobs by the end of June but are concerned about the housing problem.

The housing shortage is most serious in large centres, including Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg, Windsor, Vancouver and Calgary, where the majority of Hungarians have settled.

The Quebec command of the Canadian Legion charged that Hungarians are receiving free medical treatment in federal veterans hospitals while veterans have to pay. The B.C. command protested against a federal payment of $3 a day for the room and board of Hungarians until they can be placed in jobs. It said the payment was high compared to the $60 a month received by a single veteran unable to work.

C. E. S. Smith, federal director of immigration, said recently some reception centres have reported troublemakers but the incidents had not developed to major proportions.

In most cases the trouble revolves around the reluctance of some Hungarians to leave reception centres for jobs. Many involved in incidents said jobs offers were not in their field or stated they wouldn't accept work on farms.

In Calgary 14 Hungarians took part in a protest march after they had complained of living conditions in a Salvation Army hostel.

PROVINCIAL SURVEY

Of 8,000 Hungarians who entered Canada through Halifax since December, only about 250 are in Nova Scotia. Of these some 40 are awaiting placement to other points in Canada and 18, including 16 tuberculosis cases, are in hospitals.

Immigration officials say most of the Hungarians in Nova Scotia are employed in skilled labor positions. No adverse incidents have been reported.

Some 900 Hungarians have settled in New Brunswick. No trouble has been reported since their arrival and many are attending English-language classes in Saint John.

Approximately 5,000 refugees have settled in the Montreal area and another 3,000 are expected to arrive. The language barrier and lack of housing are chief problems. Only nine have returned to Hungary.

A small percentage have declined jobs on grounds that they are not suitable while others are refusing to work on farms. The immigration department placed six market gardeners on a Friday night and all quit by Monday morning.

50 PER CENT IN JOBS

Jobs have been found for 150 of the 300 Hungarians who have settled in Quebec City and as far north as Lake St. John. About 100 are lodged in the immigration building at Quebec City and most are dependents of 50 receiving medical treatment in the city.

Finding jobs has not proved difficult for Hungarians who have arrived. Increased employment in Quebec during the tourist season has helped establish others.

The biggest problem facing Toronto immigration officials and welfare agencies is temporary low-rental housing and language difficulties. Even skilled tradesmen find it difficult to get jobs because they cannot speak English.

An immigration department official said there is a shortage of low - rental, furnished flats and apartments.

About 6,000 refugees have passed through the reception centre in Toronto and some 1,000 still have to be dealt with. An estimated 3,500 have settled in Metropolitan Toronto.

Of 265 Hungarians in the Windsor area only about 30 per cent now have jobs. Housing is a serious problem but there have been no incidents.

Harold L. Votsey, district superintendent of immigration in Winnipeg, says 72 per cent of the 2,060 refugees in the area have jobs and accommodation.

The most difficult problem is finding homes at rents which the refugees can pay.

Alexander Mackie, director of the Regina refugee reception centre, says Hungarians are settling down "not too badly" but could be a "lot better off if they took what jobs are available until they learn the language."

He said there is plenty of work on farms or as railroad section hands.

"Many are turning down jobs because they think starting wages are too low," he said. "These people want to get to the top of the world right away."

Housing is a problem since many landlords won't rent to families with children.

Alderman Geoffrey Baskwill of Saint John, head of a committee handling Hungarians, said some already have started to repay passage money to the federal government. The government absorbed the cost of passage and Hungarians are under no obligation to return the money.

An immigration official in Edmonton estimates that three or four Hungarians have returned to their homeland. However, he says that 1,500 in the city are adapting themselves but have voiced some criticism about lack of work. About 400 are working and some 325 still are seeking jobs.

The official said a large percentage of the newcomers are metal trades workers and they have had to accept other employment. A few of these, including painters, have left for Eastern Canada.

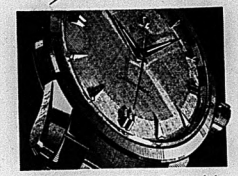
Lack of housing in the Edmonton area was still tough though not acute. The language barrier was being overcome rapidly.

About half of the 1,500 Hungarians in Calgary now have jobs. Inspector J. D. Mellbargey of the immigration department says most are fitting into the Canadian scene. There were a few "hotheads" but that was "to be expected."

REFUTES STATEMENT

Alex Lockwood, regional settlement officer for the immigration department at Vancouver, said recently that at least 50 per cent of an estimated 2,000 employable Hungarian immigrants in British Columbia have found jobs.

His statement was made in reply to one by Victor Papp-Vid, president of the Association of Free Hungarians in Canada and a one-time deputy finance minister of Hungary, that this country had failed in its role as a haven for refugees.



There was no evidence, Mr. Lockwood said, to support Mr. Papp-Vid's statement that some 60 per cent of Hungarians would leave Canada if given the opportunity.

The reception centre at Abbotsford, 45 miles east of Vancouver, was found to be overcrowded early in May. Steps were taken to reduce the population of the centre from 1,600 to 600.

Considering the number of persons in the camps, the incidents have been negligible," said P. W. Bird, district director of immigration in Vancouver. "With nothing to do in the camp, the Hungarians are under a mental strain."

He had high praise for the 200-odd students and teachers of the University of Sopron now quartered at Powell River, B.C. The students and faculty will enter the forestry school at the University of British Columbia in the fall.

OIL SEEKER

Geologists this summer plan to intensify the search for oil in the lowlands along the St. Lawrence River between Montreal and Quebec. Search for Oil and Gas In Lowlands of Quebec Will Hit Record Pace This Year

By DAVE OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—The search for oil and natural gas in the St. Lawrence lowlands of Quebec, a region described as the "prairies in miniature," will likely hit a record pace this summer.

Sparked by a sizable discovery of natural gas at Batiscan, 90 miles southwest of Quebec City, companies holding exploration licences have mapped out extensive wildcat drilling and geophysical programs.

The provincial government estimates that roughly $1,000,000 will be poured into the petroleum hunt. Most of this will be spent on drilling more than two dozen wells, but some will go for geophysical work.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY

The Quebec mines department described the Batiscan gas discovery by the Bald Mountain Oil Company Ltd., as the "first large commercial gas find" in the province.

Dr. I. W. Jones, director of the provincial geological survey, said the well flowed under good pressure at roughly 2,500,000 cubic feet a day—an amount considered good even in gas-rich Alberta.

The existence of natural gas and oil in the lowlands has been known for almost a century. Farmers drilling wells for drinking water have struck gas. St. Lawrence River valley residents have been using gas discovered this way for heating and cooking for almost 75 years.

One of the most spectacular discoveries was made by a motel operator near Trois - Rivieres, midway between Montreal and Quebec. He drove a two-inch pipe into a gas-bearing formation and gas spewed from the pipe for 76 days without interruption. The flow was estimated at 5,000,000 cubic feet a day.

Because of the great pressure, the motel owner was powerless to control his discovery. The provincial government, which owned the mineral rights on the land, eventually was forced to spend thousands of dollars to shut in the well.

PROVIDED INCENTIVE

Dr. T. H. Clark, Montreal consulting geologist, said the motel keeper's find definitely provided the incentive needed for more detailed exploration.

"No part of the lowlands should be ruled out as a potential source of oil or gas," he said.

"Our lowland is a replica of the Prairie Provinces in miniature. Both regions have mountains on one side. Both are basins of sedimentary rocks and have foothills, geographically and geologically, and both have the Canadian Shield on one side. The difference is one of size."

The lowlands cover roughly 10,000 square miles, equal to about one per cent of the area covered by the interior plains of Western Canada.

Since the motel keeper's accidental discovery, 29 companies have obtained exploration licences from the provincial government.

$1M HOLDING

Lowlands Exploration Ltd., a subsidiary of Imperial Oil Ltd., has the biggest holdings—licences covering 556,000 acres south of the St. Lawrence River.

The company, active for the last three years, last year announced plans to drill a number of wildcat wells.

Bald Mountain is drilling three other wells on its 373,000 acre concession to follow up its Batiscan discovery.

Other companies which have mapped out exploration programs to follow up earlier work and the acreage covered by their licences include Ohio Oil Petroleum Corporation, 168,300; Eastern Calmada Gas and Oil Ltd., 138,000; Oil Selections Ltd., 91,621 and Canac Natural Gas Ltd., 60,000.

But even if the latest scientific methods are used, the odds against finding commercial quantities of oil or gas are great.

MANY WILDCATS DRY

Past drilling experience has shown that seven out of eight wildcat wells drilled are dry, even after geophysical work. Without this preliminary work, it's estimated that only three out of every 100 wells drilled are successful.

"Geophysics reduces the chances of failure, but doesn't eliminate them," Dr. Clark said. "The only way to find out whether there is any oil or gas in any particular location still is by drilling."

Few formal government edicts and regulations govern operations.

Unlike the Prairie Provinces, Quebec has no petroleum and natural gas conservation board. Almost from the time the western oil man drills his first wildcat well, he is hedged about with restrictions and rules.

"Conservation board!" echoed one government official to a question. "So far there's not enough to conserve. When a commercial gas or oil field is proven up we'll have something ready to meet the situation."

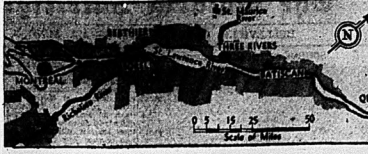
OIL MEN'S VIEWS

Oil men feel the government should maintain "reasonable flexibility" in its regulations and statutes, a factor they consider important in areas being opened up.

"It's too early to set up rules that may in fact be discouraging, destroy incentive or be impracticable," said one company official.

Some oil men disagree. Cautiously they express the view that the provincial government should "spell out" its gas policy in the near future. They voice the feeling the government should revise the present mining act to "bring it into this part of the century" when DV-applied to oil and gas exploration.

Exploration licences are valid for three years and can be renewed for another three if commercial quantities of gas and oil are not found. An exception is the Lowlands Exploration licence which is good for five years, with a renewal clause.



If an oil or gas field is discovered, the operator must take out a lease. When, and if, this happens he can lease for 20 years one third to half the acreage covered by his licence. The balance reverts to the government for disposition at a later date.

Most of the oil companies operating in the lowlands region have banded into an association, similar to, though not as highly organized, the Canadian Petroleum Association of Western Canada. So far the association has not made a formal submission to outline its views on existing legislation.

Government officials say the present policy is designed to keep companies working on the land covered by exploration licences.

"If the companies find something, we want to be reasonably certain the people of Quebec get some benefit from the discovery at the time it is made," said one official. "We don't want the province's resources held in reserve while supplies are drawn from other areas."

POTENTIAL OIL LAND

Companies hoping to find natural gas and oil along the St. Lawrence River between Quebec and Montreal have mapped out large areas of the St. Lawrence lowlands and exploration will likely hit a record pace this summer. Shaded portions on this map shows areas for which exploration licences have been obtained. Largest holder is Lowlands Exploration Limited, a subsidiary of Imperial Oil Limited. (CP Photo).

Pickersgill Avoids Clash With Negro

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Immigration Minister Pickersgill says he doesn't want to get involved in a newspaper controversy with a Toronto Negro leader who criticized him.

Donald Moore, director of the Negro Citizenship Association, in an address Sunday to the group described sections of the Immigration Act as "nefarious and diabolical" and said the "ministers of the department have invested in all forms of subterfuge to cover up the baseless provision and regulation used for carrying out the act."

The meeting was called to protest statements attributed to Mr. Pickersgill in the April issue of Liberty magazine.

Mr. Pickersgill said Monday in an interview: "I don't think it would serve any useful purpose for me to get into any newspaper controversy with Mr. Moore. I know he's sincere and a good citizen. I hope he doesn't think that some of the statements attributed to me really are my views."

The magazine article quoted Mr. Pickersgill as saying in part during an interview: "I feel immigrants should be given an equal fighting chance to enjoy the advantages of living in Canada. Why open our gates to non-whites when our own Canadian Indians aren't yet accorded a standard of living equivalent to that of other Canadian citizens?"

Mr. Pickersgill had been asked by a magazine writer whether discrimination is exercised against immigrants from the British West Indies.

He was quoted as saying in reply: "In that connection I told a official from there recently we do not encourage people to come to Canada just to inhabit our slums."

Will Sell Rights

WALLACEBURG (CP) — The Walpole Island Indian council Monday favored a vote by property owners on a $40,000 offer from Imperial Oil Ltd. for natural gas exploration rights on the Island, which lies at the southern end of the St. Clair River.

Council will ask the Indian affairs department to draft the referendum, with a date to be set later.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) — the discovery of a famous scientific institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in wide use for healing injured tissue on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Satisfaction guaranteed or money refunded.

CONSERVATION

Ketch's Korner

by the ROVING SECRETARY of the CARLING CONSERVATION CLUB

Wit's the holiday season scarcely begun, already we are hearing of water tragedies. What will the grim toll be like after the big influx of vacationers into the Lake country?

It is difficult undertaking to continually hammer at this subject without repeating the advice and caution we hand out each year. The reward, if any, is such an intangible thing for the simple reason that there is no measuring stick to mark up any advance. It is only those accidents that did not occur that can be of use, and they do not get back to us.

There are variations in the canal principles for safety on the water, they remain fairly firmly fixed as they have been since boating became a pastime, the only variation is to be found in the numbers, who take to this form of recreation.

Despite this difficulty facing every Outdoor Writer, there can be no lessening of our efforts to try to stem this tide of "ACCIDENTS" which takes place each summer. This word ACCIDENTS is in "caps" for a very definite reason — accidents do not just happen — they are caused.

And there are three prime causes of these accidents — lack of skill — lack of caution — and just plain downright foolishness. On the water is no place to experiment — not unless you are anxious to have your next meal in another world.

A few years ago there was a prize winning cartoon in one of the big dailies showing a small family arriving at the Pearly Gates being greeted by another motorist with this caption "Aren't you the people I just passed on the road a short time ago?" The same might easily apply to Water.

As I mentioned before, there are but three contributory causes to water making tragedies, the first, lack of skill, and this covers several sub sections. The first requisite to abolish water tragedy is knowledge — knowledge of the regulations governing operation of your watercraft, knowledge of its capacity, of its capabilities, and what to do in an emergency, for instance a sudden squall or an oncoming storm far from your port. None of these things are included in the purchase price of your boat nor are they included in the instructions in starting the motor.

Next — Lack of Caution, this sub-heading could well be termed common sense and courtesy and it is just that. Why put five people in a boat obviously built to hold three? Just an opportunity to drown a couple more, I would say. Don't reason that it can't happen to you, because it can and so often does.

Then finally — Just plain foolishness, you have seen it happen and so have I. Each time I am a witness to such an escapade I shudder at the straits put upon the fates which govern all our actions, racing through groups of swimmers, passing hand propelled craft at high speed, standing up, cutting and skidding around. On the list of foolish things done on the water seems limitless and to those who preach water safety — DISCOURAGING.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

WELCOME, STRANGER

Peter Upper, ex-this newspaper sports staff, ex-St. Michaels, RCI and Hookicoke football teams, currently with the Canadian Air Force, situate Winnipeg, dropped in the office yesterday.

This big, good-looking hunka halfback arrived here a couple of days ago after motoring from Winnipeg with a couple of buddies and visiting his father and mother, plus brother Boyd, in Toronto.

Peter, who could always be depended upon to mill out a snappy baseball or softball story, to say nothing of football is keeping his writing hand in with contributions to the RCAF station magazine. First assignment, Peter said, was a curling bonspiel.

"What I knew about curling," he said, "could be written on a postage stamp, so I settled for approximately 25 pictures of the curlers and a story three paragraphs long. My job was so good, they used the pictures and threw the story away."

Peter has his sights lined on a pilot's wings. He is studying hard, mostly ground grind at the moment, but has had some flying. He rates to seek the wide open spaces of the "wild blue yonder" and see what's the other side of those clouds.

He was one of a few faithful eastern wolves who howled long and loud for the Whitby Dunlops to come through with national honors in a "part of the west where they do not know what is going on in the east."

"The newspapers out thisaway," said Pete, "are crammed full of sports items from Winnipeg west, but east of Bliss Bomberville, Ittie, if anything. Saw a few baseball games out here attended by six or seven thousand people, a ballpark all white; would rate with senior as played in the Old Central Ontario Baseball League."

Nor was Peter overly impressed with the brand of hockey played in the Western Professional League. "Not like the good old blood-and-thunder of Eastern Ontario senior stuff."

Coming east, Peter and his buddies motored through the part of Wisconsin close to the Michigan border.

"This part of the world should be a hunter's paradise," he said. "Along one stretch of the highway which ribboned twenty miles through a densely wooded area, we counted 67 white-tailed deer on or along the highway. It was at night and our headlights showed them perfectly. They travelled in herds of eight and ten and would not move until the car was within 100 feet of them."

"We were forced to drive slowly in case we surprised one or more when topping a hill or rounding a curve. We saw a number of bobcats, while rabbits were numerous, as were the porcupines.

"At one time we straddled a big porky with the car, after he refused to move. We got curious, stopped the car and went back to investigate. No wonder that porky was rigid. Just over in the ditch were two of the biggest skunks I have ever seen. They had their flags at full mast—but didn't linger for the salute."

Peter will be among the spectators when the professional football season opens—but there will be no "Tippe-I-E-I-Ays" sounding from the Upper tonsils, especially if the gridiron foemen are the Toronto Argonauts or any other eastern squad. He likes the Double Blue because they're from home; the Ottawa Rough Riders because pal Gary Schrieder will likely be halfbacking them; the Montreal Alouettes because Ronny Stewart will probably be wearing the Larkin grid feathers and the Hamilton Tigers on general principle because they "come from the east," anyway."

HIC-HUP

Then there's the story of the two drunks who were walking along a railroad track. "Dangit," bleupped one of them, "never walked up a longer flight of stairs than this one."

"S'tough," agreed his fellow lush. "Don't mind the stairs, but these bannisters are too damged low."

Another lush who was driving in his car strayed over into the wrong lane and was promptly gaffed by a limb of the law. "Where dya think you're goin'?" whispered the gendarme.

The drunk looked around, "Why offisher," he smiled, "Cannon see? I'm not going anywhere. They're all coming back."

Hardboiled Haggerty, blustering matman from Californ-ia, and his hard-rock partner in crime, Australia, will go against the flashy Greey brother combination of Chris and John Tolos.

The Lewin Brothers, Don and Mark, will soo action in the two remaining bouts. Don will have the tough task of tangling with Baron Gattoni, bearded Italian nobleman; Mark will go against Honolulu star, Jack Walker.

Billy Pierce 2-Hits Boston To Retain Five-Game Lead; Haddix Stifles Redleg Bats

By Ed Wilks
Associated Press Staff Writer

Just how much does pitching count these days in the majors? In the Chicago White Sox it means a five - game American League lead.

The weak-hitting Sox lead the majors with 19 complete games from their pitching staff.

Tuesday night offered a pretty fair example of how the Sox have been getting the job done. Little Billy Pierce, the winningest pitcher in either league, won his ninth with a two-hitter that beat Boston Red Sox 1-0 in 10 innings.

It was Pierce's seventh complete game, fifth in a row, for the top league total.

PUSH TRIBE BACK

With Pierce at work, the second-place New York Yankees gained no ground with their 7-4 victory over Cleveland that pushed the third place Tribe 6 ¼ games back. Baltimore moved to within a half-game of sixth place Kansas City, beating the As 8-7, and Washington knocked off Detroit 4-3.

The White Sox have obtained complete games in all of the last seven victories and Pierce chipped in his second in that span with a seven-strikeout job. He walked none while giving up a double to Ellis Kinas in the third and single to Norm Zauchin in the eighth. The Sox finally got around to backing him up when Nellie Fox lined a one-out, bases-loaded single to drive in Jim Delock.

Pierce, a 30-year-old southpaw who has lost two, now has permitted only one earned run in 27 innings. He leads the majors with 64 strikeouts.

GET 18 HITS

Yankees slammed 12 hits, one a ninth-inning home run by Hank Bauer, and wrapped it up with three-run bursts in the first and third for Tom Sturdivant's fourth victory. Mickey Mantle three-for-four), Yogi Berra (two-for-four) and Bauer (one-for-four — fined $1,000 along with Billy Martin and pitcher Whitey Ford Monday for their nightclub scrap—had half the Yankee hits off loser Bud Daley and two relievers.

George Kell became the 100th player to reach 2,000 hits in the majors, getting three to spark Baltimore's comeback victory. He hit a two-run homer as Orioles wiped out a five-run Kansas City lead in the fifth and then singled for two more in the ninth.

Clint Courtney's seventh-inning home run did it for Senators, who had scored the run that tied it 3-3 on a wild pitch by loser Dave Mnas in the fifth. Truman Clevenger, making his first start in more than a year, won his third in a row.

The 1957 Edition of Roman Chariot Riding

By The Associated Press

If you're looking for proof positive that pitching is 75 per cent of baseball go no further than the 1957 surprise team of the early National League season, the Philadelphia Phillies.

Here is a club which has made only 35 hits and 18 runs in the last 62 innings and won six of eight games involved in the string. No they aren't doing it with mirrors, but with pitching.

Tuesday night was a typical hard hitting matter were unable to solve the southpaw Wizardry of Billy Hoeft as the 24-year-old Detroiter hurled himself a neat three-hitter for the 10th complete game buried against the Phillies in their last 11 games—tops in the league.

Brooklyn Dodgers under charge of third place, two games behind, with a 7-5 victory over.. Chicago Cubs while Milwaukee Braves skidded back to fourth with an 8-2, lacklustre defeat by third Giants. Braves remained three games shy of Redlegs.

Cincinnati Redlegs gained their fourth victory in a row—their longest winning streak of the season—and moved out of the National League cellar with a 5-4 verdict over St. Louis Cardinals.

Haddix had to call on all his stuff to halt a Redleg threat in the ninth inning. Johnny Temple opened the frame with a double and Wally Post walked.

He reared back then and fanned Gus Bell with a beautiful curve ball. He got the next two batters, hard-hitting Frank Robinson and Ernie Whitesnant, on fly balls to end the game.

12 STRIKE-UTS

Dodgers built a seven-run lead then built a seven-run lead with home runs by Duke Snider and Gil Hodges before the Cubs got to Don Newcombe in the fifth. Bob Speake belted a two - run homer in the sixth—the first hit off the Brook lefty—and Ernie Banks tagged a three-run homer in the eighth. Newcombe struck out 12 batters in his route effort to take the league lead with 59, but needed Clem Labine's relief help.

A two - out single by Dusty Rhodes won for Giants, who had tied the game for the fifth time in Dusty Rhodes' last three at bats in the ninth. Al Worthington won his sixth in relief, fanning seven in three innings. Willie Mays and Don Schoendienst hit home runs for New York, which the Braves getting homers from Frank Torre, Hank Aaron, Carl Sawatski and Red Schoendienst and Conley was the loser.

Dee Fondy was three-for-five, upping his league-leading average to .375, and singled home the winner as Milwaukee scored two in the eighth. Stan Musial hit his 16th home run for the Cards in climbing past Joe DiMaggio into seventh place in the all-time list.

ABANDON STADIUM PLAN

MONTREAL (CP) — Plans to build a 40,000-seat stadium on University Street property have been abandoned.

Dr. Wilder Penfield, president of the Montreal Alouettes and representative of a group which was considering construction of the stadium, said the plans were dropped because of a lack of parking space.

"After studying the terrain, our engineers decided there would be parking room for only about 850 cars," Dandurand said. "That's not enough."

Bombers Get Cash Bundle From Browns

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Interprovincial Football Union announced Tuesday they have received a cash settlement "in five figures," negotiated out of court, from Cleveland Browns of the National Football League in a dispute over the signing in 1955 of quarterback Bob Freeman of Auburn University.

Bomber officials refused to state the exact amount of the settlement which was reached by lawyers representing the two clubs.

Freeman signed to play with Bombers but later signed to play for Browns without reporting to the Winnipeg training camp. On action instituted by Bombers, a U.S. court issued an order restraining Freeman from playing football for one year. He now is in the armed services.

Bomber president J. T. Russell told a press conference the club had received from Cleveland cheque, covering the settlement and expenses, in the mail Monday.

Russell said Bombers' decided last year to institute civil action against the Browns, general coach Paul Brown and player Freeman in an effort to recuperate some of the estimated $30,000 deficit the club experienced during 1956 season. He said the club felt part of the loss was "due to the jumping" of Freeman by the Cleveland centre Jack Locklear, also of Auburn.

Locklear retired from football because of "poor health" at the time Bombers announced they were asking for an injunction restraining the use of his services by the Cleveland. Locklear was not named in the restraining order but was the centre for Bombers' proposed civil action, which never reached the courts.

Jets Package 8 To Nip Royals; Leafs Beaten

By The Associated Press

What a difference a year can make.

Last year southpaw Fred Kipp led the International League in pitching. He was the ace of the Montreal Royals mound corps, with a 20-7 record. And there was Hale Watt, Alston, manager of the National League champion parent Brooklyn Dodgers, might bring Kipp up.

Today, Kipp's record at "Montreal is 0-7. The Royals' ninth hander suffered his seventh setback Tuesday night when Columbus Jets rallied for eight runs in the sixth inning to defeat the last-place Royals, 10-8.

Toronto Maple Leafs also had their troubles as they dropped a 3-2 decision to Richmond and fell 2½ games behind the league-leading Virginians. Buffalo Bisons edged Miami Marlins 7-6 and Havana Sugar Kings topped Rochester Red Wings 3-2 in 13 innings.

The Royals, with Kipp on the mound, held a 3-2 lead over Jets going into the sixth when the barrage started. Eight hits, mixed with two Royal errors, gave Columbus its second straight victory in the four game series. Montreal tried to rally in the ninth before third Columbus pitcher Bob Kavana got the last man.

Relief ace Johnny James choked off a Toronto rally in the ninth to give Richmond its second straight win over Leafs. Lefthander Jim Kline, who ran his record to 5-2, held Toronto to seven hits until he ran into trouble in the ninth. Richmond took a 1-0 lead in the first on three singles and a walk. Bob Roselli got that back for Toronto in the second with a home run. Toronto starter Don Johnson's wildness in the fifth gave Virginians their winning markers as he walked four and threw two wild pitches.

Buffalo scored six runs in the fourth inning added another in the sixth and then had to fight off a ninth inning rally by Miami. Marling got two runs in the final inning when Ben Tompkins homered but it wasn't enough.

Gary Geiger's error in the 12th enabled Havana to move within one percentage point of the fifth-place Red Wings. Geiger, ordinarily a centerfielder, was moved to third when shortstop Walt Fassler was ejected from the game after disputing a third strike in the 10th.

Red Top Davis Beats Howard

HALIFAX (CP) — Teddy Red Top Davis, 142, of New York City, battered Canadian lightweight champion Richie Kid Howard, 140½, of Halifax, into a technical knockout at 2:46 of the eighth round in a 10-rounder Tuesday night.

Davis knocked Howard down with a sharp left hook for an eight count midway through the eighth. Howard rose, fell into the ropes, and Davis went after him with a hard two-fisted attack. He had stepped away from the reeling champion when the referee stopped the bout.

Howard's title was not at stake.

Patrick Says

Terry Sawchuk Trading Bait In Possible Wholesale Swap

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Club owners of the National Hockey League went into closed session today a bit perturbed over the growing pains of its robust youngsters.

The big-time hockey circuit and its affiliated pro leagues disposed of draft business Tuesday and straightened out a few kinks in playing rules but ran into a situation which found the younger members of the professional family squawking.

Rumors of deals and trades involving the Detroit, Boston and Chicago clubs were passed over glibly by club spokesmen. The only concrete indication of a wholesale swap was indicated by general manager Lynn Patrick of the Bruins.

Patrick said flatly that Terry Sawchuk, the recalcitrant goalie who wandered off after a period of illness last season, is trading bait. To make it certain, Patrick said that rookie Don Simmons, brought up from Springfield of the American Hockey League last season, is definitely the Bruins' goalie next season.

BOUND TO IMPROVE

"He did a great job in the play-offs and he is bound to improve," said Patrick. "I am sold on him and so is coach Milt Schmidt, de-spite what other hockey people think about Simmons. I think the boy will be a star."

What happens to the NHL clubs and publicity-grabbing deals was of no concern to Al Leader, spokesman for the Western Hockey League clubs.

Leader wanted to know why the WHL should be at the bottom of the minor leagues' draft totem pole. From where, when and whom can the WHL draft players, asked Leader.

Leader was ably supported by Frank Boucher, general manager of the WHL Brandon club, in a post-session interview. Four of Boucher's players were drafted.

"Why should the WHL and the Quebec Hockey League be subordinate to the American Hockey League in the draft?" asked Boucher. "The NHL has draft privileges, and course, but why should the AHL draft from the other leagues?"

WANTS ONE LEVEL

"We maintain that all the minor leagues should be on one level. The WHL clubs are as good as those in the AHL. We are not being given a fair shake in the overall operation. Is the distinction just because the AHL is an older circuit it doesn't add up."

Boucher said the WHL has been the most progressive of all the minor leagues, particularly in coming up with proposed rule changes.

"To start with we must have two rookies on each club," said Boucher. "that's a proving ground right there . . .

"We instituted the rule about minor penalties expiring if a goal is scored. The NHL adopted it.

"We have also experimented with a rule—and it has worked out successfully—by which coincident penalties are wiped out and the teams continue at full strength."

DRAFT FIVE

The NHL clubs Tuesday drafted from the minors—four of the six NHL clubs taking five players. Only Chicago Black Hawks grabbed two. Detroit Red Wings and Boston Bruins passed on each call in the draft.

The NHL rules committee proposed several changes, most of them minor or clarifying. One change made the goalminder play the puck if it crosses the crease outside the crease markings.

Under another rule change, markings are placed in the end-zone face-off circles so players will line up properly.

The committee also agreed to a proposal that orange stripes be painted around the puck as an aid to television fans.

SAY RACE DANGEROUS

MILAN (AP)—Leading international race car drivers said Tuesday they would boycott Italy's famous 500-mile Mexico race July 28 because they found the circuit too dangerous.

Players, Brass Summoned for Baseball Probe

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball commissioner Ford Frick, major league presidents Warren Giles and Will Harridge, players representatives Robin Roberts and Eddie Yost and J. Norman Lewis, the players' attorney, have been subpoenaed to appear before the House judiciary committee in their congressional investigation of sports which begins June 17.

The committee, headed by Rep. Celler (Dem.-N.Y.), is expected to probe into baseball with its controversial reserve clause in an effort to determine whether it should be made subject to the anti-trust laws.

The Supreme Court, in a 1922 decision, ruled that baseball was a "unique business" and therefore was not subject to the Sherman-Clayton anti-trust law. This was re-affirmed in another Supreme Court decision in 1953.

The chances that baseball officials and players had been subpoenaed was made by Lewis.

TALKS WITH LAWYERS

"We've been having some talks with Mr. Celler's lawyer," he said, "for the past few days. I know that in addition to Roberts, Yost and myself, Bob Feller, Stan Musial and Jerry Coleman have been asked to testify at the hearings on June 24-25."

Asked to predict what the hearings would produce, Lewis said: "If nothing else, important modifications will be made in the reserve clause, draft and farm systems, the bonus rule and there may also be some salary modifications."

The reserve clause binds a player to a club for life although the club can trade, sell or release him. The draft system permits major league teams to select one minor league player from each club for a stipulated price, ranging from $12,000 to $2,000. The farm system is a setup whereby the major league controls or owns minor league clubs. A bonus player is one received in excess of $4,000 besides his salary to sign his initial contract. He must be kept in the majors for two years. The majors presently have a $6,000 minimum salary limit with no maximum.

GIANTS BUY RELIEVER

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Giants Tuesday purchased left-handed relief pitcher Jim Davis from St. Louis Cardinals for a sum in excess of the $10,000 waiver price.

The 31-year-old pitcher thus joined his uncle, Marv Grissom, on the Giants' relief pitching corps.

City Won't Build Giants, 'Bums' Stay-Home Prospects Growing Dimmer

The heralded "showdown" meeting between Brooklyn president Walter O'Malley and New York head Horace Stoneham with Mayor Robert F. Wagner at city hall today gave rise to one belief:

Unless the city fathers produce suitable new park sites before Oct. 1, the Dodgers will move to Los Angeles and the Giants to San Francisco.

Adding to the local gloom, there appeared no immediate prospect for a new site for Dodgers or Giants. The mayor poured cold water any thought that the city might build or subsidize a park for either club when he stated:

"O'Malley and Stoneham have assured us they have made no commitments to move to the west coast. Therefore, we will continue to do everything within reason to try to keep them in New York. Under no circumstances, however, will the city build a stadium for either the Giants or Dodgers."

The city's chief executive also told a huge press gathering that neither O'Malley nor Stoneham had made any commitments to stay in New York.

NO GUARANTEES

The two club heads refused to give the city any guarantees. O'Malley, in fact, expressed extreme pessimism and said he would continue to negotiate with Los Angeles officials while the New York higher-ups are trying to make an announcement.

Stoneham, who along with O'Malley was given approval by the National League to move to the west coast when and if they ever make such a request, said his mind was still open.

"The Giants are not dependent on baseball," he said. "We are the proper time comes we will make an announcement."

Both Stoneham and O'Malley, it was revealed, had an interest in Skiatron, a New York pay-as-you-see TV firm. O'Malley denied a report he had signed a 10-year, 10-million dollar TV pay-as-you-see deal with Skiatron, but admitted he had discussed defeating games out of Brooklyn with the firm.

BEDARD IN THIRD ROUND

MANCHESTER, Eng. (CP) — Canada's Bob Bedard defeated Gerald Beatty of England 8-2, 6-0 in the second round of the southern grass courts tournament here Tuesday. Bob's wife, Ann, was defeated 6-1, 6-1 in a first-round match in the women's singles. The touring tennis couple hail from Sherbrooke, Que.

Leafs Draft Pete Conacher

TORONTO (CP) — Pete Conacher, whose feuding by the National Hockey League Toronto Maple Leafs was announced Tuesday night, says he's not overpleased but perplexed at his chance to make the big league.

The 24-year-old son of former Leaf Charlie Conacher said he hadn't expected to be drafted by any NHL club after what he termed "a bad season" with the Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League last year.

"But I guess the 31-inch, 190-pound left-winger who keeps in shape playing with Toronto Indoor baseball and softball five nights of the week, has already played in NHL with Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers.

He explained his dropping back to the Bisons simply: "You play some good games and some bad ones. I guess the bad ones outnumbered the good ones.

His father Charlie, who has had some notable differences of opinion with Leafs' Conn Smythe, said "I think he's a lot better player than he has shown and it's a good opportunity for him."

Ottawa Signs Two Canadians

OTTAWA (CP)—Two Canadians were signed today by Ottawa Rough Riders for the Big Four football season.

Don Guest of Toronto will compete for a fullback spot when the Riders' training camp opens in about a month. He was purchased from Toronto Balmy Beach of the ORFU last year but was on Ottawa's injured list most of the season with a broken ankle.

The other Canadian signed is Joe Stracina who will take a crack at the centre slot, left open by the retirement of Bruno Bitkowski last year. This will be Stracina's third year with Ottawa.

Khrushchev Proved Himself Shrewd Propagandist on TV

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS-TV stretched its long lead in the realm of public affairs telecasting when it presented its hour interview with Nikita Khrushchev, first secretary of the Soviet Communist party.

Khrushchev clearly has a personality that communicates effectively on television, it was obvious to viewers of Face the Nation Sunday. The program was filmed in Moscow a week ago.

What Khrushchev said, its implications and propaganda aspects, have been amply covered. On television Eric Sevareid ably set the Soviet leader's remarks in perspective in his regular CBS Sunday telecast following the interview.

SHREWD PROPAGANDIST

The province of television covers how something is said as well as what is said, however. It was in this area that Khrushchev inevitably made a strong impression on American viewers. He proved to be calm and affable and displayed a sense of humor.

This, of course, was the way that Khrushchev wished to appear. A shrewd propagandist, he knows that a smile is more effective than 10,000 words of argument. There will be a few viewers who will therefore say that an American network was used for Soviet propaganda. They should think again. Propaganda is worthless when you know it's propaganda.

The greatest lesson that viewers could learn, a lesson that only television can bring, was simply this: It is of the utmost importance for one to realize that an ideological enemy operates behind an amiable countenance. It makes him a more difficult opponent.

CBS has been trying to interview a high Soviet leader for two years. In April, to the network's surprise, the door was opened. Camera crews were assembled in Moscow from London and Paris. Only general areas of discussion such as "personal life" and "international relations" were mentioned to Khrushchev before the unedited program was filmed.

Questioning was ably handled by Stuart Novins, moderator of Face the Nation, Daniel Schorr, CBS correspondent in Moscow; and B. J. Collier, Moscow correspondent of the New York Herald Tribune.

In a different area from communism, evangelist Billy Graham proved to be a persuasive television personality on his ABC-TV telecast from Madison Square Garden Saturday evening. He brings great zeal to his cause and is a far cry from the "sawdust trail" evangelists of bygone years.

As a TV personality, however, Perry Como drew a larger audience at the same hour on Saturday evenings, according to the Trendex audience rating service.

Son of Actor Given 60 Days

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Convicted of misdemeanor drunk driving, Edward G. Robinson Jr. was sentenced Monday to 60 days at the Los Angeles County honor farm.

Judge Allen T. Lynch specified that the 36-year-old son of the movie and stage actor must not drink intoxicants for at least three years, must continue psychiatric care and pay hospital and medical expenses incurred by Martin Barth who lost the sight of one eye while a passenger in Robinson's auto. The car went out of control and smashed into another.

Record Time Made

TORONTO (CP)—A Trans-Canada Air Lines Super Constellation flew from Vancouver to Toronto in record-breaking time Monday.

Inaugurating the west - to - east leg of the non-stop service, the four-engine plane covered the 2,100 miles, aided by a strong tail wind, in six hours, 11 minutes.

Scheduled time for the flight is six hours, 50 minutes.

TCA began the Toronto-Vancouver non-stop service last Saturday. Flight time for that leg, against the prevailing winds, was eight hours, 40 minutes.

Canadian Champ Faces Test At Woodbine

TORONTO (CP) — The year's first meeting of Canadian Champ and Hartney is scheduled for New Woodbine today when they run in the $7,500 Dupont Carlter Stakes at six furlongs. Canadian Champ has won more money than any other Canadian bred now in competition. Hartney holds the Canadian record for seven furlongs and also holds the Woodbine track record for six furlongs.

Canadian Champ and Hartney will be faced by six rivals. The next big event on this week's program will be the $10,000 Woodbine Oaks on Friday, followed by the 9th running of the Queen's Plate on Saturday.

The plate field was cut to 13 with the report that Porter Grata, owned by the Ten Men Stable of Toronto, had fractured two bones in his foot in Monday's plate trial and will be out of action for at least a year. The E. P. Taylor family's pair of Chopaddle and Lyford Cay still rate as favorites to win the race.

Mexican Beats Canadian Champ

TIJUANA, Mexico (AP)—Pimi Barajas of Tijuana interrupted Canadian bantamweight champion Pat Supple's string of 28 straight victories when he was awarded a technical decision over the Montrealer in the seventh round of a scheduled 10-round bout in the Tijuana Bull Ring Tuesday night.

Supple weighed 118, and Barajas 117.

Supple was behind on points when the scheduled 10 - rounder was concluded. He was attempting to punch away at Barajas' midsection and inadvertently rammed his head against the Mexican's eye.

Barajas had Supple down for an eight count in the second from a right-left combination and had him in trouble again in the third.

Supple's best round was in the fifth when he connected several times with left hooks.

Newsmarket Purse, was won by Nat Turi, named for the late Toronto sports photographer, Nat Turofsky. Nat Turf won narrowly from Onionville while Epic Time was a good third.

Paris Beauty Tells of New Sports-Minded French Age

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A new, sports-minded French generation is reported by Christine Carere, beautiful 18-year-old from Paris. Christine was chosen from among hundreds of qualifiers for the movie of "A Certain Smile." The book, which concerns teenage sex, was written by fast-driving Francoise Sagan, now recovering from a car crash.

Miss Sagan's first success, Bonjour Tristesse, also dealt with a young girl who goes all-out for romance. I asked Christine if the books gave an accurate picture of French youth.

"It was true of the generation right after the war," she said. "But there has been a big change in the last two or three years. "The young people are returning to morality. They have developed a keen interest in sports."

FRANK A FAVORITE

Rock 'n' roll is everywhere, she said, as are the records of Frankie Laine, Nat King Cole, Bing Crosby and Frank Sinatra." Elvis Presley is not too well known in France.

Among Christine's first duties here is to touch up her English. She learned it in school, but she's still hesitant in the language and relies on an interpreter.

Christine is no newcomer to the movies, having appeared in about 15 films in France. Her discovery illustrates what a natural beauty she is.

She was 16 and attending the annual fair held in Paris for the liberators of the city. As she strolled through the exhibits, three different film directors approached her and offered movie opportunities.

"My mother was horrified at the idea," Christine said. "She is a buyer for a department store and our family has never been connected with acting."

But mother gave in, and Christine has been enjoying a thriving career ever since.

SOVIETS IN FRANCE

PARIS (Reuters) — The first group of 706 Russian tourists to visit France this year arrived today by boat train from Le Havre for a 48-hour visit to the French capital. Last year about 2,000 Russians visited France. They were the first to come here since the Second World War.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes, and find what your outlook is, according the stars.

For Thursday, June 6, 1957

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — While not particularly stimulating, this day's influences can be helpful in many fields. Give your best. Industry, science, medicine, athletics, home, personal affairs can advance with your help.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Give the other person the benefit of the doubt when possible; don't compromise with your principles however, and keep everything on a thoroughly honest level. Patience at home!

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Expecially favorable aspects for new ideas and plans, for adventure, sound, well thought - out ventures, artistic expression. How pulsive but are highly capable of your start and finish a thing will count heavily, however.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Reminisce if you will, but don't cling so tenaciously to the past that you conjure up unpleasant thoughts and start useless discussions. Keep that smile showing!

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — If you cannot have one thing, you may get another — if you work for it. Maintain harmony and a warm disposition.

August 24 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Just about everybody has some favorable aspects now. It will depend on how you use your assets and advantages that will determine your progress and happiness.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra) — Your Venus, in excellent position, suggests that you use all your talents and knowhow to get as much achieved as possible at this time. Don't strain, but keep healthfully busy. Shun discord.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Your judgment may be challenged; don't become discouraged or be hasty in drawing conclusions. Interpret events, people's reactions carefully. A moment of forethought can save much error, waste.

November 23 to December 21— (Sagittarius) — Your ability to aim directly at a goal can be a wonderful asset now, or a drawback if you are too outspoken and disregard diplomacy. Be economical of energy as well as money.

December 22 to January 20 — (Capricorn)— There are so many fine aspects and stimulating visions today that you will regret it if you waste moments or efforts. But start your day's program carefully. Meet obstacles philosophically. Laugh often.

January 21 to February 19 — (Aquarius) — Sturdy strides forward can be made, despite past errors. Check carefully and look hopefully ahead; many opportunities will be available.

February 20 to March 20 — (Pisces) — Too little to do at times, too much at others? Sit down and plan a systematic routine; thus saving time, energy. Generally benefic aspects.

— You born today are oftimes imgathering knowledge and also of imparting it to others. If true to the better you, you are not content with shallow veneer, petty doings. You seek true and fundamental progress. Don't overembellish or exaggerate. Versatility and quick thinking are your best assets. Don't dissipate your energies. Don't depend on intuition to help you out of difficulties seek facts. Be tolerant of others. You have artistic and/or music ability, a gift for organizing, leading ventures. Birthdate of: Pierre Corneille, Fr. dramatist, poet.

15 SOLDIERS DROWN

MUNICH (Reuters) — Fifteen soldiers of a West German air-borne battalion were drowned Monday while trying to ford the River Iller near Kempten, southwest of here. Defence Minister Franz Josef Strauss ordered an investigation team sent from the defence ministry. The commanders of the battalion and the company to which the men belonged were ordered suspended.

NUCLEAR TESTS

developed in its Project Sunshine, designed to measure the effect of fall-out from weapons tests, with the exception of "certain facts which would reveal information concerning intelligence and weapon design."

MAY GET ANNEX

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House said today it endorses, in principle, submitted to President Eisenhower Monday by a study commission, calls for a $32,500,000 expansion program which would involve razing the dingy old state-war-navy building next door to the executive mansion. However, the White House, in its economy mood, isn't likely to vote money for any such program at this session.

POSSIBLY

Mr. St. Laurent referred to Mr. Diefenbaker's criticism of the Liberal party's appeal for the servicemen's vote. It was "an old Tory trick to try to drum up some last-minute squawk."

TORY'S CHARGE

The Conservative leader Monday at Liverpool, N.S., said Mr. St. Laurent circulated a letter to armed forces members urging them to vote Liberal. Mr. Diefenbaker said his party had not been able to get a list of service personnel.

"The facts are simple," said Mr. St. Laurent: "Each party can obtain lists of the members of the armed forces and write any number of letters to them asking them to vote CCF, Social Credit, or vote for the Diefenbaker party."

Finance Minister Harris at Elmira said the party reason the Conservatives objected to the letter "is because we got our letter off in time and they, as usual, were a little late."

Speaking at Galt, before hurrying west for a Dawson Creek, B.C., meeting, Mr. Harris said the Liberal letter to servicemen provided a good sidelight on the election issue. Any party could put its program before servicemen.

THUMPED BY BEES

Mr. St. Laurent came in for some hot criticism at Regina Beach at Nanpanee. The former national PC Association president, seeking the seat in Toronto-Broadview, said the Liberal "bosses" did not expect to have to fight the election. But suddenly they realized "the people of Canada were bored with the Liberals."

"Pasie relaged in Liberal circles and Uncle Louis George Heel's fading beauty queen contested by a younger, more fascinating rival," he said, using a new political petulant. He complained to his own people he says were not filling the halls, and that he disliked speaking to half-empty auditoriums.

"He dodged and weaved from his high-sounding phrases about national unity in an attempt to win votes by trying to pit province against province . . . [illegible] irritable old man who was ready and willing to create national disunity in order to win at any cost."

PRAISES PROGRAM

In his filmed television appearance, Mr. Low outlined the Social Credit program, including a 50-per-cent raise in personal income tax exemptions.

Turning to other topics, he said there are "many good reasons" for wanting to destroy what remains of democracy in Canada. "Tightly organized, well disciplined minority cliques have made themselves almost completely independent of the electors and their wishes."

How much did voters have to say in formation of these parties' policies? "And, if the government of the country does not act about with vigor and determination to do the job they promised to do, what have you?

"I suggest that you haven't much to say or do in the circumstances because, unless you are well organized into electoral groups in the grass roots level, the party machine will carry on completely oblivious of the wishes of the voters after election day."

CLAIMS DISCRIMINATION

Hearing the CCF accused with Mr. Knowles, Alistair Stewart, trying for re-election in Winnipeg North, said Canada is being discriminating against the country's part in the field of education. He urged equality of opportunity in education for all Canadians.

At Toronto, Mr. Hees said that Senator Cyrel Croll was "kicked upstairs" because he disagreed with Trade Minister Howe.

"Mr. Croll was not in accord with Mr. Howe's pipeline cabinet," and Mr. Croll was kicked upstairs to senate."

Liberal electoral officer Nelson Castonguay announced Tuesday night that Alfred Green has withdrawn as independent Liberal candidate in the Toronto constituency of York South.

That leaves four candidates still in the running there: William D. Beech, Progressive Conservative; Marvin Gelber, Liberal; William Ion, CCF; Sloan A. Smith, Social Credit.

In Toronto Mr. Green said he withdrew "out of loyalty to the liberal party." He was "positive" the seat could be won by a liberal if only one was running and "said I realized that with a split vote I'd be helping the other parties."

Health Minister Martin Tuesday night at St. Thomas accused Mr. Diefenbaker of using "the old techniques of the depression 1930s in an effort to win support from the Canadian electorate.

On the eve of Mr. Diefenbaker's visit Thursday to London, Mr. Martin challenged the visiting PC leader "to explain how he is going to reduce taxes and to balance the budget on the promises he has made to the people of this country."

TOUGH SENTENCE

VIENNA (AP) — A Hungarian Communist court has sentenced a woman to eight years in jail for spitting at a secret policeman who had been hanged by anti-Russian revolutionaries last fall, Radio Budapest said today. The broadcast identified the woman as Mrs. Dezsoe Nagy. It said she was recognized and arrested after her photograph, showing her spitting at the policeman's body, was published in Life magazine.

Council Votes 9-5 To End Contract Of D. P. Herring

Drury Denyes Appointed As Acting City Manager

Disregarding the protests of over 1600 persons who had signed petitions asking for further consideration on the matter, and in opposition to several of their own members opposing the motion, city council last night voted 9 to 5 to terminate the city's contract with City Manager Dennis P. Herring.

According to the wording of the motion Mr. Herring's contract will terminate on June 13th. He will receive three months salary as severance pay and also holiday pay.

The motion approved by council also calls for City Treasurer Drury S. Denyes to become acting city manager and to carry on both positions at his present rate of pay.

Mr. Herring came to Belleville as city manager June 1st, 1950 with the city operating on the city manager form of government since January 1st or this year.

AUDITORIUM JAMMED

The city hall auditorium was jammed to the doors with a crowd of interested citizens overflowing into the hallway, as Mayor Jane Forrester called the special meeting to order to deal with the adjourned motion of Aldermen Don Whalen's motion of last week, which called for dismissal of Mr. Herring as city manager.

Last week's debate ended without a vote on the motion and, according to council members opposing the motion also without any explanation as to what grounds or reasons given for the proposed dismissal.

Last night Ald. Ralph Graham said that two primary qualifications for city manager were to be a competent administrator and also to be an educator. "We want the right man in the office was of primary importance," he said.

Despite qualifications listed in his application for the position, Ald. Graham said Mr. Herring had shown lack of administration ability.

"It is apparent that nine aldermen in this council feel Mr. Herring is not a man for the post. If he were they would not be opposed."

PRESENT PETITIONS

Eight canvassers who Monday night had assisted in circulating a petition throughout the city told council that the predominant feeling of persons contacted was that the motion proposing the dismissal of Mr. Herring's contract be given further consideration.

In some instances every person contacted had signed the petition with people in a few cases described as "emphatically opposed" to the motion.

Two petitions opposing the council motion were filed with City Clerk Anne Haggerty. Mrs. Haggerty said Monday's petition bore 1276 names of which 381 were on the municipal voters' list, and 297 were either not on the voters' list or the name was illegible.

The other petition bore 381 names of which 261 were on the voters list.

MEETING IS QUIET

The council meeting heated debating of last week's regular meeting at which tempers of various councillors flared, but the public meeting was quiet with reaction on the part of citizens given vent to their emotions being the only outward evidence of feeling.

Ald. Graham was especially noisy outburst on the part of the gallery went unheeded by Mayor Forrester in chair although Ald. Ben Safe voiced his objection.

The only formality of ironing out procedure was cleared, Alderman Ralph Graham led off in the adjourned debate of Ald. Whalen's motion.

16 Workers Killed When Trucks Collide

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. (AP)—A flatbed truck loaded with migrant workers and a tractor-trailer slammed together on a highway crash at a road intersection today and killed 16 persons, the state highway patrol reported.

The highway patrol said 21 persons were taken to hospitals in this area and that 14 were in critical condition.

Fire that broke out in the truck caused most of the deaths, the patrol said.

Police added that 41 laborers from several states were aboard the truck, which pulled into the path of the tractor-trailer nine miles north of Fayetteville.

"I didn't count them, but one of the boys said he counted 27 (victims) at one time," Trooper Sgt. Dowd, who arrived at the scene, down, some dead and some injured, some squirming around," said W. H. Covington, operator of a country store near the road crossing.

The tractor-trailer driver was slightly hurt. The flatbed truck driver was among those killed.

British H-Bomb Called Clean 'For Time Being'

LONDON (AP) — Air Commodore Denis Wilson, a leading British radiologist, went home today with the eyewitness claim that the second British H-bomb exploded last week was "clean" for the time being.

He told reporters on arrival at London airport: "There was no fallout at all. But ultimately the fall-out will come down—sometime in the next year or two."

Within an hour of the explosion Wilson flew in a Canberra bomber through the huge cloud of atomic dust hanging over the Pacific.

The radioactive samples he collected were analyzed at Christmas Island, the British test base, and later flown to London.

Scientists at Christmas Island already have stated that last Friday's Pacific explosion caused no increase in radioactivity in the immediate area of the blast.

When the bomb exploded he was 10 miles up and 22 miles away. His specially-insulated Canberra was nearer the burst than anything else except the bomber which dropped the weapon.

The News Chronicle says meanwhile that scientists now reading the second test explosion "indicate Britain now leads the world with nuclear weapons."

WARTIME HERO TRIES TO FORM FRENCH CABINET

Given Job by Coty After Pflimlin Fails

PARIS (Reuters) — A veteran politician and wartime resistance hero today began preliminary negotiations for one of his toughest assignments—the formation of a new French government.

Maurice Bourges-Maunoury, 42, accepted the job Wednesday night after Catholic party leader Pierre Pflimlin gave up a week-long attempt to replace the outgoing administration of Premier Guy Mollet.

The new candidate to end France's 16 days of political crisis was defence minister in the Mollet government and played a key role in setting up the Anglo-French invasion of Egypt last November.

Bourges-Maunoury is not expected by political observers to have too easy a time in forming a government.

ALGERIAN PROBLEM

The central thrust in a program for Algeria, where he "strongly backs the attempt to stamp out a bloody rebellion there.

He must also restore France's shaky financial position and ratification of the European common market and Euratom atomic pool treaties.

Two other men declined to take the job before Bourges-Maunoury. One of them was Mollet himself, who said he was in authority program and new tax measures to pay for the Algerian war led to the current crisis. The other, 46-year-old Rene Billeres, minister of education in the outgoing government, declined because he claimed cabinet inexperience.

Pflimlin ended up his mission when Mollet's Socialists refused to pledge their participation in a broadly based government "to save Algeria and the franc."

Three Arrested After Robbery At Drive-in

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—While police set up a trap, a movie crowd called We're No Angels, three men stuck a shotgun in the ribs of drive-in theatre manager Douglas Pinder Wednesday and made off with $600 from the office safe.

Two hours later, provincial police arrested three men in the Peterborough outskirts. Roy Ellis and Floyd Mitchell, both 26, and Fred Gaffney, 24, all of this district, appeared in magistrate's court on armed robbery charges today and were remanded to June 11.

The robbery occurred at a drive-in on Highway 28 five miles north of here about 11 p.m.

Police said he thought the bandits were late arrivals who watched the show for a time before getting on with the job.

The three, revolvers around their fugitive convicts and a brief whimsical escapade in the home of Mrs. Pinder's parents after making the problem character is disarmed by a lethal pet snake called Adolph.

After Wasted Cape Breton Years Duchess and Dogs Come to Ontario

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Jacobs Bregman, 49-year-old Dutch immigrant who landed in Cape Breton with two dogs and a friend, rented KLM Skymaster two years ago, left the island Wednesday night in a cattle car, bound for a new home somewhere in Ontario.

Miss Bregman had worked for two years in Cape Breton as "an absolute waste of time and money."

Nicknamed The Duchess by local folk because of her aristocratic aloofness, she took a verbal sideswipe at many of Cape Breton's most cherished traditions.

Asked about the famous Cape Breton hospitality, she snapped that as far as she was concerned it was non-existent. She later qualified her denunciation by adding that while it might exist, she hadn't run across it.

Miss Bregman landed here from Gardeen, Holland with a flourish from the Netherlands and, after dinner, besides her 23 pet dogs, were 600 yards of wire fencing, a kennel now interior, and five tons of assorted belongings.

The belongings were on hand at Sydney airport to gaze in wonder at the spectacle.

The mass greeting was a sore point with the Duchess. She declined KLM Airlines and the newspapers for turning her into "a character."

"They simply made me out to be a wealthy, eccentric woman," she complained.

Leaders Urge Canadians To Vote for Own Benefit

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Vote next Monday for your own benefit.

That was the essence of advice offered to Canadians Wednesday by both Prime Minister St. Laurent and Progressive Conservative Leader Diefenbaker. But they had opposing reasons for giving the advice.

"It is not the Liberal party against the Conservative party or any other party," said Mr. Diefenbaker in a television broadcast. "It is the government against a ruling caste."

He made the theme hard on the broadcast and as he moved through central Ontario, Mr. Diefenbaker told Canadians to put "country above political party" and vote Conservative lest a one-party political system leave Canadians with no rights.

Urging return of the Liberals as he also travelled Ontario, Mr. St. Laurent said the Winnipeg by-election campaign is not for the benefit of any particular party but for the benefit of the Canadian people.

He returned, the Liberals would do "an honest job" in Canada's service to the end that they "will not only do not think we will do so, then turn us out. You may try to find someone else, but I don't think you will find anyone better."

At Lucky Lake, in his Saskatchewan constituency of Rosetown-Biggar, CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell, meantime, described the Liberal federal government's defence set as "tragically shortsighted" and proposed a 25-per-cent reduction in military expenditures to help increase economic aid to underdeveloped countries.

He recommended that Canada contribute $250,000,000 annually for a special United Nations fund for economic development and increase its aid to the technical assistance program and the Colombo plan.

Social Credit Leader Solon Low moved back into his northern Alberta constituency of Peace River. But Trois-Rivieres, Que. Leon Balcer, president of the national executive, disagreed with some of the prime minister's findings. Mr. Balcer said the Conservatives will win between 14 and 20 Quebec seats.

The Liberals had made the mistake of thinking themselves "a shoo-in" in Quebec. Now they were working 24 hours a day trying to make up lost ground. But Mr. Balcer added: "I can and will "can't undo the harm that has been done."

May Transfer Chrysler-Held Defence Contract to Lindsay

OTTAWA (CP) — The defence production department and Defence Construction of Canada at Windsor are apparently discussing the possibility of transferring a Chrysler-leased defence plant there to government-owned Canadian Arsenals Ltd. at Lindsay.

One of the reasons behind the discussions is believed to be the federal policy of maintaining a decisive of skills in production of defence materials against government cutbacks in case private industry should decide to go out of the business.

This picture developed Wednesday night out of announcements in and in Windsor by officials of the defence production department, Chrysler and the United Auto Workers Union at the automobile manufacturing firm.

D. S. Golden, deputy defence production minister, told reporters here there is a distinct possibility" that a federal defence contract now held by Chrysler will be transferred, at re- sell—will be transferred, at reduced output, from Chrysler to Canadian Arsenals.

But he made it clear the matter has not yet been finally decided. All details of the matter are scheduled to be put before Defence Minister Ralph Campney Monday or Tuesday.

Golden said Wednesday he would be thought the bandits were late arrivals who watched the show for a time before getting on with the job.

The three, revolvers around their fugitive convicts and a brief whimsical escapade in the home of Mrs. Pinder's parents after making the problem character is disarmed by a lethal pet snake called Adolph.

Tough French Paratroopers Patrol Streets of Algiers

ALGIERS (Reuters) — French paratroopers, fresh from routing Algerian rebels from their mountain hideouts, patrolled the streets here today in efforts to stamp out violence.

The soldiers, who cleaned up terrorism in the capital last February after a series of bomb and ambush attacks, were recalled after two years of explosions Monday. Nine persons were killed and 100 wounded.

In Paris, police staged a dawn raid on districts in the city and suburbs inhabited by Algerians. They arrested 400 and seized 50 pistols.

Meanwhile, the wave of violence among North Africans living in France continued. One North African was shot dead in Paris and another with stab wounds in Marseilles Wednesday night.

The renewed patrolling in this capital followed announcement by French authorities that 135 Algerian nationalists had been killed in clashes with French troops in the ravines of the Grande Kabylie Mountains. The French reported the losses of 18 killed and 30 wounded in the fighting, which was often hand-to-hand.

Bayonets, knives and grenades were used against the rebels during the fighting which followed a massacre of more than 303 Algerian villagers by nationalist extremists last week. The French said the main fighting now has ended in the mountains but patrols are still hunting down rebel pockets.

Drew Shrugs Off Reports Of Appointment

LONDON (CP) — George Drew, former national leader of the Progressive Conservative party, left today to Canada during the weekend in time to vote in Monday's general election.

Drew and his wife, who have been making a wide-ended tour of Europe and the Middle East, are scheduled to arrive at Montreal's Dorval airport Sunday morning and will motor to Ottawa the same day.

In an interview today, he shrugged off reports that he might succeed Norman Robertson as Canadian high commissioner in London. "I have had no discussions on the first I've heard about it." Drew is one of several possible appointees mentioned in recent speculation.

U.S. NAVY PLANS REAL SHOW FOR OLD ARMY MAN

Eisenhower Will See Atomic Age Sea Power

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower was to board the new $250,000,000 super carrier Saratoga in Florida today for a look during Atlantic manoeuvres at the United States Navy's atomic age air and sea power.

The president, accompanied by three cabinet officers and other administration officials, will be aboard the carrier until Friday afternoon.

The Saratoga, bristling with more than 100 of the latest speedy jet fighters, attack bombers and interceptor aircraft, is planning both daylight and after - dark spectacular demonstrations for the president during the navy's Atlantic fleet exercise No. 1, 1957.

AIR TECHNIQUES

In advance of the manoeuvres the navy made public an exercise schedule featuring an exhibition of aircraft techniques used in the firing of atomic and conventional weapons, the launching of three types of guided missiles, and a demonstration of anti-submarine tactics.

The current exercises also will feature a demonstration of how the navy moves to protect its ships against radioactive fall-out from atomic weapons.

From the deck of the Saratoga, Eisenhower is to see the escorting guided missile cruiser Boston turn on a retaining wall target range installed to produce an umbrella of radioactivity. The cruiser will almost over the entire ship. That serves to wash fall-out contamination into the sea, the navy says.

Navy Banshees Grounded While Crashes Probed

HALIFAX (CP) — Sixteen jet-engined Banshees, backbone of the Royal Canadian Navy's fighter air arm, have been ordered grounded pending investigation of the last two May crashes.

A navy spokesman said it is exceptional to be only a matter of days before the twin-jet fighter-bombers resume their training flights. They are due for service aboard the new aircraft carrier Bonaventure.

Two pilots died when the single-engine Banshees crashed. Virginia pilot was killed May 14 when his Banshee roared into a rocky area after skimming the housetops of a village a few miles from here. A Vancouver pilot died when his plane plunged to a harbor island after a starboard wing broke away.

TRAINING FLIGHTS

Eight of the American - built planes have been flying training missions from the cross-harbor Shearwater air station. Seven of the other eight are posted at Rivers, Man., for training flights.

Air force, navy and other factors on the plane's construction has been under study by the Macdonnell Aircraft Co., St. Louis Mo., builders of the plane.

The order to ground the planes was disclosed late Wednesday, less than 24 hours after Defence minister announced the 600-mile-per-hour planes had been ordered to fly to a 275-m.p.h. cruising speed below 10,000 feet.

It is the first time the Canadian navy has ordered any of its planes grounded.

Once So Dry-Eyed Eyes Ulcerated, Man Now Weeps on Seeing Food

NEW YORK (AP)—A man who once couldn't cry weeps now when he eats.

He couldn't cry because disease had destroyed his tear glands. He had no normal moisture at all in his eyes, so they became dry, irritated, ulcerated. He began going blind.

Surgeons intercepted a duct that brings saliva to the mouth and switched it over to one eye. That provided sightsaving moisture.

But then whenever he ate, or saw food, his eyes watered just like your mouth waters when you're hungry and sit down to dinner.

"I needed a little moisture in my eye, and they gave me too much," the young man said.

Russia Proposes Pledge Against Use Of A-Bombs

U.S. and Russia Far Apart As Ever on Issue of Tests

LONDON (Reuters)—Russia has told the United Nations disarmament subcommittee meeting here that she is willing to take a pledge not to use atomic weapons, Tass news agency reported today.

Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin also told the subcommittee Wednesday that Russia sees no important obstacles to reaching a decision on a substantial cut in military budgets.

Zorin accused British representative Allan Noble, Tass adds, of going back on the words of Western representatives by opposing suggestions for a pledge not to use atomic and hydrogen weapons because he thought it valueless without control.

The Russian delegate added: "We should like to secure the complete and immediate prohibition of atomic weapons but taking into consideration the position of the Western representatives we do not insist on this in our proposals on partial measures."

RUSSIA PROPOSALS

The Soviet Union therefore proposes in the first stage a solemn pledge not to use atomic weapons. No control is required for this. All that is required is the goodwill of all the governments to renounce atomic and hydrogen weapons," Zorin said. "The control and inspection would be used in war, tests and the manufacture.

Early in his press conference he summarized American policy on testing in these words:

"I have tried, and this government has tried, to make the abolition of tests a part of a general system of disarmament, controlled by an international subcommittee.

"If we can do that, we will be enough and very quickly to stop tests. But we do have the job of protecting the security of the United States."

Zorin's comment Wednesday about calling off weapons tests unless backed by a standard Russian line on this issue. It is a line that the U.S. has repeatedly rejected with the argument that an end to testing without adequate international inspection would create new dangers by opening up the possibility of secret violet progress in nuclear weapons development while the Western powers stood still.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and Russia appear to be about as far apart as ever on the issue of calling of atomic weapons tests.

The latest statements by Premier Bulganin and President Eisenhower underline the deadlock which stands in spite of much recent optimism here about the possibility of a first step" disarmament agreement with the Russians in the next year or so.

Furthermore, Eisenhower's press interest in ridding the world of atomic weapons, judged by all available evidence, seems a long way from realization.

In answering a series of questions at his press-conference Wednesday on weapons, testing and other aspects of disarmament, Eisenhower said at one point that he would "like to allay all anxiety in the world by a total and complete ban on all testing, backed upon total disarmament" in the field of nuclear weapons.

WANTS INSPECTION

But he emphasized the requirement of an effective inspection system as one of the principal elements in any acceptable agreement for stopping atomic testing. He repeatedly brought in also the idea that as long as there remains a threat of atomic weapons would be used in war, tests must be continued.

Early in his press conference he summarized American policy on testing in these words:

"I have tried, and this government has tried, to make the abolition of tests a part of a general system of disarmament, controlled by an international subcommittee.

"If we can do that, we will be enough and very quickly to stop tests. But we do have the job of protecting the security of the United States."

Bulganin's comment Wednesday about calling off weapons tests unless backed by a standard Russian line on this issue. It is a line that the U.S. has repeatedly rejected with the argument that an end to testing without adequate international inspection would create new dangers by opening up the possibility of secret violet progress in nuclear weapons development while the Western powers stood still.

Four cars passed over as she lay in the centre of the rails. She was removed only after the train had been cut off and taken to hospital with a possible fractured skull, broken leg, fractured shoulder, multiple cuts and fracture of both ankles.

Police said the woman, whose name they withheld, was despondent because she had been unable to get work and had no money.

POSSIBLY ARRANGE TOUR IN FALL

Robert Hamilton, secretary manager of the Chamber of Commerce, spent yesterday visiting several mines in the Bancroft area attempting to arrange a tour of one of them for Chamber members in the near future.

Although he was given a good reception, mine managers told Mr. Hamilton the firms are too busy producing to meet government contracts to accept any more tours at present.

Mr. Hamilton said that perhaps in the fall a tour can be arranged.

On June 26 Chamber members will tour the St. Lawrence Seaway Project near Cornwall.

Rain Mars Trip Of Naturalists To Crowe Lake

The third spring field trip of the Quinte Field Naturalists was also marred by rain, t did not, however, dampen the enthusiasm of the several carloads of members who visited the farm of Crow Lake as guests of Mrs. S. E. Morton at her summer cottage.

The woods were full of shy but cuttivating wild flowers scattered through the dry leaves. Most of the birds were nesting so that only about a dozen were seen.

There were several flycatchers — the crested, the least and the wood pewee. Bobolinks were plentiful, and there were acres of cowbirds, kingbirds and meadowlarks. Warblers were scarce, only the black and white and chestnut-sided appeared.

In a hawthorn bush Mrs. Brown Thrasher sat on her nest nervously until the last group while her mate sang his lovely twice-over song from a nearby tree.

The greatest thrill of all was the Mourning Warbler singing so happily from the top of a white birch as he turned round and round, exhibiting his beautiful scarlet and black suit.

Another thrill was the indigo bunting with its all over suit of rich dark blue.

Everyone enjoyed a picnic lunch in the room cottage after which Mrs. Morton, the hostess president, thanked Mrs. Morton for her hospitality and discussed plans for future trips. Heavy skies with the promise of more rain sent all home at an early hour.

Award Winner In Dentistry Opens Office

Dr. H. A. Elliott of Parry Sound, winner of the St. George Dental Society Graduate Award in Dentistry at the University of Toronto, has opened an office in the Mayer Building at 377 Front Street.

He was given the award—a gold key—for being the student showing the most proficiency in prosthodontics. Dr. Elliott graduated this year with Class honors in clinical operative dentistry, as well as first class honors in Oral Anatomy, clinical and academic subjects.

Dr. Elliott and his bride of a week ago, Joyce Enes, of Parry Sound, have taken up residence in Belleville and hope soon to become actively engaged in social and service work in their new community.

An ardent hunter and angler, Dr. Elliott appears to be a likely recruit for the Belleville Fish and Game Association, while the Belleville Theatre Guild might like to add another dramatist to its roster. Dr. Elliott should also find excellent opportunities here to show his ability as an orator.

Swimming and skiing are two of his favorite sports and he won't have to go far afield to find a good swimming hole, although he will have to travel a bit to find a steep, snowy slope.

The Elliotts have been here only a short time, the Elliotts are already considered a Belleville is living up to its reputation of being a friendly city.

Quinte School Pupils Build Own Agricultural Classroom

"Learn to do by doing", might well be the motto of the industrial arts department at the Quinte Secondary School.

Emphasizing the practicability of doing just that, students at the Quinte school have built the agricultural class a new $5,000 building, doing the biggest share of the work themselves and at a considerable saving to the school.

Wednesday at the final assembly for the school year, the industrial arts class-through its instructor, Mr. Abel Nightingale, turned the completed building over to school board chairman, Brooks Allen. The board chairman then turned the building back to school principal, Leslie Reid, who in turn passed it along to agricultural teacher, W. O. Cochrane.

Mr. Reid said the 24 by 60 foot frame building would be used for poultry and beekeeping studies, storage of agricultural equipment, and as a lumber storage for the industrial parts department.

Only the foundation of the building was contracted, the framing and the balance of the construction being done by the industrial arts students under the direction of their instructor, Mr. Nightingale. Actual cost of the structure was about $5,000 with students putting in roughly 3,000 man-hours on the job.

Mr. Allen commended Brooks Allen pointed out that the building was provided without direct cost to the board. The cost will be paid for over a period of years from the school agricultural grant.

Premier Frost Says Tax Sharing Is Unrealistic

TORONTO (CP)—Premier Frost says the present federal-provincial tax sharing arrangements are unfair and unrealistic.

"In saying this," he said in an address Wednesday night to the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, "I am speaking to you as Canadians and not in a parochial or provincial sense.

"I am devoid of political ambition and I won't enter any government other than the one, I am in, What I say in this job, it is my intention to go back to my home community of Lindsay."

Neither, he stated, was he opposed to equalization payments to other provinces, as had been suggested.

"I do advocate them," he said, "and think that some of the provinces should receive more."

But the present tax sharing arrangements were unfair.

Payments to other provinces, however, were based on Ontario's situation, and if the basis was not realistic in Ontario, it would work elsewhere.

Ontario could not operate in a vacuum. It must have services, and the provinces and municipalities had to provide them at a level of environment in which individual citizens could live.

Division of taxes between federal and provincial governments was a matter of give and take, one another but one of "equitable sharing" of something equally valuable.

Under the present arrangement, which came into effect Jan. 1, provinces are limited to the levying of corporation taxes and 10 per cent of personal income taxes. These proportions, Mr. Frost said, should be 15 per cent each.

ALBERTA NEEDED

Proof of the inadequacy could be found in what had happened since the formula came into effect. Ontario had to find necessary to impose additional taxes, including an extra two-per-cent corporation tax which represented double taxation. If that had to be done in the next year, what of the years to come?

The unfortunate effects of the present arrangement were already apparent and the situation could not improve until provinces and municipalities found themselves in more favorable circumstances.

During the next 20 years, capital expenditures in Ontario alone from private sources — totalled $11,275,000,000.

The sum might sound staggering but hey spelled employment, wages, and a better standard of living "if we use common sense in this country."

George Hees, PC Candidate Heard at Trenton Rally

TRENTON (Special)—George Hees, M.P. for Toronto Broadview told a Progressive Conservative rally here last night that the greatest contrast in this election between John Diefenbaker living in the future while St. Laurent lived in the past trying to sell the people. The former president of the National Conservative Association appealed to the largest gathering for a political meeting in Trenton this election; not to believe the Liberal claim that Canada was enjoying an era of prosperity. There are 30 per cent more unemployment than this time last year, Mr. Hees said, adding that figures showed that at present 18,000 more people were out of jobs, while normally employment is on the upward trend.

Some 650 people filled the auditorium of the new Trenton Community Memorial Centre to hear Mr. Hees speech-making. Many of those attending followed a parade a quarter of a mile long from across town on the west side of the river on the east side of the bridge. The Quinte Pipe Band led the parade, with a long line of the procession of cars conveying leading Conservatives along with Hastings South candidate, Lee Grills, to the main street and to the hall.

Comparing the Conservative views on inflation Mr. Hees said that the negative attitude adopted by the Liberal had put Canada in a dangerous position where employment continues to mount he explained it will be very hard to keep down prices.

SCORED GOVT. ON POLICY

Mr. Hees scored the government's policy of restricting credit and maintained that the result was that the average small businessmen had been forced out of business. The conservatives' remedy for correcting the situation would be to increase production which in turn would bring the volume of money up to an equal level. He advocated doing away with restrictions and doing everything to induce the people to produce more and more. An expanding economy not a shrinking economy is what is needed, he asserted. Conservatives see things like prosperity and old people he continued. Under the present set-up it's a case of big fellow gets more and more and the small fellow going out of business.

Mr. Hees favored increasing the old age pension to $55, He contended that the Liberals had balled the pensioners by granting them a $10 raise, which in reality amounted to two extra cups of coffee a day. He said the government had taken advantage of the' older people here for 10 years and pulled the get organized. The Conservative idea is to give the older people what they've come a good deal every consideration and Sincerely, Mr. Hees recommended the system the United States now employs. He said he did not believe in the welfare state but was opposed to set up a commission to study the old age problem.

Visiting mayor, Her Worship Grace MacFarlane, of Leaming-ton, Ont., was called on the platform by Mr. Diefenbaker to say a few words. "I'm just like to tell the women she said we women are the ones who vote so let's use it." She appealed for the women to get out and vote, assurment that will consider both the municipalities and the provinces.

CANDIDATE PRAISES SPEAKER

Candidate Lee Grills referred to Mr. Hees as a man who had done an outstanding job not only for the Progressive Conservative party but all of Canada. Making reference to the vote by the armed forces overseas he revealed the lists were only made available to him late Saturday and could not send out letters when the vote is to be taken on Monday next. He said he produced a letter he received from overseas during the last federal election campaign. Only the Liberal name appeared on the ballots then and a change in legislation has been uncovered in this campaign, he charged.

Introducing the local scene Mr. Grills pointed out that the Trenton Air Base was colonized by the people of Canada, not the Liberal party. He commended the certain trust in this regard had been placed in the hands of an appointed representative of the government who had betrayed that trust unjustly and unreasonably. Mr. Grills disclosed that the deepening of a channel in the Bay of Quinte east of Belleville had been brought to his attention. The Canada Cement Company had offered to contribute to the project but their proposal was rejected flatly. Could there be some other motive behind this in the mind of the opposition? Think it over, he suggested. He figured all

Only God above knows
How we miss you.

COUNCIL VOTES

close to half an hour, Ald. Graham denied several accusations which he said had been made at the previous meeting.

NOT HASTY MOTION.

He denied that the motion had been either hasty or high-handedly placed before council and pointed out that during the last terms of the city's contract with Mr. Herring, either the city or Mr. Herring could terminate the contract by giving three months notice.

"It was clearly understood by Mr. Herring when he came to Belleville that the city could terminate his contract by giving three months' notice, and that he could not terminate the contract by giving the same notice.

He denied there was any repudiation of contract stating there was only termination of contract in accordance with the understanding of both parties.

He said he was sorry for Mr. Herring and was sympathetic with his family but pointed out that Mr. Herring came to Belleville with a clear understanding the terms of his contract.

NOT CHANGING SYSTEM

Charges heard at last week's meeting that council only could make up its minds could not either be to the city manager form of government rather than to the man Mr. Herring, were unsympathetic. The motion did not mean reversion to the committee form of government or an acting city manager had already been supported for the 1957 term.

Ald. Graham said he was sorry for Mr. Herring's passing. City Treasurer Drury Denyes, proposed as acting city commissioner, in the motion concerning Mr. Herring carry.

"Mr. Denyes has done nothing to undermine Mr. Herring and has in no way lobbied or acted to oust Mr. Herring," he said.

He went on to say that the amendment to make Denyes acting city manager was not Mr. Denyes' doing. Ald. Graham said he had proposed the amendment because "he was prepared to do something to continue the city manager form of government."

He said he had been no amendment to Ald. Whalen's motion, the city commissioner was elected by the boards."

He said that Mr. Denyes had been reluctant to take on the job but felt it was his duty to the city.

SAYS CHANCE GIVEN

To claims that Mr. Herring had not been given a chance, Ald. Graham said he had been in Belleville as city manager for a year, seven months of which he had had the advantage of working with committees. He did not come in cold, but had the active support of all committees.

He said that only on two occasions had Mr. Herring not had the support of council. One of these occasions had been early in the year when Mr. Herring had recommended the dismissal of city clerk Mrs. Anne Haggerty.

"City manager form of government is only as good as the man in office," he said, suggesting that surveys had shown where the city manager form of government had failed it was because the man in office had not carried out his duties.

MANAGER'S DUTIES

The duty of a city manager he said, was to examine and co-ordinate information, to assess problems in the light of what is best for the city and recommend accordingly to council.

He referred on one occasion where he said Mr. Herring had tabled a recommendation to council and later had been forced to admit that he had not given the matter enough consideration.

Two primary qualifications of a city manager, according to Mr. Graham were to be a competent administrator and act with diplomacy.

LACK OF ENGINEERS

He said one of Mr. Herring's qualifications was that of an engineer and pointed to the sad lack of engineering personnel in Belleville. The basis for hiring Mr. Herring was council feeling that the city would not have to hire another engineer.

Ald. Graham said Mr. Herring had declined to assist in the engineering department until such time as additional staff ara hired. In doing so he suggested Mr. Herring had shown lack of diplomacy.

"Any diplomat would have pitched in and assisted in the engineering dept," he said.

He said his decision with regard to Mrs. Herring had been a difficult one but was one he had been forced to make because of duty.

"Much as I like Mr. Herring, my decision is that he is not properly qualified," he said.

Alderman Les Digby asked for presentation of a committee to investigate the charges by Ald. Graham and any other charges which might be laid against Mr. Herring. Later, on the suggestion was changed calling for the matter to be referred to a county judge.

After considerable discussion the motion was defeated by council.

Speaking to his motion Ald. Digby referred to the petition which had been circulated calling for action such as he had suggested.

SOLICITOR GIVES OPINION

He felt that an investigation was owed to Mr. Herring and also to the citizens.

"The whole thing is ridiculous" objected Ald. Doug Moxam, declaring that the circulation of the petition had gotten "under my collar."

"No one tells me what to do in council," he said, asking that the matter be dealt with properly.

City Solicitor Pringle said in giving his opinion the section of the municipal act allowing a county judge to act on matters of dispute with municipal employees had to do with malfeasance or misconduct. He doubted if a judge would accept reference on the hiring or firing of a city manager.

Ald. Ben Safe and Robert Temple declared that in all fairness he could not see how council could do otherwise than submit the matter to a judge. "I don't see how we can refuse," he said.

Ald. Robertson Collins declared there was no suggestion of malfeasance on the part of council in connection with Mr. Herring. "The motion is entirely out of order," he said. "It is implying things not suggested by Ald. Graham.

Ald. Graham noted that charges of lack of diplomacy or lack of efficiency were difficult to define. "A bill of indictment regarding lack of efficiency just does not make sense."

VOTE TO REFER LOST

The vote on referring the matter of an investigation to a judge was lost by a 9-5 count.

With decks again cleared for discussion on the main motion concerning Mr. Herring's dismissal, Mayor Forrester declared the original notice of motion implied renegotiation yet when the motion was brought up it was for the termination of contract.

She also declared the amendment by Ald. Graham naming City Treasurer Drury S. Denyes as acting city manager was ill timed.

Ald. Graham occupying the chair while Mayor Forrester debated the motion, called attention to the fact that the matter of the amendment had been debated and voted on at the last meeting. He asked Mayor Forrester to confine her remarks to the main motion.

Mayor Forrester read a letter from the city auditor which noted it might be considered a conflict for its treasurer to be named acting city manager.

Mayor Forrester continued noting that at budget meetings early in the year council had voted to hire an engineer and commissioner of works, thus establishing that council felt these positions were needed to be filled.

She said if Ald. Whalen's motion was passed Mr. Herring's salary of $10,00 as well as $1,000 severance pay would be wasted. Also it would be defying the will of the electorate as well as principles being at stake.

ALD. BLAMES COUNCIL.

Ald. Reg Boyle said he did not blame Mr. Herring as much as he did council. He said Mr. Herring had admitted prior to being hired that he had little municipal experience. But council was impressed and he was hired," he said.

Ald. Digby compared the salary of the city manager with that of the high school principal-itor and the public schools administrator. He noted the hospital administrator was receiving $10,000, plus car allowance, while the schools administrator was receiving "somewhere between nine and ten thousand."

"If those jobs are worth that salary, then the job which we expect the city manager to do is worth what council agreed to pay him," he said.

"What does council expect for city manager, a stooge? asked Ald. Digby. "Do we want special consideration for certain aldermen or someone who will treat everybody impartially?"

He suggested that any applicant looking for the job as city manager here should consider the matter well before coming to Belleville. "The city and security at all in his present position," he said. "One of which is hypothesizing he could be out of a job in a year."

Ald. Jo. Tice took exception to the previous speaker's remarks with respect to council wanting a stooge for manager and said also that he felt Mr. Denyes was capable of doing the job as acting city manager.

NOT FAVORABLE TO OPINION

And he was not favorable to any for offering opinions as to how council should conduct its business.

"If the auditor does not like the way we do business he can submit his resignation and we will get another," he said.

Finally Ald. Hyde claimed that while Ald. Graham was now opposed to Herring he was in a year ago had pressured Mr. Herring into coming to Belleville. Ald. Hyde, at Graham's assertion, he said it was definitely understood by council that Mr. Herring was not expected to work as an engineer.

Ald. Hyde also said that in the lack of specific charges against Mr. Herring it appeared there was opposition to him was for personal reasons.

He stressed that continuity in the administration of city business was essential and that what he offered in the city manager type of government. It was his desire to see the city run. That this form of government which had caused him to support Ald. Graham's motion last week to appoint Mr. Denyes as acting manager.

One of the reasons why those favoring Ald. Whalen's motion favored the ousting of Mr. Herring was that they wanted to go back to the committee system which gave aldermen more power as chairmen of committees.

"I am opposed to the action of this council," he said accusing it of playing petty party politics and making a farce of city government.

What we need more than a new city manager is a new city council," he said.

ADMIRED STAND

"The farce of city council was now a better show than the TV programs," he said.

Ald. Gerald Hyde urged that council decide "one way or other" on the motion being debated and said that in his opinion no one could misunderstand council's stand.

"Until tonight there had been only one issue — that of dismissal," he said Mr. Herring."

Referring to Ald. Graham's claim of lack of diplomacy on the part of Mr. Herring, Ald. Hyde said a diplomat was what what was wanted as city manager.

"We don't want a man kowtowing to council," he said.

"We have got to be fair and give the man a chance," Ald. Hyde said in conclusion. At the same time he doubted that a city manager form of government could ever succeed with 15 councillors. "There are too many opinions," he said. "A mayor and six aldermen would be enough."

With debate concluded Mayor Forrester called for a vote on the motion. Favoring the motion calling for termination of Mr. Herring's contract were Aldermen Jos. Collins, Graham, Moxam, McCabe, Safe, Temple, Tice and Whalen.

Opposing were Mayor Forrester, and Ald. Digby, C. L. Hyde, Gerald Hyde, and Dr. J. Stock. Alderman Frank Grandmaison, who last week opposed the motion was absent because of illness but in letter written by him urging that the terms of Ald. Whalen's motion not be carried out was read by Mayor Forrester.

Speaking briefly on council following his dismissal Mr. Herring denied an earlier claim by Ald. E. Temple that he had gone over the head of council to hire an outside solicitor to present the city's application for annexation.

"If you want to levy that charge, levy it against last year's commissioner," he said. "It was they who contacted the outside solicitor."

He said he had come to Belleville to do a good and honest job as city manager, a job which included long term planning.

He said, however, that no man alone could make the city management system work, that it was up to the elected representatives to give full support and co-operation.

"Council has not given me that co-operation and council must take the responsibility if the city manager system has failed."

Brighton Bows To Combinettes By 5-0 Score

Belleville Combinettes blanked Brighton 5-0 last night in the opening game of the Eastern Ontario Ladies' softball league.

Linda Wagg turned in a neat two-hit effort on the winner's mound, firing third strikes by ten while walking two. Betty Empey was her battery mate.

Georgina Way spearheaded the Combinette attack with three safeties. Carolyn Baker and Linda Wagg each collected a pair.

Belleville's next game is on Monday night when they visit the RCAF squad.

Cadets Make Good Showing At Trap Shoot

The B. C. I. and V. S. cadet rifle team had its introduction to trap shooting at the Quinte Trap and Gun Club on the 3rd concession of Thurlow, Wednesday at 4.00 p.m. The cadet marksmen found the moving bird and shotgun different from the stationary target and rifle. Some however did quite well. All eager fired ten rounds each, and the best of each relay tried another ten rounds. There was no question of a winner; Bruce Hall of Plainfield broke 8 out of 10 and 9 out of 10, quite a record for never having even seen the procedure previously. Don Whitford broke 11, Bob Morris 10, Colin Box 9, Bill Gardner 9, Danny Moon 7, Charlie Rowbotham 6. Others who tried out were Jim Davis, Jim Stansfield, Ron Dulmage, Harry Wilson, Maurice Wager, Bob Yome, John McMahon, Larry Potter. Fortunately time ran out and the cadet instructors didn't have to compete.

Dr. Bannister, Kingston, Named New President

RENFREW (CP) — Retiring president Rev. H. A. Mellow of Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church of Canada here Wednesday the United Church has in its membership "to great a number who stand with the morass of the masses and not with the disciples of Christ," declared.

Many members join the United Church because it is "easy" easy church to join" and many do not know its doctrines, the Oshawa minister said in the annual conference here which embraces the presbyteries of Lindsay, Oshawa, Peterborough, Cobourg, Belleville, Kingston and Renfrew.

"We need more deep inspiration but information," he added.

He called for a reorganization of boundaries of church charges to ease the work of both rural and urban charges.

In rural areas preachers must travel many miles between small congregations while in the city ministers are "breaking their backs and getting fallen arches" in an effort to keep up with growing populations, he said.

Rev. Dr. W. F. Bannister of Kingston was elected on the third ballot to succeed Mr. Mellow. He was picked over Rev. E. C. Kellow-ay of Cobourg, Rev. Dr. D. K. Burns, Brockville, and Rev. T. S. Maxwell, Peterborough.

Other officers were re-elected. They are Rev. J. J. Crawford, Gananoque, secretary; Rev. P. J. Hommerson, Brighton, assistant; Rev. J. E. Glover, Marmora, treasurer; Frank Weldon, Lindsay, statistician; Rev. D. S. Summers, Carleton Place, archivist and historian; Rev. R. J. B. McNaught, Lanark, press representative.

Two Men Drown Near Renfrew

RENFREW (CP)—Two members of a four-man fishing party drowned Wednesday night when their boat capsized on White Lake about 15 miles southeast of the Ottawa Valley town.

The victims were identified as Ray Pershick and Robert Wallace, Sr.

The two others in the boat, Leonard Vincent and his son Jerry, 13, managed to save themselves.

It was reported their boat capsized on the lake just before dark.

CLING TO BOAT

Vincent told police he didn't know what caused the mishap but evidently the boat in which the men were riding capsized. He and his son clung to the overturned craft for about an hour and a half.

Finally an unidentified American tourist using the lake, took Vincent and son aboard.

No trace of the boat or the bodies of the victims has been found. All are from Renfrew.

Dr. H.C. Coppel Leaving City to Continue Work

Dr. H. C. Coppel, who has been studying the biological control of Canadian forest insect pests for the last 14 years, is leaving the Entomology Laboratory in Belleville today to carry on similar work at the University of Wisconsin.

The doctor and his wife, the former Joyce Hasberg of Hamilton, will leave their home at 278 Victoria Ave. Belleville with them their children, David, age 5, and Ann, age 8 months. They will live in Madison, Wis.

A graduate of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph with a Bachelor of Science degree, Dr. Coppel then attended the University of Wisconsin, where he graduated with a Master of Science degree. Later he graduated from the New York State College of Forestry at Syracuse with his Doctor of Philosophy paper.

He studied the life cycle and habits of the spruce budworm in the Fraser Canyon of British Columbia from 1944 to 1948 and introduced predacious insects that preyed on these lifters of spruce and balsam forests. Dr. Coppel did similar work in other parts of Canada.

He is a member of The Belleville Lodge, A.F. and A.M., No. 122, and is on the executive of the Sons of Jacob Synagogue. Dr. Coppel is also a member of the Entomological Society of Ontario.

Many young men in Belleville will remember him as being the man who for a time conducted a basketball team to the Ontario finals a few years ago.

NOON-HOUR INCIDENT

This is written more in anger than in sorrow. Certainly anger was the only emotion as the big, red car, travelling east on Bridge Street, made a swift right turn onto Front Street—and almost hit a young boy who had just stepped off the curb to cross to the east side of Front Street, on a green light, at 11.45 a.m. Thursday.

The civilized bystander might have raised his eyebrows, but not his fingers to tap indignantly on the glass of the car door. Anger, though, wipes out the veneer of civilization.

"Why don't you look where you are going?' the car's driver was asked in tones hardly dulcet.

"I was looking where I was going; otherwise I wouldn't have been able to stop like that," replied the driver.

He was right. It had been a magnificent example of coordination between a skilful driver and a mechanically-sound car; the instant spotting of the youngster a foot or so from the curb as the corner was turned, the fast reaction which applied pressure to the brake pedal instantaneously and the way the car dipped to a stop miraculously still inches away from the child. All were part of a pattern proving alertness and skill.

The man evidently thought that that made him a good driver.

He was wrong. Just how bad a driver he was was shown in his next remark.

"But I noticed that the boy was not watching where he was going," he continued, the heat of the bystander generating an answering warmth in his reply.

"The boy didn't have to watch; he was crossing on a green light," the bystander spat back.

A few more words were exchanged before the driver proceeded on his way to his destiny. There is, alas, not much doubt what that will be. In spite of his physical skill, his mental attitude will almost certainly, sooner or later, bring physical injury to somebody, to some stranger like the boy, to his own loved ones riding with him or to himself — all events which will be regrettable, although perhaps not equally so.

LOW AND SOCIALISM

Solon Low, the national leader of the Social Credit party, told a meeting at Madoc this week that the "old parties," that is the Liberals and the Progressive Conservatives, have been carrying Canada "straight into socialism and communism."

The charge that either the Liberals or the Progressive Conservatives are pushing Canada toward communism is so absurd that it deserves no comment. That anybody, some people, though, who hold that with respect to a movement towards socialism Mr. Low's charge would be more difficult to refute. This view, we suggest, is an error arising from confusing measures which are "socialistic," such as old age pensions, family allowances, farm support prices and hospitalization, with socialism. Socialism, if it by means anything at all must involve the public ownership of the means of production. Even the existence of crown companies cannot be regarded as a proof the country is being carried "straight into socialism." The Ontario Hydro may be publicly owned, but that does not mean that it was conceived and is now operated by socialists.

The real question about socialism in Canada is not whether the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives embrace it, but whether it is the creed of any sizeable party. The CCF says it is a socialist party, but in the light of the revisions of the Regina manifesto and of the conduct of the firmly entrenched CCF provincial government in Saskatchewan this claim might be contested by many socialists.

PLANTING LESS WHEAT

Farmers are grappling with the wheat surplus in the most realistic way possible; they are taking prairie acres out of wheat. Acreage has been cut to the point where less wheat has been seeded on the prairies this spring than for 14 years.

But this acreage has also been cut sharply. Inability to sell the crop and the recent five cent reduction in the initial price to be paid by the Wheat Board doubtless combined to reduce plantings of this crop.

Acreage released from hard wheat has largely been taken up with the more saleable durum wheat, barley and flax. There is a small increase in rye, and varying increases in some of the special crops.—(Winnipeg Free Press).

LUCKY LAD

Dear Mother, in a cap and gown
Your little boy appeared,
I wonder were you looking down
And was your spirit cheered,
And did you feel so far away
When he was at your knee,
That possibly would come the day
When honored he would be?

That little boy of bygone days—
You loved whate'er occurred—
Was wondering when they spoke of praise
If what was said you heard.

Friends never know, and never care
Just what has been achieved;
But what you say unto a man
Your little boy received.

The man who wore that cap and gown,
Forgetting all behind,
The up-hill struggle to renown,
That you had you in mind.
And though his hair is silver gray,
Grateful and proud and glad
Was still, as oft you used to say,
"Your lucky little lad."

He Does Not Know Women

Milwaukee Journal

There's a flaw in the course that Dr. Percy J. Allen of the University of Pittsburgh has been giving wives of business executives.

Don't be concerned, Dr. Agnew has been telling the ladies "if your husband goes to a cocktail party and gets drunk and blonde". Take it easy with money—don't try to keep up with the Joneses. Don't get jealous. And there is that statement by Dr. Samuel Johnson to a young friend: "Sir, I would advise you to marry a fool; for if you marry a sensible woman she will consult her husband, and he will be a fool."

Dr. Allen's course is fine. It is telling a drunk to stop drinking and good advice, too. But with that thought, maybe the flaw in Dr. Agnew's course becomes clear. He must just doesn't understand women.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE LONELY ROAD

I have a painting called "the Lonely Road." It is done by the fine American painter Eugene Higgins. It is the picture of a man and I have often wished I would say. He is ascending a steep hill, looking quite burdened, with a heavy staff as a help to his travels behind him, treading silently and undoubtedly in his dog meditative mood.

The painting is rather somber in its tone and perhaps that is why it attracted me many years ago, and I have thought much and long about it for years. It has seemed to me to be a picture of life, when loneliness comes to us much of one and when the burdens get heavy, with only the staff of one's belief earthly friend as a guidance and as an assurance against loneliness and fear.

As I have looked upon this work the question has intruded: Where are that burdened man and his dog going? Did he have a family, children, friends? What could his destination be? Is it, at last, to arrive at a time of life when loneliness leaves us back upon ourselves and tells us how dependent we are? I am reminded of that line in Tagore's "Gitanjali" where he says: "From where comes my restlessness? And there is that statement by Dr. Samuel Johnson to a young friend: "Sir, I would advise you to marry a fool; for if you marry a sensible woman she will consult her husband, and he will be a fool."

Wendell Phillips, the brilliant orator, met Nora Perry, the poet, on the street of Boston one day and inquired where she was going. She said: "To see a friend." "Oh, take me with you," said Phillips. "I want to meet one!" Loneliness is not necessarily religious. Lincoln was a very lonely man. His favorite poem was that one by William Knox, "Oh, Why Should the Spirit of Mortal Be Proud?" Loneliness of person is the loneliness he is apt to be.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One really great singer can ruin a song for years to come. Enzo Pinza's death calls to mind the fact that he was the only man in the world who could sing "Some Enchanted Evening." Other artists tried it. But every time you had heard Pinza sing it, it was his and his alone. There was something pitiable about the efforts of all others.

Another instance is the great Paul Robeson, with his wonderful old lullaby, "Lindy Lou." Thousands of people had sung it for years. Rather good contraltos had worn it thin. It was a sweet, familiar song for a generation before Robeson. It sounded good, no matter who sang it.

Then Robeson sang it. He put it on a record. And in one flash of beauty he made it his and his alone. "Lindy Lou" in a sense died when Robeson sang it. Died, at least, for a time until this generation dies, and nobody is left who remembers how he sang it. In the radio the other day I heard a famous American baritone trying to sing it. It is twenty years since Robeson recorded it. Many an improvement has come into orchestras and orchestration in that time; many a new trick of presentation. But this baritone—a man whose other numbers are highly polished—sang a pitiful cropper with "Lindy Lou." Only those who heard Robeson would know it. But the producer of the radio show of half a dozen phone calls and a dozen letters of commendation for recommending that the baritone get hold of the Robeson record and listen to it. If he does, he will not try "Lindy Lou" again.

Happily, the number of us who know how Robeson sang it is steadily diminishing, and there will become shortly when "Lindy Lou" will be on the song sheets of many and whatever takes the place of barber shop quartets will wear it into new tunes. But it will be just another old sweet song. Nobody will be left who knew that for a decade or two, it had the tone of glory, when it was stolen away, abducted, kidnapped, enslaved by one great black man.

Britain's Border Collies

By Sydney Moorhouse author of "The British Sheepdog"

In every country where dogs are required to gather and work sheep the demand is for the breed known as the Border Collie—a name given due to its place of origin — the Border hills of England and Scotland, where sheep uplands have immortalised by the novelist, Sir Walter Scott.

This type of sheepdog seems to have been evolved about the beginning of the 19th century by those shrewd Scottish flockmasters and shepherds who realized the value of a highly trained dog skilled in gathering and working the sheep.

In those days sheep—and cattle—were walked from Scotland to the markets of the north of England and even farther south, and each enlisted as well as a sheep and cattle, changed hands. Here the breed thus early began to extend its range.

Although the Border Collie has become world-famous and in the last twelve months nearly 2,000 of these dogs have left Britain to work on sheep runs in the farms of the world—including Australia, New Zealand, Uruguay and the United States. Here the two countries have been importing Border Collies for more than half a century and there is a close relationship between the leading families of dogs there and those being used in the United Kingdom.

All have their origin in a remarkable collie known as Telfer's Old Hemp, a sheepdog born in the Northumberland, England, township of Otterburn, in 1893 and bred by the Telfer family, who are still famous for their dogs. In fact, the dog which are bred, trained and sold by Adam Telfer, the present member of the family, are known pretty well all over the world.

Old Hemp was soon recognised as the source of his dog's generation and seems to have been capable of transmitting his outstanding qualities of work to his prepotency, to his immediate offspring. It is the opinion that Border Collie pedigrees are as clearly defined as any in the dog world.

The early importations of Border Collies into Australia and New Zealand by such men as Sir Samuel Wilkinson of Tasmania, and James Lillico, who built the Scottish border for the Marlborough district of New Zealand's South Island in the 1890's, are still behind the dogs removed from Old Hemp himself.

The same strain went from Australia to the United States where it is found in Palmer's Nevada and Utah Rock, the two most outstanding American collies of recent years; and to South Africa, Rhodesia and Kenya Colony, where Mrs. Violet Carnegy, Nyabiti, plans to revive the Kenya Sheepdog Society as soon as conditions permit. And both the present British International champion, Mr. G. R. Redpath's Moss, and the 1956 winner, Mr. James M. Wilson's Wiston Wire, recently sold in the United States at a high figure — have been traced back to Old Hemp.

But long before Britain had evolved the Border Collie it had been the lead by being the first country to use dogs for working sheep rather than merely guarding them.

In the 16th century, Dr. Johannes Caius wrote of the English shepherd's dogs "at the hearing of his master's voice . . . bringeth the wandering wethers and straying sheep into the selfsame place where his master will and work is to have them" an account that might well have been written of the present day working sheepdog.

Doubtless it was the comparatively early extinction of the wolf and other savage beasts in Britain that prompted the shepherd to think of his dog as a "companion" rather than "guard".

Although the breed then used was akin to the old English Sheepdog, that change of duty was an important stage on the way to the development of the shepherd's dog as we know it today.

The idea of testing the "skill" of the sheepdog by a special contest began mainly as the result of the idea of R. J. Lloyd Price, a Welsh squire, who promoted the first sheepdog trial in 1873.

Others followed in different parts of Britain and in 1906 the International Sheepdog Society was formed with its aim: "To stimulate public interest in the sheepherd and his calling, and to ensure the better management of stock by improving the sheepdog." Since then, except during both War I and II, the Society has promoted annual championship trials.

Now, as the International Sheepdog Society enters the second half century of its existence, something of its influence on the breed's development is to be seen in many other countries. Australian organisations on the same lines have been formed in New South Wales, Victoria and Queensland; New Zealand has the New Zealand Working Sheepdog Association and the United States the North American Sheepdog Society; all these bodies being affiliated with Britain's International Sheepdog Society as their model.

They promote their own championship trials, and through these differ in order to suit the needs of their respective countries, the basic principle is the same. Each body has its own system of registration and collies transferred from one country to another are duly recorded, so that a world register of the breed is kept.

Britain, the original home of the working sheepdog, still retains the chief farm of the Border Collie, the descendant of Old Hemp and now the recognized breed for sheep working throughout the world.

Personal Health Talks

Nutrition and Fertility

A reader told us recently how she had prayed for nine years for a "bundle from heaven" and then, a few months after she had started taking the iodin ration, conceived. Coincidence?

It has been shown in the laboratory that sterility occurs in both male and female rats on calcium – deficient diets.

A great deal of publicity has been given to vitamin E as an anti-sterility principle. In animals, vitamin E deficiency seems to cause sterility in the male and failure in the female to carry pregnancy to full term. Just what bearing this may have on human sterility or abortion is conjectural. It is only in animals, such as rats, that deficiency or lack of vitamin E is known to have a definite effect on reproduction.

Male rats, born of mothers on normal diets and then at weaning placed on E-deficient diets, become sterile in time. Even as far as 150 days old. If such rats are put on normal diets once more E-deficient diets they never become fertile.

Please bear in mind, all of the statements I am quoting here apply to animal nutrition. As already mentioned, the effects of adequate intake or deficiency or deprivation of vitamin E on human nutrition are conjectural.

However, it is well to remember, in any circumstance, that the best source of vitamin E is wheat. Plain wheat as it comes from the thresher.

The vitamin E in wheat is in the heart or germ of the grain. Fresh germinated wheat germ contains perhaps six times as much as the wheat itself does. The vitamin E is in the wheat germ oil. The most potent form of it is in the wheat kernel, provided the wheat is eaten within a day or two after grinding or, still better, freshly cracked in your own coffee mill or in the hand or power mills.

It is certain, says Bicknell and Prescott's The Vitamin in Medicine (authoritative medical textbook not available to general public), that wheat germ oil cannot be stored for long without loss in wheat germ. Wheat germ loses its vitamin value when it is kept for a few days. The best way to assure one's intake of vitamin E, is to eat wheat, B-complex and A,-is simply to restore whole wheat to one's diet.

Education On Credit

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

Time payment plans are certainly no novelty these days. Almost anything, from linen, to buyer is offered a "buy-now-pay-later" plan. You can even finance a vacation in Florida or a trip to Europe that way.

But just recently there has come a suggestion for a new application of the idea; and it is one that might be of immense value to the country. It comes from Dr. Hilda Neatby, president of Ottawa's Carleton University, who proposes that Britain adopt the system in this way. It would mean that a student would not have to borrow what money he needs could get a university education, and pay for it in later years when he had developed his own earning power.

Dr. Neatby points out that university students have borrowed money to finance their courses, and that this is not new. And that the problem is always to find satisfactory terms for such a loan. Someone had to back a note at the bank, put mortgage on the old homestead or something similar. Dr. Bissell's idea, as we understand it, is that the students own prospective earning power be treated as sufficient backing. As a matter of fact, there are more jobs for university graduates than there are young men and women to take them, that shouldn't be too difficult to find.

Universities now try to help worthy students financially, and some of them have repayment clauses. What this does is to extend the principle of the scheme; and that requires substantially more of money to get the idea going.

This approach might appeal to Canadian industrialists. Ottawa has a keen interest in increasing the flow of university graduates. The newly-formed Canada Council, which has relegated to it responsibility for the scheme; and that requires substantially more of money to get the idea going.

This approach might appeal to Canadian industrialists. Ottawa has a keen interest in increasing the flow of university graduates. The newly-formed Canada Council, which has relegated to it responsibility for the scheme; and that requires substantial grants of money, would have to be very carefully operated, and would require a substantial administrative staff, but it might also work a hardship on students and those who would find it a burden, particularly if they planned to get married soon after finishing their courses.

But in an expanding economy, these problems can be overcome. What we need urgently are more university-trained people, and this appears to be an excellent way of doing it.

Hunt Gold Under Tower

Montreal Gazette

It is difficult to imagine anything good that Nazi bombing did to Britain but archaeologists and historians do find that it did have a very welcome effect in their particular fields. When the rubble was cleared away in Bristol, a town, a whole mass of buried material was disclosed.

In London, a corner of the ornate Temple Bar Memorial, marked the mile-square City was removed. Sir Christopher Wren's Temple Bar, the Fleet Street church, was saved. The Wren masterpiece. When it was dismantled and carefully removed, it proved that a church Wren had used in London's Great Fire had been built on the site before it.

Further digging revealed that there had been another church on the site before that and, in the end, a Roman burial ground, with coffins and household utensils. There was found on an even lower level.

It is in the spirit of these discoveries that the Ministry of Works has consented to excavate, before it restores, the floor of the famous Tower of London. Difficulty, the search is not another project for the original Roman wall. Actually, it is to find if Charles Dickens, the author and journalist, is right in believing that an Elizabethan dungeon is lost under the room.

Quarrell believes that the fortune was extracted by the Governor of the Tower from his associates, Guy Fawkes and the Cromwell regime 300 years ago. The governor, Sir Allen Apsley, is dead, was accused of this blackmail following the Cromwell period, but the accusers anything. From a secret passage leading all the way to the royal palace in Madrid, to the secret hiding-place of the ghostly lady who haunts the Tower itself we toocked underneath 'em.

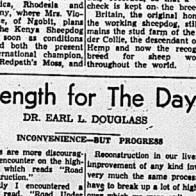
Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

INCONVENIENCE—BUT PROGRESS



Few things are more discouraging than to encounter a highway a sign which reads "Road Under Construction—Sign of Progress." It did little to take the bumps out of the ride or the unpleasantness of the road's unsightliness. But there could be no doubt that when roads are under construction, it is convenient as this makes it for the traveller, it is nevertheless a sign of progress. We can't keep up the old to get the new. Our highways must change with the times. always have meant plunging through fields, forests, and more pleasant ride—progress.

Reconstruction in our lives and improvement of any kind involves pretty much the same process. We have to give up a lot of things over which we were quite content to pass in former days. It means going over long distances and sometimes even tunneling through. The old ideas, prejudices, bitter memories, jealousies, and hatreds) have to be firmly shoved aside. It is not possible to lay the new road until the old has been taken up. It is not possible to put aside or carted away to make room for the new.

Roads under construction mean inconvenience, but they also mean progress.

Says Imports Harm Farmers' Home Market

ROSLIN — The Farmers' Union of Roslin held its monthly meeting recently with 40 members present.

Mr. Fred Elliott, president, presided and led in a song service. Business was discussed, followed by a placette by Margaret Bates.

Mr. Elliott introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Tom Kelly, of Tweed local, who, being a grass-root farmer and specializing in potatoes, brought to the attention of the meeting the difficulties the potato growers of Canada faced to obtain a market here at home, on account of the imports of American potatoes coming in duty free, the year around, except for six weeks in the summer.

He told of the cool receptions potato growers received in Ottawa, every time turned down flat, only to go back home, and try to sell potatoes against imports, duty free, with other farmers' agencies doing nothing about it.

Last January, while in Ottawa, Mr. Graham, of Tweed local met the potato delegates and presented their brief to government and explained their position members. As a result there is now a tariff on potatoes the year around, due to the efforts of Farmers' Union.

He also spoke of the work the farmers' union was doing. Since 1952, prices had decreased each year, while cost of production had increased. The results are one-third of farms are deserted with farmers seeking a living elsewhere, and the same estate existed right across the country, he said.

The government, Mr. Elliott said, has done little to help the situation and cares little how much imports hurt the farmers' markets. Since the Farmers' Union began working it has done a lot toward helping the situation, but has yet a lot to contend with. The farmer, he said, is pushed around, and works ten to 15 hours a day for 15 cents an hour for labor in production of milk for cheese, while labor gets, on an average, $1.50 an hour and holidays with pay.

He urged the farmers to get out and vote in the coming election and vote for a man who would do something for the farmer instead of just talk about it.

At the present rate, in another four years or by another election date, there would be few farmers left so now is the time for farmers to use their votes and start doing something for themselves, he said. He urged the farmers to forget political and religious affiliations, and vote for the party that would help the farmer.

Barely Keeping Wolf From Penthouse Door

NEW YORK (AP) — Cornelius Vanderbilt Jr. says that despite his gold-plated name he is barely keeping the wolf away from his penthouse door.

Vanderbilt filed an affidavit in court Tuesday asking for $25,000 from ar. alimony fund held for his fifth wife.

"Despite the name which I bear," he said, "I have no significant capital or property and must support myself and pay all of my bills out of my income."

The author-traveller receives $60,000 yearly from three trust funds. But half the amount goes to a receiver to guarantee $250 weekly alimony payments to Mrs. Vanderbilt.

Vanderbilt claimed that the receiver now holds a total of $80,000. He asked that $26,000 be released to him.

"My financial situation is very precarious," he said. "My outside income as an author and lecturer has been greatly reduced. During the past three years, I have had large medical and legal expenditures.

"I owe substantial amounts for rent, restaurant bills and travel expenses. I have been unable to pay my secretary her salary for several months."

Canadian Hell Drivers Give Large Audience Many Thrills

The Canadian Hell Drivers were in town Wednesday night and today there are about 2,500 people who saw the Hell Drivers speed through their 28 acts, with only one minor car crash — Bob Canup, driver of the show, rolled his new convertible after completing a "high ski" act. (The car raced across an elevated platform at a sharp angle on two wheels, while the other two wheels hugged the dirt track on their rims.)

Scattered throughout the evening's entertainment were many exhibitions by some of the world's best known clowns — "Happy" Linguist and Company, formerly with the Ringling Brothers' Circus, and the Clermont Brothers, French night club entertainers.

AUDIENCE KEPT BREATHLESS

Montreuler Jerry Plaisance, making his debut with the Hell Drivers, kept his audience breathless while performing his acrobatics.

The Canadian Hell Drivers were brought to Belleville by the Kiwanis Club, which will use the profits realized last night to engage in projects to add to its already lengthy list of service work in the city and district.

The fair grounds looked like a gigantic new and used car lot last night, there were so many vehicles parked there.

City police did a good job in keeping youthful car fans at a safe distance from the track and the pit, while the firemen stood by to offer first aid and to extinguish fires.

The Public Works Department watering truck was kept busy sprinkling down the dust on the dirt track. However, the humidity of the air relieved the P.W. men from having to cope with layers of choking dust.

The ovations which the drivers received and the general reception given by the public to the Hell Drivers show, made it look like they wanted the drivers to return next year.

Election Campaign

Liberals Giving Many Bum Steers Says Diefenbaker

HANOVER, Ont. (CP) — John Diefenbaker says the Liberal government is giving the Canadian people "many bum steers."

The Progressive Conservative leader, speaking here Wednesday night, was alluding to a Liberal advertisement which referred to members of the government as "steering Canada's ship of state."

"Perhaps that is why there has been so many bum steers from these people," he said. "Some where along the line they must have lost their compass."

He emphasized his view that Canada needs a restoration of the rights of Parliament and spoke generally along the lines of an earlier speech made in Owen Sound.

The theme of his day's campaigning was broadly the same in that he supported the policy of overwhelming strength and in power for a long time was a essential threat to democracy.

"NO RIGHTS LEFT"

He told a 1,200-strong meeting in Owen Sound that if the Liberals are returned to Ottawa Monday "don't ask the opposition to stand up for your rights because there will be no rights left."

He said there was a time when the Liberal party was true to parliamentary democracy, but in recent sections, particularly during the pipeline legislation debates last year, it had destroyed equality among Canadians.

During the morning, Mr. Diefenbaker spoke at Fergus, Mount Forest and Shaw, communities in the agricultural conservative-held Wellington - Huron constituency. He was met by crowds of between 300 and 400 to whom he pledged a new deal for farmers if the Conservatives form a government.

TO CALL CONFERENCE

"We intend to take immediate steps for the convening of a Commonwealth trade conference to cure some of the markets that have been lost to us in the last few years."

Conservative policy, he said, will ensure the farmer an adequate parity between his income and living costs through a flexible price support program which will be made known in advance each year.

He said agriculture was endangered by the dumping of foreign products, falling prices and dwindling markets. He laid blame on "self-powerful ministers" who, he said, refused to act when the Conservatives demanded action.

Before starting the day's tour of the hustings, Mr. Diefenbaker spoke at a breakfast meeting in Toronto to about 150 supporters.

PARTY UNITED

He said the Conservative party is united as never before and that the "party that previously knew only defeatism is the federal field now is an irresistible force."

Today, the Conservative leader, now nearing the end of 15,000 miles of election travels, set out for another round of campaigning in Western Ontario.

He has stops scheduled for Galt, Kitchener, Stratford, Woodstock and Brantford.

Mr. Diefenbaker will end his major campaigning Friday night in Hamilton and afterwards fly to his home constituency of Prince Albert, Sask., to await the results of Monday's general election.

Tax Reduction On Autos Hinted By St. Laurent

WINDSOR (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent, in Windsor's auto factory heartland, in Windsor's auto industry as "disturbing," says he is ready to give "very careful consideration" to a further reduction in the 18-per-cent auto excise tax under certain conditions.

The consideration would be given, he told an overflow crowd of more than 2,000 in the Kennedy Collegiate auditorium Wednesday night, if it becomes evident that sale of new automobiles is affected adversely by the current tax and if there is assurance that benefits of any tax cut would be passed to car buyers.

His statement was received with prolonged applause. While current layoffs were disturbing, he added, "the industry is sound and its future is bright."

CRITICIZES TORIES

The Liberal leader touched on the auto situation in a 75-minute speech in which he charged that Conservative party leaders have set their thinking always had been of the "model-T vintage;" and that they cannot support the views of not party government but merely "party performers."

It was not the Progressive Conservative party that was being defeated in the June 10 election, but "John Diefenbaker" party.

Mr. Diefenbaker, how often the Tories change leaders, will well, after the Diefenbaker party, be succeeded by others, first the Hees, the Fleming party, the Fulton party, the Nowlan party, the Leon Balcer party?"

Donald Fleming and Davie Fulton are listed unsuccessfully with Mr. Diefenbaker for the party leadership last December. Leon Balcer is the current national Progressive Conservative Association president. Gordon Nowlan is a former president. All are members of Parliament seeking re-election.

Mr. St. Laurent spoke in the riding of Health Minister Martin Pearson, Essex East, in Windsor and roadside stops in the communities of Tilbury and St. Thomas where he spoke to school-children who gathered round his campaign car.

Today the 75-year-old Liberal goes to Stratford, Woodstock and Delhi, completing his Ontario tour in Toronto Friday.

It was at Chatham, speaking before some 400 persons in a high school auditorium, that Mr. St. Laurent first charged that the Conservatives were inept in solving the problems created by the depression of the 1930s.

And Windsor might be added:

"Do you suppose that the people who were so inept in handling those problems ever could have been so successful as the liberals were in leading Canadians back to good times?"

He was sure that though the Conservatives at the outset had opposed family allowances, would not now repeal Canada's social legislation if elected to power. But, he said, there is still opposition to those preferences in some Conservative quarters.

Knob Lake Sets Huge Target for Ore Production

OTTAWA (CP) — This year's iron-ore production target at Knob Lake, in the centre of the Labrador-Ungava Peninsula, is 13,000,000 tons, the Canadian Association of Geographers was told today.

Professor R. N. Drummond of McGill University, addressing the association's annual meeting here to coincide with a conference of learned societies, said the ultimate goal is an output of 18,000,000 to 20,000,000 tons yearly.

The centre, now in its fourth year of production, already accounted for 60 per cent of Canada's high-grade iron-ore production, he said. Production last year was 12,000,000 tons "and was the main factor in raising this country to vie with Sweden and the United Kingdom as the world's fourth-largest producer, after the United States, Russia and France."

HIGHER AGAIN

"The target for this year is 13,000,000 tons, which will make Knob Lake one of its leading role and Canada of her place among the world's chief producers."

Field director of McGill's sub-Arctic research laboratory at Knob Lake, Professor Drummond said:

"The most exciting news is the discovery of nickel in the far northwestern part of the peninsula. Led by Lemoyne Ungava Mines Limited, prospecting crews are working a concentrated investigation of the highly-mineralized belt between Cape Smith and Wakeham Bay. Deposits are expected to be some of the largest in Canada."

"Knob Lake has not only shown that inhospitable land can be conquered," he said, "but it has also provided many of the materials whereby men can pursue the conquest further."

Predicts Bancroft Will Grow To 5,000, Become Uranium Town of Eastern Ontario

OTTAWA (CP) — A prediction that the Eastern Ontario uranium town of Bancroft will grow to 5,000 inhabitants, from a present 2,500 was made today by Professor J. Howard Richards of the Royal Military College, Kingston.

Professor Richards, delivering a paper on economic changes in North Hastings County to the Canadian Association of Geographers, said modern architecture, as well as nuclear physics, are responsible for a brighter market outlook for the area's resources.

The professor said the Bancroft-Marmora area was first populated in the 1830s, when agriculture and lumbering constituted the main attraction to immigrants.

FARMING DECREASED

Marble quarries opened in 1900 and supplied stone used in the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa, the Mowat block of the Ontario legislature buildings, and the new wing of the Royal Ontario Museum.

Farming, however, became marginal, and many agricultural fairs, cheese factories and the few creameries all had disappeared by 1941.

"During 1941-51 occupiers of farms decreased by 27 per cent, and the amount of farm land by more than 30 per cent—the largest decade-to-decade drop. Total population reached its lowest point in 70 years."

But prospecting during and after the Second World War disclosed some of the largest iron-ore body yet found in Southern Ontario" near Marmora and major finds of radium minerals were made last year.

BOOM TOWN

Bancroft, he said, became a boom town. "The basic assumption is that uranium mining will be permanent and that the town will remain the residential and service centre. Present estimates of mine workers in the area give 2,400.

"Recent changes in building design, a slight trend away from the concrete-steel concept, have again stimulated marble and granite quarrying near Bancroft. Nepheline syenite, a major source of alumina, also may be produced once more."

The nearby communities of Madoc, Marmora and Deloro also have experienced growth.

Many Attend 'Open House' At Ontario School for Deaf

Many parents and friends availed themselves of the opportunity of visiting the Ontario School for the Deaf, Belleville, Ontario, at the "Open House" when the academic and vocational classes and the hobby groups displayed their year's accomplishments.

Beginning promptly at 1.30 groups of visitors were taken on a guided tour of the various class rooms by five boys from the senior classes. Billy Bates, Billy Gardner; Glen Hagedorn; Cecil Martin, and Ronald Hartogsveld, where the guests were shown the preparatory work of the junior students in groups 1, 2, and 3, under the direction of Mrs. Chapelle; Mrs. Hutchison; Miss Keeley, and Miss Farrell, for 1, Miss Shannon for 2, and Miss Nichol, Miss Legault; Mrs. Donoghue, and Miss Chapell for 3, and Mrs. Forster for grade 1.

The Intermediate class for art work under the supervision of Miss Van Allen; geography, under Mrs. Ryan; reading, under Mrs. Simpson; history, under Mr. Graham; arithmetic, under Mr. Vader, and the senior classes for language, directed by Miss Maloney; social studies, by Miss Hutchison; reading, by Miss Huffman; arithmetic, by Miss Burnside; and business practice and typing, by Mr. Chard.

INTERESTING PROGRAM

Following the tour of the class rooms, an interesting program was held in the school auditorium which was filled to capacity by the parents, and friends, to whom Mr. J. G. Demean, B.A., B. Paed., superintendent extended a cordial welcome, stating he was most pleased to see so many parents present, some from as far distant as Windsor. Other guests present were Father Moss, of Toronto, and Mr. W. J. Morrison, former superintendent of the school.

The program consisted of four numbers, directed by Mr. Gordon; Mrs. Vincent; Mrs. Lewis and Mr. Graham, the first, the rendition of two selections by the junior rhythm band, "The Bell Game," and "Can Can." This band is a cross-section of the junior school. "Rhythm", commented Mr. Demean, "runs three functions: it takes the place of music; relates to speech, and helps in good movement, and is a part of the daily school life." The movement function was well exemplified in the dance scene from the play, "Old King Cole," which was enjoyed later.

FASHION SHOW

The fashion show, which is always keenly enjoyed, was presented by the senior and intermediate girls, who modelled some pretty costumes which they had made during the school year under the direction of Mrs. S. Sandford and Mrs. M. E. Vincent.

These costumes were displayed before an attractive background portraying an afternoon tea party arranged by the girls, while they also modelled their gowns following the older students. The group as were pretty and practical consisting of glissed cotton, featuring the prevalent stripes, and plain jumper dresses with contrasting blouses, some in black and white, some in red and white. Suits were also shown in blue-grey tweed effect with box coats, and party dresses in pale blue and other shades. A red sports costume was quite 'chic'.

SENIOR RHYTHM BAND

The senior rhythm band also favored with the "Overture to Old King Cole," and was enthusiastically applauded for its splendid performance.

The last number was the dance scene from "Old King Cole" colorful and lovely with the old time costumes, and the perfect rhythm displayed.

After the program, the guests were invited to the various rooms where afternoon tea was served by the senior girls under the direction of Miss K. Carpenter.

Another place of exceptional interest was the girls' gymnasium where the samples of academic work, hobby group handicraft; home economics; agriculture and mechanics; carpentry; industrial arts and crafts; printing; sewing by the intermediate and senior girls; typing and business practice; beauty culture; housekeeping, were displayed to advantage.

The academic work, comprising printing, writing, drawing, and social studies was arranged by Mrs. Graham; Miss Fox; Miss MacDonald and Mrs. Eagle for the juniors, and by Miss VanAllen, and Mr. Vader for the intermediates, and by Miss Huffman, Miss Burnside; McCarthy for the seniors.

HOBBY GROUPS

The hobby groups were arranged by Mr. Graham; Mrs. Simpson; Mr. Huffman; Miss Chappell; Mr. Williams, and Mrs. Graham. The home economics by Miss K. B. Doly, B.A. and showed recipe books; canned goods place mats and wall plaques demonstrating value of certain food products, potatoes, oranges, etc.

In agricultural mechanics, under Mr. J. W. Hodgson, several interesting new articles had taken shape: TV tables; kitchen cabinets; hassock dustpins; and a letter-swing, and hockey goal nets.

Carpentry, under I. M. Hall, consisted of lawn seats and chairs, made for comfort and appearance; industrial arts and crafts under Mr. G. Sirrine showed a fine display of bookends, coffee tables, and many other articles.

Some fine specimens of painting, directed by Mr. L. E. Morrison, drew attention.

The sewing was well done, and consisted of fancy work, dresses, pyjama suits, and blouses, and skirts, all conveyed by Mrs. G. Sandford, and Mrs. M. E. Vincent, which included both hand and machine sewing, and power operating. The items were things of beauty, so fine and artistic.

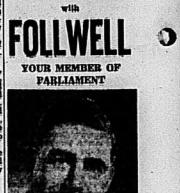
Beauty culture showed the arranging of hair styles and care of the hair, directed by Mrs. G. Lewis.

TYPING

Typing and business practice, by senior girls, directed by Mr. E. J. Chard, B.Paed., was interesting. Each girl, on completion of her course is placed in a position in accordance with her initial ability.

Wood working, under Mr. R. H. Vaughan, displayed corner cupboards, china cabinets, chest of drawers, cedar chests, writing desks, sewing cabinet, fern stands, and other fine articles.

The girls are also taught laundry work, the art of ironing, and the requisites of snowwhite washes.



EVENING PROGRAM

In the evening, an exhibition of girls' and boys' athletic attainments were shown, consisting of tumbling, junior novelty, pyramids and a senior dance, pour-pourl. Girls instructress, Miss D. Wilbur; boys' Mr. D. Quinlan and Mr. B. Williams. An outstanding new addition to the many things of interest noticed was the landscaping in the school quadrangle. Here, Mr. Hodgen, with his assistant young landscape artists, had installed a pyramidal fountain of angular pieces of limestone, surrounded by little gravel paths, interspersed with beds of tulips. In strategic corners were green shrubs nestling against the brick wall, making of this erstwhile barren spot, a delightful vista from the hall windows.

So ends another "At Home," always bigger and better than the preceding one.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

TOO MANY GUESTS FOR ONE SHOWER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

We're planning a bridal shower and have come up with a problem of too many guests for one person to carry. As the shower is to be held in the recreation room in my house, the number of people must be limited for comfort. Would it be permissable for me to give the bride two showers, one for the bride's family and friends, and the other for the groom's family and friends? — A.

Two showers would be quite an undertaking, but if this plan is all right with your wish and convenience, it is entirely permissible. And a good idea for a get-together reunion of "the families"!

IN PLACE OF BRIDE'S MOTHER IN RECEIVING-LINE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When the bride's mother is not living, should one of her sisters take her mother's place?

Mother

This is generally an excellent plan . . . but depends of course on the bride's wish.

DUTIES OF PARENTS OF JUNIOR BRIDESMAID

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

(1) My 11-year-old daughter is to be a junior bridesmaid at my sister's wedding. What are my obligations as far as the bride is concerned? What about giving a shower? (2) Should my daughter have an escort? — Mother

(1) Your sister, the bride-to-be, decides on every detail of the junior bridesmaid's costume, as she does the costumes of her other bridal attendants. You pay for every item of your daughter's costume, except her flowers, which usually are supplied by the bride-to-be or her parents. The junior bridesmaid goes alone following the ushers (if there are two junior bridesmaids, they walk together); at the rehearsal she will be instructed in the procedure approved by the minister who is to perform the ceremony. Usually the junior bridesmaid's name is added to the name of her parents on the card enclosed with the wedding present; but if she wishes, she may give her own "personal" wedding present to the bride-to-be. No obligation whatever for you to give a shower. (2) No . . . your daughter should not have an escort.

THE BACHELOR DINNER . . . YESTERDAY AND TODAY

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell us about the proper procedure for the bachelor dinner. Is it really a "must"? Who gives it? Who attends? — M.A.S.

Formerly there was practically always a bachelor dinner, given by the prospective groom in a private suite of a hotel or in a club, a few evenings before the wedding. But today this dinner is more often omitted than given. Sometimes omitted than given. Tradition says the prospective groom gives the dinner and invites his best man and ushers, and sometimes several other men friends.

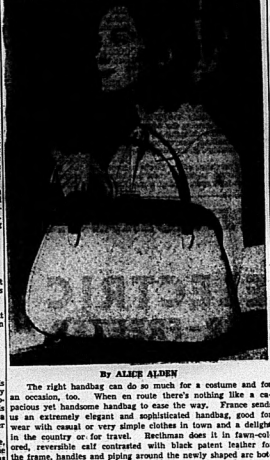
Today in some communities the men of the wedding party and other men friends of the groom combine in giving either a bachelor dinner or an informal evening party . . . each guest paying his own share of the expenses.

WHO PROVIDES CORSAGES AND BOUTONNIERES?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Who should have corsages when there are: the groom's mother and the two grandmothers; the bride's sisters; the master and mistress of ceremonies; the teenage niece of the bride and the teenage nieces of the groom? — B.

The groom provides the corsage for his mother and his grandmothers. If any of the bride's sisters are attendants, their flowers are provided by the bride or her family; otherwise they supply their own corsages, if any. When the groom orders the boutonnieres for the best man, ushers, his father and the bride's father, it is thoughtful of him to order one for the master of ceremonies; the bride might send the corsage to the mistress of ceremonies. If the nieces wear flowers, these are supplied by their own families.

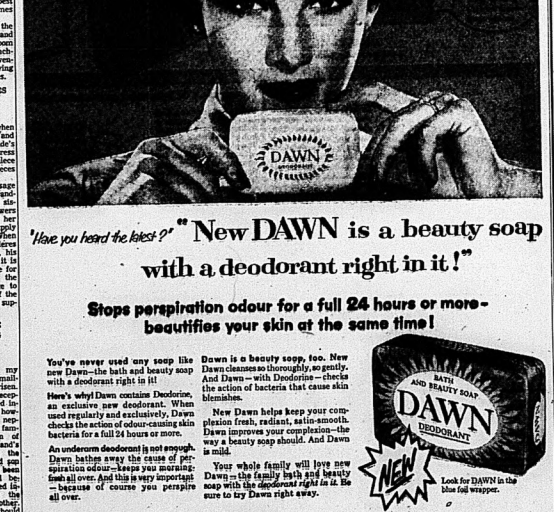


SHOULD CHILDREN BE INVITED TO WEDDING RECEPTION?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

With the plans for my daughter's wedding already mailed, a serious problem has arisen. When the guest list for the reception grew large, we eliminated invitations to children. We did, however, include our 14-year-old nephew (since he is immediate family), and the 14-year-old son of my best friend. My husband's cousins were also invited to the reception, have an 11-year-old son whom they think should have been invited. He was not invited because that would have involved inviting another 11-year-old in the family and his 14-year-old brother. How do you think we should change our plans and include the 11-year-old boy, the son of the cousins, also the other two lads, 11 and 14? Or should we stick to our guns, not invite the cousins' son, and let his parents remain away from the wedding reception if they wish to?

Reader



Since you did not "stick to your guns" in the first place, and made an exception to your decision about inviting children, I think you should not make such a strong point of sticking to your guns now. I can well understand that your husband's cousins would feel disappointed that you did not invite their son, a relative, while you did invite your friend's son. For the comfort of all concerned, I advise that you graciously remedy this situation by at once inviting first the cousins' 11-year-old, and then the other two boys you mention, the 11-year-old and the 14-year-old. I believe you would very much regret letting your husbands' cousins "remain away from the wedding reception" because of your misstep concerning the invitations.

Gifted Child Not Always Bright Child

WINNIPEG (CP) — Children with high IQs are nothing but mental athletes, says Dr. Paul Brandwein of New York City.

Dr. Brandwein, teacher, scientist and senior editor of a large publishing house, spoke to a meeting of the Manitoba educational association about "gifted" children as opposed to "bright" children.

"Most people confuse the gifted child with the bright child, but children with high IQs are nothing but mental athletes," he said.

"A gifted child is one with a questing spirit. He is dissatisfied with things and looks for something better. And he is willing to persist in the search, to accept failure rather than conformity."

Dr. Brandwein said parents can make or break a gifted child both before and during the school years.

"Even at the age of four or five the gifted child begins to threaten the authority of his parents," he said. "He is a shy child, tending to live within himself.

"If the parents themselves are not gifted, they try to turn him into a 'normal' boy. By pushing him into the world they force him to withdraw more, even to the point of rejecting his own ability."

The expert said nature often seems to give a gifted child to parents who can't possibly understand him. In these cases, he said, the parents must accept the child as he is.

"It is easier for an adult to change than for a child," he said.

Dr. Brandwein said that when such children reach school age teachers must help them to understand their position in the world.

"The gifted child must learn to tolerate fools gladly," he said. "But he must never be taught the easy road of conformity."

Tart Ideas

By Mary Moore

We have been having a heyday, very thin. You will need two lots of this recipe but I find it easier to make them one at a time, mixing the second batch up while waiting to take the tarts from the oven.

We had some pastry left over so we made a dozen tart shells because another idea needed to be tried for an emergency dessert.

CREAM TARTS:

There are several variations to this but the basic idea is that you have some whipping cream to which you have added various fruits and nuts and fill baked tart shells with it. With a pint heavy cream until lithick. Dissolve 1 teaspoon instant coffee in 1 tablespoon boiling water, cool it and fold into cream. Add nine a little powdered sugar. Now into this coffee flavoured whipped cream fold some fruit or nuts: 1) shaved Brazil nuts and green and red glace cherries chopped. Pile in baked shells. 2) Coarsely chopped bananas and chopped walnuts 4) omit coffee and add at least 2 tablespoons sugar to the cream and fold in drained frozen strawberries, raspberries, or blueberries, or fresh ones when in season. 3) omit coffee and add at least 2 tablespoons sugar ; to whipped cream. In the bottom of the tart shells spoon some of your choicest jelly, jam or marmalade. Cover with the flavoured whipped cream and garnish with chopped nuts and/or maraschino cherry.

Ideas are limitless and if you discover others then please share them with me.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY

Chili Hamburgers (see Wednesday). Individual Salads with Tomato Jelly, Cottage Cheese and Green Pepper, Plum Cobbler with Ice Cream, Coffee.

SUNDAY

Standing Rib Roast of Beef, Brown Gravy, Yorkshire Pudding, Cauliflower, New Beets and Greens, Celery, Radishes, Cress, Strawberry Shortcake, Coffee.

So we have a change in the Butter Tart recipe to suggest and I'm sure there will be many a dozen of them made by you this weekend.

SYRUPY BUTTER TARTS:

Line medium tart tins with the flaky pastry given below, that has been rolled very thin. Spoon 1 teaspoon corn syrup into each lined tart tin. Make filling: Mix together, ¼ cup each butter and corn syrup, 1 cup nice clean fresh dried currants, 2 eggs, well beaten, and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Mix all well blended. Spoon into the lined tart tins that have the corn syrup already in them, filling them 2/3 full, (no fuller). Bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes.

PASTRY:

Sift 1¼ cups sifted all purpose flour, ½ teaspoon salt together into bowl. Into this cut with pastry blender or two knives ½ cup shortening until the pieces are the size of small peas. To this add 1 tablespoon at a time, 4 to 5 tablespoons cold water tossing lightly to mix. When all moistened gather up in a ball and let stand for a couple of minutes then roll out

BEAUTY

WARM DAYS CALL FOR LIGHTER FRAGRANCES

Cool, refreshing perfumes and colognes are the order for a summer day.

With the advent of warm weather, most women turn, almost instinctively, to lighter fragrances. It's understandable, too, since perfumes and colognes with heady scents don't seem to give the feeling of refreshment that accompanies the lighter floral odors. Today and this goes especially for colognes and toilet waters—women like to apply them frequently for cooling purposes, and perfume just can't be slathered on indiscriminately.

If you happen to be in the mood to try a light, cooling fragrance yourself but are in doubt as to just what you'd like, we've a few suggestions. Some are new, others are not—but all are cool, spritely like and distinctive. There is, for instance, a lily of the valley scent which is utterly delightful. Centuries of tradition have established lilies of the valley (or muguet, as it is called there) as the flower symbol of good luck in France. Every year on the first of May you will find these delicate little flowers in French homes or worn as corsages and boutonnieres. On this side of the Atlantic we probably won't associate the new muguet perfume and cologne with luck—but with an exquisitely cool and refreshing feeling that fragrantly defies heat and humidity.

On the spicy side, there's a crisp exhilarating cologne which was introduced last summer and which promises to be equally popular this season. Its combination of florals and spice is guaranteed to give you a pick-up on even the warmest day. Another amber-colored cologne blends forever-fresh floral and citrus scents in the modern tradition. Reminding you of windswept white daisies, you'll slather it all over yourself and to get there ever was such a thing as a rising thermometer.

Think of a frosty mist and you'll set your own mood for another cologne which contains neither spice nor citrus bases. It's a pure floral bouquet—a delightful one, combining as it does, apply blossom, lilac, rose, muguet and jasmin. And, at the opposite end of the fragrance pole, there's another scent which combines a dash of sophistication with the refreshing coolness that makes you think of Christmas in July. Here fresh and tangy top notes are blended with floral notes of rose and jasmin and enhanced by background strains of sandalwood, patchouly, vetivert and oak moss. This scent is available in cologne form, cologne stick, dusting powder, bath soap and also, in a purse size facon, perfume.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

COULD SOME OF THIS TROUBLE BE YOUR FAULT?

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm a 14-year-old girl and attending high school.

Every afternoon, because of school duties that detain me, I take the late bus home with one of my girl friends.

My problem is that the bus driver who, I estimate, is probably in his late twenties, talks to me frequently and, to my great bewilderment, has even asked me to date him. He won't allow me to pay when I ride his bus, either. He also embarrasses me by shouting after me when I get off. He wears a wedding ring, and I've made it a strict point never to encourage him, but he still insists on asking me to date him. I've also joked about the way he acts, but he says he's perfectly serious.

It's impossible for me to take another bus as I can't neglect my school duties, so what can I do?

— Ellen

Dear Mike:

You make a mistake when you give this impertinent bus driver any reply at all, even to joke with him, when he speaks to you. Since you're with your girl friend, put all your attention on her and ignore this man. If he really annoys you, tell him you would be very sorry to have to report him to the bus company, but that you'll have to do it if he doesn't act properly toward you.

As for his not letting you pay your bus fare, you shouldn't permit such a thing. Certainly there must be a coin box for the collection of fares, and all you have to do is to have your money ready in your hand when you get on, drop it in the box and then walk as far back in the bus as you can. If the bus has only one door, and you have to pass the driver again when you get off, walk right by him and pay absolutely no attention to anything he says.

What you say about having joked with him, makes me feel that at least some of the trouble may be your own fault.

GO AHEAD AND ASK HER

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I'm the teenage boy who recently wrote to your about dating a girl of a different faith. I've gone out with her twice in the past two weeks and I guess that means I am accepted by her.

There is a very important dance coming up at my place of worship, and I don't know whether to invite this girl or not. Should I invite her and risk having the touchy subject of our different faiths come up, or just let it pass? I want to take her very much, but don't know if it's wise to ask her.

— David.

Dear David:

I gather that you took my advice about asking this girl for a date, and I'm glad it worked out so well.

If you would like to invite her to the dance that is coming up, by all means go right ahead and do so.

Don't assume that your invitation would necessarily cause any difficulties. Just take it for granted that it's perfectly natural for you to invite her and don't give her the impression that there's any question in your mind about it.

THIS IS THE TIME TO FORGIVE AND FORGET

Dear Beatrice Fairfax:

I've been married eight years and have three children.

My husband and I have always been very happy, or at least I thought so until I found out recently that for the past six months he has been seeing one of my girl friends some evenings when he told me he had to work late. He says they never did anything wrong, but he just took her out for dinner and then to the movies. The way I found out was that he told me himself and said he was sorry he did that behind my back and wasn't going to do it any more.

Do you think I should believe him when he says he was just having some innocent good times, and how can I be sure of what he does in the future? — Mrs. W.

Dear Mrs. W.:

If your husband seems sincerely sorry for what he did, and has promised not to do it any more, I think you think it would be right fair to give him a chance to prove this to you, especially since you've had so many years of happiness together?

If I were you, I wouldn't make a big issue of what, after all, seems to have been a comparatively minor indiscretion on your husband's part, and don't keep throwing on it. I'll tell right to let him know that you're hurt because he did this behind your back, but let him know, too, that you're willing to forgive and forget.

Springbrook W.I. Enjoys Scottish, English Slides

An evening meeting of Springbrook Women's Institute was held recently in Springbrook Orange hall. It was arranged by Mrs. Arthur Reid and Mrs. Harold Stiles and a fair crowd of members, their families and friends were entertained.

The president, Mrs. Clarence McKeown, welcomed everyone, made some announcements, and introduced the guests, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Martin, of Stirling.

Mr. Martin showed excellent slides and commented on their trip to England and Scotland.

Hearty thanks were expressed for an enjoyable evening and Mrs. Martin was presented with a gift.

Council of Women Requests Instalment Paying of Fines

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Council of Women of Canada has appealed to the federal government for instalment payment of fines to spare the "great numbers" imprisoned for inability to pay fines on the spot.

In a resolution adopted Tuesday, on the eve of the convention of the International Council of Women, the Canadian organization said:

"Every year we imprison over 100,000 persons, 10 times as many, according to population, as England does.

"Great numbers are committed for inability to pay fines for minor offences, infractions of bylaws, and these persons are stigmatized for life and begin criminal lives."

The group wants a seven-day allowance for payment and consideration of an offender's ability to pay before any committal for default of payment.

In another resolution, the national council urged federated associations to study the Election Act clause regarding the advance poll since many delegates here for the international convention will be disfranchised election day, June 10.

"The provisions of the Elections Act referred to fail to meet the present-day requirement of a mobile population," the resolution said.

Civil defence for children is a concern of the national council. It plans to ask the national civil defence board to establish a "suitable and effective program for the safety of the school children of Canada, available for adoption by every province."

Mrs. Rex Eaton of Dollarton, B.C., was elected president of the national.

Alderman Dover Wants Building Historical Site

By RICHARD ANCO
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CLAGARY (CP) — Alderman Mary Dover has launched a one-woman crusade in defence of one of the oldest buildings west of Winnipeg—known simply as the Old Court House.

Ald. Dover wants the squat sandstone building, built by the Northwest Mounted Police in 1888, left as an historical site in downtown Calgary. The provincial government wants it torn down and replaced by a new structure for court records.

Ald. Dover, a native Calgarian, says "I love this town and I'd like to keep things that mean something in it."

By that she means, for one example, the court house where Calgary's legal history was made.

The court building, small in the shadow of Calgary's new court house and land titles building, still has the remains of jail cells used when it was a combination court house and jail.

Deep holes are visible in the grey sandstone where bars once covered windows. Behind the front doors on an arched alcove are present - day store rooms which served 60 years ago as tiny jail cells.

A heavy trapdoor is still the only entrance into a musty basement. Thick floors, now never used, lean across what was once called Calgary's Black Hole of Calcutta for rebellious prisoners.

From what evidence can be collected it is believed that the conferences which decided on division of the Northwest Territories into the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan 52 years ago were held in the Old Court House.

In 1912 the new Calgary court house was built and the old building was taken over as a blind persons home. After the Second World War the blind moved to a new building and the old court house was filled with offices for the juvenile court and department of highways.

The large old - fashioned court room which took up most of the second floor of the building was partitioned into smaller offices for juvenile court judges.

Ald. Dover, a tall elegant woman, will be 52 on Dominion Day. She wants the building used, but hopes its old-fashioned architecture, odd door locks and rickety stairways are preserved.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

STIRLING — With the attendance of 18, the Stirling Women's Institute meeting proved successful when on Friday afternoon, Mrs. Blanche Reid, Henry St., opened her home to the officers and members for their meeting.

President Mrs. E. Foster, officiated and carried out the usual opening exercises, also giving a warm welcome to the visitors.

A nice donation was received from Mrs. Hiram Rodgers for which the W.I. is grateful.

The business was brief owing to the full program with Mrs. Blanche Reid, convener. A splendid reading, "A Golden Chain", was given by Mrs. E. Foster. "The Care of Flowers" was given by Mrs. D. Montgomery — in the absence of Mrs. Vance.

A presentation of jewelery was given Mrs. Louis Rodgers, who is leaving shortly for Toronto.

Mrs. W. A. West made the presentation and Mrs. Luella Bronson gave the address. Mrs. Rodgers, surprised, found it an effort to express her thanks, she has worked well and given long service to the W. I. interests.

The white elephant sale with Mrs. B. Reid as auctioneer saw keen and ready bidding, which soon disposed of the merchandise. Receipts of the meeting amount to $15.

A promising musician, Bobbie Bell favored the ladies with a trumpet solo which was indeed enjoyed.

Refreshments were served, following the closing of the meeting.

Woman With Three Children To Be Ordained

ST. THOMAS (CP)—A young housewife with three children is to be ordained a minister of the United Church of Canada, in a move unprecedented in the church's 25-year-old history.

Faced with one of its most unusual questions in years, London conference Tuesday voted by a small majority to ordain Mrs. Elinor Leard along with nine male candidates on Thursday. She will be the first married woman to be ordained by the United Church.

The wife of a missionary, she is now on furlough from India and is living in New York while her husband completes post-graduate studies.

She was strongly supported by Kent Presbytery and had already been licensed to preach in her home church at Charing Cross near Chatham when her case came before a special committee. The committee rejected the application, but conference approved it by a small majority.

Mrs. Leard, who is to return to India with her husband, said she wants to be ordained because it will give her added status in working among women and young girls. She will receive no salary because the overseas missions board pays only one salary per missionary family.

AFTER WASTED

Several of the newspaper accounts of her arrival confused her with a man. She was wearing breeches and riding boots and wore her hair cut short.

Clambering aboard the cattle car in North Sydney Wednesday night, she was garbed in a pair of corduroy pants, an old army shirt and a black beret.

She bought the Ontario property last month, and has already shipped her tractor and most of the necessary equipment to the farm, somewhere south of Ottawa. The duchess herself will accompany her beloved animals in the cattle car.

Miss Bregman was particularly bitter about the local co-operative which refused to purchase her milk. The reason given was that the milk was unfit for consumption because of unsanitary conditions.

Left with a dozen purebred cows and no sale for the milk, she decided to pull up stakes.

Her past and present marital status was no secret. With a laugh, she explained: "I have never married and I never will—and you can publish that."

She then clambered aboard the cattle car with her 16 surviving dogs, four horses, a donkey, and a mangy pony, and set out in search of new fields to conquer.

Estevan, Ninth City in Sask., Is Centre of Fast-Growing And Thriving Oil Industry

GRAND DRAGON LOSES HIS MATE

Rev. Alvin Horn, grand dragon of the Alabama Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, had his honeymoon ruined by police who said they took away his 15-year-old bride, Barbara Elise Richardson, and returned her to her parents. The girl, who had been missing from her home for a week, was picked up on a vagrancy warrant by police at Tuscaloosa during a KKK rally. Horn is 45 and his six children between the ages of 13 and 21. He said his bride told him she was 20. Horn is a Baptist minister without a church.

ESTEVAN, Sask. (CP)—A vintage pumper, bullet - riddled but serviceable, and a modern fire engine are stablemates in this city's fire hall.

Twenty-five years ago last Sept. 29, the old pumper figured in a riot in which three miners were shot down and many others wounded in a battle between police and 600 strikers from nearby coal mines.

Bullet dents in the pumper's grille still recall Black Tuesday, but nowadays it is an engine that disturbs the peace but the steady roar of trucks, laden with equipment for a fast-growing oilfield in southeastern Saskatchewan.

SYMBOL OF NEW ERA

In contrast, the bright-red new engine represents a new era of confidence in which the town has doubled its population to 8,000 within a few years. Settled in March became Saskatchewan's ninth and newest city.

But the casual visitor, driving into Estevan, 120 miles southeast of Regina and 40 miles north of the United States boundary, might not immediately be aware he was in a "boom town."

Weather-beaten signs proclaim Estevan as "the mid-west power centre," with a population of 5,000. No reference is made to the oilfield around her to the thriving oil industry.

A tall structure, however, soon reveals that change is in the air. Here and there are modernistic buildings, sweet and soft for store and newly-installed traffic lights.

On a Saturday night, the neonlit main street is a mecca for miles around. Streets are set by parlors and the well-stocked stores do a roaring trade. Sidewalks are crowded and parking space is at a premium.

DUBBED OLDTIMERS!

Newcomers note a reluctance by many oldtimers to believe the boom is here to stay.

A bank manager says savings are higher than ever but most private capital investment is directed home building with relatively little going into beautifying the central business centre.

At the other extreme, there are those who consider the city is in need of a naturally expanding economy to be city-like and open the gates for expansion and make hay while it can. They pleaded "there won't time to waste on attempts to erect new signs on the city outskirts."

Mayor Harry Nicholson prefers to guide a slow but steady development.

"You've got to crawl before you can walk," said Mr. Nicholson, mayor for the last 16 years. "Before we pave streets, we must have water, sewers, sewer and power services and build houses and schools. All so as to attract industries that will make the town grow."

He modestly forecast the city will again double its size to 15,000 in the next five years but others, less cautious, predict a city of 50,000 within 20 years.

BRINGS OPPORTUNITY

As oil workers pour into the city, housing constantly becomes tighter and rents have reached a point where a two-room basement suite will fetch $100 a month or more. Army huts at the airport have been converted into homes for 500. Trailer camps have sprung up on all sides of the city and practically every street driveway houses a trailer.

But new housing subdivisions have been surveyed and this summer two new schools and nearly 200 houses are expected to be built. Several new office buildings and stores also are planned and total building permits may exceed last year's $2,500,000.

Sharing prominence with the oil boom is the construction of a $40,000,000 power plant and dam, four miles south of Estevan.

Ron Emergy, consultant resident engineer, sees a bright future for Estevan with completion of the power plant. Apart from the 300 to 600 men needed to build and man the station, other jobs would be created with the establishment of new industry attracted by cheap power.

Mr. Emery, who comes from Johannesburg, said:

"In South Africa a small town, similar to Estevan, sprouted into an industrial city once power was harnessed. This would seem a logical place for Saskatchewan's first petro-chemical industry. What Estevan needs is a wealthy man of vision to develop it."

JAPANESE AIR ACE DIES

HAMAMATSU, Japan (AP)—Maj. Teruhiko Kobayashi, Japanese pilot credited with downing 12 American bombers and four fighters in the Second World War, died today in a jet crash. Kobayashi, 37, and Hiroshi Amano, 32, crashed shortly after their T-33 trainer took off and developed engine trouble.

Socreds Hoping To Make Party Second in House

OTTAWA (CP) — Solon Low, campaigning for his Social Credit party on a platform of higher old age pensions and lower taxes, hopes to make his party the No. 2 force in federal politics this election.

"Within 10 years you will find a real two-party system of government, with Social Credit on one side and all the others on the other side," he said at one of three dozen major speeches during the current campaign.

Mr. Low's party stands no chance of forming a majority government after June 10. It is fielding 115 candidates—not enough for a majority in the 265-seat House even if all were elected. In the last election 15 of 71 Social Credit candidates were elected.

INCREASE IN ONTARIO

Most of the increase in number of candidates—this is the party's strongest election bid yet—is in Ontario where there are 40 compared with eight in 1953.

The total falls short of Mr. Low's pre-campaign forecast of at least 150 candidates.

The 57-year-old leader has made his major election appeal a promise of $60 monthly old age pensions to all from the federal government with extra payments of up to $40 for the needy if the provinces are willing to share the additional cost with Ottawa.

The Liberal government has announced that the present $40 universal pension will be increased by $6 July 1.

Stop spending money on "culture and other frills," Mr. Low said repeatedly in his speech as estimated by Finance Minister Harris. He said the Liberal government collected $500,000,000 more in taxes than it needed last year because of ill-timed as budget surplus and the rest paid in "frivolous, non-essential expenditures."

RAPS COUNCIL GRANT

Cutting such spending would help finance higher pensions, Mr. Low says. One target of his criticism has been a $50,000 grant by the new Canada Council for promotion of culture.

Mr. Low also has called for an increase in the basic personal income tax exemption, to $1,200 from $1,000 for single persons and to $2,400 from $2,000 for married persons. A Social Credit government could do that "and still balance the budget."

The basic economic theory of Social Credit is part of the platform: "A financial policy designed to keep purchasing power in balance with Canada's production, by distributing money to consumers without an increase in the federal debt.

Mr. Low, who suffered a heart attack in the fall of 1955, has done less cross-country stumping than in the last campaign. Social Credit premiers Bennett of British Columbia and Manning of Alberta, together with task forces of B.C. cabinet ministers, helped reinforce his campaign. Much of the time Mr. Low has been in his home constituency of Peace River in northern Alberta.

Box Turns up In Ottawa River

HULL, Que. (CP)—A ballot box that disappeared from the office of a party returning officer here turned up in the Ottawa River Wednesday—minus the ballots.

Hull returning officer Claude Bernard declined to give details but it was learned that the ballot box was delivered Monday to a deputy returning officer in the federal constituency, across the Ottawa River from the capital.

It contained ballots and other documents necessary for next Monday's polling in the general federal election.

Officials said a boy found the empty box while fishing.

RCMP are investigating.

LOWER TEMPERATURES

Most of Canada's interior from Quebec City to Regina may expect below-normal temperatures during June. This may, based on the United States weather bureau outlook for June shows that an area between the Superior border can expect temperatures much below normal seasonal readings. Near-normal temperatures are expected on the east coast and above-normal readings on the west coast. (CP Photo).

Canadian Nuclear Plant Prototype for Larger One

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's first nuclear-fuelled power plant will be a smaller edition of much larger ones, Ian F. McRae, vice-president of Canadian General Electric Company, told the Canadian Manufacturers' Association in an address today.

Building of the Canadian reactor is a joint project of Atomic Energy of Canada, Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario and Canadian General Electric.

Mr. McRae's comments were contained in a paper issued to the press in advance of delivery.

Mr. McRae said Canada's first power producer will provide the answer to many of the engineering, financial and operating problems indicated in the design and operation of really large station power units.

"Canadian engineering is taking the place alongside the engineering teams of the United States and Great Britain and its contribution is of equal importance.

"In the present development program, Canada is pioneering a design of power reactor that will be specifically applicable to our country—or to any country that cannot afford the costly diffusion plants required to produce enriched uranium."

DIFFERENT TYPES

(The United States uses enriched uranium and both Britain and Canada use natural uranium, but with different types of reactors).

Britain's poprium, Mr. McRae said, envisages 19 plants in operation by 1965, ranging in size to 220,000 kw. The United States has six major-size plants building or under contract, ranging from 60,000 kw to 180,000 kw..

Gordon B. Isaac, director of passenger sales, Trans-Canada Air Lines, told the meeting that the Douglas DC-8 aircraft now on order for 1960 would revolutionize intercontinental and international travel.

Flying time from Vancouver to Toronto would be four hours and 10 minutes and from Toronto to London just over seven hours.

HITS LABOR BOSSES

J. G. McMillen, president of Imperial Oil Limited, Calgary, speaking on Small Business—the Backbone of the Economy, said Canadian industry could meet American competition in all respects except in "the domination of Canadian industrial workers by American labor bosses." He added:

"I am by no means anti-union, but I am violently anti-foreign union and I am very pro Canadian union."

The Canadian manufacturer, said Mr. McMillen, must compete with the low wage rates of other countries, in world markets.

"But," he added, "the employees of the Canadian manufacturer are represented by the same American unions as the employees of his American competitor; and does it forget that a greater union income will result if the American workers are fully employed.

"What is to prevent the American union from extending the productive capacity of the Canadian company at any time it so desires?"

"I have already seen in the press rumblings of dissatisfaction with foreign union interference, by Canadian labor men. Perhaps our own working people are already starting to do on their own behalf something which our governments seem afraid to take up."

Prime Minister Says Liberals Alone Can Win

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent says that if the Liberals do not win a majority in next Monday's general election no other party will.

He said Wednesday night the Liberal party is the only political group with sufficient support in every province to give Canada stable government.

But St. Laurent said he agrees with Progressive Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker that neither the CCF nor Social Credit parties have the slightest hope of winning more than a handful of seats in the next parliament. The only political party that could possibly be regarded as an alternative to the Liberals was the Conservatives.

"The plain fact is that the Conservative party does not have enough support in the country to win a majority in this election," he said. "It is just as true today as it was in 1949 and 1953 that if the Liberal party does not win a majority no party will have a majority in the next Parliament."

The statements were included in the text of a recorded speech issued to the press before delivery and broadcast from Toronto over the CBC English-language television network from 10:45 to 11 p.m. EDT.

WASN'T OUT FOR SCALPS

NEW YORK (AP)—When a policeman saw Indian Martin, 30-year-old Indian wearing a tomahawk on his belt in Central Park last Wednesday, he arrested the man. Turned out he was an Indian, all right—William W. Martin, 6l, a Mohawk. But Monday, in court, Martin was freed after explaining it wasn't a tomahawk he was carrying but a small hatchet which he uses to trim pineapples on his job at a Hudson River pier.

Canadian Winners in Sweeps React to Their Good Fortune In Many Different Ways

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Canadian winners of sweepstakes based on Wednesday's running of the Epsom Derby reacted to their good fortune in a variety of ways.

A woman pensioner declared she had a lot of relatives who needed help. And a man bundled his family into a station wagon and headed away from home in a hurry.

The big winners were Toronto shoe salesman S. G. Farrow, fibre plant employee Don Peacock of Pickering, and Sob Cleator, employee of a Vancouver investment firm. Each won $140,000 for holding an Irish sweepstakes ticket on the horse Crepello.

Four other Canadians had tickets on Ballymoss, which finished second, and won $26,000 apiece. They were reached by phone on third-place Pipe of Peace and the $28,000 each.

Another 62 Canadians had tickets on horses which finished out of the money at the start and will receive consolation awards of about $2,100.

QUICK DEPARTURE

Mr. Cleator, roused from bed by reporters tracking down the holder of a ticket with the nom de plume Barry Holly Lee, denied he had a sweepstakes interest.

"I don't like to be awakened at seven in the morning for anything," he said. "I usually get up at 7:30."

A few minutes later Mr. Cleator was observed putting a suitcase into a station wagon and then drove off with his wife and two children.

Mr. Farrow began handling out little yellow flowers to customers in the downtown shoe store where he works.

The flowers were in honor of his ticket born de plume, Lily Rose. He said he chose the name because of his country-colored car.

Married, with two children and five grandchildren, Mr. Farrow declared: "I'll spend the money but I won't say how."

Obviously shaken by the win, he knocked off work at 11 a.m. "Don't take too long for lunch," his boss called after him.

Mr. Pearson, only 21, was too excited to comment, but his parents said most of his winnings will go into investments.

19-YEAR-OLD WINNER

Mrs. Annie Hummond of Vancouver, a $56,000 winner, is 70. Her daughter said she had no specific spending plans, "but I've had a relative I can help."

Gunter Gahrns and Werner Philipp, two German immigrants of Vancouver, were also lucky winners of a ticket on Ballymoss.

Gahrns, a former paratrooper, said he's going to fulfil his wife's wish to return to Germany for a holiday.

Herbert Lilles of St. Catharines and Red Estonian based on television network from 10:45 to 11 p.m. EDT.

Mrs. Luisa Schoenherr, proprietor of a "sit and knit" shop in Halifax, N.Y., is reluctantly putting a "closed for business" sign on her front door while keeping a wary eye on the cause of the suspension. The cause, which you see in the foreground, is a swarm of bees cuddling up around their queen on the sidewalk in front of the store. The bees have been there for three days and show no indication of taking off for greener pastures.

Dangerous Abuse Of Pep-up Pills To Be Studied

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Medical Association has ordered a study into "shocking" reports of dangerous abuse of prescient pep-up pills by athletes, including high school kids.

One physician said willy-nilly use of the stimulant drugs may produce violent, rapacious and criminal behavior" and harmful physical effects.

The action came Wednesday in a resolution by delegates of the AMA condemning indiscriminate use of such drugs as amphetamine and derivatives. They called for a study by trustees which is forceful action to halt any abuses of drugs to make players "super-athletes."

Explaining the move, Dr. Herbert Berger of New York said some drug addicts may get started by taking amphetamine and other stimulants while in college or high school athletics. He is chairman of the committee on narcotic and alcohol addiction of the New York State Medical Society which introduced the resolution.

He stated there are widespread reports amphetamine is being used either by athletes themselves or their coaches.

CHANGES OUTLOOK

Medically, one use of amphetamine is as a stimulant to overcome depression. A prescription drug, it is sold under such trade names as Benzedrine, Dexedrine, Britain and Wyamine.

Dr. Berger said the drug can change the whole behavior of normal or keyed-up people.

"A boy taking the pills will fight anyone, even someone bigger, drive a car 85 miles an hour, do anything. I think parents should know about these drugs and their effects."

Dr. Berger said the "recent rash of four-minute miles is no coincidence. Ten men have run the mile under four minutes 16 times.

"In one nationally-televised football game, the coach went onto the field and injected something into the noses of every one of his players." Dr. Berger said. "When asked why, he said, 'They have colds.' Did all of them have colds, and if so, why were they playing?"

Dr. Berger said he thinks the worst abuse is by boxers, secondly by professional and college football and other athletes, and "thirdly by high school athletes."

WHITE'S DISTRICT

Bayside Residents Presented With Farewell Gifts

WHITE'S DISTRICT — On Wednesday evening about 50 friends assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benson Bonisteel to honor them before they departed for their new home at Johnstown.

Mr. and Mrs. Bonisteel, who have lived in the district for 22 years, have sold their farm to a Dutch family and now will be retiring from active farm life.

Mrs. Bonisteel has always been an active worker in the White's Woman's Association and the Bay of Quinte Women's Institute until recently. Both Mr. and Mrs. Bonisteel were members of White's United Church and their family attended church and Sunday School there.

On behalf of the community, Mrs. William Yateman read an address and the couple were presented with a floor lamp, an electric frying pan, and a set of glass pie plates.

Mr. and Mrs. Bonisteel, although taken by surprise, responded, thanking all for their kindness and inviting all to visit them at Johnstown.

Johnstown

MISSION BAND

JOHNSTOWN — The Mission Band took over the service at Johnstown on Sunday afternoon.

The children's choir walked in singing, "Onward Christian Soldiers". The call to worship was given by Rosemary Bush, then the Mission Band hymn was sung and the purpose with Darlene Harder reading the Scripture lesson found in Romans 12: 1-16. Prayer was given by Vera Kravacek.

The offering was collected by Masters Larry St. Hilaire, and Donald Clapp, while the choir sang, "Our Children Bring Their Little Gifts", with Rev. C. A. Puttenham dedicating the offering. A reading by several were given "Other Pennies Homes" by Larry St. Hilaire, Joan Vandervoort, Evelyn Harry, Pat Harder, Doris St. Hilaire and Helen Krovacek, Grant Vandervoort and Jimmie Harder.

The story of Nubbins was told by Larry St. Hilaire and Donald Clapp.

A story was told by Rosemary Bush of how they managed to get a minister for a mining community. An African hymn was sung by the choir. All joined in the hymn "Far Around the World the Children Sing this Song."

A reading "Giving Thanks" was read in parts by Larry St. Hilaire, Joan Vandervoort, Pat Harder and Doris St. Hilaire and an African hymn was sung by the Mission Band.

Mr. C. A. Puttenham in his talk, reminded that the Revelation were written by John when in prison on the Isle of Patmos, where he was made to work in the salt mines, and that he, Mr. Puttenham, would try to bring some pictures of that book.

The Romans believed the Christians were seditious because they believed differently, so they persecuted the Christian church. John, being a bishop in the church, was used as an example of their displeasure.

While in this prison, John started thinking of the needs of his church and people. He saw many unseen pictures. One was of God and all the elders worshiping the Lamb and also the establishment of His Kingdom. He saw a scroll which no one was worthy to open. Between the elders and the throne he saw a lamb. This lamb represented Jesus who was the only one able to open the scroll.

The lamb is the symbol of sacrifice. He saw the lamb taking the scroll from the hand of God and all were singing a new song to the lamb, for He had died for the sins of the world.

Ransom is the price paid by people to save others from slavery. Jesus, by dying on the cross, had paid a ransom for all.

Ancient man felt that God demanded a life, as atonement for sin; later they used as animal, the lamb.

Jesus is the great High Priest and the new song will be sung by all that are redeemed, tribes of all nations, whether black, white, yellow or brown skinned.

Jesus said, "Thy Thy Kingdom Come" a day of kindness, not hatred or persecution. When we come to church the offering is oneself. By coming, Jesus reveals the way to the presence of God.

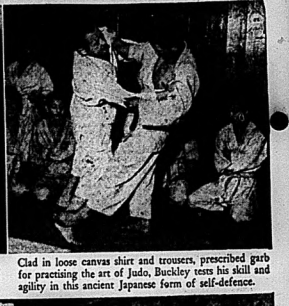
From Saint John, N.B., to Tokyo
Canadian Goodwill Ambassador



Canadian Earle Buckley of Saint John, N.B., who has headed the National Committee of the YMCA in Tokyo for the past 6 years is one of the reasons Canadians are today held in such high favour among the Japanese.

Buckley has won affection for Canada by his own sincere appreciation for ancient Japanese traditions. Japan is a formal land, rich in ritual, such as the stately bow of greeting when acquaintances meet.

In Tokyo's busy streets, Buckley is a familiar figure. Above, he converses in fluent Japanese with a sidewalk "bookie" who is taking bets on a bicycle race.

Clad in loose canvas shirt and trousers, prescribed garb for practising the art of Judo, Buckley tests his skill and agility in this ancient Japanese form of self-defence.

Japanese fashion, Buckley keeps a netted pen filled with songbirds in his backyard. Looking on are his two adopted sons, Bruce and Doug. The Buckleys have also adopted two Japanese daughters, Jean and Judy.

Buckley and his wife, Ruth, enjoy a quick snack of smoked eel in a small restaurant. When dining out, the Buckleys usually "do as the Japanese do", sit crosslegged, forsaking knife and fork for chopsticks.

Ruth Buckley, who has accompanied her Canadian husband on his YMCA postings to such exotic far Eastern places as Chungking, Shanghai and Tokyo, converses in faultless Japanese with a fruit vendor in one of the capital's colourful open-air marketplaces. The Buckleys have found the Japanese people warm and friendly to westerners and receptive to western ideas.

DORKING, England (Reuters) Delegates representing the Socialist parties of 22 Commonwealth and colonial countries have unanimously condemned "the mad and suicidal arms race" based on the policy of building hydrogen bombs as a deterrent of war.

The motion demanded that all governments "take every possible action to divert the great and terrifying power of thermonuclear energy towards peaceful purposes and the creation of abundance for the ordinary peoples of the world."

The Commonwealth Socialist declaration also condemned the creation of the Federation of Central Africa, composed of Northern Rhodesia, Southern Rhodesia and Nyasaland," against the wishes of the African peoples."

STIRLING

River Valley W.I. Enjoys Talk on 'Ceylon'

STIRLING — The June meeting of River Valley Women's Institute was held one week earlier than usual at the home of Mrs. Vernon Harry with 31 members in attendance.

Mrs. Ralph Usman presided. Mrs. J. R. Donohue presented the financial statement.

Two members were appointed to attend Hastings County Training School re "The Making of Lampshades."

Thanks were extended for fruit boxes. The July meeting will be "Children's Day" at the school house and the first half of the membership will provide refreshments.

A donation was made to "The Red Shield Fund." The roll call was an ACTIVE country of which there are 30.

The motto, "Home is Home in Any Land," was given by Mrs. Ross Bush, who pictured the various homes in Canada, the round huts in Africa, the paper and bamboo homes of the Orient, the Eskimos' igloos of ice and snow, and closed on the theme, "A house can only be a home if love is there," closing with a few lines of "Home Sweet Home."

Mrs. George Heasman, the delegate to the Ontario W.I. Officers' Conference and Diamond Jubilee at Guelph, gave an informative and interesting report of the various sessions. The theme was "The Horizon Ever Widens and Looks Forward to the Future."

Almost 1,000 Institute Women were in attendance from the Province of Ontario, also a few national officers which included the president, Mrs. J. W. Adams, of Rhalton, Sask.

VISITS GREENHOUSES

Mrs. Heasman gave numerous items of interest of the trip, the visit to the greenhouses at Guelph, and suggestions that she had thought worthwhile to carry back to the branch. She displayed several pictures, programs for all to view.

Mrs. Stanley Irven read a humorous and worthwhile poem entitled "A Plea from a Farmer's Wife." This plea was that the town folk keep their cars off the streets of Stirling on Saturday evening and leave room for the farmer, his wife and family to park on the street and do their weekly shopping.

Mrs. Gerald Brooks convened the program on the theme, "National and International." She gave an interesting topic on Ceylon.

Twenty-five delegates of the Federated Women's Institutes across Canada are planning to attend the 8th triennial conference of ACWW which is London, Eng., in July.

The Ontario group, headed by Mrs. Gordon MacPhatter, past provincial president and four other delegates plan to leave Malton airport in June 14th. They will visit Honolulu, Fiji, Singapore and Colombo. After the convention they will travel to Bombay, Istanbul, Athens, Paris, London and they expect to arrive in Montreal on August 21.

The speaker gave the history of the ACWW which was founded by Mrs. Alfred Watt, and told how the Associated Country Women of the World now comprises some 40 odd countries.

With the aid of a map she graphically described the island of Ceylon and told of its climatic conditions, beautiful scenery and their beds of oysters where pearls are harvested.

PICTURES SHOWN

Various pictures were displayed showing the native dress, the glowing saris, snake charmers, rice paddies, women gathering wild rose leaves, the jack fruit, and the various tea plantations, with pictures of tea being harvested and processed.

In Ceylon the Institutes are called "Lanka Mahila Samiti," and they now have a membership of 65,000 women in 995 centres.

In 1941 training centres were established and to date there are 718 voluntary rural workers.

They also have 22 nursery schools under the management of trained personnel. Their educational programs continue to raise health standards, encourage food production through home gardens and map out a system of adult education.

Two years ago a new headquarters for this group was set up in Colombo. The governor general said in part: "In declaring this building open I am sure democracy will not die in Ceylon as long as this Institute movement is active."

The president voiced appreciative thanks for hospitality to the hostess, to Mrs. Brooks for her topic on "Ceylon," to Mrs. Heasman for her report of Guelph, also for the appropriate reading and to the lunch committee.

The hostess and her assistants served sandwiches and cake, and all enjoyed a social chat.

The president hoped a large number would attend the West Hastings District Annual next week at Stirling.

SHADES OF JESSE!

RANGOON, Burma (AP)—Bandits staged a Wild-west-style train holdup 19 miles from Rangoon today. They stripped every passenger of money and jewels. The train was on a 100-mile journey north when three men climbed over the tender and at rifle-point ordered the engine crew to halt the train while eight companions went through the cars for the loot.

ROSLIN

W.I. Entertains Neighboring Institutes

ROSLIN — On Tuesday evening Roslin branch of the Women's Institute entertained several neighboring branches at St. Paul's Church hall.

The weather was ideal and a large number of ladies was present from Chapman – Tweed, Plainfield and Melrose Institutes.

Mrs. D. Chisholm and Mrs. A. Bates received the guests at the door.

When all had assembled Mrs. Bates extended a welcome and presided for the following programme:

A solo, "April Showers" was rendered by Mrs. Doris Lawrenson, of Tweed, with Mrs. S. Webb, also of Tweed, as accompanist; a tap dance number by Miss Shirley Chisholm was accompanied by Mrs. Warham as pianist; community singing was enjoyed with Mrs. M. Fargey at the piano.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Bates introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. John Halg, of Belleville, better known as "Harriet Stevens" of CJBQ, radio station, Belleville.

In her opening remarks Miss Stevens said she was not a speaker, she just talked. She spoke of the wonderful motto of the W. I., "For Home and Country" and said women's influence stems from the home, but stretches out to much wider horizons.

She said "housekeeper," while in Canada we say "homemaker."

She spoke also of the official magazine of the Business and Professional Women's clubs, "Widening Horizons" and said it was symbolic of the work of the W.I. "What we are, determines what we will do."

She spoke of a diamond, when it is mined, it is rough, the more it is cut and polished the more it shines and sparkles, giving back a thousandfold. The days of isolation are gone, it is one world.

The speaker told of her recent trip to New York and of visiting the United Nations buildings and interviewing a number of delegates and workers there.

"We underestimate the work women are doing in the United Nations, they are realists and that is why there are so many at work there."

An interesting book to read is "Half the World's Children."

She also mentioned two persons, who are known in this district through their work in the W. I. or hospital, namely, Mrs. John Houck of Brampton, and Miss Potts, a former supervisor at Belleville General Hospital, who are both connected with the United Nations. The latter supervises the buying of all the food for UNESCO.

Two musical numbers were given by Misses Marilyn Doreen and Betty Dickens, of Plainfield, "Singing Wind in the Willows" and "Star Waltz."

Mrs. Pascoe of Melrose, gave a humorous reading, "The Organ Recital." A skit entitled "Courting Days and Later," was presented by Mrs. Jeffery, Mrs. Foster and Mrs. Webb of Tweed. Mrs. Lorne Wesse, of Melrose, gave a piano instrumental. A solo by Mrs. Doggett, "Flow Gently Sweet Afton," was enjoyed. The Dickens sisters favored with another song "Three Ways to Love."

Mrs. Bates expressed thanks to the speaker and all those who had assisted on the program.

Refreshments were served and a social time was enjoyed.

Mrs. S. Bateman of Tweed, moved a vote of thanks on behalf of the guests, to which Mrs. J. D. Empson responded.

TELLS OF MASSACRE OF ALGERIANS

Sole adult male survivor of a massacre by Algerian nationalists of an entire Algerian village, a wounded man tells his bodies. He said the Nationalists shot and stabbed all men and boys to death and he escaped when a revolver fired at his head put a bullet only through his hat. French troops found the women and children wandering in a dazed condition among the bodies of 302 men and boys. The Nationalists attacked the village, called La Meloura, because they suspected the inhabitants of helping the French.

ST. ANDREW'S-GILEAD W.A.

The ladies of Mrs. Swan's group of the St. Andrew's-Gilead W.A. sponsored an "Open Meeting" at the church on Thursday afternoon where a goodly representation of the surrounding United Church W.A. members attended.

The worship service, in charge of Mrs. G. Swan, opened with "Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow," followed by singing "The Church's One Foundation." A devotional poem, entitled "Let's Be a Little Kinder," by Mrs. Swan, was enjoyed.

The Scripture, taken from Genesis 43:11-16 and 45:1-8, was read by the first president of Gilead W.A., Mrs. Lucile Hubel, then the devotional reading, "A Little Bit of Honey," by Mrs. Wilfred Clare, the second president of the W.A. Prayer by Mrs. McRae, and a solo entitled, "My Own Dear Land," was beautifully rendered by Rev. R. J. McRae.

The offering was received by Mrs. R. Treverton and Mrs. G. Livingston. The worship service closed with singing the hymn, "Jesus Thou Divine Companion," with Mrs. C. Martin as piano accompanist.

Musical numbers from neighboring associations included solos by Mrs. Furmidge of Canniton, with harp accompaniment; Mrs. Brenton of Plainfield, "Yes I Would Know Him"; Mrs. Ray of Bethel-Zion, "Softly and Tenderly"; Mrs. McRae, Bethany, "I'll Keep on Dreaming"; and a reading entitled "The Wesleys," by Mrs. Kurl of Shannonville, made a pleasing prelude for an interesting and instructive address by the guest speaker, Mrs. J. A. Lott, of Frankford, first Presbyterial W.A. president. Her theme for the day was "Prayer" and its resources. This address was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK (AP)—Emil Lence, pint-sized promoter who suddenly has found himself juggling heavyweights and title matches, held a luncheon to celebrate the signing of Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson to battle champion Floyd Patterson.

Lence, who seemed a little bewildered by it all, presided, and before the luncheon was over everyone but the guys who will carry the water buckets up the aisle July 29 had been introduced.

After Lence explained his purpose by saying he thought the sport needed a boost, the Hurricane, somewhat subdued, took his place before the mike.

"I thought the last was a good fight," he said, referring to a previous Patterson-Jackson affair. "I'd like to fight this one for nothing to make the world happy."

Just why the world was unhappy because he was getting paid was not explained and he had nothing to say when a voice from the audience said with a trace of a challenge: "Well, why don't you?"

Patterson was not quite so altruistic. "I'm not going to say what Jackson did," he said, showing he had no aversion whatsoever to sharing in the gate.

Lippe Brisbi, Jackson's manager, took the stand between the shrimp and chicken courses and spent his brief words defending his warrior from what he considered unjust criticism.

"Jackson will do his best," he said. "I know he can do it. He will come through. He has been, er, misjudged on many occasions. He has been ridiculed, called a clown, but in my judgment he will be the next champion."

Then publicity man Ned Brown plunged right into his duties with the ardor of a fast-talking TV hawker peddling cut - rate birdseed.

"And what are they charging?" he asked. "Not $40. Not $30. Not $100. But $10, $20 and $30."

Someone suggested that maybe the product was no bargain at those prices, but that was just one man's opinion.

Derby Winner Owner Lost But Not Money

EPSOM, England (AP) — Sir Victor Sassoon, 75-year-old owner of the Epsom Derby winner, said Wednesday after the race, "It took more out of me than it did out of Crepello."

Sir Victor, veteran English racing man, insisted that he did not "have a shilling" bet on Crepello who finished 1½ lengths in front of Ballymoss.

The reason he did not bet on the colt who now has won both the 2,000 Guineas and the Derby classic races, is "superstition."

"I did not have a shilling on him either when he won the 1953 Derby," Sassoon said.

Amateur-Pro Problem Again Stymies Brass

EVIAN, France (AP) — The leaders of world sports wrestled again Wednesday with the question of where amateurism stops and professionalism starts. They came to the familiar ending—no decision.

The discussion came up at a meeting of the executive board of the International Olympic Committee with representatives of international sports federations.

Avery Brundage of Chicago, IOC president, brought it up in a review of the Melbourne Games where he said the Olympic committee had been accused of accepting athletes who were not amateurs. The name of Ercole Baldini, Italian cyclist who turned professional shortly after the games, was specifically mentioned.

Brundage asked the federations to work among themselves and with the IOC to try to standardize interpretations of the amateur regulations.

American Olympic competitors Jim Hewson of Buffalo, N.Y., John Deni of Pittsburgh, also have filed entries.

The Argentinians are Guillovmo Weller and Fernando Hidalgo, both from Buenos Aires.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The "Satchel Paige" of Ox Point stood by the dugout in the trim Point Anne softball field Tuesday night, watching Ray Brannigan, second-string pitcher of the Pointers, turn in a neat hurling chore.

While Ray was two-hitting the ambitious youngsters from Madoc with a deceptive mixture of tosses, "Ole Rubber Arm," usually as talkative as a freshly-caught oyster, reluctantly gave out with some information about himself and his family.

What does he do to that arm to keep it as limber as a Bay of Quinte eel? Nuthin'. Jest keeps it moving. It got as stiff as the back of a dowager on a slumming tour after the first time out this year, but now, it is as limber as a current politician's tongue.

Pat Maracle's eyes gleamed with pleasure as he watched his mates pound the ball to all corners of the lot in their 16-hit 11-0 victory. "If they keep that up," he grinned, "I won't have to worry too much."

"How long have you been pitching?" he was asked.

"Since I was seventeen years old," he said.

This, we thought, is where we have him. This is where we solve the age mystery.

"How many years ago was that?" was the foolish question.

That stalled. "That Brannigan is pitching a mighty fine game. Did you see that guy go for the sucker ball?"

The question was repeated. "Who, me," said Pat, a surprised look in his eyes. "Oh, I've been throwin' em off-and-on since I first played in Deseronto. That was quite a while ago."

Mission completed.

Pat has chalked up a 4-0 record already this season—and appears to be headed for one of his best years. He keeps the trusty flipper well-oiled and in working condition. Tuesday night he worked out hard and later went in for exercise, striking out three of the 7 batters to face him.

On his off-league nights Pat "does a bit of pitching" for a league which operates near where he lives. In the loop are the Second Concession, Slash Road, Front Road and York Road teams.

And he has more than a pitching interest in the circuit because some of his family also play in it. For instance daughter Mary Jane can play any position and daughter Evelina, 18, who could go on the $64,000 program, disdains the play but dons the mask and pad and officiates behind the plate.

And it is reported by senior league umpires that Evelina does not have to take a backseat from any of the males of the officiating species.

Evelina calls 'em as she sees them—and as they are, said Pat. She has a thumb that is as erratic as the Old Man's arm—and she doesn't hesitate to use it when some ornery male player gets argumentative over the lady's decisions.

In fact, Pat said, at a recent league meeting, some of the boys wanted Evelina to give up this umpiring job, because they couldn't very well say what they would ordinarily say to a gentleman umpire, if such a critter exists.

But the rest of loop was satisfied with Evelina's work behind the plate. She doesn't chew tobacco, nor swear, and has a way about her that effectively halts any Joe that has a yen to "tell the umpire off." Besides young brothers, Glen 13 and Ron, 12, are always around, ready to tomahawk any upstart palefaces who might get too obstreperous.

"Better get ready," said Pat. "Gotta go in there to pitch the last two innings." He peeled off his windbreaker and swung the trusty flipper to work out any kinks.

"Just one question, Pat? How are you records of your pitching efforts."

Pat scratched his head. "Guess not," he admitted. "But I have a lot of paper clips down home that you guys have written. You could find it there."

Pat has been the mound mainstay of the Pointers for some time now. The passing years do not appear to have had much effect on his pitching prowess, but they must be taking a slow toll. Point Anne knows this and are doing their best to get a topflight hurler to ease the Maracle burden.

Pat has pitched some sensational games in his day, but one of his finest efforts, in this corner's opinion, came last summer when he and the sensational Ray Judd, Mormon pitching wizard of the Lakefield team, battled to a twelve-inning scoreless tie. That, men amis, was something to see, let alone experience.

Cincy Grabs 4-2 Decision As 'Bums' Shift Into Second; Bomber Bats Blast 4 Homers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cincinnati Redlegs reasserted their hold on the National League lead by cooling off Philadelphia 4-2 in 11 innings Wednesday night, dropping the Phillies into third place. Brooklyn Dodgers moved into second with a 4-0 victory over Chicago Cubs.

The Redlegs now lead Brooklyn by two games and the Phillies by 2 ½. Milwaukee is fourth, three games back, after thumping New York Giants 9-8 in an afternoon game that produced nine home runs. St. Louis defeated Pittsburgh 5-1.

The Redlegs handed the Phils their third defeat in the last 10 games on an error, Jerry Lynch's pinch triple and Roy McMillan's single for two 11th - inning runs against losing reliever Dick Farrell. Ed Bouchee's inside-the-park homer had given the Phils a 2-1 lead in the sixth. But Cincy tied it in the ninth, again with the help of an error. Johnny Klippstein won it in relief.

SPECTATOR COSTS GAME

A spectator probably cost the Phillies the game. He was hauled up in jail.

In the third inning with one out and the Phillies' Richie Ashburn on first, Grannie Hamner lined one down the right field line. Ashburn was home and Hamner rounding second with the ball still bouncing along when Thomas Harpion of Wilmington, De., leaned out of the stands and grabbed it.

Ashburn was sent back to third and Hamner to second when the umpires ruled a ground rule double. On the next play Ashburn scored on a slow roller but Hamner who would have been on third but for the interference never reached home.

And Harrison?

He was escorted from the park by an usher and turned over to police who charged him with disorderly conduct.

SHUTOUT FOR DRYSDALE

Sophomore Don Drysdale claimed his first major league shutout for the Brooklyn with a five-hitter. He struck out nine. Gino Cimoli drove in two runs with his sacrifice fly breaking up a duel with Don Kaiser in the sixth. The Dodgers, winning their third in a row, iced it with three in the eighth.

An eighth-inning triple by Bob Malkmus—his first major league hit—and a passed ball won for the Braves and reliever Ernie Johnson, who smacked a three-run homer. Joe Adcock and Bobby Thomson also homered for the Braves while Red Schoendienst and Hank Sauer slugged two each and Willie Mays and Whitey Lockman swatted one apiece for the Giants. The major league record for home runs in one game is 11.

Lindy McDaniel won his fifth with a five-hitter after the Cards hung a sixth defeat on Bob Friend with a four-run first inning. Al Dark singled home two runs in the big frame. McDaniel fanned eight, walked none.

Homer Hurler Bison Winner; Royals Nip Jets

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Glenn Melvin Cox, a 200-pound righthand pitcher from Monticello, Calif., was up to his home run tricks with Buffalo Bisons again Wednesday night. Perhaps manager Phil Cavarretta should play him in the outfield when he isn't busy on the mound.

Cox limited Miami Marlins to eight hits, and walloped the ball 365 feet over the right field fence at Miami in the eighth inning to win his fifth decision against a lone defeat, 2-1.

It was the fifth home run in the last three games for Cox who played with Columbus and Kansas City Athletics last season.

Jake Easter has tied the score at 1-1 in the top of the seventh with a blast over the left-center field fence. Frank Herrera, Miami first baseman, had a busy evening with 18 putouts.

Home runs gave Rochester Red Wings a 4-3 victory over the Sarnia Braves at Havana. Tommy Burgess hit a two-run blast in the ninth inning, and Gerry Geigert a solo belt in the seventh to drive Pat Scantlebury from the box.

The last-place Montreal Royals shoved over an unearned run in the eighth inning to defeat the Jets 8-7 at Columbus.

Al Heist allowed had gone ahead 7-5 with a four-run rally in the top of the seventh, Russ Sullivan's pinch single and Gerry Geigert and Jim Clark's double in the eighth inning put the finishing touches on the game.

Toronto at Richmond was postponed on account of rain.

Three Clubs Fail to Agree In NHL Battle of the Swap

By W. R. WREATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Three National Hockey League clubs, wrestling with a budding wholesale swap of players, appeared no further ahead today after 48 hours of officers, counter-offers and thousands of words.

The NHL clamped up its 40th annual meeting Wednesday, intra-league draft operations saw five players find new major league berths and a final mild session approved television arrangements and straightened out a few minor problems.

So far as could be learned, the big three-team deal essentially was just where it was after the two clubs called had finished the 1956-57 hockey season. The teams reported involved are Detroit Red Wings, Boston Bruins and Chicago Black Hawks. There was a chance New York Rangers might ultimately figure.

Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs appeared only interested spectators.

A FUTURE TO WINGS

Key players are goalie Terry Sawchuk, property of Boston, and left-winger Vic Stasiuk, loan of the club with Detroit. Half a dozen or more other established NHL players are also involved.

Sawchuk, who walked out on Boston last winter because of illness, is ticketed for a return to Detroit, the club that dealt him off three years ago. Stasiuk is reported to have overcome his qualms over playing in the Motor City trek—$22,000 a season, gossip has it—if he will switch to the tail-end Hawks.

Goalie Glen Hall of Detroit is definitely caught up in any deal involving Sawchuk.

An impasse in the wholesale swap was reached Wednesday night.

"There has been no deal," said general manager Lynn Patrick of Boston Bruins. "Those guys wouldn't even give me a call the time of day."

The implication was that the haggling was stalemated over one player not directly concerned in the proposed swap. It was believed centre Alex Delvecchio of Detroit was the man. Boston wants Hall to part with him and prefers to offer centre Dutch Rebel or Hall.

Boston, on record as determined to go along with rookie goalie Don Simmons, wants a second or want Hall—but does require centre strength, particularly if veteran Cal Gardner retires.

In all the dickering, the Black Hawks appear to be caught in the middle. They're ready to surrender almost anything except forward Eddie Litzenberger if they can grab Lindsay.

TO PLAY FULL TIME

The Hawks are happy over the reported willingness of centre Eric Nesterenko to play full time next season. Nesterenko, formerly with Toronto Leafs, has been a student at University of Toronto.

"Nesterenko told me at the end of last season that he will be available as a regular instead of a part-time player when next season rolls around," said general manager Tommy Ivan. "I hope he doesn't change his mind."

In the intra-league draft session the Hawks grabbed two players owned by Detroit — defenceman Larry Hillman and centre Ron Haller. They also took the 25-year-old right-winger Ed Litzenberger of the American Hockey League.

The Bruins also drafted two players—defenceman Jack Horvath from Montreal Canadiens and centre Norm Johnson from Detroit Red Wings. Johnson played with Brandon of the Western Hockey League last season and the Horvath with Rochester of the AHL.

The Rangers drafted defenceman John Hanna from Montreal. Hanna last season played with Chicoutimi of the Quebec Hockey League.

Including drafts from minor leagues Tuesday, the Hawks have spent $50,000 on new material, highest amount by any NHL club.

Approval was given at the year-ending meeting for television by CBS in the four U.S. cities of 21 games next season, increased with 40 last season when the TV program was started.

Boston and Detroit each will have five TV games at home and five away, New York will have four at home and five away, Chicago seven at home and four away, and Montreal two away. Toronto Leafs will not be seen on TV games in U.S. cities.

Approval was also given to the all-star game for Oct. 8 in Montreal. The Canadiens, Stanley Cup champions, will meet the all-stars. Coach Milt Schmidt of Boston Bruins, cup finalists against Canadiens, will coach the all-stars.

Awards will be made by the NHL to photographers producing the best pictures in NHL games.

DENIES REPORTS

Oakville Whips Guelph 12-2

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rene Bouchard of Oakville Oaks got the first starting assignment of the Intercounty Baseball League season Wednesday night and proved to be an effective tranquilizer for the usually unmanageable Guelph Maltsters.

Plymouths, who had racked up 29 runs in their first four games, managed only five hits off Bouchard's offerings as the Oaks belted Guelph all nine of the four homers for the winners.

Centre fielder Welland Switsons blanketed the Red Sox on the four-hit pitching of Bouchard. It was Welland's first win in two Great Lakes - Niagara League starts after a pair of third straight loss.

In St. Catharines, North Toronto Indians' Blue Views played their first game of the finest Lakes-Niagara season and beat Niagara Falls Kerrios 3-1. The New York state club, playing 19 home games in St. Catharines, were paced by Bill Proats, formerly of Detroit Tigers and Buffalo Bisons, who allowed six hits and struck out 12.

Pt. Anne Sinks Goyer Marines For 5th Win

By GARRY ALEXANDER

The Point Anne Cementmen established themselves as the only undefeated team in the Belleville and District softball league last evening by pounding out a 13-6 triumph over Goyer's Marines.

The Marines' loss was their first in three decisions while the Pointers ran their perfect record to five victories.

Home runs and the perfect relief hurling of Pat Maracle told the story. Maracle gained his fourth win of the young season, twirling hitless ball over the last five frames with only one runner reaching first, that on an error.

Meanwhile the Cementmen gathered 13 hits including home runs by Doug Hull, Pete Green and John Batchelor, all solid blasts. Gerry Goyer replied with a long circuit blast for the Marines.

Point Anne opened the scoring with a pair on a walk, sacrifice, two errors and Mulholland's single in the second. A pair of free passes, Leo Goyer's single and an error made the bottom of the first Marines in front 3-2.

Dave Jones' safety, Doug Hull's triple and Hull and Batchelor's netted the winners another pair for a 4-3 score. Gerry Goyer belted a long circuit clout to tie the score again in the third. Then in the fourth, the Cementmen took the lead with two walks and Pat Gilmour's error on Gerry Goyer's long fly to left.

A clothes-line homer by Doug Hull with Jones on board gave the Cementmen one run by Pete Green, in the fifth, gave the Cementmen a 6-3 lead. Batchelor, Elliott, Mulholland and Maracle hit for three more in the eighth to start the Cementmen on their way to the scoring spree of the contest.

Maracle faced only 16 men and the only time he came close to losing his no-hit record was when Jack Elliott robbed Gerry Goyer with a sensational sliding grab. The veteran whiffed five. "Lefty" Jackson struck out five for Point Anne, allowing both Marine hits, fanning three but walking six and hitting one.

Lum Carson gave up ten runs off ten hits in eight frames to suffer the loss. He retired the first two men he faced, four in all, but received poor support while walking only one man. Tommy Thompson worked the ninth, allowing three runs and three hits.

Doug Hull with a homer and a single, Alvin Batchelor a homer and double, Jack Elliott a double and single, Sam Mulholland and Dave Jones with two singles paced the winner's attack. Pete Green also had his homer. Pat Gilmour and Maracle singled.

Gerry Goyer hit hard all night and picked up only the homer while coach Leo Goyer had his single in one trip.

On the Tracks

TORONTO (CP)—Censor, four-year-old Canadian bred colt owned by Mrs. E. P. Taylor of Toronto is the race of his life Wednesday afternoon at New Woodbine when he equalled the Canadian record of 1:10 1-5 for six furlongs.

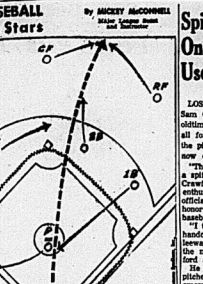
Censor was ridden perfectly by Avelino Gomez in the afternoon's feature race the $7,500 Jacques Cartier Stakes.

Canadian Champ the greatest money winner currently campaigning in Canada, First Sea Bird by a length for second position.

Canadian Champ was backed down to odds of two to five. Consequently Censor paid a handsome $18.70 to win, $3.10 to place and $2.30 to show.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jaclyn Stable's Della, a supplemental entry ridden by Willie Hartack, scored an upset victory Wednesday in the running of the $25,000 added juvenile stakes for two-year-old colts at Belmont Park.

Jewels Reward was second and Levelight third.



The winner paid $14.90.

At Chicago's Washington Park, Hasty House Farm's Bluebilly captured the $22,375 Honeymoon Handicap in a tight three-horse finish.

The three-year-old edged Dale's Delight and Maromond, and returned $12.60.

INSIDE BASEBALL for Future Stars

By MICKEY McCONNELL
Major League Scout

An alert defensive team can cut off runs for their opponents in the best of competition, but they can't do it without repeating the play so often that they become automatic. Every player must know what to do and when to do it as shown in the diagram above.

When an opponent blasts out a hit to right center-field, which should prove good for three bases, the right and center-fielders race out to retrieve the ball. If one of them should trip and fall down or if the ball should rebound off the wall just right, the other fielder will be in position to make the play. If they collide, the left-fielder is running over, too, and can make the play.

The second baseman runs out to take the throw from the outfield and relay it to third base. The shortstop backs him up in case the throw is wild or gets past him. The third-baseman straddles his base to take the relay thrower and the pitcher backs up third.

The first-baseman moves into the cut-off position. A fumble in the outfield might encourage the batter to try to score, but a quick, accurate throw might cause him to change his mind as he rounds third, and a cut-off and snap throw by the first-baseman to third base might catch him. The catcher remains at home plate to take a throw there in case the batter tries to score.

Dennis Mack, the peerless Hall of Fame manager, once praised the play of a shortstop in a high school game, who, after receiving a wild throw past the relay man, made a snap throw to catch a third-base coach as he was trying to score. The player on the relay stop had glanced to see where the runner was as the ball was thrown, guessed that he might continue past third, and threw to the shortstop in time to catch the runner. This kind of thinking and acting gets the right results.

Turner Wins But Goes To Hospital

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—A "blood swelling" on the forehead put Gil Turner in a hospital Wednesday night after the veteran hurler had beaten out a split decision over Yama Bahama in a 10-round fight.

Dr. Samuel Kaplan, physician for the Miami Beach boxing commission, said Turner had a blood blister "the size of half an apple" on his forehead when he left Gilmour and Maracle singled.

Gerry Goyer hit hard all night and picked up only the homer while coach Leo Goyer had his single in one trip.

Gossip From the Gridirons

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Montreal Alouettes have indicated willingness to give up their claim to American tackle Don Owens in return for two players from Pittsburgh Steelers. This was the top football development Wednesday in recruiting news from four Canadian centres.

Leo Dandurand president of the Big Four Alouettes, and Pittsburgh owner Art Rooney met in Montreal that week-end in an effort to iron out the complications caused by Owens signing with both clubs. The 265-pound tackle from Mississippi Southern College has said he would prefer to play with the National Football League Steelers.

Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four announced that Hamiltonian Ed Wisczinski, ex-Notre Dame graduate, has a damaged knee and won't be able to try out with the club. Halfback was signed by Argos last year. Argos also cut Ernie Smith, former San Francisco 'ther, who tried out at the club's California clinic this year.

B.C. Lions of the Western Interprovincial Union announced the signing of holdover guard Don Simpson and of Barney Towers, a halfback with University of British Columbia last year.

Yankee Scout Dies at 74

NEW YORK (AP)—Paul Krichell, who for 37 years served as a New York Yankee scout, signing many of baseball's greatest stars, died at his home Tuesday night. He was 74.

He joined the Yankee organization in 1920 and was their chief scout at the time of his death.

Spitball Huh! One Pitcher Used Soap

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Wahoo Sam Crawford, one of the great old-time sluggers in baseball, is all for giving the game back to the pitchers—including use of the now outlawed spitball.

"There's no more danger from a spitball than a fast ball," said baseball Pundit, guest of sports enthusiast Jim Smith and county officials who gave him a scroll in honor of his recent election to baseball's hall of fame.

"I think they've got the pitcher handcuffed. Give a pitcher more leeway and you might separate the men from the boys," Crawford advocated.

He recalled the old days when pitchers doctored the ball with emery boards, bottle tops and other devices.

"One pitcher around 1st. Louis used a bar of soap," said Wahoo Sam. "Believe me, he had a real spitter. He'd go to talk and bubbles would fly all over the place."

Johnson Moves Into 2nd Spot; Durelle Tenth

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Lightheavyweight Bill Johnson has moved into the No. 2 spot behind champion Archie Moore in the National Boxing Association ratings by virtue of two important victories.

The Philadelphia slugger, No. 3 last month, stepped up a notch after his unanimous decision over Clarence Hinnant May 31 and a decision over Bob Manley.

Yvon Durelle, of Bale St. Anne, N.B., is rated 10th in the light heavyweight division.

Middleweight champion Sugar Ray Robinson is the choice as boxer-of-the-month for May, based on his spectacular knockout of Gene Fullmer in their title battle May 1.

CAMPBELL ASKS DIVORCE

LONDON (AP)—Donald Campbell, who has piloted a motorboat at 225.36 miles an hour, filed a divorce suit Wednesday against his 27-year-old New Zealand born wife, Dorothy. He charged adultery. The suit is listed as undefended.

In a previous marriage also ended in divorce for Campbell, son of pre-war speed, sce Sir Malcolm Campbell.

Sweet Grey-Haired Old Lady Didn't Give the Nag a Fag

MELBOURNE (AP)—There is this sweet gray-haired old lady with a penchant for giving a penny to horses out at the track. And she has Australian track followers in a turmoil, the likes of which will not be seen again until they have 4 horses in a photo finish.

It seems there is this bookie called Fredlaw that the bookies think has got the same chance of winning as a man hitting the fruit machine jackpot with his last quarter. Only Fredlaw is a horse that likes parsley, so when the sweet gray-haired old lady offers him a piece, what does he do but eat it. And then what does he do, but win.

The old lady, it appears, offers some parsley to Fredlaw's stable companion, a horse that rejoices in the name of Gay Lawrence. This horse is such a hot tip that the bookies make him a 6-to-4-on favorite. But Gay Lawrence is no vegetarian and he turns down the parsley. He finished last.

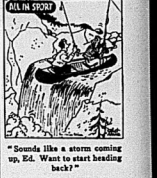
SALIVA TEST

Well, when they bring the horses in after the race the puzzled track officials give Fredlaw a going over and find the saliva shows traces of alkaloid nicotine.

Now they know he doesn't get the nicotine from smoking, so they figure he is doped.

When the news gets around that the horse is doped there is the most wholesale shemozzle at the track ever seen in connection with horse doping.

Then the gray-haired old lady turns up Tuesday and tells the Victoria State Racing Club stewards that she always passes alkaloid nicotine in his blood.



She says she has a peach tree which she sprays with a nicotine spray to kill off the bugs. Right under the tree is a big patch of parsley. And that, she says, was where she got the parsley she fed to Fredlaw.

Junior Tosses First No-Hitter

HAMILTON (CP)—Righthander Gene Kay pitched the first 1957 no-hitter in the Intercounty Baseball League junior series as Hamilton Optimist Cardinals blanked Kitchener 10-0 Wednesday night.

The 18-year-old grad of local standout ball ended four and struck out six. Offensively he contributed two of Hamilton's dozen hits.

Quinte SICAO Holds Golf Tournament

Last Saturday morning the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club was the scene of unusual activity and enthusiasm. Tee-off time for 25 members and guests of the Bay of Quinte chapter of the S.I.C.A.O. took place at 8.15 a.m. By 1.00p.m. most of the stragglers finished the 18 holes.

Scores ranged from a low gross of 83 to a high of 165.

Pete Sarnes won the low gross and Bob Taylor won the low net (Atlantic system). Other prize winners were: Charlie Lovett, Earl Steckley, John' Semple and Arthur Page.

The enthusiasm shown by all the participants spoke well for a continuation of this event on an annual basis. It provided a fitting extra curricula close to the educational program sponsored by the Society of Industrial and Cost Accountants during the winter months.

NEW YORK (AP) — General manager George Weiss of New York Yankees has invited Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi of Japan to open the Yankee-Chicago White Sox game June 22 at Yankee Stadium. Weiss said that the invitation was to reciprocate Kishi's "wonderful hospitality" to the Yankees during their tour of Japan in 1955.

Taylor Nags May Get Jolt In Colorful Queen's Plate

TORONTO (CP) — Folks who will bet on an upset in Saturday's 98th running of the Queen's Plate received a little support today from a couple of experienced horsemen Bird and jockey Chris Rogers.

Bird, who has been timing on Ontario tracks for 48 of his 64 years, says Lad Ator, M. J. Boyle's winter book favorite, "could make the race quite interesting."

Lad Ator finished second to Mrs. E. P. Taylor's Chopadette in Monday's 1-1/16mile plate trials, but Bird, who's opinion is respected by the experts, says "you can't throw out that race—they'll have to watch Lad Ator."

Bird's opinion was backed up by a general way by Rogers, who will ride whichever of the E. P. Taylor horses Avelino Gomez doesn't pick. Rogers, who has ridden more plate winners than any other jockey, feels sure "little men still can provide a surprise ending."

"I've won three plates and two of those horses had no business winning," Rogers said. "In each case the horse I beat was much the best but the jockey made a mistake and I was able to take advantage."

Gomez and Rogers will ride Lord Cay and Chopadette, the two Taylor entries, but Gomez hasn't announced which one he will choose. He has until 45 minutes before post time to disclose his decision.

No matter which horse Gomez picks, Rogers can't lose financially. It was announced the two will split the jockey's share of any money the Taylor horses pick up.

Rogers is also optimistic best as regards the decision Gomez will make. "I got no worries," he said smiling. "He picks and I ride."

DARK HORSES

Other members of the "knock-down-the - favorite" club are Ali's Pride and Senor Teddy. Neither colt ran in the plate trials.

Ali's Pride, which reigned 2-to-1 favorite until Monday on the basis of excellent times in training, showed the Taylor horses in last season's Cup and Saucer Handicap.

Senor Teddy just failed to beat Chopadette in the Coronation Futurity last year after being left at the starting gate.

Bride and Groom Coming Back After Three Years

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Bride and Groom is coming back. After an absence of three years from the home screen, the marriage ceremony will receive a video treatment every Monday through Friday beginning July 1 over NBC-TV.

Singer Frank Parker and actor Robert Paige will serve as co-hosts of the program on which 2,340 couples were married during their three years of radio and four years of television. John Reddy, producer of the show throughout its long life, says Bride and Groom has but one object:

"We try to give the ordinary American girl a chance to have a big wedding on television, just like Grace Kelly and Queen Elizabeth.

The idea is simple enough: A girl marries a guy before the TV audience and they are showered with all kinds of loot—refrigerators, toasters, swimming pools, a trip here or there. The only thing they forfeit is their freedom.

The hearts, flowers and booby impshit in the program made it a housewives' delight. There are all kinds of statistics available on the show—except the total gallons of joyful tears spilled by tired housewives in vicarious delight of attending a wedding.

On the other hand, one New York husband was arrested for his dissentine opinion on Bride and Groom. He grew so tired of his wife watching the program every day that he drew a gun and scored a bullseye on their TV set. Not all males agreed with him, however. Images of Sam Queen's prison voted it a daytime favorite.

Bride and Groom marriages endure, says producer Reddy. A questionnaire sent 1,100 couples married on the show revealed that their divorce rate was less than one-tenth that of the national average."

Only one couple has been remarried on Bride and Groom. They were celebrating their 40th wedding anniversary when inspection of their marriage certificate disclosed that a technical error meant they never had been married legally. The program rushed to the rescue. The couple's children and grandchildren attended their marriage ceremony.

This incident may have given rise to a quip of Bob Hope's: "I had a couple friends who got married on Bride and Groom. After it was over they learned that their marriage wouldn't be legal in 12 states for 14 days until the kinescopes were played there."

AT THE BELLE — Gordon MacRae plays the rollicking, happy role of "Curley" and Shirley Jones plays "Laurey" in Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Oklahoma!" now playing. Technicolor and cinemascope put enjoyment with the magic of Todd Magnetic Stereophonic Sound. "Oklahoma" is now playing at the Air Conditioned Belle Theatre.

Spurs Swamp Manitoba 12-0

WINNIPEG (CP)—The tourist Tottenham Hotspur, paced by its side left Ali Stokes' five goals, swamped Manitoba All-Stars 12-0 Wednesday night in an exhibition soccer game before about 4,000 fans.

Taking advantage of the wind in the first half, the English club piled up a 7-0 lead. Tottenham travels to Toronto Saturday and Montreal Sunday for games against the touring Glasgow Celtics before returning home.

SOFT DRINKS

SCARBOROUGH, England (CP) The British public is slowly making a habit of taking soft drinks, says Frank Wren, president of the National Association of Soft Drink Manufacturers. The industry "no longer is so dependent on sunshine for its sales as it was in the past," he said.

AT THE PARK — Beautiful, lovely and talented Mona Freeman stars in "Dragoon Wells Massacre", outstanding western hit in color by Technicolor. Co-headlining in the Lindsley Parsons production for Allied Artists are Barry Sullivan, Dennis O'Keefe and Katy Jurado opening tonight at the Park Theatre for the first showing. On the same program a family treat, "John and Julie" in color.

Pretty, Perky Peggy King Given Hefty Role in Movie

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It took a long time a-coming, but Peggy King now is getting a break in movies. Co-headlining in the Lindsley Parsons production for Allied Artists are Barry Sullivan, Dennis O'Keefe and Katy Jurado opening tonight at the Park Theatre for the first showing. On the same program a family treat, "John and Julie" in color.

And why not? For five years, Miss King has been queen of the night clubs, but movies shied away. She landed at MGM in 1952.

"It couldn't have happened at a worse time," she sighed. "The bottom was falling out of everything in Hollywood. I went to the studio every day for a year, but all I did was take lessons. Dance lessons. French lessons.

"I did eight bars of a song in a party scene of The Bad and the Beautiful. Otherwise, all I did was tests. And tests. And tests."

She was one of the legion of the last at GMG that year.

"Finally they let me go." Peggy said it's the end of your life if you're dropped. It wasn't. They were giving Debbie Reynolds and Leslie Caron the big buildup, so there was no chance for me."

Now Peggy is getting it perking again after a slowdown of almost a year. The current Romancer.

Peggy met pianist - composer Andre Previn when both were working at MGM. They both married others, then separated. When they took up with each other again they realized they were in love. They became engaged, though Previn wasn't free from his first wife.

"I wouldn't go out of town for engagements," she said. "I probably passed up $100,000 worth of jobs because I didn't want to be parted from Andre."

But after waiting almost a year for Mrs. Previn to get a divorce, she called the engagement off two weeks ago.

"It was a tough thing to do," she said sadly, "but I couldn't see any other way. I want to have children. I've got my own life to lead. I just couldn't wait any longer."

New Converts To Aid Graham

NEW YORK (AP)—Some of the men and women who have made "decision for Christ" at Billy Graham meetings are going to give him a hand in trying to get others to do the same.

The evangelist told a crowd of 17,500 at Madison Square Garden Tuesday night that beginning Sunday, a committee of these individuals will take the platform with him each night to tell their stories.

Graham will open the fourth week of his New York crusade, now scheduled to run six more weeks. He said the opening phase has been "wonderful, glorious."

"We've seen God move here as we've never seen him move in our ministry," Graham said. He urged Christians to get their nonreligious friends to the services.

So far, attendance has totalled 374,500, with 12,684 of them responding to Graham's plea to "accept Christ." This is an average of 604 each night—the largest response Graham has ever had.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By FRANCES DRAKE

In the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, June 7, 1957

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — A day for sensible precautions, emotional restraint — and a cheerful, hopeful outlook. Be tactful, ambitious.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Most worthwhile endeavors in both personal and business matters are favored. But withal, certain aspects stress some caution: be neither over-confident nor gullible. Rest in free time.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Confer with those in authority; seek to better employment. Cultivate and use to advantage your skills, talents and connections to advance your interests. Emphasize your sincerity, loyalty.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — The Sun and Jupiter, in benefic aspect, encourage worthwhile ambitions. Accept new duties graciously, but take care of your health, too. Social gatherings should prove enjoyable.

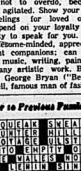
July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Your Sun occidentally placed. The day generally offers much that is fine, gives indication of personal gentility. Aid others who may need outside help. You'll enjoy it.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — You can gain today through earnest work, smart planning and handling of affairs. Don't fear to express new things, new ideas, etc. A time for some stimulating adventure, new experiences.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — It may not be easy to gain all that you seek, but it can be a pleasant, result-getting day nevertheless. Join congenial friends, family in wholesome diversion in free time.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — All matters with which you are familiar should move ahead, give little trouble. But be careful of details. Work for harmony.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Splendid Jupiter vibrations! A generally beneficial day for you and your interests. A good time for roundtable discussions, saving, enjoying regular outdoor exercise.



December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Surety, dependable self (if living up to your best) can be pleased with this type of day; it's energizing, challenging, lively. Be confident, but careful, too. Not all gains show at once.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Be motivated by your highest instincts. Show the vigor for which the world's many famous Aquarians are renowned. Increase efficiency, know-how.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Confidential matters, activities connected with the sea and liquids, legal affairs should be handled with care. Otherwise, the day promises great gains.

You born today are vivacious and magnetic. Sometimes you switch too quickly from one activity to another, but you have so much enthusiasm and energy that you can follow an avocation or two along with your regular occupation and still keep your health, being happy at accomplishment. Just be careful not to overdo, become nervous, agitated. Show your sincere feelings for loved ones; don't depend on your loyalty and generosity to speak for you. You are wholesome-minded, appreciate intelligent companions; can succeed at music, writing, painting, acting,—any artistic work. Birthdate of: George Bryan "Beau" Brummell, famous man of fashion.

LEADERS URGE

The Conservatives held four of the 75 Quebec seats in the last Parliament, including Mr. Balcer's Trois-Rivieres constituency which he is contesting again.

SAYS WORRIED

At Timmins, Attorney-General Roberts of Ontario said both External Affairs Minister Pearson and Trade Minister Howe are worried over their re-election.

Mr. Pearson is a candidate in Algoma East and Mr. Howe is running in Port Arthur, seats which they held in the last House of Commons.

"John Diefenbaker is going to send them away from Ottawa to enjoy the pensions they set up for themselves," Mr. Roberts said at a political meeting.

The attorney-general said Premier Frost and his whole government is against the re-election of Prime Minister St. Laurent and the Liberal party because the federal government will not recognize the claims of the provinces and the municipalities to some share of the general taxation to enable them to carry out necessary works.

"And we are going to send at least 75 to 80 Progressive Conservatives to Ottawa from Ontario federal ridings to show them that Ontario is behind Premier Frost in his demands, which are just and reasonable."

ACCUSES LIBERALS

George Hees, Progressive Conservative candidate for Toronto Broadview riding, accused the Liberals of "deliberate misrepresentation of the facts" in an attempt to hold seats in next Monday's general election.

Speaking at an election meeting in Trenton, Mr. Hees said this was most evident in ridings where there is either a big service vote or an important defence industry.

"The Liberals are telling the people in these ridings that a conservative government will reduce the strength of our armed forces and cut defence orders."

Mr. Hees denied this. He said his party has always urged the government to maintain the armed forces "at full strength so that Canada can play her full part in assisting in the defence of the free world."

GIVES CABINET HINT

Finance Minister Harris hinted at Whitby that if Ontario riding voters return Liberal candidate, Dr. Claude Vipond to Parliament he may receive a cabinet position.

He told a garden party meeting that during the next four years younger men will have the opportunity of entering the inner most councils of the government.

"I would look forward to that move by Dr. Vipond when I consider his past record," Mr. Harris said.

Transport Minister Marler said at Montreal that Canada's parliamentary system has "no place for independents."

He said a vote for an Independent candidate—even an Independent Liberal—is a vote against the St. Laurent government.

Trade Minister Howe predicted at Sarnia that the "tired old men" of the St. Laurent cabinet would be in the foreground of leading the Liberal government back into power in the June 10 election.

"The opposition," he said, "calls us the tired old men. But even after 22 consecutive years in government myself, I think I know what is needed to keep this country prosperous. I think I still have something to contribute to Canada."

Madoc

MADOC — Trinity Ladies' Club members held their May meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. Carl Howes.

During the business period reports were received re the rummage sale.

The landscape committee reported progress on the church lawn, and Mrs. White reported on the completion of the class rooms. Miss Grace Raney was in charge of the program. The worship service was opened by singing of the hymn "The Glory of Spring," followed by prayer by Mrs. A. Empey.

Mrs. S. B. Beatty read an article from the "Observer," by Dr. Fiddler, "How to Honor Motherhood."

Miss Ashe gave a reading on "Springtime." Miss Raney chose as her subject the famous Dutch artist, Vincent Van Gogh. Sixteen of the Van Gogh paintings were shown to the club and the artist's own comments, consisting each picture were read. A short sketch of the artist's life and his untimely end were given by Miss Raney.

Mrs. George Duffin thanked Miss Raney and the hostess and freshments were served.

MARGARET BEEVY HONORED

Miss Anne Gaebel, of Madoc, a student of the completing course at Peterborough Teachers' College was awarded the McLean prize for outstanding work during the year in all phases of Teachers' College activity. She has accepted a position with the Peterborough Board of Education.

HORSEBACK TOUR

Jean Paul and Roger Bertrand spent a night at Madoc they are two young men who are planning on making a tour of Mexico, Central and South America travelling across Canada from Montreal to the west coast and down by horseback. They were at Mrs. George Hill's tourist home. They are hoping to make the trip of 25,000 miles in five years. Pitching their tent on the Hill lawn and looking after their own meals, they left in the morning hoping to reach Havelock for the next night. The Hill family found these young men congenial and interesting and sent them along their way with heaps of good wishes.

West Huntingdon

WEST HUNTINGDON — At the United Church service here on Sunday morning the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Pollock was baptized by Mr. George Dyson, receiving the name of William Robert Pollock.

Britain, France Dislike Stassen Talking To Red

U.S. Replies That Zorin Given No Firm Proposals

Labor Proposes Dominion Status For Small Lands

LONDON (Reuters) — The Labor party today proposed a reason to give dominion status to the smallest territories in the Commonwealth.

The proposals are contained in the third of a series of colonial policy pamphlets, to be submitted to the party's annual convention this fall.

The Labor party says it would put its plan into operation if it gained control of Parliament at the next general election, expected in 1960.

Emphasis of the new policy is on the status of more than 30 British colonies which by reason of size, geography or other factors may not be in a position to follow the traditional path toward full nationhood. If full dominion status were not practicable, some colonies might become members of a federation or integrate into a sovereign state.

Most of the present colonies would become full Commonwealth members under the Labor party plan. Jamaica, part of the West Indies Federation, might also achieve this status, the pamphlet said. Others—like Malta — should seek representation in the United Kingdom Parliament.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The British and French foreign offices are reported to have complained about private talks between United States and Soviet disarmament negotiators in London.

State department officials are understood to have replied that the talks Harold Stassen had with Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin did not include presentation of any firm American proposals, merely indicating the broad outlines and general direction of American thinking.

According to information in foreign diplomatic quarters here, British and French quarters were annoyed at Stassen's talking with Zorin without, as one informant put it, having cleared with them in advance.

OTTAWA PLEASED

On the whole, however, diplomats said that Britain, France and Canada all have been highly pleased with the full consultation which Stassen has held with them and other NATO allies on details of new American proposals worked out here two weeks ago.

The proposals still have not been presented to the five-power subcommittee, composed of Britain, France, Canada, the U.S. and Russia. It is understood that the new American ideas have not yet been organized into their final form.

Zorin knew from press reports and official statements that the U.S. government had reached a set of firm decisions on a first stage disarmament arrangement and was therefore not likely to be very eager to learn the details.

The London talks are in recess until Tuesday.

Trained Laymen Are Called Best Evangelists

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A Methodist clergyman has developed the value of the kind of mass evangelism practised by Billy Graham in his New York City crusade.

Dr. Edward Carothers of Schenectady, N.Y., spoke Thursday at the annual meeting of the Genesee conference of the Methodist Church. He said the most effective kind of evangelism today is being done by trained and organized laymen, and it is their witness "should be the work of the congregation, not the pastor."

He said that many who were making "decisions for Christ" at Graham's crusade are not keeping that them.

While "shrinkage" was in contrast with the results of laymen "who have learned to love God and men and who go into the homes and share their experiences with others." These laymen brought into the church persons who "establish a lasting relationship."

Dr. Carothers told a reporter after the meeting that he attributed Graham's success in drawing crowds to his "attractive personality and the research on modern public relations techniques."

Today's Chuckle

The Kentuckian was trying to impress the Englishman in Kentucky we've got Fort Knox with enough gold stored in it to build a golden fence around Texas."

"Go ahead and build it," chuckled the Texan. "If I like it, I'll buy it."

THE WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) Synopsis: A weak, low pressure centre over the centre of Southern Ontario into Quebec Thursday giving showers in central and eastern parts of the province. In the wake of this disturbance cooler air has moved into southwestern Ontario and skies in most regions are cloudy. Clearing skies are expected by this evening but another weak low now centred over Nebraska is moving steadily east, which should bring scattered showers into Southern Ontario Saturday while the remainder of the province is sunny.

RED-LED UNION HINTS AT STRIKE OVER BOMB TESTS

Electrical Workers In Britain Urge Ban

FOLKESTONE, England (AP) Britain's Communist-led Electrical Trades Union called today for an immediate end of nuclear weapon tests. One speaker hinted that the union is ready to back this stand with strike action.

The 368 delegates attending the union's conference gave unanimous approval to a resolution calling for an end to the tests and urging British Labor movement to work for immediate abolition of atomic weapons.

Policy decisions of the ETU at exact particular attention because the Red orientation of much of its leadership and because its members are key figures in Britain's entire industrial setup, including production of equipment for atomic reactors.

Long and loud applause followed a statement by T. C. Searle, who developed the saw "as those who we should not use our industrial strength at all times to safeguard our race and our rights." He obviously referred to possible strike action.

At another meeting Aneurin Bevan, Labor party spokesman for the Labor party, called for a campaign against the "madness" of the hydrogen bomb.

Speaking at a furniture workers' meeting in Eastbourne, Bevan said Britain was entitled to make defence arrangements involved sacrifices to her own people—"but are we entitled to condemn to death large numbers of people we shall never know?"

Recover Part Of Bullets Sold Hunters in Error

TORONTO (CP) — Two of 12 boxes of high-powered military ammunition sold by mistake to hunters have been returned, a Toronto chain-store executive reported today.

Ten boxes of the bullets, packed 20 rounds to a box, are still in circulation. The ammunition, designed for high-powered military rifles and marked with a .22 calibre, was purchased by a dealer from the Crown Ammunition Company Corporation and sold through retailers before the error was discovered.

Police said the bullet could kill or blind anyone who fired them from an ordinary hunting rifle.

The eight-millimetre shells were described as bearing an orange government seal and a green arrow head in a circle and the legend "7.92 proof ammunition."

Assets Still Held

WASHINGTON (AP)—The state department said Thursday it is giving Czechoslovakia $30,000,000 in assets in the United States.

"There have been no such contacts. No consideration is currently given to unfreezing Egyptian assets."

Fiercest Words of Election Campaign Being Bandied

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The oratory of election gladiators is rising in its fiercest campaign is just four days' off.

Prime Minister St. Laurent and John Diefenbaker clanged swords at close range in Ontario Thursday as they crossed paths twice. Although they did not meet, each knew afterwards that the other had been there.

CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell and Social Credit Leader Solon Low fenced in their own constituencies. Cabinet ministers interested premiers and others also busied themselves in closing battle.

At meetings in Stratford and Woodstock, Mr. St. Laurent said Progressive Conservative Leader Diefenbaker showed a lack of public responsibility in making "wild and rash" charges that Canadians would lose their individual rights if the Liberals were returned to power Monday.

"The varnish of careta is coming off," said Mr. Diefenbaker as he followed Mr. St. Laurent into Woodstock. "Behind the mask is the madder he gets, the better I like it. It's evidence that he has got to retire."

Describing as "hooey" Liberal claims that Canadian farmers are prosperous, Mr. Diefenbaker, in an evident reference to the prime minister's first name, added: "And if that word rhymes with a certain name, it's not my fault."

Meantime, Mr. Coldwell proposed establishment of a national land and water authority to plan "a bold and imaginative program of resource development and conservation in Canada."

Winding up his campaign with a tour of his Saskatchewan constituency of Rosetown-Biggar, Mr. Coldwell told a Kenaston meeting Liberal promises are beyond the financial capacity of most provinces.

"The development and conservation of resources clearly requires national co - ordination, planning and assistance."

While Mr. Low defended in last-minute details in his constituency of Peace River, Social Credit Premier Bennett of British Columbia told a Regina press conference he has no ambition to become federal politics.

There is "the very best of feeling" among Mr. Low and Alberta's Social Credit Premier Manning, he said. There was no truth in a report of a rift within the party.

Veteran U.S. Army Sergeant Kills Superiors for Rebuke

FORT RILEY, Kan. (AP)—The United States Army said a veteran sergeant ducked out of a drill in the handling of the M-1 rifle Thursday and then went back for weapons to kill his lieutenant and another sergeant because they had reprimanded him.

Sgt. Paul Barrier, 29, survived a few minutes after the shootings. The army sent him to hospital for a mental examination and filed no charges immediately.

The victims were 2nd Lieut. Jerry Burton, 23, and Master Sgt. Ralph Stilton, 29. Army authorities said Barrier had been discovered Tuesday by Humphrey and Sutton for mistakes made during training.

Sgt. James Hicks said Barrier told him Tuesday night: "I'm going to kill that lieutenant and [illegible] sergeant, too."

Eyewitnesses said the five-foot-11, 170-pound sergeant walked into the building where Humphrey was about to lecture a class.

Sgt. James Kersh said he met Barrier in the building lobby and knew he had the rifle. Kersh said he grappled with Barrier and was struck in the face by the rifle butt.

Barrier stepped out of the lobby, stopped to a crouch and fired a single shot. Humphrey fell [illegible] the chest. He sank to the flo[illegible] as he gasped: "May. the Lord give him."

Barrier ran about two blocks to the company orderly room where Sutton was talking on the telephone. Witnesses said Sutton saw Barrier shove the rifle through the door and shouted: "No, no!"

Stalin Died in Rage Over Objections to Moving Jews

PARIS (CP) — The newspaper France-Soir says Joseph Stalin suffered a fatal stroke while in a fit of rage over politburo opposition to a plan he had to deport all Jews from Russia.

The then secret police chief, Lavrenty Beria, the paper adds, danced around the stricken Russian dictator's body, laughing and crying "Now I am the master."

The newspaper says its account of the stormy meeting which left Stalin unconscious on the floor was written by Ilya Ehrenav by P. K. Ponomarenko, Soviet ambassador to Poland, during an interview with Polish Communist journalists.

CLAIMED ZIONIST PLOT

The newspaper says its account of the stormy meeting which left Stalin unconscious on the floor was written by Ilya Ehrenav by P. K. Ponomarenko, Soviet ambassador to Poland, during an interview with Polish Communist journalists.

CLAIMED ZIONIST PLOT

The newspaper gives this account of Stalin's fatal stroke while in a fit of rage over politburo opposition to a plan he had to deport all Jews from Russia.

Stalin flew into a rage against "Zionist and imperialist plot" directed at the Soviet Union and announced that he plans to deport all Russian Jews to the remote region of Birobidzhan, in the far east Siberian area on eastern Siberia.

V. M. Molotov, then foreign minister, brought up Stalin that how much a move would have a "deplorable effect" on foreign opinion outside Russia. Molotov's wife is Jewish.

DENIED OF PARTY

At that point Marshal Klement Voroshilov hurled his party card at Stalin's feet and said he would stab a step I would be ashamed to remain a member of our party which will be completely dishonored."

Stalin flew into a rage. He screamed at Voroshilov: "It is I who will decide when you are to have the right to keep your membership card."

Then Stalin fell backward. Blood rushed to his face and his eyes turned up. His arms and legs stiffened.

Beria danced around the body, then when Stalin's daughter came in the room and embraced the body, he fell on his knees and asked forgiveness.

Stalin was taken to his private apartment in the Kremlin. His death was announced March 5, 1953.

Butler Defends Tapping Phone Of Barrister

LONDON (Reuters)—The government promised today not to abuse its "necessary but distasteful power" to tap telephone conversations.

Home Secretary R. A. Butler told the Commons that the tapping of a lawyer's private telephone conversation would "not be treated as a precedent."

Butler's disclosure Thursday that the home office had ordered the wire-tapping caused the cry of "police state" in the Commons.

Labor members demanded further explanation from Butler, whose home office is responsible for public order and security.

ASKED BY LAW GROUP

Butler said the home office ordered the wire-tapping at the request of the Bar Council, a private body of lawyers, which had been investigating complaints about a lawyer's professional conduct.

"The prerogative powers of intercepting telephone communications can be used only by the personal authority of the secretary of state," Butler said.

"This power is one which Parliament has always recognized to be essential for the protection of the realm and for the detection of offences involving security of the state or for detecting serious crime.

"PRECEDENT"

"Information from this source is jealously guarded and it is a power which will be used only when it is absolutely necessary.

"But the circumstances in this case were "wholly exceptional."

"As certain disciplinary proceedings are pending and the matter is sub judice it would be improper for me to go into further detail.

"But I must make clear that this case will not be treated as a precedent."

Teachers' Strike At Air Station Causes Flurry

RCAF Intervention Stirs Controversy

EDMONTON (CP)—A teachers' strike that began this week at the RCAF's Namao station near Edmonton was injected into the federal election campaign Thursday night by CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell.

The strike started Monday when 25 teachers walked out over salary demands. The next day most of their 600 pupils were back in classrooms, studying under supervision of voluntary RCAF personnel.

The air force said the supervisors would stay on the job until the school term ends in two weeks. The teachers said the RCAF was using troops in an endeavor to break the strike.

In a telegram to Defence Minister Cameron, Mr. Coldwell said: "Forced interference with provincial civilian rights is illegal and indefensible." It asked whether his department had sanctioned "detachment of military personnel . . . to replace civilian teachers on a legal strike."

Mr. Campney's department replied that the education supervision was "under sole control of the province of Alberta." The staff supervisors were sanctioned by the Alberta education department to oversee a total of 12 classes in grades 9 and 12.

The teachers said the RCAF had no right to intervene. The Alberta authorization utilized by the defence department specified that the non-commissioned supervisors in 14 classrooms two weeks before exams start.

Mr. Coldwell, in a speech at Kenaston, Sask., described the situation as "a most flagrant violation" of provincial rights.

"There are no departmental examinations until June 20 and then only for those in the high school grades," he said. "So that the excuse that supervision for departmental examinations is required is not valid."

Mr. Coldwell, himself once a schoolteacher, said:

"No satisfactory reply has been received from the department of national defence. And I am therefore demanding that the minister of national defence order the withdrawal immediately of the air force personnel strike breakers."

W. E. Frame, chief superintendent of schools, said no action can be decided in court whether the supervisors at Namao are enforcing instruction ir violation of the school act.

Mrs. S. Typhair Sitting In Sun Porch When Hit

TRENTON (Special) — Struck by a bolt of lightning which followed into the house along the family clothesline, Mrs. Stanley Typhair, 33, of Wooler Road, Trenton, was instantly killed Thursday evening as she opened a kitchen window to call her daughter home from the neighbor's.

As she opened a window the bolt of lightning carried in on the clothesline. Her husband rushed door for assistance but when help arrived no pulse could be felt. Dr. Gordon Teller of Trenton pronounced Mrs. Typhair dead.

The bolt of lightning tore a hole in the wall of the Typhair home, ripped a medicine cabinet from the wall and scattered debris about the room. The telephone was also put out of commission.

'Bennies' Used By Argonauts Says Dublinski

TORONTO (CP) — Quarterback Tom Dublinski said today certain members of the Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four football team took "pep-up" pills during the 1953 season by a club spokesman retorted that if they did, he never knew about it.

The American Medical Association Wednesday began an inquiry into "shocking" reports of dangerous abuse of pep pills by athletes. Dr. Herbert Berger told the AMA that the recent rash of pep-pill deaths may be due to coincidence and implied that pep-up pills might be one contributing factor.

Dublinski said some players on the 1953 Argo team used pills called "bennies."

SAYS TRIED ONCE

"They were available all right," Dublinski said. "I myself tried one taking them after one experiment.

George Stockwell, Argo trainer in 1955, said that if the players got pep pills he didn't know of any individual basis."

"The club definitely had no knowledge of it," Stockwell said. "It wasn't the club policy or practice. I never saw anyone taking such a thing."

Dublinski, star import formerly with the National Football League Detroit Lions, missed the 1956 season because of a knee injury.

"It was the fellows who were playing both offence and defence who took them," Dublinski said of the pills. "Some guys just don't have the stamina.

"I didn't even know what they were. I thought they might be sugar pills for energy—something like that; like a candy bar you eat to give you quick energy.

Auto Industry Says 'Speed' Now Dirty Word to Use in Trade

DETROIT (AP)—The automobile industry says that from now on speed is a dirty word.

It is to be replaced in the trade's vocabulary by safety, reliability and comfort.

This is a decision of the directors of the Automobile Manufacturers Association. These directors include the presidents of the "big three" auto industry—General Motors, Ford and Chrysler — as well as executives from every volume producer of passenger cars.

The manufacturers have made wild use of race and contest results in their advertising. The emphasis in post-war years has been on speed and increasing horsepower. Horsepower has jumped from a mere 80 horsepower before the war to 300-plus in today's luxury models.

At its annual meeting here Thursday the association took action. Its strongly worded resolution said that the manufacturers should, as a result, or allow their dealers to take part in any event that encourages racing or speed.

And it barred the use of actual or comparative ratings of cars' speeds in specific tests or contests.

Instead, the industry wants to emphasize that cars provide "safe, reliable and comfortable transportation."

The automobile industry has come under heavy fire in recent years for increasing horsepower. It has replied that much of the criticism has been unjust, that a lot more power is needed to run the gadget-laden cars of 1957 than their counterparts of 10 years ago.

Will Question Linus Pauling On H-Bomb Tests

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate internal security subcommittee has ordered Nobel Prize-winner Linus Pauling to appear for questioning about a move by himself and some 2,000 other scientists to stop hydrogen bomb testing.

A subpoena directed Pauling to appear before the committee June 18.

Subcommittee counsel Robert Morris said Thursday the group wants to determine whether there has been Communist activity behind various concerted moves to stop nuclear weapon testing.

There was no immediate indication whether the committee would carry its investigation further.

Word of the subpoena came after President Eisenhower told a press conference there seems to be organization behind the formation of many scientists to nuclear weapon problems.

QUESTIONS COMPETENCE

The president said he didn't question the good faith of the protesting scientists but some of them seemed to be stepping outside the fields in which they were competent to have an expert opinion.

At Pasadena, Calif., Pauling, who prepared the protest document in which he and the 2,000 others stressed the danger from radioactivity, said he would be happy to tell the subcommittee about his stand.

Pauling, head of the California Institute of Technology's chemistry department, told a reporter: "I have been a loyal citizen all my life and believe it is the duty of people having special information to help their congressmen."

CAIRO (AP)—President Nasser said a Japanese delegation Thursday has been invited to carry out the Aswan dam project "without regard to what the United States or the West."

Nasser was quoted as saying he expects to begin the project next year.

Nasser also said he is "entirely in accord" with Japanese opinion on halting hydrogen bomb tests.

Pupils Visit Hollinger Farm At Marsh Hill

Thirty-three pupils from Queen Mary public school learned first hand of activities on the farm Thursday afternoon as they took a bus ride to the farm home of David Hollinger, purebred Holstein breeder of the Marsh Hill district.

The visit to the farm where they were entertained for the afternoon by Mrs. Hollinger, was arranged by their teacher Miss Barbara Jeffers, and four of the children's mothers went along for the ride.

The visit was all part of the school curriculum which included studies of a dairy farm in the spring.

So the kiddies, six of whom had never before been on a farm, saw all the farm animals, including Mr. Hollinger's large herd of Holstein cattle; they saw the stable where the cattle are housed, the dairy room where separating is done and milk prepared for market, the corn silo and even took an excursion into the hayloft.

Culminating the barn visit was the joy of the country boy — a jump from the hayloft into a pile of hay on the barn floor.

The pupils then toured the machine shop where the operation of the various pieces of equipment was explained. Then came a ride on the hay wagon hauled by Mr. Hollinger's farm tractor. The ride took them to Brower's general store at Marsh Hill where treats were provided by Mr. Hollinger and the school teacher.

The pupils contributed to their bus ride to the farm, the balance of the cost of the bus being picked up by the school and home association. Steven Lee, one of the pupils, expressed thanks to Mr. Hollinger.

Mothers going along for the visit to the farm included Mrs. Gordon Lee, Mrs. J. E. Pugh, Mrs. J. McConnell and Mrs. A. Longhurst.

Rescue One Man After Two Jets Fall Into Ocean

ABOARD U.S.S. SARATOGA (AP)—The pilot of one of the two jet planes which plunged into the Atlantic Thursday night has been rescued, it was announced board this United States Navy supercarrier today.

The report spelled at least partial success for a mercy operation which sharply curtailed navy maneuvers at which President Eisenhower, a guest aboard the Saratoga, was a spectator.

Sixteen of the 18 warships escorting the Saratoga were sent to take part in the hunt, and some of the 60,000-ton carrier's own planes were put into the search at dawn.

Announcement of the rescue came shortly after word had been received aboard the Saratoga that a man on a life raft had been sighted about 180 miles northeast of Jacksonville, Fla., in the area in which the jet fighters went down.

Relief in Sight For Car Traffic At Air Show Sat.

RCAF Station, Trenton, is anticipating another record crowd to attend the Open Celebration of Air Force Day tomorrow.

Last year an estimated 20,000 people inspected the ground displays and watched a smooth aerial display. Last year's flying display was in full canvas because due to a heavy fog which rolled in off the bay shortly after 1 p.m. 1956.

This year the public can expect some relief from the traffic congestion which has been experienced in recent years.

Anticipating in excess of 20,000 visitors this year, station officials have completed plans for parking between 6,000 and 8,000 private vehicles.

Large parking areas have been designated on the north side of Highway No. 2, to the east and west of the hangar line.

People driving to the station from west of the Bay Bridge Depot Road will be flagged off the highway to the parking lot adjacent to the new — No. 9 — hangar and on their departure they will leave the station through the gates near No. 6 Repair Depot, to the north end of the airfield, out on to the depot road.

From there folks from Trenton will be encouraged to use the streets through Middleton Park and into the town proper.

People from communities farther north and west will escape the traffic on Highway No. 2 if they make use of the county road which runs north of the repair depot.

Visitors from Belleville and points east will park their cars on the north side of the highway and enter at No. 1 hangar.

Co-ordination of traffic and parking arrangements will be handled by the Air Force Police and service personnel will be on hand to direct directions.

A maintenance vehicle from No. 6 Repair Depot will be alerted in case of traffic mishaps.

A first aid post will be established in the west end of hangar No. 5 while No. 6 Repair Depot will have its statle exhibits).

It will be clearly marked and attendants, wearing red armbands, will patrol in pairs through the crowd.

Parents will be pleased to know that a staffed baby sitting area will be located on the grass on the east side of No. 5 hangar. The baby sitting agency will close at 5 p.m.

Air Force Day starts tomorrow with a "sun boom" by an F-86 Sabre Jet at 1.30.

Delaney Furs In New Location On Front Street

Delaney Furs, formerly of 171 Campbell street, is holding its grand opening Saturday at the new location at 375 Front street in the Mayer Building.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Woodward will be on hand to serve tea in the afternoon and to conduct a draw for a muskrat cluteh cape.

One of the added features of the opening will be a fashion show with local models exhibiting some of the fur masterpieces of Delaney Furs. The Woodwards' daughter, Mrs. Larry (Yvonne) Hughes, of Kingston, a professional model, will be in the show.

Mr. Woodward is the owner and operator of Delaney Furs and he has over 30 years of experience in the business behind him. Mr. Woodwards came to Belleville about two years ago from Collingwood. They have, besides Yvonne, another daughter, Joan, and a son Tom, Jr.

Delaney Furs not only deal in furs, in millinery, too.

Mr. Woodward started his career as a furrier in Toronto about 35 years ago and since then has developed such an interest in furs that he claims "they are my life".

Delaney Furs has agents through Ontario's northland and next month the Woodwards will visit them.

Mr. Woodward attributes a good part of his success to his wife, Mildred, but for whom "I wouldn't be where I am today." Mrs. Woodward is well known to the women of Belleville, having a pleasing personality (unlike her husband) and a keen sense of humor.

The Woodwards are keenly interested in all types of sports and have, of course heard loud cheering at the home games of the McFarland hockey team, a color that seemed to drown out other sounds, that was Mr. Woodward.

There is a parking lot behind Delaney Furs which will accomodate about five or six cars.

Delaney furs accepts furs for summer storage.

Game Called With Score Tied Due to Rain

The Belleville and District baseball league contest between Wellington and the Belleville Juvenilles was halted by rain after 2 1/2 innings last night with the score tied 1-1.

The game will be replayed at a later date.

Three solid hits in the opening frame gave the Belleville crew a 1-0 lead. Jack O'Neil started it with a long triple to left field and Bill Foster doubled through the centre to plate him. Gord Stanley followed with a swing-field single but Foster was held at third.

A walk to Fuller, Jack Elliott's single and a hit batter loaded the bases for Belleville in the second and chased starter Tom Halloran. Jack Sarles came in to mail the next batter for the third out.

Tripp picked up a scratch single in third and Guernsey trilled deep to right centre to knot the score in the top of the third just before rain called a halt.

Jack Elliott tossed fine ball for Belleville, allowing the two hits but snapping third strikes by five batters, three in the second. He gave up one walk.

Halloran was tagged for four hits in his 2 2-3 frames, whiffing two and passing one. Sarles pitched to only one batter.

IN MEMORIAMS

WATKINS. — In loving memory of our dear daughter, Gladys, who passed away five years ago today. God knew that she was suffering, That the hills were hard to climb; So He closed her weary eyelids, And whispered, "Come the time." Sadly missed by Mother, Father, Sister and Brother.
Some time, some day, we know not when,
We will meet our loved one there.

In memory remembered by Mother and Dad

WATKINS. — In ever loving memory of our dear daughter, Gladys Watkins, who passed away June 7th, 1952.
Time can but memories stay,
Which never can be parted.
Loving memory remembered by Mother and Dad.

FITZGIBBON. — In loving memory of our father, Arthur Fitzgibbon, who passed away June 7th, 1954.
Sweet is the memory left behind,
Upright and just in deed.
Sincere and kind in heart and mind,
What a beautiful memory he left behind.
Sweet memories remembered by sons Edward, Fergus, Goldie, Wilfred and Martin.

FORSHAW. — In loving memory of our dear grandmother, Mrs. John Forshaw, who passed away June 7, 1956.
His last parting words were few,
We would like to have heard;
And breathed in his ear,
Our last parting word.
Only those who have lost,
Are able to tell
The pain of the heart,
The bitterness of farewell.
Always remembered by grandson, daughter Marion and Bill and great-grandchildren.

FORSHAW. — In loving memory of our dear dad, John Thomas Forshaw, who passed away June 7th, 1956.
Treasured you Dad, we never will,
As years roll on we miss you still;
The hole in our home, that knows,
Is in the empty chair.
We little thought the end was near,
Only those who have lost a loved one,
The sorrow of parting and no farewell.
The dearest dad the world could know,
A cozy chair, a pipe and slippers,
For those who knew him, all will know.
How much we lost one year ago,
But, God in his mercy, gave us strength,
To bear the bitter cross.
He is in the only dad known,
How heavy is our loss.
Loving memory remembered by daughter Pearl and son-in-law Bill.

CHAMBERS. — In loving memory of a dear husband, Nelis Chambers, who passed away June 6, 1954.
Sad, lonely hours I spend,
Since the Saviour came and took my friend.
But someday we'll meet again,
Some rest on, dear one, in heaven,
And when our work is over,
Please come to the gate and meet me.
We'll be together everywhere,
Forever remembered by wife May and family.

CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to express my appreciation for the cards, flowers, Mr. Loynes, for the singing, of all the staff, nurses and aides on 1st Floor West Memorial Hospital, Bancroft, to all those who came to my home and those who called while I was there, for sale, and to all those who sent me cards while I was in room 170. To all my friends, I am truly grateful.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market moved moderately higher today during heavy morning trading.

The industrial index gained 1¼ points and base metals added one-quarter of a point to their index. Golds were ahead nearly one-half point and reached a 1957 high. Western oils, however, gave some ground in profit-taking.

Industrial price changes were generally fractional but a few stocks had changes ranging to two points. Trans Mountain Pipe Line was up two to 123½ and Algoma Steel gained 1¾ to 152½.

International Utilities dropped 1¼ points to 68¼ following Thursday's sharp climb.

Area and Leitch were 30-cent winners among lower-priced mines and both had fairly heavy turnovers. Castle gained 40 cents at a new high of $3.35 and Teck-Hughes was up 27 cents to $1.95.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices were reported unchanged here today.

The egg market was quiet with receipts ample for a light demand.

Country dealers are quoted on graded points, delivered Toronto in large ciled, wooden cases, tenderable lots, 29 cents. Eggs in fibre cases, graded: A large 39-47; A medium 31; A small 23; B 26; C 22. Wholesale to retail: A large 41-42; A medium 36; A small 28; B 31; C 27.

Butter prices: Canada, first grade: tenderable 58; non-tenderable 57-57½ in moderate to fair trading; western 58½ (nominal).

DOLLAR RATE

MONTREAL (CP) — The U.S. dollar was at a discount of 4 23-32 per cent in terms of Canadian funds at noon today. Thursday's noon rate was 95 9-32. Pound sterling 2.85¾, down ¼.

STUDY OLD FOOD

NEW YORK (AP) — Scientists will examine canned food left in the Antarctic in 1910 to determine if it is less radioactive than present-day food. Last March a United States Navy physiologist, Dr. Sidney A. Schwartz, brought back from the Antarctic food left by British explorer Capt. Robert F. Scott, who died of cold and starvation in 1912 during a return trek from the South Pole. The U. S. Atomic Energy Commission will test the food cache to find out whether "background radiation" — which all food has from natural sources—has increased during the last 12 years of atomic explosions.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP)—Steer prices were reported steady to fully 50 cents a hundredweight lower at the Ontario public stockyards this week. Heifers declined 50 cents. "Baby" milk fed yearlings were steady with fed yearlings—yearling heifers in particular—fully 50 cents a hundredweight but bulls sold actively steady.

The replacement cattle section was under pressure throughout the week and sold slowly with most sales made on a barely-steady- to 50-cents-lower-basis.

Calf prices showed further losses, especially on top grades while hogs were generally $1 a hundredweight higher.

Spring lambs declined $2 a hundredweight in an otherwise unchanged section.

FEWER CATTLE

Cattle receipts were about 1,000 head less than last week and about 1,100 head down from the same week 1956. Western cattle receipts declined 30 head from the previous week at 434. Five carloads were shipped to eastern Canadian slaughterers with no exports to the United States.

Trading in general lacked interest and moved slowly. Slowest sellers were long - fed, mature steers weighing upwards of 1,150 pounds.

Desirable weight steers in the 1,000-1,050 pound weight bracket experienced little or no drop in price. Heifers met only a fair demand and sold from a hundred weight lower. Baby-type milk fed yearlings down 50 cents a hundredweight.

The cow offering was greatly in excess with all grades except canners and cutters losing from 50 cents to $1 a hundredweight. Good heavy bologna bulls were in short supply and sold actively firm.

Prices

Slaughter cattle: Choice steers $29-31 with a few lots $31.25; good $19.20; medium $17-19; common $13-16; good heifers $18, with sales to $18.50 and a few choice $19; medium 16-18; common $14-16; choice fed yearlings $20-21, with some sales fractionally higher; good $19-20; medium $17-19; top quality yearling heifers sold at $19½; good cows $14-14.50 with sales to $15; medium $12.50-13.50; common $11.50-12.50; canners and cutters $9-11; good heavy bologna bulls $15-15.50; common and medium lights $11-14

Replacement cattle: Good stockers and stock calves $19-19.50, odd lots $20, sometimes $20.50; medium $18-19; common $16-18.

Calves: Choice vealers $27.50; good $22-25; medium $16-22; common $12-16; boner calves $10-12.

Hogs: Grade A $32.50; sows $22.50; numerous lights $25.50; stags $15 a hundredweight, on a dressed-weight basis.

Staff, Wives Inspect New Retail Outlet

The employees of the Belleville District of the Brewers' Warehousing Company, along with their wives and families were guests of the management in the inspection of their new quarters on Station Street.

The members of the staff from outside the city were quite interested in viewing the new methods of handling the various products and inspecting a building, which is one of the most modern in the province and which was opened on May 1st.

A demonstration of how the cartons and kegs were piled and transported from one part of the building to another was given by slacker operator, Cecil Irwin. The employees and their wives were treated to coffee and cake while the children enjoyed their share of ice cream and soft drinks.

Assistant District Manager Danny Cox extended a welcome to the visitors and expressed regret at the absence of the manager, Ted Jones, who is patient in the General Hospital. All wished the genial manager a quick recovery.

Mrs. Ted Jones and Mrs. Danny Cox acted as hostesses for the day. Both were kept busy looking after the wants of all and making everyone feel at home. At the meeting, goodbyes were said by the Belleville office staff to Miss Eileen Wallace, who had been appointed manager of the Trenton retail store. Mr. Whalen has been records clerk at the retail store for some years and has made many friends by his employment. It was a well deserved promotion. A welcome was extended to David Cretney, who was on the audit staff at Toronto and who is returning to headquarters in this city.

As usual the party was much enjoyed.

Mental Patient Again Proves He Is No Fool

IPSWICH, England (Reuters)—Albert Steele, the mental patient who won £30,000 betting on soccer pools, has hit the jackpot again—for the fifth time.

It was disclosed today that Albert, a patient in East Suffolk Hospital here, backed Crepello and Ballymoss, the horses which ran one-two in the 178th running of the Derby Wednesday at Epsom Downs.

So far Albert has won a total of seven soccer pools—mail order betting on the results of games in which it is possible to win enormous sums on a modest investment.

But so far he has received only £50 of his £30,000. The court of protection which looks after the affairs of mental patients is keeping the rest.

As for his Derby winnings, his brother George revealed today that Albert was staking all on his selection for the Oaks, another classic race being run at Epsom today. George said he didn't know what horse Albert had selected.

Christ Is Cure For Empty Life Declares Graham

NEW YORK (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham told a crowd of 18,000 in Madison Square Garden Thursday night that many Americans have sunk in sin until their lives are devoid of spiritual vitality.

"Round and round they go, the same old routine, the same old grind. Life has lost its anticipation, its meaning, its thrill. Life has become a binding, empty, monotonous round. . . .

"I'd like to take you and shake you," he declared. "I know a cure—Christ! There have never been any bomb or habits that Christ couldn't cure."

At the end of Graham's sermon, 569 people responded to his plea to "accept Christ." So far, 13,200 persons have taken this step.

Attendance at the crusade, now in its fourth week, has totalled 410,000. The drive still has more than five weeks to go.

Graham said that "15 years ago you rarely saw anything in newspapers about religion." But now news media were carrying more and more about the gospel and religion, and readers ought to appreciate it.

BLIMP RIDES OUT ATOM BLAST

A navy CSG-1 blimp tears loose from its mooring mast (left) as an atomic shock wave roars across the desert outside Las Vegas, Nev., in the latest of the Atomic Energy commission's atmospheric tests. A heavy anchor kept the craft from escaping after the blast from the "midget" atomic bomb, which left a black cloud in the early morning sky. The main purpose of the test was to determine the effect of exposure on scores of animals left at the site.

Three of Quints Born in Africa Quickly Succumb

LOURENCO MARQUES, Portuguese East Africa (Reuters)—Three of the quintuplets born to a Negro woman here Thursday died today.

The quints—four boys and a girl —earlier had been reported "doing fine."

First reports of the deaths did not say which of the children had died. At birth they each weighed two pounds, 14 ounces.

The mother, 30-year-old Celina Covane, previously has given birth to triplets and quadruplets. Her husband is a 40-year-old domestic servant in the employ of a Portuguese family.

The woman has had 14 other children, including the triplets and quadruplets.

Thursday's news of the birth of quintuplets excited the population so much that men and women began trekking to the village to see the quints and circuss the area tents.

Until early this century it was the tribal custom to let children of multiple births die.

$50,000 SUIT FILED

CALGARY (CP) — A $50,000 claim was filed in Alberta Supreme Court Thursday as a result of the Dec. 9 Trans-Canada Air Lines plane crash in British Columbia which claimed the lives of 62 persons. Elizabeth Phelps, executor of the will of Helen Chapman, is claiming $20,000 for the estate and $30,000 for herself and her husband. The Phelps were the parents of Mrs. Chapman, one of the victims.

VARIETY IN VACATIONS

Have you picked out your vacation spot yet?

The chances are you have. Prosperity, and vacations-with-pay, have so increased the demand for holiday accommodations in the past decade or so that many people have learned to their sorrow that they have to "shop early" if they are to obtain exactly what they desire.

Many people now make their reservations for next year on the last day of this year's vacation.

In one sense, this is a striking proof that the vacation just closing has been a success. Let's do the same thing next year," everybody exclaims as they pile suitcases and tennis rackets, outboard motors and fish, live frogs and bathing suits, Fido and themselves, into the car for the homeward trip. So they "speak" for the same cottage next year, same two weeks, and start the long fifty-week wait before replaying the record of the summer's holiday joys.

Sometimes this works wonderfully. The second year is as enjoyable as the first, the third as good as the second, the fourth the equal of any—until one day, (probably in the spring, when even the deep-rooted trees seem restless and lose their heads in the wind, as if wishing they could accompany it to far places) — in a day like this, suddenly, the realization comes that the memories of summer holidays are all pressed together like a meat loaf, one year squeezed into another, so that it is impossible to sort them out.

Is this the way holidays should be? There will be some who will answer in the affirmative. There is a strong tradition supporting this view — the "country home" tradition of the Old Country, the "summer cottage" tradition of present-day Canada. But there is a distinct difference between taking the family to the country or to the lake for the whole summer, establishing a second place of residence with a changed circle of friends and another round of interests, and renting the same cabin every summer for two brief weeks. The latter habit, we fear, merely robs a vacation of the aura of novelty, without providing that feeling of permanency which provides so many families with fond recollections of vacations past and firm faith in a continuance of a beloved pattern in the years to come.

Those who do not own cottages might well consider whether they ought not to revise their vacation planning, to make certain that each year provides new experiences. These are particularly valuable to a growing family. Children can acquire a variety of valuable information if they are introduced to life on the farm and in the big city, if they know the scent of the northern woods and the smell of the sea, if they have camped by the shores of a lonely lake, and romped on crowded beaches, if they have seen the forests and the prairies, if they have made the acquaintance of the habitant and recent immigrant. And this knowledge can be obtained without in any way hampering the main object of a vacation, which should be to return the family home refreshed for the fifty weeks of work which lie ahead.

TAX EXEMPTION FOR PENSIONERS"

The first Ontario conference on the problems of aged citizens has recommended that pensioned homeowners should be granted exemption from school taxes.

Tax exemption for special classes of people are always suspect. In this case, however, careful consideration may convince many that here is an instance where a tax exemption would be justified. People who are receiving pensions are not likely to be using school facilities, either for themselves or for their children. While it is obviously undesirable to extend this principle of tax exemption for non-users to cover all in the latter class, in the case of the elderly it may be reasonably presumed that they have already contributed heavily toward the cost of educating an earlier generation of children.

The difficulty, though, would be to make this tax exemption equitable. There is no reason why only the homeowners amongst those receiving pensions should receive the benefit of the exemption. The same treatment ought to be extended to those pensioners who rent their dwelling accommodation. However, to grant exemption from school taxes on property rented by pensioners would provide no guarantee that the pensioners would benefit. Landlords might leave the rent unchanged—and pocket the tax exemption intended to assist the pensioner. Working out a solution to this problem might be far from easy.

LANGUAGE

The dullest mind you'll ever meet
Knows all the ugly forms of speech;
The vicious phrases he'll repeat
Nobody's ever paid to teach.
Man doesn't have to go to school
To learn the slimiest vulgar trick
Of mind.

To be profoundly profane
No libelous home work is required,
Nor obvious choices.
You do not even need a brain
Bad language any fool can use.

If filthy language is desired.
What once is said in temper's heat
A fool correctly can repeat.

Not easy is the proper way.
One has to work for speech refined
And guard the tongue or else it may
Impulsively betray the mind.
Words carefully a man must choose,
Bad language any fool can use.

Letters To The Editor

Says Nine Aldermen Disregarded Public

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:
Have come a time in almost every phase of life when it becomes necessary to count and decide just where one is going, and after Wednesday night's council meeting, I believe it is high time the electors that city did just that.

We were treated to the spectacle of aldermen after aldermen standing on his feet and mouthing platitudes about his responsibility to the electors while at the same time flagrantly disregarding the overwhelming weight of public opinion in regards to Mr. Herring's dismissal. At no time did I hear anything mentioned about the responsibility of elected officials carrying out the wishes of the people which have apparently been expressed by an unimportant by the nine aldermen who voted for dismissal.

The whole issue has been hidden behind a smoke screen composed of a lot of discussion about salary, etc. but I have still to hear one concrete fact that could support such an action. Surely we have not fallen to such a low level in our municipal affairs that a man may not be confronted fairly and squarely with specific charges as to where he has failed in his duties and then be given an opportunity to answer such criticism. We were told it was not necessary to call Mr. Herring as we wonder why, when it is possible to condemn without hearing who was the other fact that apparently slipped out inadvertently was that Mr. Herring's dismissal had been hinted at as far back as January when the first rift was first being discussed. This would hardly bear up Aldermen's Graham's contention that Mr. Herring had had a full year to prove his worth or otherwise.

I heartily concur with Alderman Graham when he said that which this city needed was a new council, especially in the face of

Belleville Hospital Wins High Praise

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer:
I have recently arrived home from the Belleville General Hospital, after a very serious operation. I have in the past been in hospitals in Toronto, England and a couple of hospitals in Ontario, in Belleville Hospital I received the most courteous and efficient care of what provided in any hospital I have been in. To my personal knowledge, you need not go past Belleville Hospital to find the finest staff and equipment.

Yours very truly,
John B. Hunt,

a petition of over 1,100 ratepayers and tenants of the city which was testily ignored. Although the nine aldermen who voted for dismissal to put this issue before the people when the legion, and let the electors decide just who is right in the handling of this affair. Surely we have that right, because the name of Belleville is at stake. It has been smeared enough without giving the voters a chance to be heard.

You will note that this is not an anonymous letter, and the signature of the writer appears at the bottom. Some members of government is seriously threatened in Belleville, all of whom are in business of notwithstanding, because no able person has the courage, the privilege would wish to assume office under the conditions which we suppose they will be. It is time that we had fewer diplomats in City Hall and more regard for the people who are not afraid at times to disagree when an honest difference of opinion arises. You can purchase a rubber stamp at a stationery store.

Yours very truly,

Yellow Coats Easily Seen

Brockville Recorder and Times

Whoever decided to boost the safety of school children kept what they were doing! Only a grizzly, rainy day, when children are dashing their way home from school and drivers have been peering through streaked, greasy windshields, it is a comfort to see that those yellow coats have a way of standing out like sore thumbs.

Of course, they are wearing drab outfits in the rain for years, apparently under the impression they are only blending into the foggy atmosphere when they don a dull navy, a beige or khaki trenchcoat, or a black or grey "duster." Regularly they feel like melting into the scenery on such dark, damp days, and anything in such an attire could easily do the trick, even to the extent of allowing them to be run down by a passing motorist who failed to see them in the dreary light.

But this comparatively new idea of safety-plating should be possible for children is the most sensible thing yet. Adults simply do not go to copy the style — and parents, rather than buy — Johnny a red, or blue or green raincoat, could be taking a most necessary safety precaution by deciding on the most brightest, most yellow shaded raincoat they could find. It would keep him from getting run over — as well as easing the taut nerves of the motorist as he drives in the rain.

Eyesight Complicated

Port Arthur News-Chronicle

If you have 20-20 vision it doesn't necessarily mean that your eyes are perfect for driving, says the Canadian Association of Optometrists warns. Too many people get into accidents as a result of visual defects they didn't know they had.

Many of these people whom the 20 vision means only that you can read a letter of a given size at 20 feet, but there is more to safe driving than that. For instance: Can you judge your speed quickly and accurately? Do your eyes enable you to judge distances accurately? Do you have adequate side vision? Can you distinguish colors properly?

Modern tests for professional drivers tax these facts into account but all tpo often the civilian driver never knows that his eyesight limitations until death or injury drives the message home.

For the safety of yourself and fellow drivers, your wife and family, it is wise to have a regular eye examination. Many people never suspect their ability to see without moving your head — within an arc of 70 degrees to either side of the point at which you are looking. If you can pass the driving test it is to your advantage to know the limitations of your eyesight and make allowances for them.

Every person, and especially drivers, must have a thorough eye examination at least once every three years.

Lives Year On $25 Cash

London Free Press

Joseph Wilson, eighty years of age, who lives in Wadena, Saskatchewan, has lived on a total cash income of $25 a year for thirty years.

As an old pioneer in Manitoba he learned how to get along on almost no cash. Today he grows all his vegetables, raises sugar beets, makes his own "coffee" from roasted corn and wheat kernels, gets fuel wood from a neighbor and heats his place with a coal stove. All his cash goes on clothing, boots and coal oil.

Few of us would care to live like that, but in a day of complex people has been immensely increased. A weapon has been placed in his hands for protection and for the responsibility.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

Calcium Raises The Threshold of Pain

Some individuals seem less sensitive to pain than others. A big strong man may holler more over a bellyache than complain more about a headache or neuralgia or a little excavation by the dentist than a tall gentle woman.

I quote from Bastedo's Materia Medica, Pharmacology and Therapeutics, an authoritative textbook not available to the public:

"Calcium chloride, gluconate, and lactate are employed to relieve pain in inoperable cancer and ureteral (kidney) or biliary (liver, gallstone) colic."

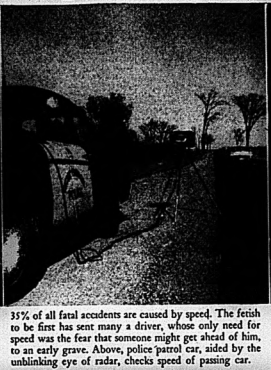
Intravenous injection of a solution of calcium has given the greatest relief to the painful cramps of black widow poisoning.

I quote from Brady's Why Headache?

"For most migraine" (periodic sick headache)...I suppose the calcium diet . . . supplemented by extra rations of calcium and vitamin D".

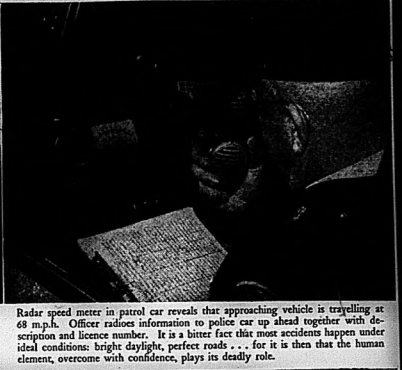
Incidentally, I believe some people may be true when they get on the operating table. I heard of a woman some time ago whose heart stopped for almost a minute during an operation. She always refers now to the time she died, and she declares that life has never been exactly the same since that time.

A great writer some years ago failed to depict the ecstasy and emotions of Lazarus after he had lain in the grave for three days and had been restored to life by the miraculous power of Jesus Christ. Lazarus, they say, did not came back to live in a new world. What is the world in which we live really like? How is it different from the state that is usually termed death? Is there as great a difference between the two states as we sometimes feel? Or may it be that no one is overzealous in living here and now. How near are our departed loved ones to us any day? Do they look, and know, and grieve, and rejoice?



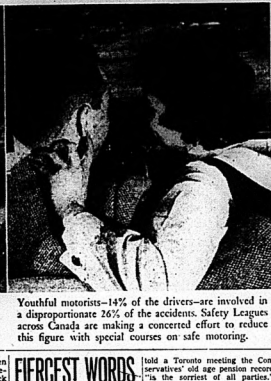
Of course, we know practically nothing about such matters, but what we do know is that living or dying, we are the Lord's. Life or death must be just different aspects of the same thing.

Perhaps it may be simply a continuation of the life we are



Safety Leagues Fight "Fetish to be First"

Before every holiday weekend, grim statisticians sit down to compute the number of Canadians who will die on the highway. Safety leagues across Canada, alarmed over the needless slaughter have proposed "3 E's" to combat it: Enforcement—Education—Engineering. Above, a Mountie hands out ticket to a protesting motorist. The RCMP patrols highways in all provinces except Ontario and Quebec.



35% of all fatal accidents are caused by speed. The fetish to be first has sent many a driver, whose only need for speed was the fear that someone might get ahead of him, to an early grave. Above, police patrol car, aided by the unblinking eye of radar, checks speed of passing car.

Radar speed meter in patrol car reveals that approaching vehicle is travelling at 68 m.p.h. Officer radioes information to police car up ahead together with description and licence number. It is a bitter fact that most accidents happen under ideal conditions: bright daylight, perfect roads . . . for it is then that the human element, overcome with confidence, plays its deadly role.

Male protestations notwithstanding, statistics show that women have fewer accidents than men, are guilty of fewer traffic violations. Some Canadian cities have set up Traffic Clinics to instruct in the essentials of safe driving. Magistrates may send habitual violators to attend classes.

Youthful motorists—14% of the drivers—are involved in a disproportionate 26% of the accidents. Safety Leagues across Canada are making a concerted effort to reduce this figure with special courses on safe motoring.

Every 3 hours an accident takes the life of a Canadian motorist—the victim of a race with death in which he came out second best. Above, Quebec Provincial Constable checks speed of car ahead with the aid of a specially equipped camera.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

On Friday evening, May 31, between the hours of 5.30 and 7.30 p.m., 20 patrols with a total of 109 Scouts invaded the farm of Mr. Louis Foubert on the Stoco-ama-ja River, near Actinolite. These Scouts were representing the following nine troops of the Belleville district: 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 6th, 8th, 9th, 13th, Belleville, and 1st Coroyville. On Saturday they were joined by 18 Scouts of the 16th, Belleville (OSD) troop, to make a grand total of 127.

During the early part of Friday evening these Scouts under the leadership of their Patrol Leaders converted a pasture field into a tent city. Toward the middle of the evening a Court of Honor of all the Patrol Leaders was held to discuss camporee rules and program. The evening closed with a council fire of songs, skits and stories followed by the serving of cocoa and cookies.

The program got under way at 9.00 a.m. Saturday with flag break and the official opening, followed by a personal inspection at the horseshoe. At 11 a.m. all the patrols gathered for a fire lighting project. This project consisted of gathering wood, preparing a fire and boiling a can of water. The Wolf Patrol of 1st Belleville won this event. From 11.30 to 1.30 the Scouts prepared their noon meal at their camp sites.

In the afternoon four projects were held: Knotting, which was won by the Eagle Patrol of the 9th Belleville. Lifeline throwing which was won by the Bulldog Patrol of 1st Belleville; estimations, which was won by the Wolf Patrol of 3rd Belleville, and signalling which was won by the Coyotte Patrol of 2nd Belleville.

In the early evening after supper in spite of a little rain, the patrols gathered for a Pioneering project. This project was won by the Beaver Patrol of 9th Belleville and the Bulldog Patrol of 1st Belleville. The council fire was rained out but cocoa and cookies were served in spite of the rain.

SERVICES HELD

Eary Sunday morning the Roman Catholic Scouts were off to 8 o'clock mass in Tweed. After flag break at 9.00 a.m. a Scouts' Own Service for the Protestant Scouts was conducted by Scouter John Babiak, assisted by Scouter Ronald Lane. At 10 a.m. the patrols participated in a First Aid project in which one member of their patrol was to have a broken leg which was to be treated and the patient carried on an improvised stretcher to headquarters. This project was won by the Bulldog Patrol of 1st Belleville.

After lunch at 1.30 p.m. the tents began to drop and by 3.00 p.m. the tent city had returned to a pasture field. At 2.15 the Scouts and staff gathered for the presentation of awards. Some of the winners have been mentioned above. The best camping patrol was the Eagles of 9th Belleville with the Bulldogs of 1st Belleville a close second. The positions were reversed as far as the best turned-out patrol is concerned.

The runner-up was the Eagle Patrol of 9th Belleville, led by Ken Brooks.

At 3.30 the flag was lowered and the 6th Moira Camporee was over. It was agreed by all that in spite of a little opposition from the elements, the event was highly successful.

The following leaders gave generously of their time at the camporee: Austin Gonin and Orville Summers of 1st Belleville; Ronald Lane of 2nd; Jerry Couture of 3rd; Don Allan, Norm Gerow, Bernie Hyderman, all of 4th; John Babiak of 6th; Wes Elliott and Len Furney of 8th; John Clarke of 9th; Bill Williams of 16th; Neil Britton and Keith Gummo of 17th; Stan Kerr and Fred Furmidge of 1st Corbyville; Bud Bateman of 15th; Phil Stewart of Toronto and District Cubmaster John Townsend.

ESCAPE INJURY

FORT SCOTT, Kan. (AP) — A plane carrying two sons of the late president Franklin D. Roosevelt cracked up on takeoff Wednesday but all four occupants escaped unhurt. Elliott and Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., were on a cattle-buying tour.

FIERCEST WORDS

Those rumors arose from a "smear campaign" by other political parties, he said.

Asked how Social Credit would vote if no party gets a clear majority Monday, Mr. Bennett said his party will support the group with the largest number of seats as long as its policies are "good for Canada."

"We will not form any coalition or collusion," he said.

But Social Credit wouldn't vote down a minority government "on a little thing."

SEES BIGGER CCF VOTE

In a recorded radio speech, Mr. Coldwell forecast that a record number of CCF members will be elected. The largest CCF group — 28—was elected in 1945. In 1953, the CCF won 3 seats.

Other gladiators, other struggles.

George Hees, former president of the National PC Association seeking re - election in Toronto Broadview, said in a radio broadcast the Conservatives, if elected, will remove credit restrictions.

Also on radio, Fisheries Minister Sinclair said Canadians still remember the last Conservative federal government of the depression years too well to change from the Liberals now. "A change to that? Back to the Tories?"

Ontario CCF Leader MacDonald told a Toronto meeting the Conservatives' old age pension record "is the sorriest of all parties." They had opposed the pension when the Liberals""introduced them in 1927 under pressure from the late J. S. Woodsworth, first CCF party leader.

Transport Minister Marler said in a radio broadcast the "change" proposed by the Conservatives "would be a change for the worse." Where, he asked, would the Conservatives get the cabinet material the Liberals have?

Conservative Donald Fleming, Toronto Eglinton, said in a radio speech the issue of whether Canada wants to return to a free parliament "transcends all others" in this election campaign.

Mr. Fleming said if the Liberals are returned to power "municipal and provincial taxation will increase just as surely as the sun will rise tomorrow."

Only by electing a Conservative administration could Canadians expect to receive relief in these two taxation fields.

In a radio speech from Montreal, Privy Council President Chevrier said Mr. Diefenbaker is "promising to tamper with Canada's social security programs."

At London, Mr. Diefenbaker said as long as he was head of a government, there would be no downward revision in any existing social security measures.

Leon Balcer, president of the National PC Association seeking re-election in Trois-Rivieres, Que., said his party will be elected to government Monday.

Weddings

GRAHAM — ROSE

Holloway street United Church, Belleville, was the setting for a lovely, June wedding, Saturday, June 1, at 2 p.m., when Patricia Rose, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Rose, became the bride of Douglas Ernest Graham, of Trenton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude V. Graham. The Reverend C. G. Stobbs, pastor of the church, officiated before a background of palms and arrangements of gladioli. The guest pews were designated with white satin bows.

Mr. Clifford Templer, church organist, rendered the traditional wedding music, and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Fred Newman, who sang, "I Love Thee," and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride who was given in marriage by her father, was radiant in an original gown of candle-white peau de soie, and silk reseqolat lace, featuring a lace bodice with portrait neckline embroidered with seed pearls, and opalescent sequins, having a chapel-like sleeve of peau de soie ending in lily-points over the wrists. The full skirt which was accented by shirred paniers over the hips, swept into a chapel train. A small fullet cap of matching lace, encrusted with seed pearls held her picture veil, and she carried a bouquet of white, Shasta daisy pom pons, white, lily-of-the-valley, gladioli florets, feathered carnations, and white stephanotis.

Mrs. Lyle Bowes, of Belleville, was matron of honor. Mrs. Allan Cloutier, of Cobourg, Miss Joy Smith, of Kitchener, were bridesmaids, and Miss Justine Rose, of Oshawa, and Miss Yvonne Graham, of Trenton, were junior bridesmaids. The senior attendants were gowned alike in peppermint pink dotted Swiss, fashioned on princess lines, enhanced with long, puffed sleeves. The high necklines were outlined with venetian lace flowers, and matching pink velvet bows at the back, and carried mixtures of pink carnations, pink Shasta daisies, pink and mauve gladioli florets, mauve lisi and pink and mauve sweetpeas in cascade style. The junior attendants were similiar styled gowns accentuated by matching taffeta cummerbunds, with picture hats and matching bows.

Mr. D. R. Fraser, of Trenton, attended the bridegroom, while Messrs. G. Graham, D. Tripp, R. Alyea and M. James, all of Trenton, were ushers.

The reception was held at the church parlors, where the bride's mother, wearing an original Ilse Hildebrandt gown of lacerneline blue fashioned on sheath lines with bloused back, peony-pink accessories, pave corsage of peony-pink gladioli florets, and sweetheart rosebuds, received. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, attired in a tailored, midnight sky-blue silk with shoulder corsage of pink camellia, and mink rose accessories.

For travelling to Vancouver and Banff, the bride chose a silver blue mist suit of imported wool with matching fox collar, dark-colored accessories, with white hat and gloves, and white camellia corsage. Mr. and Mrs. Graham will reside in Trenton.

Out-of-town guests attended from Toronto; Kitchener; Brantford; Burlington; Oshawa; Ottawa; Hornisburg; Picton and Trenton.

Previous to her marriage the bride was entertained at a miscellaneous shower by Mrs. Jack Coldon, at a tea at the home of Mrs. Mark Tripp, Trenton, with Mrs. Paul Tripp as co-hostess; at a kitchen shower at the home of Mrs. H. R. Graham, with Mrs. William Muirhead and Mrs. Gibson as hostesses; at a cup and saucer shower hostessed by Mrs. L. Bowes at the home of Mrs. G. Dobbs, Belleville; and at an afternoon tea at the home of Mrs. A. B. McLean, by Mrs. W. B. Robbins, Mrs. J. Greer, and Mrs. C. E. James as co-hostesses.

Contact Club Sends Donation To Indian Boy

The Contact Club held its weekly Monday meeting at Christ Church Parish Hall, under the leadership of president Alice Wonnacott.

Secretary Doris Stewart, read the minutes of the previous meeting and also the club correspondence of the week.

Upon the completion of roll call, the successful results of the Club's Coffee Delight Night and Bazaar were announced.

President Alice gave heartfelt thanks for all the hard work, co-operation and valuable time put towards making the event a success of which the club could well be proud.

Thanks to all the girls were also rendered by bazaar convener Mary Fletcher, who along with President Alice, had received many nice compliments and good reports of the gala affair.

Appreciation should also go to Win Tomlinson for her part in the evening, through an error on the part of the club reporter, Win's name was regretfully left off the credit list submitted to the paper.

A further sale of left-over bazaar articles was held at the close of the business meeting. This was under the direction of convener Trudy Sands. These were sold to girls who were unable to take the opportunity to shop during the evening of the big event.

A rummage sale held at the parish hall by Florence Lennox and her group, was reported as being a profitable effort.

This group was also responsible for an evening rummage sale held at an earlier date.

A motion to send a donation towards the educational upkeep of a boy attending a mission school in India was unanimously approved by the club.

Also discussed was the presenting of a donation towards the church camp, and the idea of preparing a junior church members—for a holiday at this camp.

A special invitation was given by president Alice to all members of the Contact Club to attend the final meeting, Monday June 10th.

This will be in the form of an enjoyable pot-luck supper. The girls were requested to bring their own dishes and cutlery, as this will enable the group under Florence Lennox, which is responsible for the evening, to join in the entertainment and fun after the supper.

A pleasant evening was brought to a close with delicious refreshments prepared and served by hostesses Irene Weathers-tone, Freida Patterson and Joan Ford.

Quinte Skating, Tennis Club Sponsors Delightful Lawn Tea

Brooding skies did not deter the thronging guests from attending the Quinte Skating and Tennis Club annual tea held yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. William McCutcheon, 139 Albert Street. The lovely rooms were further enhanced by bouquets of spirea and deep winered peonies, and the spacious lawn with its stately maples, rose garden and tulip borders, provided a delightful setting for the afternoon tea.

Opening the door to the guests was a tiny, blue-eyed, golden-haired fairy in blue, little Lorena Ruth Follwell, whose timid and flitting smile charmed each guest later received by the hostess, Mrs. W. H. McCutcheon, Mrs. P. Jeffrey and Mrs. P. Loder.

CANOPIED BY THE SKY

The tea table, with the sky for its canopy, and the velvety soft grass for its carpet, was prettily appointed with an English lace cloth and centred by a lovely silver bowl of lemon-colored iris, tall sprays of purple lupins, Mrs. Forget-me-nots and fragrant lily-of-the-valley. Tall, white candles in silver holders rose from their lacey collars and silver services graced either end of the table.

Those presiding at the services were Mrs. E. McBride and Mrs. John Haig; Mrs. Charles Duesberry and Mrs. Edgar Bateman; Mrs. Robert Lorring and Mrs. William Sherry.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

TODAY'S COURTESY TIP . . . AVOID THAT STANDOFFISH LOOK

Do you really want to make friends you just can't wear a standoffish expression and expect people not to believe that you mean to be standoffish. Most people you're introduced to are friendly people, and they're just waiting for a sign of friendliness from you. And a standoffish expression doesn't register friendliness.

RESPONSIBILITIES OF BEST MAN

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The financial responsibilities of a best man in a wedding seem to me to be shrouded in indefiniteness, if not in mystery! I have been asked to be the best man in the wedding of a close friend of mine, and when I've consulted several friends as to what expenses the best man is expected to pay, they all have given me different opinions. I feel self-conscious about asking the prospective groom about this—so may I please ask you? — Bill

Yes, sir . . . and I'm glad you asked me. For no matter how many "different opinions" were, you really have only two "financial responsibilities." (1) You provide for yourself the attire the groom tells you you are to wear to the wedding: if you don't own this type of attire, you may buy it, but today it is rented—and very simple and convenient) to rent it. And (2) You send the your wife, if you are married) send an important wedding present to the bride-to-be. (Very often the men in the wedding party, best man and ushers, give a "joint" present of the groom, sometimes a silver tray or tea engraved with the facsimile signature of every member.) Your other responsibilities are social . . . not financial!

WANTS TO GIVE DOUBLE STORK SHOWER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

I have two cousins who are to have their babies within a month of each other. I would like to give them a shower, but I don't want to be partial to either. These two cousins and I are of the same age, and have always been very close. Is it customary to give a double stork shower? — A Thank-you Reader.

It would be an excellent plan for you to give a double stork shower for these two cousins of yours . . . a very practical idea, and since you three are such close friends, I think this plan will be more fun than the individual showers.

ON THANK-YOU NOTES FOR GIFTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Last summer while I was on my vacation, I met a very charming woman, and during one of our conversations we discovered that she and I had the same birthday. This date was about five weeks ago and I sent her a birthday card. She sent me a birthday card and enclosed in it was a handkerchief with the initial of my first name. I considered this as practically a sort of the birthday card, and so I haven't written her a note to thank her. Yesterday when I happened to mention this to my sister she told me in no uncertain terms that I was "extremely rude" not to write a special note of thanks for this gift of the handkerchief. Is she right about this? — Curt.

Your sister is right indeed . . . so right. You were rude, showed a lamentable lack of appreciation for this wonderfully gesture. This should be a valuable lesson to you . . . always to express to the giver of a gift. Please get that thank-you note written at once!

CORRECT TO PUT CHECK IN COLLECTION BOX

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A member of our church always puts her personal check in the church Collection Box. Some say this is very bad taste. Please give us your opinion about this.

M.D.D.

It is entirely correct to put a personal check in the church Collection Box . . . and quite often this is the preferred procedure.

ANNIVERSARY PARTY GIVEN AFTER ACTUAL DATE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband's mother and father are to have their Golden Wedding anniversary soon. We have them so dearly that we want to give them the very best anniversary party we can. Since the date will be in the summer, and also since the date comes in the middle of the week when many people we want surely to come are busy, my husband suggests we give the party either the Saturday or Sunday before the date. Would this be proper? — Adah

Yes: there is no reason why this would not be proper. However, customarily, in these circumstances, the day chosen is either the Saturday or Sunday after the actual date.

NEW WATER-SOFTENER A BOON TO THE VACATIONER

Floral-scented conditioner makes the hardest water silky-smooth.

One of life's comforting pleasures is a soothing, leisurely bath with plenty of fragrant suds and big, clean towels. Fatigued muscles unkink, jittery nerves relax under the gentle therapy of a warm tubbing. As a harried young mother once remarked, life is still endurable while there's hot water in the tap.

Well, with vacation days ahead, this mother, as well as thousands of others all over the country, will probably have already made up her mind that the little cottage, the family's rented for the summer, or the beach bungalow the kids are looking forward to, or the motels they'll stop at while touring the countryside are plentifully supplied with hot water. But what kind of water? Will it be so hard that a good sudsy bather's impossible? Will cleanliness of body, hair, even laundry, require so much effort that half the joy of your vacation goes literally down the drain? It needn't, if you remember to take along a good water softener.

There are many on the market, of course, but we like a new, highly-scented conditioner that comes in powdered form. A few teaspoons of the "bouquet," as it's called, makes bath water silky-soft and sweet-smelling. But there is much more to the conditioner than mere water "softening" and fragrance: with the addition of the powder, any toilet soap lathers abundantly in the hardest water. The conditioned water leaves the skin satin-smooth, with "no clinging soap film." And the bathtub itself is left free of any bothersome ring to clean.

If there are young bathers in the family, dirty knees and elbows will come clean faster when a bit of conditioner is added to the bath water. A teaspoon of the conditioner in the wash basin water makes a silk-soft cleanser for removing make-up. Then there is the matter of shampoos. No matter what shampoo is used, a woman's hair is washed with water. When the water is treated with a teaspoon of the "bouquet," less shampoo is needed and suds rinse out easily. Used in the first rinse, it not only are suds more quickly removed but hair is left softer, brighter, more manageable.

The same conditioner is excellent for treating water that is used for the washbowl laundering of fine blouses, gloves and lingerie. It comes in three lovely scents—lavender, gardenia and novo fougere (new fern).

HAVE YOUR baby's bottle lost their original sparkle? Put a dash of vinegar or lemon juice in the sterilizing water and it will chase away that cloudy look. And be sure to check your bottle brush if it's worn. It can cause tiny scratches that weaken the glass.

ADVICE To The LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

HOW FROGLIKE CAN A WOMAN BE?

When a wife believes that she has fallen in love with another man, does that automatically give her the right to pack up and leave a good husband? Especially if she has a number of children?

Many women apparently think it does. Their idea seems to be that just because they have become interested in someone else, the only thing to do is to follow that interest through to what they assume is its logical conclusion.

Take, for instance, the following story which a wife in her early thirties tells me:

"I've been married for ten years and have four children. When I say that they have been happy years and I have no complaints to make about the way my husband has treated me, you'll probably wonder how this thing could have happened, but the fact is that I've fallen madly in love with a man who recently came to live in our town. He's divorced and I met him at a friend's house. After that, my husband and I invited him over to our place several times and then he began asking me to meet him for coffee from time to time. Of course my husband didn't know about this.

"In the last few months, our meetings have been more frequent, and while this man has never come right out and told me he loves me and would like to marry me, I know he would if it wasn't that I'm already married. Lately, I've felt that it would be best before he does tell me and I want to have my answer ready.

"I suppose you'll say it would be wrong for me to get a divorce and marry him, but I don't know what else I can do when I love this man and know I can never forget him."

Now what would you imagine a woman like this could possibly expect me to say to her?

Well, I'll begin by saying that she makes herself out to be got of the most selfish and callous women I've ever encountered. For only a woman of that type, who admittedly has no complaints whatever to make about her marriage of ten years, could, first, disinherit a good husband by meeting another man secretly, and then declare so casually that she doesn't see anything to do but walk out on him. Moreover, the fact that she would be breaking up her children's home is apparently so unimportant to her that she doesn't even think to mention it!

And the next thing I'll say is that she is not only selfish and callous, but vain and dim-witted to imagine herself in love with this man, or him with her. I'm quite sure she's merely flattered by his show of interest in her and getting a big kick out of dramatizing the whole miserable affair.

Again, for her to declare she "can never forget" him is now excuse for a man who is her boy friend is plain silly. If she really wanted to, she could do it, but obviously she doesn't want to. If she did, the first thing she would do would be to put a definite end to dates with him. If she would make up her mind once and for all to quit seeing him, she might be surprised to find out how soon she'd lost all interest in him. Without encouragement, this sort of undercover romance quickly withers and dies.

Finally, I am extremely skeptical about this fellow being in the least in love with her or having the faintest intention of marrying her. I think he'll go just as far as she'll let him, and then drop her like a hot brick. If she were to do anything so wild as to get a divorce on his account, I'm sure that I can positively guarantee she would be the sorriest woman in the world in the fastest possible time. She'd deserve that all right, but does she really want to risk it?

Readers' Friday Column

As Conducted by Mary Moore

Question: . . . my husband and I are on a reducing diet . . . he takes his vegetables and meat which I cook at home, to work instead of sandwiches and warms them up at work. The thing I would like help with is some new ideas on how to prepare the vegetables and the meat especially, I have a waterless cooker and steamer. I also would like your recipe for non-fattening mayonnaise . . . Mrs. A. H.

stewed chicken leg, and veal or beef now omitting potatoes! For partially broiled meat cakes to be finished by pan frying at work? I think meats handle pre-cooked in milk and carried to work in a covered plastic container would be reheated easily on a small burner.

If you have plastic containers or low jars with wide tops designed for lunch boxes, you can put almost anything in your husband's lunch box. If glass jars are used (and I realize they are heavy) he could stand the covered jar in a pan of water, covered, and reheat it over very low heat. This latter idea would apply to creamed vegetables such as peas, asparagus, carrots, beans, cauliflower. When new peas and fresh corn are in season send them with him all ready to pop into boiling water for 4 or 5 minutes. That will be a rare treat. Moist meat dishes such as chili con carne, chop suey, creamed tuna or chicken and beef and veal and chicken stews could be reheated in glass jars in a pan of water.

Remember too, that there are excellent whole meal soups and chowders such as mulligatawny and clam.

I think some of the best standbys for reducers are hard-cooked eggs hot or cold, cottage cheese and oranges. These 3 things have saved me many a hungry pang. I am hovering around 125 lbs., right now, which is perfect for my height. So include little treats in the lunch box and encourage (or your husband and permit yourself to eat an orange when you are tempted by cookies or other forbidden sweets.

REDUCERS' SALAD DRESSING

In top of double boiler mix together dry 2 tablespoons cornstarch, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon and dry mustard, 1/4 teaspoon sugar and paprika. Add 1-3 cups water, 1/3 cup vinegar and 3 crushed sugarzt tablets and stir until smooth. Add 2 beaten eggs and stir over boiling water until mixture thickens and cooks and is smooth. You must stir constantly. Remove from heat and cool. Store in refrigerator in covered container. Many variations are possible! Add small amounts of Roquefort cheese, or pimiento, parsley, olives, or sweet relish.

Brownies Hold Mothers Dinner In Parish Hall

On Tuesday the Brownies of the 5th Belleville Pack had a very successful evening when they entertained their mothers and guests at the annual Mother and Daughter Banquet.

Held in St. Thomas' Parish House, the tables were decorated with bouquets of lilacs and tulips. The Brownies' place cards were multi-colored baskets planted with mauve alyssum. Following "The Queen" played by Frances Potter, Grace was said by Rosalyn Minett. The excellent supper was prepared and served by Mrs. McKenna and her helpers. The ladies were thanked by Judy Little and a small gift was presented to them by Carol Levitt. The Brownies then rose and introduced their mothers.

In a short address, Brown Owl Rita Minett welcomed the mothers and guests on behalf of the Brownies and leaders and congratulated the Brownies who had worked so hard to earn the badges which were to be presented, as each badge entails a lot of work on the part of the girl receiving it. She then introduced the guest of the evening, Mrs. A. S. McConnell.

Mrs. McConnell, in reply, thanked the Brownies for their invitation and said that as the mother of boys, she was more used to the Cubs and Scouting so that a Brownie banquet was a refreshing change and she was very glad to be there with so many happy young people.

District Commissioner Mrs. Settle expressed the regret of Commissioner Mrs. Ryan who was unable to be present through illness. Brownie banquets were a good thing, she went on to say, as Brownies enjoy having an evening out alone with their mothers for their support through the year and especially for their help at the L.A. tea.

Tawny Owl Maxine Little thanked the guests and everyone moved upstairs for the presentation of the badges by Commissioner Settle.

Special award for best Brownie was won by Mary Beth Follwell. Golden Bar Badges by Marie Bell, Maro Diamanides, Katherine Gilchrist, Margaret Joy Howitt, Lynda Hitchon, Sheilagh McGonigle, Nancy Punchard and Patricia Persons. Golden Hand badges by Diane Alexander, Janice Browning, Yola Diamantides, Kathleen Kilbank, Lela Knox, Carol Levitt, Judy Little, Carol McBride, Rosalyn Minett, Judith A. Robinson, Connie Stovell, Jennie Sprague and Mida Sweet.

Proficiency Badges were awarded as follows to Mary Beth Follwell, Minstrel, House Orderly and Swimmers; Judith Ann Jones, Writers, House Orderly, Swimmers and Minstrel; Frances Potter, Minstrel, House Orderly, Swimmers and Writers; Gaye Scott, Swimmers House Orderly, Writers and Collectors; Cathy Cook, Minstrel, House Orderly and Swimmers; Mary Dawkins and Sharon Locke, Writers.

The Brownies then entertained those present with a three-act play entitled "How the Owl found the Brownies." The characters were played by Judith A. Jones, mother; Mary B. Follwell as Tommy Smith; Cathy Cook as Betty Smith; Mary Dawkins as the owl; Frances Potter, fairy; Nancy Punchard, Sheilagh McGonigle and Lynda Hitchon, sunflowers; Gail Richardson, toadstool; Gaye Scott, pixie and Sharon Locke, father.

Mrs. E. F. Follwell thanked Brown Owl Minett and Tawny Owl Little for their endeavors through the past year and gave each of them a token of appreciation on behalf of the mothers.

PROGRESS REPORT BY TCA

TCA pioneers research into new electronic reservations system

Faster service in the jet age

Every year, more Canadians are taking to the air . . . in 1956, over two million passengers flew TCA. The planned expansion of TCA services is to go on. With the introduction of new fleets of DC-8 jetliners and prop-jet Vanguards in 1960 and 1961, TCA will become the first of the world's intercontinental airlines to operate an all-turbine fleet.

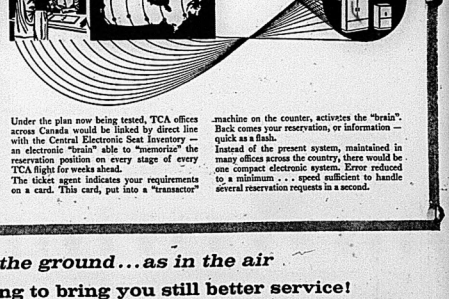
The speed of air traffic in the jet age . . . the growing volume of passengers . . . will call for a swiftly-moving reservations system, capable of keeping in step. So TCA is experimenting with totally new methods, making use of the modern miracle of electronics. Reservations offices across the continent would be connected directly with a giant electronic "brain" . . . completely automatic, able to plot every seat on every flight months in advance, to give flight information and make reservations, in seconds.

TCA is setting the pace in jet age planning . . . enlisting the latest methods to bring you still better, faster service.

PRESENT SYSTEM

1 Your request for a reservation is phoned by the counter clerk to the local reservations centre . . .

2 . . . where the traffic board shows, at a glance, availability of any flight.



3 The local centre is linked by teleprinter and telephone with TCA's national control centre . . .

4 . . . where all bookings, from centres in every part of Canada, are correlated.

NEW ELECTRONIC SYSTEM

Under the plan now being tested, TCA offices across Canada would be linked by direct line with the Central Electronic Seat Inventory — an electronic "brain" able to "memorize" the reservation position on every stage of every TCA flight for weeks ahead.

The ticket agent indicates your requirements on a card. This card, put into a "transactor" machine on the counter, activates the "brain". Back comes your reservation, or information — quick as a flash.

Instead of the present system, maintained in many offices across the country, there would be one compact electronic system. Error reduced to a minimum . . . speed sufficient to handle several reservation requests in a second.

INFLUENCE ON TV

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Four-year-old Michael McDonald, who is crazy about western television shows, tried to hang himself Wednesday the way cowboys string up rustlers on TV—and almost succeeded. He tied the end of a rope to a telepone pole, made a noose around his neck while standing on his tricyle, and was left dangling when the tricycle toppled over. An unidentified woman saw the boy and lowered him to the ground.

How to KEEP FIT after 50

In the old days fifty seemed the signal to slow down—take things easy—watch your diet—get more rest. It's still good advice. But these days you can face fifty with many interesting and active years ahead,—active, that is, if you can avoid backache and the "tired-out" feeling due to kidney and bladder disorders, that often develop around that age. For more than 60 years Dodd's Kidney Pills have been helping men and women of all ages to keep kidneys and bladder in good order,—helping them to feel better, be more active, and get more fun out of life. If you are approaching fifty, or past it, Dodd's Kidney Pills may help you, too. You can depend on Dodd's. 54

Mental Health Prime Concern Of Women

MONTREAL (CP) — Mental health is a prime concern of women in South Africa, says Dr. Thelma Gutsche, that country's delegate to the triennial congress of the International Council of Women.

"Mental illness is growing with enormous velocity," she said in an interview at McGill University where the 11-day congress opened Wednesday.

"It covers juvenile delinquency, alcoholism and broken marriages as well as the type of illness thought to need institutional care."

Dr. Gutsche said the South African National Council of Women has worked hard propagating the principle of mental health and arousing public opinion on the need for the right sort of treatment.

HIGH DIVORCE RATE

South Africa, she said, has the second highest divorce rate in the world, and the women feel "there is obviously something wrong with the social structure."

"Of course, South Africa had more of a problem because of its multi-racial society but the council always works for the good of the whole country . . .

"We want to educate the public so that they will be able to put mentally-ill people back on their feet without ever sending them near an institution."

Mrs. A. Mantzoulino, leader of the Greek delegation, said her national council's main interest is social welfare.

"There are over 230,000 orphans in Greece," she said. "This is a great problem . . . we're far too busy with other things to worry about being mentally ill too."

WHITE AND NAVY BLUE

The navy blue coat over the white daytime dress is slim with circular tuck at the waistline, repeating the double seam across the shoulders. A white wool jersey is used for the dress, which has a tie-band neckline buttoned down the front. White is carried through in the accessories for a cool, fresh look.

The Experts Say

Summertime Is Salad Time, Appetites Know No Holiday

TORONTO (CP)— Summertime is salad time and appetites know no holidays. Good planning will lighten the three - meal - a - day chore.

The secret of perfect salads lies in serving them cold on chilled plates. They must appeal to both the eye and the appetite.

There are green salads of wide variety and also the "hearty" salad which contains meat, fish, cheese, eggs, peas or beans. Nutritionists speak of the latter as a tissue builder.

LIKED BY MEN

The "hearty" salad is most popular with men—and a good solution for a summer buffet party. Dessert and coffee complete the meal.

Refreshing fruit salads find favor among women. They can be made with canned or fresh fruit. To prevent fruit discoloration sprinkle a small amount of lemon juice over the fruit.

Salads may be served frozen, jellied or crisp and colorful. In making them, you should visualize the finished product—a bouquet.

The secret of a good salad is to have the vegetables cold and crisp. First step is to wash the greens in cold water, shake and pat dry on a towel.

The good housewife always has lettuce on hand along with cucumber, dandelion greens, young spinach, watercress, cabbage, romaine, escarole, and French or Belgian endive. Thus, she is always prepared to make a variety of salads on short notice.

The salad bowl should be rubbed with a cut clove of garlic. All vegetables should be thoroughly dried so that the food retains its identity.

DRESSING IMPORTANT

Dressing must be poured on immediately before serving or if you follow the French fashion, only at the table. When pouring the dressing care should be taken not to use too much as it will collect in the bottom of the salad bowl. If the leaves are wet, dressing cannot adhere.

Don't toss ingredients carelessly into the bowl nor allow your salads to grow monotonous. To vary them, use different dressings as a pick-up. Use a basic formula for French dressing and mayonnaise. Herbs and spices are of the greatest importance in salad dressings.

Nutritionists say salads are vitamin rich—the fresher the vegetables, the more vitamins available. Outer coarse green leaves have higher calcium and vitamin content. They can also be shredded and used in both salads and sandwiches.

The good salad - maker never substitutes ingredients of well-known salads as the flavor will be changed. But she can find fresh adventure in new combinations.

For that added touch, use a variety of bread and crackers. Toasted garlic bread, savory muffins or hot rolls are also popular. Summer meals can be topped off with iced tea or cool coffee.

Wife Preserver

To get a very fresh cake or loaf of bread so that it doesn't crumble, put a flat-bottomed dish, turned to hot water, then dried. Never hold dried over an open flame to heat or you will ruin the steel.

Women's Activities

ST. THOMAS W.A.

At the closing meeting for the summer months, the senior W.A. members of St. Thomas' Church held an enjoyable "potluck" luncheon.

The Rev. Canon A. S. McConnell asked the blessing and by the way the food disappeared, all had come with good appetites.

While the others relaxed Mrs. John Watson read her report on the Diocesan W.A. annual meeting which was held on May 1-2-3 at Kingston.

Mrs. Leach thanked Mrs. Watson for her interesting and detailed account, which was seconded by Canon McConnell, who thought the W.A. was fortunate to have so good a delegate.

After the president, Mrs. Feather, had spoken briefly, all dispersed wishing each other a pleasant summer, hoping to meet again in September.

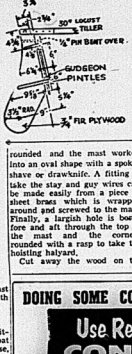
nish the Job Before Launching ood Advice for Sabot Builders



osing lines of Sabot are vn in stern sketch. Note bot around knee to anchor the of rofessional-Looking "slotted" st can easily be made from pieces of clear pine or spruce. Other types of mast could be adapted to use with the sailing dinghy.

This is the fifth in a series how to build an eight-foot ing dinghy."

By HARRY FURNISS

Most boat-builders manage up this point to disregard the ice of well-meaning friends do things differently than on plans, but from here in, the gestions come thick and fast. armchair critics are slightly ed (if they would only admit by the construction at this nt. But when they see the ost-finished Sabot, they talk h a knowlegeable air of his s could add—or subtract—to ke the finished dinhy faster, lighter, or more pleasing to e. ight them off for you're on final lap. And more than t, resolve to finish the job perly before even thinking a launching party. For once boat is in the water, you seldom finish the things left done at that point.

WARE OF FRILLS

You will also hear at this point of all sorts of fancy fittings that will make life afloat easier. There are many of these, to be sure, but they cost a great deal more than their service warrants.

Let's get the mast out of the way first. It is 12 feet long and a professional "slotted" mast isn't hard to make although two pieces of 1x3 clear pine or spruce may cost a few dollars.

Sketch suggestions on how to make a mast are shown. A groove is cut in each of the mast pieces and the smaller facing surface planed slightly. The two are then glued together and clamped to a straight 2x6 nailed along a chalk line on the garage floor.

MAST IS OVAL

When dry, the corners are rounded and the mast worked into an oval shape with a spokeshave or drawknife. A fitting to take the stay and guy wires can be made easily from a piece of sheet brass which is wrapped around and screwed to the mast. Finally, a largish hole is bored fore and aft through the top of the mast and the corners rounded with a rasp to take the halyard.

Cut away the wood on the afterside of the mast so that the groove is exposed for about a foot above the deck. It is here that you will feed the leading edge of the sail into the slot before it can be hoisted.

The boom of Sabot need just be a piece of 1x2, worked into an oval shape, to which an oak gooseneck is attached at the forward end. The sail will only be attached to this boom at the extreme ends so it needs no slot.

CUT OUT RUDDER

Rudder and centreboard are easily cut from ¾" or ¾" plywood to the shape indicated in the plan. At the risk of outraging the architect, I would suggest six inches more depth to each. It can always be cut off later if you find the performance warrants it.

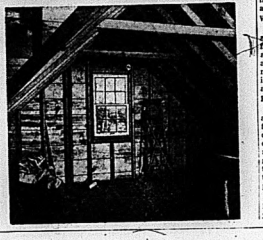
Tiller is usually bolted through two side pieces of half-inch plywood which extend above the top of the rudder. Place the rudder against the stern, and mark off the position of the pintles and gudgeons.

Floorboards can be made now but are not screwed in place until the interior of the hull has received its final coat of paint.

FLOOR BOARDS

Some dinghy specialists use strips of quarter-inch plywood screwed into the keel and stretched from chine to chine; others prefer to run thin battens fore and aft halfway between the keel and the chines and attach the boards (or perhaps "slats" would be better), to these.

Floorboards are a matter of personal preference. But in this connection it is wise to remember that it is often necessary to get under them — or between them— with a sponge or cup to bail if you intend to sail Sabot on her ear.



In the concluding article (Part VI) we will explain the installation of shrouds, sails and other final details.

JUNIOR BATHROOMS

Miniature toilets for children are made by plumbing fixture manufacturers. Other fixtures for a child's bathroom are about the same as any. Lavatories are hung closer to the floor for younsters and can be raised later. Small sized bathtubs are common. "You've probably tried them in hotels.

Steel Casement Windows Increase Glass Areas

More vision is offered by thin metal window frames. The strength of steel makes the narrowest mullions and muntins practicable so you get a maximum of glass area. Operation never fails.

New Inventions Free Us From a Caveman's Light

How a clerestory brings light into a house. The strip of solar-selective glass block under this ceiling prevents the wide sun-shading overhang of a south terrace from darkening the living room. Skylights of diffusing glass block balance brightness to cancel glare.

Gypsum Wallboard Plays a Big Role In Modernization

Gypsum wall board has become a basic material for most home remodeling projects. For adding a room to a house, whether finishing an attic, enclosing a breezeway or porch, or converting a garage into living quarters, this material provides virtually prefabricated plaster in easy-to-handle sheets 4 by 8 feet in size.

High in fire resistance, gypsum wallboard can be used in either single sheets or double. When doubled one layer is installed with the panels running horizontally and the other vertically.

The use of the gypsum wallboard is known as drywall construction. You can paint or wallpaper immediately, instead of waiting for months for walls to dry out.

Want a Model's Figure? Well, Lady, Dig for It

It's "Send Down Sister, If You Want To Stay Thin," says beautiful Patricia Hutar. A nationally famous fashion model, Patricia cultivates her glamorous figure in her garden.

Want the svelte figure of a glamourous fashion model?

What woman doesn't—and, according to one of the most photographed young beauties in the United States, wanting isn't enough. You have to dig for it.

"Add spade, and now, and weed—and, occasionally, even fertilize," says stunning Patricia Hutar, whose pretty face is probably as familiar to you as the girl's next door. You've seen Patricia on the pages of your favorite fashion magazines dozens of times and you've probably wondered, "where do they grow girls like that?"

Let Patricia now answer that question for you—"in a garden."

A trim 131 pounds, twenty-four-year-old Patricia has an even more pressing reason than most women for being thin—she also has a healthy appetite and finds exercise for its own sake a bore.

"Because a misplaced pound shows up on a fashion model like a ton, this could all be a problem if I hadn't decided to "cultivate" a slim figure," says Patricia, "and, the pun's intentional."

A love of flowers led the brunette model into gardening and, paradoxically enough, a dislike of exercise kept her at it.

"I find gardening so much fun I never think of it as exercise," Patricia explains, "yet, I do more than enough swooping, sleeping, and moving around to keep the pounds down."

Patricia thinks the secret of keeping thin through exercise is to do it consistently and, she says, "that's one of the ways gardening makes it so painless."

If I were to set aside a half hour a day to touch my toes and do knee bends, I just wouldn't have the willpower and patience to keep at it," Patricia admits.

"Out in the garden I do the equivalent of all that exercise and never notice it. It's because gardening grows on one — if you'll excuse another pun—and it becomes so interesting that all you think of are the flowers and vegetables, not the exercise.

Another bonus of gardening is that it's a time saver, says Patricia. Because her busy modeling schedule gives her little free time, she wants any exercise she does to be recreational, as well as pound removing.

"Out in the garden, I get the kind of recreation that lets my tensions unwind," she explains, "and, as any working girl knows, that's something to be desired.

"Besides, how else could I convert my excess pounds into flower bouquets?"

Room Dividers Help Stretch Space in Home

Space is usually at a premium in many of today's homes and there is a desire for lots of light, open planning and a feeling of space.

But most homeowners still want a small division, or effect of a division between certain areas such as entries, living and dining areas.

Room dividers are the answer to this problem. They must serve the multi-purpose of a dividing effect, yet not cut out light, blend with the decor and serve a useful purpose.

Happily, there are many ways to solve this problem. Waist-high partial partitions which contain cupboards for china, glassware and plants serve the purpose admirably.

In living and dining room areas, panels of glass block may be used to brighten dark entrances or partition off a room.

Strips of bamboo, wire, vertical blinds and poles from floor to ceiling, combined with planters are effective dividers and still provide light.

Rubber Tile Fits Decorating Schemes

Resilient rubber tile, the same material used for luxury floor coverings in kitchens and bathrooms, has many other useful household applications. Because of its flexibility and ease of cutting this material lends itself to various decorative ideas. Inlays are easy to devise.

Marbelized rubber tile can be used for an impervious top on a cocktail table. Either the tile sizes or sheet form can make a damage-proof top for a child's chest. Doors that get rough treatment can be armored with rubber tile. A sharp flooring knife and a good adhesive are all you need.

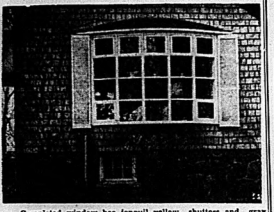
Picture Window Easy To Install



Old living room windows in the John Carlton home don't do justice to wonderful outdoor view of brook, grassy slope. Carlton with decides to install a picture window himself.

Making a frame for the new window, Carlton fills in openings with insulation. Later shingles will be replaced to cover it. Son Kenneth, 16, watches how it's done.

Three sections of the picture window are in, supported by scaffolding. Carlton builds up to window's base. Kenneth stands on the platform, pondering the next move.

Completed window has jonquil yellow shutters and gray shingle roof and bottom to match house's shingles. It's a striking and lovely frame for a good view.

If You Have a Good View Frame It

By JOHN A. CARLTON

Rebuilding a house, like proverbial woman's work, is never done.

Take my new picture window. This wasn't part of the plan when my family and I remodeled a two-story house in Larchmont, N.Y. It took us four years of evening and weekend work, but three years ago we moved into our new home. It was comfortable, inviting and individual.

And it had a view—too good not to make the most of.

Most folks have a scene from their living room that is made up of the next door neighbor's garage. But through the three conventional type windows aligned on one side of our living room we could see a brook winding down a grassy slope and tumbling over a rock. It couldn't have been more picturesque if I had planned it that way.

So of course we had to have a picture window. But picture windows can be expensive. I shopped around for quite a while and luckily saw just what I wanted on display at a home show.

It was made up of four horizontal rows of five glass squares, framed in ponderosa pine, with aluminum panels and aluminum screens. The top row of windows opened out individually on cranks, and the two outside bottom windows opened into the room. The rest of the squares were permanent.

Because it was a display item, I got it for a third of its usual cost.

The window purchased, it was up to me to install it. First I had a builder check up on the house's supports to find out where I could cut around the window so the house wouldn't cave in. We discovered that the frames of the old windows were not supports. I reinforced with an I-beam across the top of the windows.

From then on it was mostly a matter of measuring and cutting out the size of the hole to fit the slightly larger picture window.

I prepared everything on the inside first: marking off and breaking down.

Then I built a platform outside from the ground to the bottom of the window, both to stand on and to support the individual sections of picture window glass as they were being put in.

Early the next Saturday morning I ripped out the shell from the outside. Filling the openings with insulation came next.

Since I had already measured and cut 2x4 boards in the proper lengths the day before, putting up the frame didn't take too long. By nightfall all five sections of the picture window were in.

The next day I built a roof and bottom for the convex window. For each I first built a framework. Then I added boarding, tacked on aluminum sheeting—for draining at each side—and then put gray composition shingles on top of that. The roof had a slight overhang to keep the rain from falling on the windows.

At either side I wanted the same jonquil yellow shutters which had blended so attractively against the gray shingles of the house. But the picture window was higher than the old windows. I solved this problem inexpensively by buying an old shutter from a wrecking outfit and cutting it in two. I attached a half to each of the original shorter shutters, repainted and there we were.

For a total of not more than $350 I had something that would have cost me at least a thousand if a contractor had done it.

The new window changed the whole character of the house—for the better. Outside it gave it a three-bedroom, modern look. Inside, with draw drapes, it was dramatic.

And at last that wonderful view had a proper frame.

Canadian Garden Service

BY GORDON LINDSAY SMITH

IT SHOULD BE FUN

For the average person gardening is a healthy recreation or fun and it should remain so. It should not mean a lot of hard work, fatigue and frustration. And with a little discretion, planning and the proper use of reasonably priced and available tube sewers, gardening will be an interesting recreation and not a chore.

To keep it so the beginner is advised to keep operations within reason and simple, or in plainer words, not to bite off more than he can chew with pleasure.

START SMALL

It is far better to have a small garden which one can keep clean and healthy, than a great big one where the weeding, thinning and cultivating never gets done or at least finished. The beginner is also advised to introduce brand new varieties a few at a time, not to experiment with a dozen completely new varieties in a single season. Like a good book or record collection, the garden is best built up gradually with a few new things added each year.

And one should always remember that in this day and age with gardening as with almost anything else there are all sorts of devices to make things easier. There are chemicals that kill weeds and bugs. There are special fertilizers that build up the soil. There is a wide range of hand tools that make weed cultivation quick and effective. And there are garden tractors, power lawn mowers, sweepers, garden carts that get the tough jobs done in a twinkling.

SPLIT-LEVELS

Instead of grumbling about an uneven location for the lawn and grounds about the home, the smart gardener will turn any differences in level into an intriguing asset. This is especially true where the layout is fairly generous in size. Instead of trying to make the lawn dead level or on an exact slope, he will build it in two or more distinct levels. Then these are connected with a bit of stone wall or a clump of shubbery or trees, or a flower garden, trellis or hedge and perhaps a path and a set of a few steps. These breaks here and there, provided there is a real reason for them like a change in slope, add great interest. On fair sized grounds one should not be able to see everything from one position. It is far more exciting to have to move about so that the full beauty and interest of the grounds unfold.

SPREAD THEM OUT

Canadians are supposed to be a pretty cautious sort of people but when it comes to gardening they have a tendency to rush things. It is all well to get some flowers and vegetables planted extra early and of course the sooner nursery stock and grass seed are in the better. But with a great many flowers and vegetables and in all but the farthest north parts of the country, one should plant gradually.

Experienced gardeners who want to get the most out of their vegetables and the longest display of bloom from their flowers make a regular practice of sowing at least two or three times. In vegetables for instance they will only use up a third or quarter of their seed and garden space the first week-end, then 10 days or two weeks later make another planting and 10 days later again another. With such fast growing things as beans, carrots, lettuce and beets, they make regular plantings right up to mid-July and they also use with standard vegetables like corn, beans and peas, early, medium and late varieties. In this way the harvest is spread over months instead of days.

QUICK BLOOMERS

While no gardener would want all of his garden to bloom early, leaving nothing for late summer and fall, still it is nice to know what will rush to bloom fast from spring planted seeds. Here are the quickest annuals to flower: Alysum, Candytuft, Clarkia, Linaria, Nemophila, and Dwarf French Marigolds.

Dividing a Bathroom Doubles Its Use

Dividing your bathroom into compartments is an enexpensive way to obtain the usefulness of a second bathroom. When space permits, one compartment can enclose the toilet and another compartment, the bathtub.

The addition of twin lavatories equipped with counters and cabinets and sufficiently large mirrors will permit two persons to wash at the same time.

HARD OR SOFT WOOD

Hardwoods generally come from trees that have broad leaves. Most softwoods come from evergreens.

LOTS of LIGHT

LIVING AND DINING room are combined in the Pierpont. There are three bedrooms, two baths. The den is next to the kitchen.

TRIM, NEAT LINES characterize the Daytona, an all-on-one-floor home. The exterior is finished in fir plywood that has vertical lines. The driveway runs right past the front entrance of the house to the attached garage, which has been set at a right angle to the home.

ONE OF THE nice features of this three-bedroom plan is the family room, accessible from both kitchen and living-dining rooms.

ONE OF THE STRIKING features of the Pierpont is the bedroom windows, at right. They're exceptionally high and wide. Beneath them, there's a decorative planting box. The bedroom wing is done in brick, while vertical siding is used around the entrance area.

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

Light, bright, airy! They're adjectives you could well apply to either of today's plans. Both are many-windowed home designs.

The Daytona, pictured above, is a 6-room house with an attached garage spacious enough to contain a large storage closet and a water heater.

Entrance Foyer

It's just a step from garage to front entrance. Once inside, you step into a small foyer, centrally located so you can reach any part of the house from it.

To the right is a spacious living-dining area with window walls at either end. It's a marvellous room for furniture placements. There are so many possibilities!

Close to Kitchen

The dining area is close to the kitchen with its many closets, cabinets and appliances. At one side of the kitchen, a door leads out to the covered passage at back.

At the other end of the room there's access to the family room, which has a folding partition separating it from the living room proper. The family room is a cozy area, just right for a desk, TV and a few comfortable chairs.

Bedrooms are left of the entry hall. The master bedroom has its own private bath. Each bedroom has excellent closets, one for clothing and one for storage.

Air Conditioning

Space has been provided in the centre hall for the installation of an air conditioning unit.

The Daytona comprises 15,120 cubic feet.

The Pierpont is another airy plan, and that's especially true of its living room. At front, a picture window looks out on the grounds. At back, a window wall captures a view of the terrace. A dining area is part of the living room.

Decorative Den

Close by is the den, paneled in plywood and with coved strips of fluorescent lighting. Open folding doors on one wall and a food bar, served from the kitchen, is revealed.

The kitchen itself has an L-shaped arrangement of appliances and cabinets. From it, you can step into a small utility room where there's space for food, cleaning supplies and laundry equipment.

There are three bedrooms and two baths.

The Pierpont comprises 19,150 cubic feet.

Mott and Sons Have Record of Fine Service

E. D. Mott and Sons, Ltd., Lumber and Builder's Supplies, 370 Front St. and Trent Rd., is the Belleville location of everything home builders require to turn their dwellings into dream houses.

The Motts say: "We are among the oldest lumber companies, if not the oldest, in Belleville."

Just after the turn of the century Mr. E. D. Mott's father, Frank, pulled up stakes near Flint, Michigan, and transplanted them in Frankford, only to move a short time later to Belleville, where the company has been serving the building public ever since.

Bob and Jim, sons of E. D. Mott, are the fifth generation of the family to be partners in the firm. Both young men were born and educated in Belleville.

Bob is looking after the business at 370 Front street, while Jim is the yard manager of the Trent Rd. Mr. Mott, Sr., has his office on the Trent Rd., but leaves most of the handling of the firm to his sons.

E. D. Mott and Sons Ltd., through its many years of local business, has acquired a reputation that is unsurpassed by any similar firm in the Belleville district.

The Motts agree that the best thing home builders can do when looking around for materials and supplies, is not to listen to propaganda, but to drop in and examine the wares at 370 Front street or on the Trent Rd. near the C. P. R. crossing.

As Bob said: "We have everything in builder's supplies — from the ground up."

Check-up on Common Fire Hazards When Planning Various Home Improvements

Keep safety in mind in planning your alterations and fix-up projects. And, home improvement time is also a good time to take care of the many fire hazards that lurk unsuspected around the typical home after a few years of occupancy.

New York will be fire-safe if it conforms to the building laws and is approved by the inspector but existing hazards will go on unless corrected. The best time to correct them is when general renovation is going on.

Among the more serious fire hazards are obsolete and inadequate wiring; unapproved, open-flame space heaters; older fireplaces and chimneys. These hazards can easily be corrected while other remodeling work is going on.

It is more than likely that existing wiring in older homes is overtaxed by the new electrical appliances. Additional circuits should be installed to carry the loads with safety.

Now You Can Spray Paint Without Gun

A shortcut for a small paint job is offered by the new enamels in aerosol cans for spray painting. These cans, charged with freon gas, spray any object with paint as effectively as expensive equipment with a motor driven compressor.

Of course, each can contains only a comparatively small amount of paint — 6 to 12 ounces, depending on size. So it would take a lot of cans to spray paint a house. But for refinishing a radiator, touching up chipped enamel on a refrigerator or kitchen cabinet, or giving any small piece of furniture a smooth finish like an automobile body, aerosol cans of spray paint are big time savers.

There is no cleaning of brushes or rollers when all you do is to press a button on top of a can and let the paint spray. You can get 13 colors, including gold and aluminum, plus a clear colorless lacquer. All of these dry within a few minutes. They can be used on wood, metal, leather, or paper.

Various decorative possibilities have been opened up by this invention.

ON THE BUTTON

New doorbell buttons contain a tiny neon light that glows constantly without using enough current to notice over a period of many years. The light is reflected on your nameplate enclosed in a plastic case.

Electric Light 'Faucet' Gives Trickle or Flood

Control of intensity is the latest convenience in illumination. A dial replaces the switch. It works like stage lighting. Here a mother turns up brightness in the family room to cheer children's game.

Painted Wood Shutters Can Serve as Curtains

Movable shutters as a room divider convert this nursery into two rooms. Suspended on an overhead track, the panels fold back. When closed they may be adjusted to equalize heat in both rooms. The designer of this arrangement, Paul Heinley of Santa Monica, Calif., says shutters and shoji screens are steadily gaining wider use as practical adaptions of Japanese ideas.

Give Your Home a Lift With Light

Thanks to new developments in lighting fixtures, in window design, structural glass and skylights, you can now use light as a paint brush in your interior decorating schemes. Some decorators are regarding light as a key to a new dimension in home furnishing.

A house without dark corners was recently completed by a day-lighting engineer at the University of Michigan. Employing new solar-selective skylights to admit light and keep out heat, clerestory panels of prismatic glass block to bend light rays up under ceilings, and various other glass tricks, the designer created a house without glare.

You can do a lot to light your house better at night, also without glare. The American Home Lighting Institute says 90 per cent of all homes "are caverns of gloom," because they average only about 11 lighting fixtures per house.

EASING EYE STRAIN

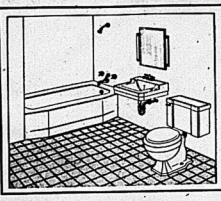
A minimum standard of 25 fixtures for a 1,200-square-foot house, which is a minimum three-bedroom house, would make Junior's homework easier, Mom's kitchen work less irksome and Dad's morning shave less hazardous.

Modulated light control is one of the easiest-to-install inventions. This lets you regulate the lights in a room, or a single lamp, from dim to bright merely by turning a dial similar to sound volume control on your radio or television set. The dial is installed in place of an ordinary switch, or a portable dial about the size of a baby alarm clock is placed on a lamp table to control an individual lamp.

NEW LIGHT ON FABRICS

This works like stage lighting. When you want to read you can turn the lights up. When you want to relax and just talk you can dim the lights to any desired intensity — firelight or candlelight. Thomas Leo Lyons, interior decorator, says it is a great aid in varying the color and textures of room decor.

"By varying intensity of light," he says, "the color and tones of fabrics used for draperies, furniture and rugs can be accentuated or subdued to alter the character and spirit of surroundings."



You can get light fixtures today that go up and down, that travel, that illuminate draperies from cornices and valances. There are spotlights, bubble fixtures, starbursts, sconce fixtures, and the traditional chandelier has been streamlined to give it more glamor than ever before.

President Eisenhower Again Feeling Better After Heart Attack, Serious Operation

MARITIME MINISTER HEADS PRESBYTERY

In Vancouver, B.C., Reverend Archibald Donald MacKinnon, of Little Narrows, N.S., was formally installed this morning as the 83rd general assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. He succeeds Dr. Finlay G. Stewart of Kitchener.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A year ago tonight Gen. Eisenhower was only a close to President Eisenhower for the second time within nine months. In the long run the president won out.

This time the crisis was a sudden, racking attack of ileitis or inflammation of the small intestine, with partial blockage. Emergency calls went out to a crack army surgeon in Virginia, to another top surgeon in Philadelphia, to a heart specialist in Boston and to another heart expert in South Carolina. All raced to Washington.

The world remembered the heart attack Eisenhower had suffered Sept. 24, 1955 — how it kept him in bed almost for seven weeks in Denver, Colo., and kept him from his White House desk for 2½ months.

QUESTION OF SECOND TERM

Many wondered whether after those circumstances the president could survive another major illness and, if so, whether he would stay in the race for a second term. He had announced just three months earlier, on Feb. 29, that he would run again. Now he has stirred fresh doubts.

Twenty-four hours after illness had struck, a team of 13 physicians huddled at midnight at Walter Reed Military Hospital in Washington. They studied electrocardiograms showing heart performance, laboratory reports, the history of Eisenhower's previous intestinal troubles.

Then they decided: Operate — major abdominal surgery at once.

Later the doctors reported the had no chance. The president had a potentially fatal ailment that could be relieved only by the knife.

ALMOST TWO HOURS

In the pre-dawn hours of June 9 the operation started, one hour and 53 minutes later, when the last stitch finally had been taken, Brig.-Gen. Howard Snyder, says his condition is good and that a nagging cough which developed in January and has hung for weeks finally was cleared up.

MOSCOW INDIGNANT

LONDON (AP)—Moscow radio in broadcasts to British listeners charged that Russia is arming and financing subversive groups in Lebanon in "another malicious" intervention trumped up by Western colonialist circles." Several British newspapers have carried reports that the Soviet Union, Egypt and Syria seek to topple the pro-Western regime in Lebanon by trying to influence next Sunday's Lebanese elections with arms and cash bribes amounting to $1,000,000.

Moslem Villagers Heading North Through Desert

ALGIERS (Reuters) — Thousands of Moslem villagers are fleeing north through the desert away from their homes in eastern Algeria's Moulouya area where 300 Moslem men and youths were massacred last week.

Men, women and children carried what possessions they could and drove their flocks before them.

About 6,000 inhabitants deserted two villages Wednesday and more left a third community in the same area this morning.

French sources, the Algerian National Movement (MNA) and survivors say the massacre was the work of rebels led by the National Liberation Front (FLN). The FLN has issued statements implying the men were killed by the French.

The MNA and FLN are rival organizations, each claiming partial control of the Algerian insurrection against French rule. The nationalist guerrilla war is tying up some 400,000 French troops.

The few men who survived last week's massacre after being left for dead under a heap of bodies (a) guerrilla bands rounded up (b) all males over the age of 15 and slaughtered them with guns and hatchets.

Delegates of the groups now abandoning the three other villages have asked French authorities for weapons to fight FLN bands., French reports say.

Crown Counsel Drops Charge Against Ridout

TORONTO (CP)—Crown counsel Arthur O. Klein has dropped one charge of fraud against George H. Ridout, on trial for violating the Real Estate and Brokers' Act.

Mr. Ridout, president of Ridout Real Estate Company before it went bankrupt last January, is account of illegally transferring funds from the trust account to the general account.

Mr. Klein told chief magistrate T. S. Elmore Thursday he would not proceed with a count dealing with a $23,100 cheque which had been transferred because, he said, "it appears this was a legal transfer of a commission."

Mary Elizabeth MacDonald, chief bookkeeper with the Ridout firm, testified the company transferred funds from the trust account to the general account to make up general account deficits.

Move to Block Trial in Japan Of U.S. Soldier

CAMP WHITTINGTON, Japan (AP) — A Japanese lawyer and United States Army legal advisers went ahead today with plans to defend a youthful American soldier in a Japanese court despite legal moves in the U.S. to forestall the soldier's trial here on a charge of killing a Japanese woman.

The soldier, William Girard, 21, whose rank is specialist, third class, said he expects a fair trial by the Japanese. He reiterated that the shooting of the woman during her attempt at collecting scrap from a U.S. supply base was accidental.

At the request of counsel retained in the U.S. by Girard's family, a federal judge in Washington Thursday ordered the army not to yield the soldier to foreign custody before a hearing Tuesday on an application for a writ of habeas corpus.

The Girard lawyers contended Girard shot a trespasser on the U.S. military base while he was on guard duty, and that the U.S.-Japanese "status of forces" agreement provides only for the Japanese to try American servicemen accused of offences committed while off their bases and off duty.

U.S. authorities in Japan originally held a similar position. But a decision by State Secretary Dulles and Defence Secretary Charles E. Wilson on Tuesday to turn Girard over to Japanese jurisdiction in effect upheld the Japanese contention that while Girard was authorized to protect property, he was not authorized to shoot.

At a press conference today, Girard denied the accusation that he entered the Naka Sakai, 46, onto an army firing range last Jan. 30 and threw a blank cartridge from a grenade launcher. Japanese newspapers have reported that Girard threw shells to the ground for Mrs. Sakai to retrieve, and then shot her. "I did not scatter any shells," Girard said.

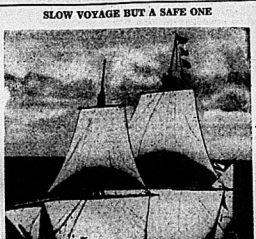
"It was pretty well shook up and very sorry at the death of Mrs. Sakai," he added.

The charge against him carries a maximum penalty of 15 years imprisonment.

Charges Wharves Built at Camps Owned by Grits

MANITOWANING, Ont. (CP)—George Hees, progressive Conservative executive of Algoma East, said Thursday the federal government has built a series of wharves in External Affairs Minister Pearson's riding mainly for the use of Liberal tourist camp operators.

He spoke at a rally in this community on Manitoulin Island in the by-election campaign held in support of Conservative candidate Arthur Milligan.



Mr. Bishop listed five wharves he said the federal government has had built or repaired on Liberal supporters at a cost of $143,000.

"On one of these docks the tourist operator, a Pearson benchman, had the effrontery to put up a no trespassing sign in order to prevent local residents from using the dock and interfering with his American clientele," he said.

Keeps Promise to Dead Brother

A promise made by George Ingram to his dying brother in Scotland has meant a new life for two girls, Betty, 16, left, and Sarah Ingram, 15, right. Since their father's death last year they and their two brothers, ages 14 and 12, lived in an orphanage near Glasgow, waiting for the time their uncle could provide a home for them in Toronto. The last letter received from his brother by George Ingram said he would be dead by the time the letter was received. The two boys later will join their sisters who find Canada a wonderful land with their aunt and uncle, shown with them.

SLOW VOYAGE BUT A SAFE ONE

This stirring view of the Mayflower II, replica of the original Pilgrim ship, was made about 385 miles northeast of Puerto Rico, when the French vessel "Antilles" crossed her path. A lookout is posted on the Mayflower and passengers may be seen in the "waist" as the ship heads for Plymouth, Mass. Calm weather has slowed progress of the ship for two weeks.

Diefenbaker Sways Blows With St. Laurent in Swing Through Western Ontario

DELHI (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent says John Diefenbaker is "talking the rankest kind of tommyrot" in asserting that a Liberal administration would endanger the rights and freedom of Canadians.

The Liberal leader, nearing the end of a six-week campaign, attacked the Progressive Conservative chieftain Tuesday in the strongest words yet used in the June 10 election fight. All through the day-they'll vote on June 10 in the same constituencies but they did not meet.

In three rallies in this southwestern Ontario region, the 75-year-old prime minister referred to statements made by Mr. Diefenbaker at Owen Sound Wednesday. These were to the effect that individual Canadians freedom would be placed in jeopardy if the Liberals are returned to power next Monday.

This was the "rankest, most irresponsible tommyrot propaganda that I have ever heard," said Mr. St. Laurent at a non rally at Stratford.

"RASH" CHARGES

The Conservative leader has shown a lack of public responsibility by making "wild and rash" charges, he added later at a five o'clock meeting at Woodstock.

In an evening rally in this heart of the flue-cured tobacco growing industry, he referred to the subject again, saying Mr. Diefenbaker had expressed the "rankest kind of tommyrot."

It was as ridiculous as Mr. Diefenbaker's previous campaign against "my heinous offence" of inviting members of the armed forces to vote Liberal.

The Conservative leader had implied the Liberals had obtained some improper advantage, whereas in fact Mr. Diefenbaker had "missed the boat," the prime minister said.

Scrutineers for all party leaders had been given names and addresses of servicemen. They all could have written to armed forces. There was nothing unlawful about that.

And anyone who knew servicemen would realize that any attempt to direct them to vote one way would result in their voting the exact opposite way.

CALLS IT PROPAGANDA

Mr. Diefenbaker was trying to spread propaganda that the Liberal leaders were just a bunch of tired old men and should be replaced by "such bright young men as Mr. Diefenbaker to save the liberty of Canadian people."

Mr. St. Laurent said he is sure Canadians won't swallow the line.

The prime minister ends his Ontario appeal with a big Toronto rally tonight. He will hold another meeting in his home riding of Quebec East Saturday and remain there for the Monday vote.

At Stratford the prime minister toured the new Shakespearean Festival theatre under construction and predicted that in the next few years Canada would come of age culturally.

In the noon rally before some 400 persons, he talked also of farm problems.

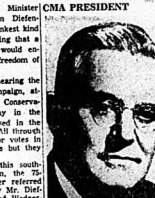
"As far as parity prices are concerned, our political opponents seem not to have studied the quite unfavorable verdict on the United States experiments in this field.

"If they had studied them, I am sure they would not now be urging us to adopt the sort of parity prices system that has proved so unsuccessful in the U.S."

MOTORCADE AT DELHI

At Woodstock he got about 600 persons or more at a five o'clock rally in the Woodstock arena. Delhi, a community of 3,000, gave him his biggest reception of the day; a motorcade of some 50 cars; two bands, eight drum majorettes, youngsters in native Hungarian costume presenting him with gifts of flowers.

With an eye to the tobacco farmer, he said here he doesn't believe that reasonable use of tobacco will shorten a man's life. He had read a news item that cigaret smokers reduce their life expectancy by several years.



A smoker himself, Mr. St. Laurent said "I haven't noticed any particularly bad effects so far and only my political opponents seem to express any concern about my life expectancy."

Arvida Workers Get Strike Aid

MONTREAL (CP) — Union weekly strike benefits of $5 for single and $12 for married employees will be paid after next week to 1,500 strikers at the Arvida, Que., plant of the Aluminum Company of Canada, it was learned Thursday. The workers have not received strike pay since they went on strike three weeks ago.

The National Federation of Metal Workers (CCCL) members went on strike to back up demands for higher wages and a master contract.

CMA PRESIDENT

Ike or Nobody On Soviet TV Says Malenkov

MOSCOW (AP)—Two members of the Soviet high command have indicated it is President Eisenhower or nobody as far as Soviet TV is concerned.

Deputy prime ministers Anastas Mikoyan and Georgi M. Malenkov told correspondents Thursday that Eisenhower has "already refused to appear on Soviet television."

They were commenting on proposals that nuclear bombs have chief Khrushchev had appeared on American TV. Eisenhower should have the chance to be seen on TV here.

The president said Wednesday the U.S. administration would accept the right sort of invitation to appear on Soviet screens—but the Soviet counterpart of the chief executive official other than himself would do the talking.

Big Profits Made on Shares Paper Claims

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Tribune says the president of a firm which will distribute natural gas in Northern Ontario paid four-fifths of a cent a share for 27,500 shares at a stock now trading at about $28 a share.

The paper says:

"The prospectus of the Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company Limited, copies of which have just arrived in Winnipeg, reveals that the president, Ralph K. Farris of Vancouver, bought 27,500 shares of the company's common stock at a price of four-fifths of a cent per share.

"He still holds 17,500 shares, according to the prospectus.

"The market price of a share at 11 o'clock this morning was $28 to $28.75.

OTHER PURCHASES

"The prospectus also reveals the following share transactions:

"The executive vice-president, Spencer Clark of Seattle, Wash., purchased 56,048 shares at an average price of 1.4 cents a share and now holds 30,000 shares

"Gordon W. McLean purchased 30,750 shares at 5.6 cents a share, of five cents a share, of which he now owns 60,375 shares.

"Mabel Maxwell purchased 32,064 shares at an average price of 31 cents a share. He now holds 5,000 shares.

"Charter Oil Company Limited, of which Mr. Farris is president, purchased 83,989 shares at an average price of 6 cents a share, all of which it still holds.

PUBLIC BUILDING IT

The Tribune says Northern Ontario natural gas will distribute gas from the transi- continental pipeline to consumers in an area stretching about 1,100 miles, from a point near the Manitoba-Ontario border to a point about 65 miles north of Toronto. This section of the Trans-Canada line is being built by Northern. Ontario Pipeline Crown Corporation, a government agency, using public funds.

"It (Northern Ontario Natural Gas) will purchase gas at various points along the trans - Canada pipeline for distribution to 24 communities through its own facilities and, at the Lakehead, through Twin Cities Gas Company Limited, of which it holds half the outstanding stock," the Tribune reports.

"The communities have an estimated population of 306,000, and include Kenora and Dryden."

Diefenbaker Issues 'Rankest Kind of Tommyrot' Says PM In Tour of Western Ontario

TORONTO (CP)—John Diefenbaker today entered the final day of an intensive four-day search of the pivotal eastern seats that will determine the outcome of Monday's federal election.

Three speeches in the Toronto-Hamilton area today and tonight will conclude his national campaigning, and he will head east Saturday by air for his home riding of Prince Albert, Sask., to await the result of the voting.

In a tour through a half-dozen Western Ontario ridings Thursday, he followed closely on the heels of Prime Minister St. Laurent at two noon and evening pulpbits with chim on some major issues.

At Stratford, Mr. Diefenbaker and the two hour after Mr. St. Laurent had taken him to task there for predicting that another four years of Liberal rule would leave Canadians with no rights.

Mr. St. Laurent had called this "the rankest, most irresponsible tommyrot of election propaganda I have heard since my earliest days."

"HOOEY," HE DECLARES

At a later stop in Woodstock, Mr. Diefenbaker retorted that Liberal claims of farm prosperity subscribed to by the prime minister are "hooey."

He said that word rhymes with a certain name (Mr. St. Laurent), in a "more polite" version added.

During the day, too, he said the prime minister had switched from a "caress, cuddle and coo" campaign to a tougher one in the last few days because the Liberals are getting scared as the election approaches.

"The varnish of caress is coming off and the claws are getgts the better I like it," Mr. Diefenbaker said at Woodstock.

He also accused the Liberals of trying to get votes from the armed forces through "distortion of information," which included a letter to service personnel soliciting votes over the name of Mr. St. Laurent.

"It has placed them in the position as though they were receiving an order from the prime minister," Mr. Diefenbaker said at London.

PERSONALITIES CREEP IN

In a speech at Brantford, the Conservative leader accused Mr. St Laurent of "indulging in personalities which should feel are out of place."

"But I understandable," he said. "They believe they are indispensable, and they don't know what is happening in this country today."

The Liberals were speaking "in the desperation of necessity" in the face of a rising tide in favor of the opposition party.

He said federal policies are to blame for a price-cost squeeze on the farmer and for unemployment in Western Ontario's farm implement industry.

High taxation on farm implements and failure to develop agriculture had been responsible for troubles in the two linked industries.

Unemployment in the automobile industry also had been caused by the federal 10-per-cent special excise tax on cars.

Record Number Of CCF Seats Is Expected

OTTAWA (CP) — CCF Leader M. J. Coldwell forecast Thursday night that a record number of CCF members will be elected to the Commons today.

"There are indications from all across the country that the CCF is going to elect the largest group we've ever had in the House of Commons," he said.

(The largest CCF group was in 1945 when 28 were elected. The total dropped to 13 in 1949 and rose to 23 in 1953).

Mr. Coldwell said that everywhere he had travelled in Canada he had found greater interest in the CCF than he had anticipated.

"Recent indications in Ontario are that we shall win more seats than I thought possible even two or three weeks ago. The same is true in Manitoba and in Saskatchewan and in other provinces."

GROUNDSWELL REACTION

He said there is a "groundswell of public opinion to the CCF." There was reaction against the gluttonous action of the prime minister (Mr. St. Laurent) and the Conservative leader (John Diefenbaker) which conceals the almost identical program their two parties offer.

Mr. Coldwell said while the Liberals and Conservatives are pretending to fight each other "they have in effect entered into a conspiracy to cooperate against the CCF."

The statements were included in the text of a recorded speech issued to the press before delivery by the broadcast from Regina over the CBC trans-Canada radio network.

Little Benny's Notebook

Pop had a blowing sneezing cold last week, but he got better, and Ma was watching him smoking to herself and feeling all right, and she said, I thank goodness you got rid of that awful cold, William for both our sakes.

I thank goodness myself, but somehow I dont feel that's enough pop said. I wish I could express my gratitude by doing something for the good of humanity, he said.

Amo ma said, I wish you could too, William, and that's a very nice thought. I mean if all you millionaires acted on that principle every time they got rid of a cold, this erth would be a proverbial paradise, she said.

By golies yes, it would turn the common cold into a blessing instead of a curse, pop said. Well, I wasn't a millionaire the last time I checked at the bank, so I guess I'll have to be content to do my bit. I'll give up smoking, he said.

Goodness, if you cant keep a solemn New Year resolution to stop smoking, how can you expect to do it casually in the middle of the year? ma said, and pop said, I dont mean I'll stop compleetly. That wouldn't benefit humanity. I'll stop smoking in bed. That's how half the fires start, and if I reduce the risk of fires I'll benefit all my fellow taxpayers, he said.

But William, you practically never smoke in bed, ma said, and pop said, Abslutely never is still better than practically never, and to stanley. man, I might of known, ma said. now I feel that I've paid my dett Oh hush and nonsense, zutch a Which she might of.

Sunday School Lesson

Successful Sinners Beware!

By ROY L. SMITH

There is something very modern about the ancient story of the Old Testament hero, Jacob.

Through a considerable part of his life the man could have been called a successful sinner. That is, he enjoyed all the success any sinner ever enjoys. He sinned, and, for a time, got by with it.

He outwitted his father, outschemed his brother, and made money. By clever management he built up a big estate, and by some shrewd moves he contrived to take advantage of his father-in-law. The probabilities are that he was pretty well satisfied with himself.

Satisfied, that is, until he thought about the possibility of having to meet his brother Esau some day.

MAN DEALS WITH HIMSELF

It is one of the laws of life that every man who sins is compelled sooner or later to deal with himself, and it is never a comfortable thing to stand looking in the mirror and being compelled to say, "The one I see yonder is a liar, a thief, or an unreliable individual."

The uniform Sunday School Lesson for June 9: "Brothers Reconciled," Genesis 29 through 33.

At the very moment that Jacob sat under the stars at night and listened to the herds of sheep and cattle as they slept, he found himself wondering about Esau. And it was not comfortable wondering, either. led by suddenly seeing the amazing eye of his brother, in a dream.

Jacob, the successful sinner, never knew a minute's peace. And no success is worth that much anxiety.

INEVITABLE MEETING

A brother who had been terribly wronged by an older brother, in telling his pastor about the circumstances, said, "I have no intention of pursuing him. I do not suppose I could overtake him if I tried. And besides, I do not have to God is doing that. My brother will never escape the Almighty, or his own conscience, even though he goes to the ends of the earth. And when God catches up with him He will know all of the facts even better than I do."

Let the successful sinner be warned. The day will come when God will meet him at some river Jabbok, and in that terrible hour there will be no better refuge than the facts warrant.

It is true, of course, that Jacob got away with his life. God and Esau both forgave him. But he went lame to the end of his days.

Breaking with sin is always a painful business.

Stone Church W.A. Enjoys Imaginary Trip

4th SIDNEY — Stone Church Woman's Missionary Society held its recent meeting at the home of Mrs. George Tucker. Mrs. J. A. Detlor, president, opened the meeting. Mrs. H. Gray was in charge of the program and asked each to take an imaginary trip across Canada visiting several missionary places.

Mrs. S. W. Lloyd read the scripture lesson from Matthew. Following this a worship of prayers was read from the Missionary Monthly by the leader, and responded to by the members.

The tour across Canada started at Northern Frontenac, Ontario, with Muriel Alexander writing "Renovating the Church" which took place in April, 1956. The difficulties they encountered were related interestingly. This was read by Mrs. S. W. Lloyd.

From here the tour went north to Sudbury, Ontario, and Mrs. H. Whitfield read about a "Good Year" at St. Peter's Church there. In March, 1956, they reported 62 charter members were received into the church. The women's meetings and CGIT have doubled their attendance. A radio program, "Open on the Air," is still a weekly feature.

Teulon, Manitoba, was the next stop. Mrs. J. A. Detlor read a report by Mrs. Edythe Stewart telling how so much is being done with the boys there. The boys help with the church service and a boys' choir has been formed. One boy taking part had never been to church and knew very little of the Bible.

On to Regina, Saskatchewan, with a reading "The Church Serves a Transient Population," read by Mrs. McMullin. This Zion church served the area in Regina known as North Annex, Highland Park and Churchill Downs. So many have moved awby and the few families left are doing a lot to keep the churches going. So the missionary is busy giving leadership and helping with the groups of the church. Zion now has a Mission Band of 25 youngsters, who come every Tuesday after school. Also an Explorers' group and other young people. They have an active Sunday school of about 170 children with ten teachers and other officers.

The final visit was at Cold Lake, Alberta, with Leah Rogers reporting on "A Busy Year" at the John Neil Hospital, read by Mrs. F. Jeffrey. There were 743 admissions, births and operations. Dr. Savage carried on alone until Dr. Wood returned from a post graduate study on surgery. There are a number of Indians and children. Mrs. Lonergs and Mrs. Villett joined, also Dr. Young of Lamont. A discussion on the possibilities of a new hospital in Cold Lake brought an enjoyable trip to a close.

Mrs. Gray, literature secretary, assisted by Mrs. McMullin, led in a discussion on the possibilities of forming a reading club. One was formed. Anyone reading a book from the list given is to report to Mrs. Gray.

After a few items of business were discussed, Mrs. Detlor closed the meeting with prayer.

Mrs. C. W. Vermilyea, Women's Association group leader No. 2, was in charge of the association meeting. A secretary's report was given and a few items of business were dealt with.

A "Silent Auction" was held at the close of the meeting and refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

Thanks were tendered Mrs. Tucker for her hospitality.

To The Electors
of Hastings South . . .

Eight years ago, after you elected me in 1949,

I pledged that "Regardless of class, creed, or political affiliation, I shall do my best to serve you faithfully and well".

After my election in 1953 I renewed this pledge.

Now, after representing you through two terms of Parliament I am happy to remind you of this pledge in the certain knowledge that you will agree I have kept it.

I know I have served you faithfully, and I believe I have served you well. I have consistently supported a government dedicated to a better Canada, to the well-being of Canadians, and to the principle that each one will benefit from the progress, growth and prosperity we now enjoy.

Yankees Fail To Dent Chisox Lead; Robin Robs The Robust Redlegs

Sport Slices

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Wren Blair's statement to this department that he would not take any players from the Eastern Ontario Senior "A" League to reinforce his Dunlops for their European safari next February started some noggin-scratching among the scribes of the east-west divisions.

Nor did his suggestion that with five or six players, the Belleville McFarlands stood a good chance of repeating the Allan Cup hich jinx come next semester, sit very well on the columnar stomach of Mr. Michael J. Rodden of Kingston, who points out that the CKLCs of his village won one game out of five against the Dunlops in the semi-finals while the best Belleville could do was nothing in four, or words to that effect.

Mr. Rodden, quoting Blair's "I believe Belleville with five or six good players added, will be a good a senior club as there will be in the country," says, "this lethanded tribute to the McFarlands must have startled Mr. Carver, who had not suspected that the Macs were quite that weak."

For Mr. Rodden's benefit, "Mr. Carver" did not suspect the Macs were that weak at all. He knew they were. The McFarlands had "no weaklings" under contract. They were injury-riddled—and lacked proper balance. And for general information—and the divil take the hindmost—the Macs are already making arrangements to bolster a strong nucleus of last year's club with "six players."

Mr. Rodden in his statement that the CKLCs made a better showing in the playoffs against Whitby apparently forgets they backed into the playoffs, and, had the Pembroke Lumber Kings been playing up to form they would have been on the sidelines. At that, the Belleville Macs were the schedule whipped the CKLCs seven times, lost three and tied twice.

A few days ago Mr. Rodden sadly lamented that the Eastern League would be in more or less bad straits since, he said, he believed the Pembroke Lumber Kings would possibly land a berth in the NOHA's southern section. That, he thought, would leave only Kingston, Belleville and Cornwall in the league since Whitby would not be taking part in the entire schedule.

New things must look brighter, for word has come out of the north that in all likelihood the Kings will be back in the eastern field, mainly because no other fold will be available.

Art Sargent, manager of the Pembroke Memorial Centre, states that it is almost certain the Kings will be back in the eastern division. For it appears the Kings' new sugar daddy, Wally Lenser, has the loyal burghers of the northern town in a midsummer hockey tizzy.

It appears Mr. Lenser has an acre or two of the long green lettuce and will not be averse to spending it to get the kind of hockey club he wants. Says he, "I will spend it the way I see fit and if I lose it will only be Wally Lenser who will suffer. Furthermore the players I intend to get will need very little advice from a coach."

That last statement should convince other team managers that Lenser won't be raiding their clubs.

It is reported Lenser will do the coaching, what little is needed himself, and as early as next month he and Ken Campbell, coach of the Kings last year, will take a slight-seeing trip down Quebec way and they won't be shopping for pea soup.

Lenser is going after the best, apparently. "A senior goalkeeper will not do for my team," he says. "I want either a goalie who has played in the NHL, is playing in the NHL or who has the ability to play in the NHL."

Mr. Lenser, who, it is reported is not overblessed with hockey know-how, but doesn't care, is quoted as saying he would have paid more than $3,000 for Long John Henderson. One thing for sure all the gold in Golden Lake won't get him a goalie. He'll be lucky to come up with one the calibre of Long John.

Now comes word the North Bay Trappers may move to Louisville, Kentucky, if better arrangements with the arena in the northern city are not forthcoming. Manager Pete Palandri, stormy petrel of the north country, said he is ready to transfer the club to the American city which has a new arena with a 17,000 seating capacity and wants in the international league. North Bay must make up its mind by June 15. This move, if it goes through, will likely sound the death knell of the southern division of the NOHA unless the two Soos and Sudbury want to go it alone.

WRESTLING

Haggerty, the greatest, and Atkins, the roughest, will take on the Tolos Brothers, two of the smoothest, in the feature match of Friday night's wrestling program at the Belleville arena.

Hardboiled Haggerty, arrogant matman from California, modestly calls himself the World's Greatest Wrestler. Haggerty's partner, Fred Atkins, has gained the reputation of being the roughest and toughest grappler that Australia has produced. The Tolos alliance, Chris and John, will be out to prove that a clever, scientific partnership can come out on top over a team that depends only on the battering, bruising manoeuvres.

The remaining two matches will have Baron Gattoni tangling with Don Lewin; Jack Walker meets Mark Lewin.

Bombers Scuttle Indians 14-5 As Sox Tea-Party Boston And the Phils Ain't Phoolin'

By The Associated Press

After a dismal showing last week against Washington and Baltimore, the American League doormats, New York Yankees have regained some of the form that made them world champions and are riding a four-game win string.

But it hasn't moved them any closer to the front-running Chicago White Sox.

The streaking Sox have also won four in a row—and 20 of their last—and still hold a five-game bulge over second - place New York.

Thursday night Yankees pounded out 20 hits, including homers by Mickey Mantle and Bill Skowron, off five Cleveland pitchers to win 14-5 and sweep a "three-game series. Minnie Minoso blasted a two-run home run in the seventh to give 25-year-old Jim Wilson his sixth decision as Sox edged Detroit 3-2.

In other games, catcher Frank House's eight-inning roundtripper gave Detroit a 7-6 triumph over Washington and Baltimore trounced Kansas City 8-3.

THROWS FIVE-HITTER

Johnny Kucks scattered five hits in going the distance for Yanks as his teammates knocked loser Mike Garcia out in the second inning with a four-run rally.

Mantle's 13th homer of the season with one on and nobody given Yanks a 2-0 lead in the first. They scored five more in the fifth.

White Sox rallied from the third inning until Minoso's third homer of the season hung the loss on Boston's Dave Sisler. It was his third against four wins.

Mickey Vernon's no. 2 homer of the season in the second inning have given Sox a brief 1-0 lead. Ted Williams's, Boston's league-leading hitter, was halted in three official trips and his mark dropped to .293.

AIRTIGHT RELIEF

Lou Sleater pitched 3 2-3 innings of airtight relief and scored the tying run in the seventh for Tigers as he picked up his second triumph against no losses. Sleater came on after starter Billy Hoeft was shelled for six runs.

Roy Sievers knocked his 11th homer in the first inning for Senators.

Bob Nieman and Billy Gardner blasted homers for Orioles and Bob Cerv connected for Athletics.

Baltimore took a 1-0 lead in the first and made it 2-0 in the fourth when Nieman hit his roundtripper. They wrapped it up in the fifth with three more runs for a 5-1 lead.

Connie Johnson was the winner pitching in needed help from George Zuverink who came on in the seventh.

Survival of Ducks, Geese Up to Man

WASHINGTON (AP)—A wildlife expert says American wild ducks and geese may become only memories unless man compensates for his steady encroachment on their feeding and nesting grounds.

The statements were made to a House of Representatives agriculture marine and fisheries subcommittee considering bills to authorize purchase of land for preserves and provision or surplus grains for wildlife feeding.

Lansing A. Parker, assistant director of the bureau of sport fish eries and wildlife, said Thursday the eventual fate of waterfowl is "uncertain."

"Habitat is the basic need," he said. "Without it the ducks will disappear and the age-old sport of waterfowl hunting will be gone."

Maybe those Philadelphia Phillies aren't kiddin'. When they can take five of seven from Cincinnati and Brooklyn, and Robin Roberts gives up just one run in 20 innings, it's no joke to the other contenders.

The Phillies did just that Thursday night, with Robin—the gopher ball king—holding the robust Redlegs to eight hits while his mates came through with three home runs to beat the National League leaders 6-2.

That gave Phillies the series 2-1 and shoved them within 1½ games of Cincinnati again, although they remained in third place. The Dodgers, also 1½ out, retained a five-percentage point edge over Philadelphia when their game with Chicago Cubs was postponed by fog.

THREE GAMES BACK

Fourth-place Milwaukee lost to New York Giants 5-3 and stayed three games back. St. Louis, 5½ games behind in fifth, awaited Pittsburgh 8-4.

Roberts gave up nothing louder than a triple while gaining his eighth complete game, tops in the majors, and dropped into the 300 mark for the first time this season with his sixth victory. It was his first win in a row. Only Brooklyn's Roy Campanella has managed to tag him for a home run in his last 39 frames—but it was the 15th off Robin, high in the majors.

Leafs Split With Richmond; Royals Lose

By The Associated Press

It took some doing, but Richmond Virginians came out of their four-game showdown series with Toronto with a 3½ game International League lead over the second-place Maple Leafs.

Leafs won only one of the four, but gave Vees a fit before Richmond managed to salvage a split in a doubleheader Thursday night. Mike Goliat's two-run homer in the 14th gave Toronto the first game 4-3. Richmond bagged the nightcap 5-4 on a pinch, two-out single by Neal Watlington in the ninth after Leafs had tied it 4-4 in the top of the ninth.

Miami moved within 2½ games of third-place Buffalo, defeating Orioles 4-0 on the four-hit pitching of Dick Bunker. And Havana rocked Rochester as Vincente Amor's four-hitter pulled Sugar Kings within two percentage points of the fifth place Red Wings. Columbus pushed Montreal deeper into the cellar, 4-1.

5½ HOUR BATTLE

The largest Richmond crowd of the season saw the Virginians take the 5½ hour battle which saw the Vee's fall down in the opener when Toronto reliever Jack Crimian and Niles Jordan shut off Richmond's scoring attack at one run in the 14th. Bob Rosell's home run gave Toronto a 2-1 lead in the fifth; but Harry Chiti smacked a seventh-inning home run to tie it, Jim Coates was the Richmond starter and retired 19 in a row Vee's fall down in the opener when Toronto reliever Jack Crimian and Niles Jordan shut off Richmond's scoring attack at one run in the 14th. Wallington's payoff single in the nightcap came with the bases loaded against reliever Eddie Blake. Earlier Blake was the winner, relieving starter Bill Bethea after Russ Rae's sacrifice fly had scored Chiti to tie in the ninth.

NOSE PAST FIRST

Bunker didn't allow a runner to get as far as second while Marlins were splitting Bisons with single runs in the fourth, fifth and eighth in a nine-hit attack on Walt Craddock and reliever Steve Nagy.

Havana scored twice in the first inning against Jim Acquavella and Amor took it from there, giving up a homer to Gene Green in the second inning while gaining his fifth victory. Elio Chacon and Dave Morejon homered for Sugar Kings.

Johnny Powers' eighth - inning triple won for Columbus after Joe Altobelli—arriving only 20 minutes before game time to fill an assignment ordered earlier in the day by the Cleveland Indians—hurled third straight win in the intercounty Senior League.

Midgets pounded out four hits to move into first place in the batting race with a .388 average and Hopp scattered 10 hits to pick up his second win as Dutchies won 11-2.

In the Great Lakes-Niagara District League, two unearned runs meant the difference in a 4-3 win for Hamilton Beavers over North Tonawanda Isle Views in Hamilton.

Dutchies Win Three-in-Row

Queen's Plate

Underdog Bettors' Hope Could Be Nag 'Ali's Pride'

TORONTO (CP) — Sports fans who show more than a plate-time interest in horse racing are taking a long second look at Ali's Pride, currently rated just below the E. P. Taylor entries in Saturday's 98th running of the Queen's Plate.

Owned by Wilf Farr of Weston, the long-striding colt checked in with 59 3-5 for five furlongs and pulled six lengths in 1:13 in workouts at Woodbine Thursday. With times like these, trainer Willie Turner says he can't see how the horse can lose.

The Farr entry reigned as 2-to-1 favorite until Monday's plate trials which the Taylor entries, Lyford Cay and Chopadette, won without too much trouble. However Ali's Pride was scratched and didn't start.

UNDERDOG'S HOPE

Ordinarily when a horse stands out in the plate trials—as Lyford Cay and Chopadette did—the other horses start shooting for place money. But Ali's Pride's times in record workouts give underdog bettors hope.

Last season in the Cup and Saucer for two-year-olds, Ali's Pride whipped the Taylor horses handily. "Why can't he beat them again in the Plate?" Turner asked.

How much do the plate trials count? Art Warner, who handles Lad Ator, the sentimental choice, doesn't have much faith in them. His horse ran a poor second to Chopadette in the trial but Warner shrugs his horse's showing off, saying: "You can throw out his' last two races. This colt is much better than he has appeared in public."

TO DECIDE SATURDAY

Meanwhile, jockey Avelino Gomez, who has his choice of Lyford Cay or Chopadette as a mount, still hasn't announced his decision. He will decide early Saturday afternoon. The other half of the two horse-entry will be ridden by Chris Rogers, who already has ridden three Queen's Plate winners.

How many horses will start in North America's oldest horse race, is not known. However Ali's Pride, Lad Ator, Flying Atom, The Schreiber, Holiday Ted, Count Teddy, Teddy's Boy, Henry B. Good, Our Sirdar, and the Taylor horses are almost certain starters. Still uncertain are Mid Blue and Everround.

LEGEND OF THE BAT

A chief's son, escaping from tribal enemies, asked help of the animals.

A nearby field mouse climbed the tree sheltering the boy and gnawed down branches to conceal him. He escaped his enemies and the Good Spirits rewarded the field mouse by giving him wings—hence the origin of the bat.

Harness Horse Racing Strong In West Canada

WINNIPEG (CP) — A city devoted to running horses may soon turn to the trotters.

Polo Park, the city's flat racing course that operated 31 years before the fall of 1956, the land is being developed as a shopping centre.

There is no sign of a new track for the thoroughbreds but there has been talk that a track for the trotters and pacers will be opened.

Although they have not run in Winnipeg for years, except on the ice of the Red River, the trotters are annual country fair attractions in smaller towns in the southern part of Manitoba. There is no formal pari-mutuel betting at some tracks.

The Manitoba Great Western racing circuit this year gives fifteen races at Brandon, where the provincial exhibition of Manitoba is the scene of the West's biggest harness meeting. Pilot Mound, Deloraine, Virden, Portage la Prairie, Carberry, Dauphin, Russell, Neepawa, Minnedosa, Beausejour and Glenboro. A meet is also scheduled for Yorkton, Sask.

The season opened May 25 in Wawanesa and ends with a one-day meet at Glenboro.

Total purse for the circuit is $67,150, ranging from $3,500 at Carman and $3,700 at Brandon to $202 at Glenboro.

More than 100 horses are expected to run on the circuit this season and the fans in the smaller centres—Brandon, the biggest, has a population of about 25,000—something like the betters in winships have mounted since the passing of Polo Park.

Many small towns in southern Manitoba provide the homes of some of the colts that are made up of sulky-pulley from these centres but the colts also breed from the northern United States, where harness racing is popular, Saskatchewan and Ontario.

The circuit operates under the rules of the Canadian Trotting Association. Agricultural societies and exhibition organizations make up most of the sponsors of the meets in Manitoba. Meets range in length from one to three days.

Fullmer, Jones Meet Tonight

CHICAGO (AP)—Gene Fullmer and Tiger Jones, a pair of middleweights who have the rare distinction of defeating Sugar Ray Robinson, clash tonight in a 10-rounder at Chicago Stadium.

Fullmer is a 5-5 favorite in the nationally broadcast and televised scrap. He defeated Jones at Cleveland on April 20 1956.

This will be Fullmer's first bout since he was sent sprawling and he must win to continue in contention for a return match No. 1 contender in the latest National Boxing Association rankings.

Jones, rated No. 6 ave Robinson one of his worst pummelings in 7-months and now rated only having recognition for the vice-presidency.

The winner tonight will undoubtedly clamor for a title match with Robinson. Robinson is expected soon to agree to terms to meet welterweight champion Carmen Basilio in New York in September.

'Probably' Says Archie Moore; He'll Grab It

MANNHEIM, Germany (AP)—Archie Moore, world light-heavyweight champion, said today he was waiting for his manager to "forward the papers here" after declaring that he probably would accept a offer of $120,000 to defend Tony Anthony of New York for the title.

Anthony put himself in line for a championship shot by knocking out Chuck Spieser in Detroit April 5, and the National Boxing Association had given Moore until today to sign for a title bout.

Ernie Brace, Anthony's manager, made the $120,000 offer to Moore Thursday in New York.

"If Mr. Brace will deposit that sum or show his intent to follow through, then I will probably hasten back to the United States to take on his fighter," Moore declared.

Brace said he had asked Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club, to stage the title bout in Los Angeles next month. But Norris said he would go to work on the plan at once.

Amateur Golf Champ Quizzed About Status

GOLF, Ill. (AP)—National amateur golf champion Harvie Ward of San Francisco was summoned before the executive committee of the U.S. Golf Association today to answer questions regarding his amateur standing.

Ward is to be asked to amplify answers to questions he already has filed with the USGA concerning expenses to tournaments in Canada and Detroit in 1954.

His employer, Edward E. Lowery, a San Francisco auto dealer, told of the expenses last month in a statement to a grand jury inquiring into his state income tax status.

It was indicated that if the tourney expenses were included in the $11,000 which Lowery also told the grand jury he had loaned the 31-year-old Ward, he would be considered.

If Ward is found to have violated the USGA amateur code, he can be declared an "non amateur" and denied competition for two years dating from the alleged 1954 offence.

Ward could apply for immediate reinstatement, and it could be granted immediately since the two year period has elapsed.

TALK COST $5

CHICAGO (AP)—It cost catcher Sherm Lollar of Chicago White Sox $5 for a recent conversation with a spectator during a game in Comiskey Park. Lollar received notification he was fined by the American League for breaking a league rule.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Ever try to break down the cost of operating a baseball club? Figure it out, Canada? If you haven't, forget about it because the people who run the clubs are resorting to this type of probing.

It's no wonder. Most of them look pretty foolish if, for instance, they let out the figures showing how much it cost to import ringtails—ex, hundreds—of American players from Maine to California.

A Canadian Press survey a few days ago showed that 211 Americans, give or take a couple, have already been signed to flex their muscles in tryout camps for the nine head coaches of Canada's big league teams—four in the East and five in the West—this summer. That works out at about 21 ¼ Americans a club.

Figure on another 20 or 30 coming north before the coaches settle on their import limit of 12 a team. That's no piker's pipeline.

TRANSPORTATION HIGH

Then, let's be conservative and estimate the cost of importing one player at $100 a head. That's 2,000. It isn't hard to understand that the total cost of transporting imports for tryouts could be $250,000 or more.

That's a big dollar to pay to watch players get in condition by jogging, batting and throwing baseballs in the hope they'll be signed for the season. One-half of the guarantee-bonus dollars are counted as lost because more than 100 Americans are destined for shipment home before the season opens.

The low $1,000-a-man figure is arrived at by taking into account the cost of transportation and other "incidents" such as coaches rooming the U.S. late winter and early spring to get their friends search for talent. Then there's the feeding and lodging money when the imports arrive in camp.

There's no denying the Americans have much of the pro game biz business in Canada. They've added colour to the baseball fiestas from Vancouver to Montreal and they've made the games spectacular in many ways.

Additionally, they've made the lot of Canadian players much better financially. With the high cost of imports, the Canadian no longer plays for chicken feed.

SURPLUS CANDIDATES

But the fan who pays up to $2.50 a seat could be excused if he wondered why, for instance, British Columbia Lions would need to import 21 Americans for their training camp. That's nearly three times the American quota allowed each team.

Maybe the Lions, undoubtedly the richest club in the country, should learn from Edmonton Eskimos who had only Bud Grant had an over-abundance of imports at training camp and his Dakinos have won the Grey Cup three years running.

This year Ivy has lined up only 20 Americans so far. Hamilton Tiger - Cats and Winnipeg Blue Bombers also will have 20 while Saskatchewan Roughriders and Ottawa Rough Riders will have 21 imports in camp.

Toronto Argonauts and Montreal Alouettes expect to have 25 each and Ottawa Rough Riders figure on 27 reporting to coach Frank Clair.

And just 10 years ago you could count the total imports in Canada on your fingers and toes.

Detroit Wings Take Over Edmonton Club

EDMONTON (CP)—Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League are taking over full operation of Edmonton Flyers of the Western League. A Detroit farm team since 1952 when the club entered professional ranks.

General manager Al Anderson of the Edmonton Exhibition Association which sponsored the Flyers until now told a press conference Wednesday night that his group will assume the role merely of landlord.

Anderson would not elaborate on financial arrangements. At the end of the year, both parties will review the situation before renewing their agreement. It was understood that Pollo Couch of Flyers for five years, will be installed as general manager under the Detroit setup.

Tony Leswick, a former Red Wings player and last year captain of the Flyers, is expected to take over the coaching reins.

Since Flyers' ranks into professional hockey in 1952, they have been a farm club of the Red Wings. Financially, they were the problem of the Exhibition Association.

Dodgers May End up In Boston

BOSTON (AP)—Boston joined the act in attempting to pry the Dodgers from Brooklyn with a report today that club president Walter O'Malley is studying an invitation from a Massachusetts state senator.

Sen John E. Powers of Boston urged O'Malley Thursday to forget about Los Angeles and move the Dodgers to Boston—but even the legislator wasn't too optimistic.

"The chance is probably remote that we'll get the Dodgers here but we have made one important step in trying to get them," Powers said.

The invitation to O'Malley to transfer to the city which failed to support a National League club only a few years ago was reported by Boston Herald sports editor Ed Costello.

Costello maintained that he still has an "open mind" and has made no commitments."

Powers reportedly suggested that the state or metropolitan district commission erect a stadium "a short way outside Boston, with ample parking space and train service to the park gates."

Rangers Swap Murphy for Hank Ciesla

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Rangers have sent winger Ron Murphy to Chicago Black Hawks in exchange for Henry (Hank) Ciesla a strapping centre.

Ciesla, 22, of St. Catharines, scored 10 goals in National Hockey League competition last year although he wasn't used regularly. Murphy, 23, of Hamilton, was hampered by injuries suffered in training camp. He was sent to the Providence farm club and returned to New York in mid-season, scoring seven goals and receiving 12 assists in 23 games.

Two Longshots Provide Big Daily Double

TORONTO (CP)—Two longshots won in the stretch to provide a $1,023.60 daily double payoff to 22 bettors Thursday at New Woodbine race track.

It was the richest double so far in the Canadian racing season.

Uncle Walsh, grouped with two others in the field at 23-to-1, passed 10 horses in the final 300 yards to win the second race in a photo finish.

Le Tocsin won the opener for maiden three-year-olds. A 22-to-1 shot that had never before won a race, Le Tocsin came out of 12th where to overtake front-runner Persian Gem.

Uncle Walsh paid $60.20 and Le Tocsin $46.70.

AT THE PARK — Action Stars in Adventure — Dennis O'Keefe and Barry Sullivan, right, with Trevor Bardette in background, watchfully wait for an Apache attack in this scene from the big CinemaScope and color by De Luxe outdoor drama, "Dragoon Wells Massacre." Both stars share headline honors in the Lindsley Parsons production for Allied Artists with Mona Freeman and Katy Jurado showing today and Saturday for its first district showing. On the same program a treat for the whole family "John and Julie", in color. Continuous show Saturday from 1.00.

AT THE BELLE — Eddie Albert, Charlotte Greenwood, Shirley Jones and Gordon MacRae, are four of the principals in the Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Oklahoma!" in CinemaScope, 4-Track Magnetic Stereophonic Sound. "Oklahoma!" is now attracting large audiences to the Air Conditioned Belle Theatre.

Chuvalo Wins Over Joe Olsen

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—George Chuvalo, young Toronto heavyweight, knocked out Joe Olsen of Milwaukee at 1:34 of the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round bout here Thursday night.

Chuvalo weighed 204 pounds and Olsen 194.

Olsen, a substitute for Kid Gage who failed to appear, was stopped in the fourth round by a right to the jaw after both fighters suffered eye cuts in earlier exchanges.

The Toronto fighter repeatedly jolted Olsen with chopping, jolting left and numbing rights in the first two rounds.

Chuvalo retaliated with a slashing right that left a smaller wound under Olsen's left eye in the fourth. Olsen tried to attack again but Chuvalo drove him into the ropes with a two-fisted barrage.

Olsen bounced off the ropes and into the right that ended the fight. He was still trying to regain his feet when the count reached 10.

Officials said later the cut suffered by Chuvalo was the result of an accidental butt by Olsen.

Harness Racing

MONTREAL (CP)—Chief Hal and Happy Van won their mile events Thursday night at Richelieu Park to split the $4,100 purse for the two division Drummondville Trot.

Roy Buchanan drove Chief Hal, a nine-year-old gelding from Morinburg, to victory in the first division of the 2:20 stake trot in a time of 2:10 4-5. Sir's Boy from Owen Sound with Wilbert Hopkins at the reins was third.

Happy Van, from Pomfret Center Conn., captured the second division in 2:13 flat.

In the $700 mile D pace Chief Eden from South Mountain was second behind Mr. Reed from St. Eustache, Que. Vic Lutman drove Chief Eden.

Slico's Sister from Harriston handled by Harold McKinley was the only other Ontario horse to finish in the money as she placed third in the $700 mile D trot.

On the Tracks

NEW YORK (AP)—Travis M. Kerr's Glorious Nymph won the $4,150 Cinderella Stakes for two-year-olds at Hollywood Park, Inglewood, Calif., Thursday.

Willie Shoemaker sent her into the lead as the field hit the stretch and she overhauled Stumbling Block, winning by 2¼ lengths.

Sister Dandie got the show.

Glorious Nymph's time for the five furlongs was :58 1-5. She won $14,800 and returned $4.60.

SOVIETS CLAIM RECORD

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union claimed that Albert Evanov, a 26-year-old army runner, has broken the world record for the 30 kilometre (18¾ miles) Thursday. Soviet officials said Evanov finished the grueling event in 1:35:01.

SPORT IN BRIEF

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Make a comment during a television program and you never can tell where the results will end.

On Person to Person (CBS-TV), moderator Dorothy Draper confessed to Edward R. Murrow that she'd always wanted to be a butcher shop. "There are no attractive ones," she stated flatly when interviewed in her home May 17.

Robert Boyer, owner of a chain of meat markets, took Mrs. Draper's words to heart and built a modern, new-style market for Boyer: A merry-go-round in the center of the store for bored youngsters, bright blue sawdust on the floor, portraits of famous butchers.

The Jackie Gleason Show has three weeks to run before the season ends but Gleason will not appear personally on the CBS-TV program. This Saturday evening singer Johnnie Ray will take his place as host. Songstress Peggy Lee will appear on all three programs, as will the June Taylor dancers.

Speaking of that, June Taylor says that first-rate girl dancers are mighty hard to find in New York this season of the year. After auditioning more than 300 girls for a forthcoming South American tour, she said that summer stock productions take large bounces out of circulation for the summer months.

Opposite the Gleason show on NBC-TV, Perry Como will have Fred Waring and Ed Wynn as his principal guests Saturday evening. And on ABC-TV at the same hour evangelist Billy Graham will make his second TV appearance of his current revival meetings in New York's Madison Square Garden.

Although it's June, the word is out that NBC-TV is having a desperate time scrounging up potential bridges and grooms for Bride and Groom, which returns to the network July 1. Apparently all you have to do is be the bride—or groom—and NBC takes care of everything else.

TOP MONEY-WINNER

CHICAGO (AP) — Doug Ford has expanded his money-winning lead to $27,031, more than twice that of his nearest pursuer, Professional Golfers Association figures showed Thursday.

Arnold Palmer remains in second place after five months of competition with $13,469. Jimmy Demaret is in third place with $12,091.

Pat Hingle Ran Gamut In Jobs Before Arriving

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, (AP) — Pat Hingle, now made a hit in the movie The Strange One and now is one of the stars in No Down Payment at 20th Century-Fox.

Pat's a good looking fellow with curly blonde hair and a friendly manner. I asked him how he managed to cover so many lines of work.

"It's easy to do when you go on your own at an early age," he said. "Because of family problems, I lived by myself from the time I was 14."

"It wasn't bad at all. I had a little room above a garage by myself, but the folks in the town were really friendly. I had a paper route, and for breakfast I'd trade the baker a paper for some doughnuts or rolls and the grocer another one for a pint of milk. Pat earned his way through school and started at the University of Texas. He enlisted in the navy in 1942 and served through several major battles in the Pacific.

Returning to the university, he enrolled as an advertising major.

"Since that seemed like a good way for a poor boy to get rich in a hurry." But he took up acting in some campus plays—"that's where the pretty girls were."

The experience spelled him for advertising plus which he met one of the pretty girls in his first play and married her in 1947. They now have a four-year-old daughter.

The Hingles decided to try their luck in New York after graduation, but "I couldn't even get in to see the people who could turn me down."

After jobs as a file clerk and waiter he went about job-seeking systematically, keeping a card file and calendar on all casting possibilities.

The system worked. He started getting roles in TV and little theatres. Then he auditioned for Actors' Studio, the movie theatre team, and that was the turning point in his career.

Little Benny's Notebook

I was dong my homework, being hard to keep my mind on it on account of my mind being busy thinking about our whole class going on a picknick tomorrow to pick about Spring flowers right where they are growing, and I said, Hay ma, when I say my prayers tonight, will it be all right if I pray it wont rain to spoil the picknick tomorrow?

Well now I'm sure we all hope you'll have the very best weather for your picknick, but it's never right to pray for our own selfish wishes, ma said, and I said, But Jimmines, ma, I meen heck, the people on the farms pray for rain right in church, why is it wrong to do the opposite and pray for rain?

The 2 cases are quite diffrent, ma said, and I said, Well why are they, and I bet the farmers dont wish it will rain any more than I wish it wont, I said.

Perhaps not, but when the farmers pray for rain they pray for the good of the whole country, so the crops will grow and make everybody healthy and happy, ma said, and pop said, That's the answer, Benny, we are all benefitted when it rains for the farmer, but your picknick is a more personal affair. However, for your own peece of mind, I can tell you that the weather man predicts fair weather for tomorrow, he said.

But heck, pop, the weather man dont always guess right, I said, and pop said, I'm sure he does the best he can.

Well then I'll pray to make him an exter good weather man, starting today, and that will make everybody happy, I said, and pop said, Yee gods, you win.

Sutch a boy, ma said.

Meeming me.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Saturday, June 8, 1957

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — An interesting day for extra-curricular activities — your favorite hobby, sports — once essentials are completed. Don't scatter your efforts. A nice disposition attracts friends.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Cooperation will be required in family matters— Show the affection you feel for loved ones. The position of Venus, your ruling planet, stresses the need for consistent application, a systematic program and a calm demeanor.

May 22 to June 21 (Gemini) — Variety is in order now. Both restful and restful weekends are spotted, so take your choice. Artistic and literary interests especially favored. Be cheerful.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Yours is the Sign of the Crab symbolizing tenacity, enduring loyalty, love of home. Yet the urge is strong now to travel, too, and to far places. Control restlessness, moodiness.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — You can make big headway now if you give adequate outlet to your talents. Use your executive ability on worthwhile projects. Keep your eye on high goals.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — There is no task too difficult if you put your mind to it. Success is possible now in pursuits where your analytical powers can be utilized. You will get great satisfaction out of aiding others less fortunate than yourself.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Without so much vigor as to overtax yourself, aim for high goals, beat returns. Where you can help another, don't hesitate. Libra, in best form, does good deeds almost automatically.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Unexercised talents are worthless. Have enough pride to cultivate yours. If problems arise, enlist the aid of wiser heads. Avoid extremes.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Your planet, Jupiter smiles broadly now; encourages the success of a well-rounded program. Give a good performance.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — A practical approach is best. Brighten routine with a sociable novelty. Avoid any tendency to be headstrong. There is more to be gained by diplomatic moves.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — Put objective thing into your plans. Wasted effort cannot be regained. Where possible, enjoy weekend activities in unison with family, loved ones, maintain your sense of humor.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) — Don't look backward except to ascertain and correct mistakes. Experiences of the past week can fortify you for what lies ahead. Inject your winning personality into the fray.

You born today are eager for knowledge; are interested in new inventions, worthwhile short-cuts to progress; love travel and can get more out of a trip than many. You are quick to see advantage in a new idea or device, and will attempt anything that offers gains. You are not afraid of hard work. Don't antagonize others or criticize too quickly; be patient with slower people who often are quite capable, concentrate; don't be hasty. Be sensible in exercises; seek quietude in prayer; develop your versatility. Birthmate of: Chas. Reade, novelist-dramatist.

LAMBERT-ROLLINS Construction Ltd.

Are to start this development as soon as you contact us to pick out your lot, and fill out the application forms.

This announcement does not mean the builders are not prepared to carry on with their custom building independently, as is the past, the forming of this Limited Company is only to bring this development to Belleville, as the builders feel that they will serve the people with lower down payments, by-passed in the last 2 years by Belleville builders. We have typed specs, plans drawn, a list of requirements, plan to choose your lot from, and any other information needed. If our formation is still too high and you make a good wage, call for an appointment, we can even better.

This development is for the working man and we will meet your budget (if possible). But don't delay, remember the plan is only calling for 15 split levels. Sign up now and have your choice of 30 lots. 3 homes have already been spoken for.

Senate Group Turns Spotlight On Bakers Union

WASHINGTON (AP)—James G. Cross, international president of the Bakers Union was called before United States Senate racket investigators today to explain gifts and other favors he received from his union.

But first the committee planned to question other witnesses about allegations of misuse of funds of a bakers local in Los Angeles, and about dealings between union officials and employer groups in New York City.

George Stuart, resigned first vice-president of the international union, halted efforts by the committee to question him Thursday about testimony that he had misused more than $40,000 of union money.

Stuart, who said he is now unemployed, used the fifth amendment's constitutional protection against self-incrimination 23 times in 10 minutes. He declined even to say that he had been an officer of the union.

Robert F. Kennedy, committee counsel, said that case after case of what he termed unauthorized and improper use of union funds by Stuart had occurred in Chicago. He said the money came from two now-defunct locals when Stuart headed them as a union trustee.

With Stuart refusing to answer, the committee turned to other sources in presenting evidence that union cash was used to buy Cadillac automobiles for both Stuart and Cross.

Subpoenaed documents and staff investigators pictured Stuart as getting also a Chevrolet Corvette, a $775 cocktail set, $95 cuff links, a $780 pearl necklace - bracelet-earrings set, clothing for himself, furniture for his home, and money that the staff investigators said they traced into his bank account.

The committee also traced some funds of the international union for which the staff investigators said were used on instructions by Cross for benefit of a woman named as Mrs. Kay Lower.

France Will End Her Lone Boycott Of Suez Canal

Egypt Announces French Will Pay Tolls in Sterling

CAIRO (Reuters)—France has decided to end her lone boycott of the Suez Canal and has offered to pay shipping tolls in sterling, the Egyptian finance ministry announced today.

A French government spokesman said later in Paris that "contacts have taken place about this matter between French and Egyptian banks." (He declined further comment).

A spokesman for the Egyptian finance ministry said negotiations are going on through the Swiss Embassy here for the resumption of French shipping through the canal.

OTHERS AGREED EARLIER

All the main Suez Canal user countries except France lifted their boycott last month after agreeing provisionally to pay tolls directly to Egypt's nationalized canal authority.

French business interests were reported to have exerted heavy pressure on their government to let the canal boycott after Britain decided it was ready to permit her ships to resume use of the waterway.

France's policy toward the Suez Canal has been complicated by a political crisis following the collapse of Premier Guy Mollet's government May 21. The government has remained in power in a caretaker status pending the formation of a new cabinet.

Meantime, the Egyptian weekly Akhbar el Yom reports that suspended Anglo-Egyptian financial talks will probably be resumed next week and will lead to resumption of trade between the two countries.

The paper says the opening session of the talks last December stated an "atmosphere of understanding between the two countries."

Man With Axe Was No Maniac, Just Injun'

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP)—A man armed with a hatchet and "laughing like a maniac" was creeping along the ground toward the back door, a suburban housewife told the sheriff's office Friday.

"Sometimes he jumps up and waves his arms and that awful hatchet around," Mrs. William H. Fahe said excitedly over the telephone.

Deputies went to the scene and made this report:

"No maniac. Just the old man playing cowboy and Indians with the kids."

Union President Linked to Woman With Shady Past

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States Senate investigators today said Bakers Union president James G. Cross will get a chance to answer under oath testimony linking his name with that of a convicted prostitute.

The woman in the case, Mrs. Kay Lower, 38, of Los Angeles, was identified by Los Angeles police as a convicted prostitute.

She pleaded constitutional protection of the Fifth Amendment Friday in refusing to tell the Senate rackets investigating committee whether Cross beat her for giving another man a diamond ring, or whether Cross funnelled union funds to her from Washington through his Los Angeles aides.

Senator John McClellan (Dem., Ark.), the committee chairman, said Cross "will have the opportunity to comment" as a witness after the hearings resume next Thursday.

Mrs. Lower, sporting a bloodshot left eye, refused even to tell the committee whether she knows Cross. But she did say "I imagine" when asked whether she had received union funds from Cross.

She married man.

Khrushchev Outpointed By Witty Finn

HELSINKI, Finland (AP) — Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev says he took no money for his recent television film appearance because it would have bankrupted the United States.

This byplay came Friday in a rest round of repartee with Finland's President Urho Kekkonen in the current Khrushchev-Bulganin goodwill visit.

Presidential palace sources said the exchange was set off when Kekkonen congratulated Khrushchev on his new fame as "a TV star."

"How much did they pay you?" Kekkonen asked.

Nothing," replied Khrushchev. "I didn't take anything."

Why?"

Would need so much that it would have bankrupted them" — the United States).

From your point of view, that's no reason to have taken it," Kekkonen rejoined

For once Khrushchev had no comeback, witnesses said.

RUSSIANS MAKE 30 LANDINGS ON ARCTIC ICE

Within 150 Miles Of Canadian Territory

OTTAWA (CP)—The Russians have made some 30 landings on polar ice within 150 miles of Canadian territory in the last two years.

This information is contained in a 333-page book entitled Across the Pole on the Drifting Ice and published in Moscow this year by the state publishing house of geographic literature.

A copy of the book recently came into the hands of Canadian Arctic experts and they say there is no reason to doubt the information.

The landing closest to the Canadian shores, usually made by helicopter, was 121 miles from Ellesmere Island, the northern tip of which is some 400 miles from the North Pole. The landing was made in 1955.

Last year, one landing was made 140 miles from Ellesmere, another 150 miles from Prince Patrick Island and a third 140 miles from Banks Island.

The book says that, since 1937, Russian scientists studying weather and ice conditions have made some 600 separate landings by ice floe and aerial parachute.

Scores of them have been on the Canadian side of the North Pole, which is the only part on the Canadian side of the pole were Canadian flags flew.

Authorities here say they had suspected the Russians might be working in the Canadian Arctic territory but that this was the first evidence they had actually done so.

Canada claims sovereignty over all land—but not all water—right up to the pole between lines running to the pole from the Alaska-Yukon boundary and from Robeson Channel between Ellesmere Island and Greenland.

Northern Affairs Minister Lesage has said Canada's Arctic lands is the high seas, whether liquid or frozen. Consequently, Canada claims full sovereignty over the Arctic Ocean beyond three miles from Canadian territory.

However, a document published by the federal department of mines and resources says about three years ago mentions the possibility that large areas of Arctic basin sea ice may be used as airfields.

If this becomes a reality, then the question of sovereignty over the ice in the polar basin have to be examined for it will have some of the aspects and uses of dry land," the document adds.

Saw Father Drown

CRESCENT BEACH, Ont. (CP) Three small children saw their father, Ernest Simcoe, 30, of Stoneybridge Lagoon Friday when he fell out of a boat while trying to start the outboard motor.

Kenneth Hindbacker's body was found by North Gwillimbury Township firemen after the children, who rowed back to shore, told Fire Chief G. Rye "daddy didn't come to the top."

The children are Donna, six; Garry, seven and Darlene, three.

Crescent Beach is about 50 miles north of Toronto.

P.M. Charges Diefenbaker Keeps PC Platform Secret

TORONTO (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent has closed out his national tour with a colorful Toronto Liberal rally, the biggest of the campaign, threatened to fall into turmoil as a Liberal MP President Vital Kirkpatrick to the current Khrushchev-Bulganin goodwill visit.

Presidential palace sources said the exchange was set off when Kirkpatrick congratulated Khrushchev on his new fame as "a TV star."

"How much did they pay you?" Kekkonen asked.

Nothing," replied Khrushchev. "I didn't take anything."

TO SCOUT OVER OCEANS

A "flying saucer" to sweep the skies is mounted atop the new radar plane now in pre-production planning for the U.S. navy. Its details revealed for the first time in this photo of a model, the new sky sentinel is intended to expand the continental warning system. With a radar "Parasol" and twin-fin tail, the plane will be equipped with two turbo-prop engines, each rated 10,000 hp, in addition to its four prop-jet engines.

Khrushchev Plans to Make Bid for Support of Finns

HELSINKI (AP)—Russia's Communist party chief Khrushchev is expected to make a strong bid for Finnish popular support in a major speech at a mass meeting in Helsinki tonight.

In the first two days of their state visit to Finland, Khrushchev and his travelling companion, Soviet Premier Bulganin, have been assured time and again of the Finnish government's official friendship and support.

But the Finnish people in general have treated the visiting Russians stolidly. They have watched silently as the two have made sightseeing rounds of the city.

They have gathered in small groups, Indian war dances, drum majorettes and the 48th Highland Band.

Mr. St. Laurent accused Mr. Diefenbaker of making "reckless promises which would cost $1,540,000,000 to fulfil and of keeping his party's platform secret from the electorate.

Mr. Coldwell; at Biggar, Sask., said the Liberals had "deceitful, tive parties with "betraying" the farmer.

"Both the Liberals and the Conservatives have supported all kinds of special privileges for special interests but have opposed even the most elementary justice for agriculture embodied as that is in a program of full parity prices for farm products", he said.

Premier Frost of Ontario, on the platform with Mr. Diefenbaker, said it was "ridiculous", for the prime minister to accuse the Conservative leaders of "plotting and conniving to hand Canada's interests over to Ontario."

"All Ontario asks is a decent deal for all the people of Canada," he said. The prime minister was engaging "the old dodge of trying to pit one part of Canada against another and is using the time talking national unity."

In his last major address, Mr. St. Laurent said the Conservatives had never allowed publication of their platform drawn up at a special national convention last winter.

"... Do the Canadian people want to conduct a political party that is ashamed of its platform or at any rate refuses to let the public have a peek at the secrets of it?"

Party Leaders Make Last Big Pitch Before Election

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

The party leaders have made their last big pitches of the federal election campaign. Tel-vote-getters take over Monday.

In vital Ontario, which elects 85 members, Prime Minister St. Laurent and Progressive Conservative Leader Diefenbaker Friday night worked feverishly for votes only a few miles apart. CCF Leader Coldwell and Solon Low, Social Credit leader, worked just as diligently in their home ridings.

Campaign television and radio broadcasts ended at midnight Friday night but platform talking will continue sporadically today and Sunday.

There were at least two last-minute withdrawals by candidates, reducing the total number to 858. Ralph Medgeway withdrew as Social Credit standard-bearer in Toronto Davenport and Amable Dubois retired as independent Liberal candidate in Matapedia-Matane.

Mr. Diefenbaker closed out his campaign in Hamilton with a appeal to Canadians to "break the monopoly of power of a government now long in office."

"Canada is the only state outside Russia that has had one-party government for the last 22 years," he said.

Mr. St. Laurent spoke before an audience of about 13,000 in 14,500-seat Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto. It was the biggest audience of the campaign and the prime minister's biggest supporters, his cabinet colleagues—Finance Minister Harris, External Affairs Minister Pearson and Associate Defence Minister Heliyer—and ball- in it?"

Pilot Practises Landings on Clouds Then Brings in Rudderless Bomber

TRAVIS AIR BASE, Calif. (AP) A B-36 bomber lost its rudder in flight but landed safely Friday after its pilot practised landing approaches on clouds for more than two hours.

Capt. Albert McKinnon brought the 10-engined bomber in for what onlookers called a beautiful landing. He had 27 men aboard who were not even shaken up.

McKinnon said the plane left this base in the afternoon with extra personnel for what was to have been in instructional flight of four to six hours. At 3:15 p.m., however, he heard a great rending noise at the rear of the big plane —16 feet behind him—when they were at 15,000 feet.

McKinnon and the co-pilot felt the rudder controls go limp. There is no place in the fuselage of the B-36 where the rudder can be seen, though it is 20 feet high.

They found other controls, including the tail elevators, functioning normally, and McKinnon said they straightened the plane and headed for Travis. He said that some practice runs on clouds to see how well they could control the plane.

He brought the plane, with a wingspan of 70 feet, in on a long, low approach and set it down in the middle of the runway. He was relieved by using ailerons and varying the speed of his six piston engines and four jet motors.

The wreckage of the lost rudder was found near an abandoned air-port at Stockton, Calif.

2 ENUMERATORS HELD FOR PADDING ELECTION LISTS

Said 50 Fictitious Names Added

MONTREAL (CP)—Two federal election enumerators have been arrested by RCMP on warrants alleging padding of voter lists in the riding of Montreal St. Lawrence-St. George.

William Barr, 56, and Edward Roland, 21, enumerators nominated by the Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties respectively, were taken into custody Friday night on warrants announced by Nelson Castonguay, chief electoral officer at Ottawa.

The warrants sprang from charges made known Tuesday by Egan Chambers, Progressive Conservative candidate in the riding, that 50 fictitious names had been added to voter lists. The warrants specified about 40 names in Poll 103, it was reported.

Mr. Chamber's protest was filed May 10 and subsequently the revisions officer struck 50 names from the enumerators' lists after some of the alleged persons answered mailed invitations to appear before him.

Barr and Roland were detained Friday night and lodged in provincial police cells. Roland later appeared before Judge Gerald Allmond and was released on $50 bail.

BY TWO PERSONS

Urban constituency enumerators in Montreal were personally nominated by the winners of the last election and in the case of Liberal enumerator Barr, Claude Richardson, seeking re-election, won for the Liberals in 1953.

Mr. Castonguay's brief announcement that warrants had been issued said the RCMP had investigated and that Jerome Choquette had been appointed to conduct the prosecution.

A judicial inquiry, preceded by RCMP investigation, has also been ordered into charges of padding in Provencher, Man., constituency.

Szid Mr. Chambers' Tuesday account of his protest:

"In some instance four people were registered as living in a single rooming house. In other cases, former residents who had died or moved away were added from the voters' lists."

Mr. Richardson, who also won for the Liberals in 1953, said both parties would "have to share" any responsibility for illegalities which do exist.

PC Leader Makes Final Plea to Canadian Voters

HAMILTON (CP) — With two days to go to election, John Diefenbaker today flew home to Saskatchewan to wind up the campaign on whether his Progressive Conservatives have broken Liberal rule in Ottawa on the federal government.

The Tory leader took a plane to Prince Albert this morning a few hours after a whistle-stop campaign here in which he called on Canadians to turn out a government which he said has dragged down the flag of freedom on Parliament Hill.

He asked for an end to "the monopoly of power of a government now long in office."

Of all countries, he said, only Canada and Russia have had "one-party" government during the last 22 years.

Summarizing his campaign principles enunciated over the last six weeks, he said that the issues between Prime Minister St. Laurent he would have these as the basic questions to be considered:

1. A policy of "Canada first" for the economic development of the country to Canada's best advantage.

2. Equal right for all parts of the country.

3. An end to federal "over-taxation," and he repeated a pledge to call a special September session of Parliament that would institute tax cuts.

4. The preservation of Parliament, which Mr. Diefenbaker has been contending has been "degraded" by autocratic rule of a few ministers backed by an overwhelming Commons majority.

Fatally Burned

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—A man was fatally burned when a melting bin containing 20 tons of sulphur fell at the McKinnon Chemical Industries Ltd. plant Friday.

Canadians Make Decision On New Govt. On Monday

Winning Party Must Have 133 Seats for Majority

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians make their decision Monday on the makeup of the next Parliament and, consequently, the political stripe of the government.

Between 8,900,000 and 9,000,000 of the Canadian population of 16,500,000 are eligible to vote between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. local standard time in the 22nd federal general election since Confederation in 1867.

The winning political party must take at least 133 seats in the 265-seat house of commons for a majority government.

During the last week of the campaign two of the four major party leaders referred to the possibility of a minority government—that is, a government in which the top party in the Commons does not command a majority and could be turned out by the combined opposition.

SEES POSSIBILITY

Social Credit Leader Low said there is a "distinct possibility" of a minority government. There hasn't been one in Canada since 1925.

Prime Minister St. Laurent said that if the Liberals do not win a majority they will not quit by reason of that alone. He has expressed doubt that a Parliament with many candidates is both a good thing for Canada.

The voters will decide whether the Liberals who have governed Canada for 22 years or more of that period, the Progressive Conservatives or CCF, the Social Credit or one of the many candidates to form a majority government.

There are 1,057 candidates in the field—262 Liberals, 255 Progressive Conservatives, 111 CCF, 74 Social Credit and 56 others. The Liberals already hold one seat in the new House of Commons. C. W. Carter was returned by acclamation in the Newfoundland riding of Burin-Burgeo.

Flu Epidemic Raging in India, Japan

BY JOSEPH MacSWEEN

A strange new influenza epidemic is raging on the sunny islands of the Philippines, in Borneo's steaming jungles and among the teeming millions of India and Japan.

More than 1,000,000 persons have been afflicted by the new strain of virus that was first spotted about five weeks ago and has hit some 10 countries of the Far East. Health authorities say it likely will be only a matter of time before the virus reaches North America and Europe. Some influenza already has been reported in Israel, but it was not known whether this was connected with the Asian outbreaks.

Comparatively few deaths were reported in most areas. But there were 185 fatal cases, mostly children and old people, in the Philippines, where at one point 153,000 patients were shed in the city of Manila alone—60 per cent of the population.

British and United States health authorities are working at top speed to identify and isolate quickly the type-A flu virus, hitherto unknown. Down Under, the health department's serum laboratories at Melbourne also tackled the virus but has already reached Australia.

The U.S. public health service held a conference for Washington on Monday to consider protective steps in Ottawa. A federal health official said Canada will be kept informed of the conference's findings.

Middle-Roader Almost Certain To Form Govt.

Bourgeois, Conservative, defence minister under Guy Mollet, today was regarded as almost certain to become premier of France as premier.

The youthful Radical Socialist—which really means middle-roader —virtually sewed the job up Friday when a socialist party caucus voted to participate in a Bourgeois government along with other parties, notably the key Movement Republicain Populaire, took a similar decision.

Sources at the defence ministry said Bourges-Maunoury would spend most of today in conferences on the composition of his cabinet, and will present Parliament Tuesday or Wednesday—allowing the legislature three days for the Pentecost holiday—with a formal demand for confidence.

Bourges-Maunoury gained for his "tough" attitude toward the Algerian Moslem rebellion and his "correct" views on the economic situation, successfully appealed for support on a basic four-point platform for saving France from its political and economic morass.

The program includes a rigorous four-year financial plan against inspired bankruptcy, a provisional political statute for strife-torn Algeria ratification of the European economic integration treaties, and constitutional reforms.

Mimico Woman Dies in Crash

NORTH BAY (CP)—One person was killed and three others injured in a three-car crash on the Trans-Canada highway 20 miles west of here early today.

Killed in the crash of a station wagon and truck was Mrs. Helen Phillips, 33, of Mimico, a Toronto suburb.

Injured were the victim's husband Bill Phillips, in the couple's four-year-old daughter Karen, and two occupants of the truck.

Mr. Phillips was the most seriously hurt, suffering a fractured left wrist, concussion and head injuries. He was the driver of the station wagon.

Mr. Scoble was riding in the truck, driven by Lloyd Novack of Sudbury. Both were pulled from the wreckage.

The 61-year-old challenger for the prime ministry—making his first general election bid since 1940—is leading the Liberals in the party leadership last December, campaigning on a four-point platform in his final speech before an overflow audience of about 1,600 in a collegiate auditorium.

FINAL REVIEW

It was, rather, a summing-up of arguments he has put before the country in six weeks and close to 20,000 miles of intensive campaigning that included some 100 speeches and countless handshaking sessions along the route.

'Farmers' Union Invitation Accepted by 2 Candidates

Failure of the Liberal government at Ottawa to provide protective tariffs against the importation of cheap agricultural products from other nations has put the Canadian farmer in a financial squeeze which is denying them parity prices.

This was told to a gathering of approximately 250 farmers Friday night as they attended an Ontario Farmers' Union meeting at the Marysville Parish Hall. The meeting was addressed by the provincial president, A. G. Cormack of Arthur, Ont.

Mr. Cormack told the gathering that last beef produced in Argentine at a cost of five cents per lb. was allowed into Canada at a low tariff to compete with Canadian beef which cost 22 cents to produce.

Trade agreements had not kept up with the times, he said.

CANDIDATES INVITED

As has been the custom at Ontario Farmers' Union meetings across the province since the start of the election campaign, all three candidates in the Hastings-Frontenac riding were invited to address the Marysville gathering. However, only Social Credit candidate Basil Ruglin of Foxboro and Progressive Conservative candidate Lee Grills accepted the invitation.

Mr. Cormack noted that big industry, including International Nickel, Imperial Oil, railways, and steel had reported big profits last year, yet nevertheless had increased prices.

Prices all along the line were increasing excepting those for agricultural products.

FARM INCOME DECLINES

Only during the war years and up to 1951 had farmers received parity prices. After this they had taken a fast beating, he said. In three years after 1951 farmers had lost 48 per cent of their income, yet costs had increased by 29 per cent.

Last year farmers got less than a one per cent increase in prices, Mr. Cormack said.

"Farmers today are in an impossible condition not caused by themselves, but by the party in power at Ottawa," he said.

Millions of pounds of beef were being brought into Canada from other countries, Canadian beef which was costly to produce, while importation of turkeys from the United States last year had all but ruined the Canadian turkey industry.

COMPETE WITH U.S.

"V" at Agriculture Minister Gardiner says Canadian farmers must compete with U.S.A. prices.

I wonder if Mr. Gardiner ever told General Motors they must compete with the price of the American Chevy."

Farmers were forced to accept 52.87 per cent for milk going to powdered milk plants while it cost $3.55 to produce.

Prices were denied because of the threat of New Zealand imports of powdered milk.

AID TO FARMERS CUT

Finance Minister Harris was quoted as saying that he knew of no group which had a greater claim on the national revenue than did agriculture, yet when the federal budget was brought down government assistance to the categories had been increased, while agriculture was one of the few which had allotments reduced, Mr. Cormack said.

He urged farmers to shake themselves free of apathy, to support their union organization and present a united demand for a better deal for agriculture.

LEE GRILLS SPEAKS

Progressive Conservative candidate Lee Grills also urged farmers to support their union and promised if elected on Monday he would speak for the farmer at Ottawa.

He said farmers had nothing to lose by uniting and much to be gained. They had to compete with high-priced labor and greater financial return would have to follow their products further through the market.

He did not deny the Liberal claim that Canadians never had it so good, but declared that Canadians were living for a pinch while the plight of the farmer with his produce fast deteriorated.

Mr. Grills said he was proud of the Progressive Conservative party of the late Rt. Hon. John Diefenbaker.

He said the recent ban on New Zealand cheese indicated the Liberals saw the farmers' situation was bad, he was not sure whether the Liberals had been afraid for the farmer or for their party.

Late repentance was not the right way of looking after the farmer, he said.

SOCIAL CREDIT VIEW

Basil Ruglin outlined the aims and policies of the Social Credit party, asserting that its organization was the most democratic in action. Elected representatives were directly responsible to the people and if they failed to carry out what was best for the people they did not receive another nomination.

He said his party had been successful interfering with the two party system and agreed that the two party system is bad.

"But a two party system must offer the people an alternative something to turn to," he said.

"We feel that the Social Credit is the only alternative and that what we have to offer will be a benefit to the people."

He said that Social Credit governments in British Columbia and Alberta had taken those provinces out of debt and years ago had set up health schemes.

"If keeping a province out of debt is being a crackpot, then I'll go along," he said.

BACKBONE OF ECONOMY

Mr. Ruglin declared that farming was the backbone of the nation's economy and the 16 per cent of the people engaged in agriculture received only nine per cent of the total income. He doubted the soundness of an economy such as Canada's which, he said, had been based on scarcity for over 100 years.

He said the Canadian farmer was cushioning the economy of the United States farmers, retailers and labor were getting the prices asked, while the farmer was left holding the bag.

Harold Moon, president of the Ontario Farmers' Union Local 181, presided over meeting, while vice president Harold Murphy extended a welcome to visitors.

The Farmers Union was non-political he said and was indicating this by inviting all candidates to its meeting.

18 Supervisors Getting Ready to Direct Children

Eighteen young playground supervisors who, during the coming summer months will keep children amused on Belleville playgrounds are currently undergoing instruction so that they may carry out their job more effectively.

All playground supervisors under the guidance of Director of Recreation, K. N. Homan, and assistant director, K. N. Homan, have to date one afternoon instructional get-together and another planned for next week. The advance sessions are designed at the local level with specific rules and regulations pertaining to the playgrounds in the city.

Later this month the supervisors will attend a more extensive training course which will be attended by all municipalities from Oshawa on the west to Kingston on the east. This training course called the East Central Ontario Playground Leadership Training Course under the guidance of Community Program Branch, Department of Education, beginning five years ago, has been very beneficial to the playground supervisors in that it gives the supervisor the necessary training to carry on a well-balanced program. The five-day course from 9.00 each morning to 9.00 each night includes a basic and an advanced course and includes actual training of children who are brought into the camp to be instructed.

Instruction at the camp is done by the Recreation Directors in this eastern section of the province and several guest teachers from Community Program Branch including Don Maddeks, C. P. D. representative for this district.

Monday Day All Canadians Have Duty Call to Polls

Monday is June 10.

June 10 is the day all responsible Canadians over the age of 21 years will cast their ballots to elect members to the parliament at Ottawa.

The electors in South Hastings riding have 190 ballot boxes to make use of and 125 polls, some of which are split.

South Hastings constituency may be represented for the next five years by Frank Fidlwell (Liberal) or Lee Grills (Progressive Conservative) or Basil Ruglin (Social Credit) depending on which of the three gets the most votes.

It is up to the electors in this riding to get out in force on Monday and elect one of these men. There are 33,302 eligible voters in the riding and when the deputy returning officers count up the ballots after 7 p.m. on Monday a perfect score would be 33,302 ballots. Each elector will be given one ballot when he or she turns up at the poll. Three names will be printed on the ballot — Fidlwell, Grills and Kuglin in that alphabetical order — and it is up to the voter to mark a distinct "X" beside the candidate of his choice.

It is important that each ballot is marked with one "X", not a check mark or any other kind of mark. "X" marks the spot. Ballots not marked with an "X" will be rejected.

If anyone is not yet sure at what poll he or she has the right and privilege to visit on Monday between a.m. and 7 p.m. (daylight time), elders' lists that are tacked on trees and located at other places throughout the riding will provide an answer.

There is a popular saying which electors have been hearing for years. It goes: "It doesn't matter who you vote for, just get out and vote."

Other weary, troubled spirits
Need to taste its sweetness, too.

Pass along each boon and blessing
That may come to you through life;
You may help the weary hearted
Who are faint amid the strife.

Pass along the watchword, "Your age";
Soon the darkness will be o'er;
See, already dawn is breaking
On the bright, celestial shore.

Chorus:

Pass along the invitation,
Pass along the word of God,
Until every tribe and nation
Shall have heard of Christ the Lord.

When Henry Burton was graduated from Beloit College in Wisconsin in 1850 and began to think about his life career, he remembered some books on the lives of great preachers of the church which his mother had persuaded him to read, many years earlier.

He decided, in the end, to give his own life to preaching the gospel and as the years went along he used both pen and pulpit to achieve that mission. "Pass It On" is generally regarded as one of the best of his many hymn-poems.

Mr. Burton was born on an English farm. His parents were devout Methodists and the spiritual atmosphere of his boyhood home had far-reaching influence on his later life and ministry. The boy attended church regularly but it is said that he made his first public profession of faith in Christ in a prayer-meeting which—because the village chapel was undergoing repairs—was held in his father's barn.

Shortly before Henry was ready for college, the Burtons decided to try life in America. They settled in Illinois and Henry enrolled at Beloit College, just over the Wisconsin line. When he finished his studies and decided to become a preacher, he found an immediate opportunity awaiting him. A minister brother of Frances Willard, famous temperance leader, was ill and unable to carry on his work so Henry Burton took his place until he recovered. Later, Mr. Burton supplied another pulpit at Monroe, Wis., in a church whose pastor had enlisted as an army chaplain in the war between the states.

Some years later, the young minister-hymnist returned to England and many of his songs were written on the other side of the Atlantic. "Pass It On", however, was an American product. It was written over here in 1883 and George Stebbins, the popular writer of nineteenth century gospel hymn tunes, gave it its music.

casionally to be an outsider to himself.

A hardy old sea captain once said that the most nerve-stirring experience he knew was to go off in some solitary place and call out his own name loudly three times. Try it some time and see for yourself. To stand in solitary darkness and shout one's own name, perhaps hear the echo—there's an eerie effect to it. It gives a sense of one's isolation in the surrounding vastness.

Yet we would see ourselves, we must get off frequently and see ourselves. But we must also consider the light in which we look at ourselves. It is not enough to study ourselves in the light of our social group, for that is like looking at ourselves in the light of our social group, for that is like looking at ourselves under the artificial rose light which reveals us as we want to look to others.

Nor is it enough to see ourselves in the light of the market place, for then we judge ourselves by the price marks others put on our worth. No, we must try to see ourselves as God sees us, under the light of the eternal.

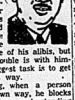
But even to look at ourselves under the eye of God is not enough. If we would really see ourselves, we must look away from ourselves. That is the divine paradox Jesus drove home so repeatedly. "He that loseth himself for my sake shall find himself."

On my desk is the picture of a little 3-year-old girl. She did not know her picture was being taken. That is what helps to make it such a good picture. She was looking at the photographer, utterly unconscious of herself. And so her real self shines through her eyes.

This is commencement season. Thousands of high school and college graduates are having their pictures taken. Will they have the childlike self-forgetfulness which makes a good picture—yes, and a good personality?

We all want to have what we call "personality." Dr. Henry C. Link, the late great psychologist, said: "I define personality as the extent to which the individual has habits and skills which interest and serve other people. . . Its emphasis is on doing things with and for other persons. Its essence is self-sacrifice, not self-gratification."

A few months ago I helped to celebrate the 100th birthday of a friend, Dr. Arthur J. Brown. He has been a distinguished Presbyterian minister, and has received many honors. At his birthday dinner he modestly said: "A man once told me that if you wish to see how long you will be remembered after death, just stick your finger into a pool of water and see how much of a hole it leaves when you pull it out."



Yes, if your goal is just to make a name for yourself, your name will be writ in water. But if you get out of your own way and live for others, you live on in the lives of those you served.

ourselves for what we are? For one thing, God would have us get off and take a good look at ourselves. When we are straining to look out for ourselves, our gaze is focused on the externals around us rather than on the resources within us. Hence a person needs oc-

Getting Out of Our Own Way

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

When a man stands in his own way, he so often blames others for blocking his path. He may say that he never had a fair chance, that his family doesn't understand him or that he is caught in a bad system. There may be some validity in some of his alibis, but basically his trouble is with himself and his biggest task is to get out of his own way.

For one thing, when a person stands in his own way, he blocks the way to his own understanding of himself. We are not always our real selves. We frequently admit this in our daily conversation. We sometimes say ": am not myself today," or "He was not really himself when he did that." We establish a character and personality by which we are recognized. And sometimes we do not conform to that character.

In the story of the Prodigal Son, the record is that when the wayward boy in the far country of sin "came to himself," he said, "I will arise and go to my father." The lad had so spent himself in sensual living that he was not himself.

We may cease to be our real selves through sinful indulgence, through impulsive anger, through the pretenses which we put on, like actor's make-up for "this world's a stage and all we are players." Sometimes we fail to see our real selves because we live too much within ourselves. And now what helps to get us out of our own way so we can see

DIFFICULT TO GET EVEN

W. J. Fulton, deputy minister of highways for Ontario, told the annual convention of the American Society of Civil Engineers at Buffalo on Tuesday that this year's Ontario budget provides for highway expenditures at a rate which will enable the province to catch up with its highway needs in 16½ years.

Most of us have, at one time or another, found ourselves "in the hole" as far as our family finances are concerned. Most of us have discovered, from bitter experience, how long it takes us to "get even," how often calculations of expenditures are in error, and how consistently these errors extend, rather than shorten, the period needed to "catch up."

We fear that in this respect the Ontario Department of Highways may discover that it has something in common with the average family, and that no matter what allowances it has made for an increase in automotive traffic in the years ahead, it will find that it takes it longer than it had anticipated to catch up with the province's highway needs.

Mr. Fulton told the American Society of Civil Engineers that three alternative programs had been suggested as a basis for legislative decisions as to how much money should be spent on highways each year. These alternative programs, he said, were for "catch-up periods" of 10, 15 and 20 years. He added that the 10-year-period would have been best. On that point, we submit, there is no argument. What is best, though, is not always financially feasible and perhaps the legislature, far from being criticized for budgeting for a 16½-year catch-up period instead of a 10-year one, should be congratulated for its courage in refraining from accepting the 10-year catch-up period.

The sad truth of the matter is that there is only one way to solve satisfactorily a situation in which one gets behind in one's work—and that is to prevent such a situation occurring.

A factor in the situation, over which the Department of Highways had no control, was the backlog of work which piled up during the war years, when maintenance men were not available to carry out a proper maintenance and construction program.

The real foundation of all the trouble, though, may go back even further, to the depression years when men and materials were plentiful, but money was scarce, and when roads were permitted to deteriorate so that, when the war came, many roads were already in urgent need of attention.

What is true of the province's highways is also true of municipal roads, particularly, we think, in urban centres. Here, unfortunately, there is rarely any indication of any programs which would catch up with needs in even 16½ years. Mr. Fulton told the Buffalo meeting that the Ontario highways plan would be kept up-to-date and that "in another two years we will have a supplementary plan which will cover all of the municipal roads and streets in the province." This is indeed a good news and completion of the plan will be eagerly awaited. If, however, it is to be anything better than a mere paper plan, it would appear imperative that the province provide the hard-pressed municipalities with additional financial assistance. Better streets are only one of the urgent needs of most municipalities, and in many of them the level of taxation on real estate is already about as high as it can go.

WHICH IS RIGHT?

The printed word is regarded by many people as the official spelling, except when definite indication is given that a word has been abbreviated or contracted.

We would believe that the Canadian Almanac and Directory, 1927 edition, which is published annually by The Copp Clark Publishing Co. Limited, would contain official spellings of places. However, we are hovering under a cloud of doubt at present, since one of our reporters began arguing the correct spelling of the Little Lock city—Peterborough, as we spell it. According to the Almanac, the city spells its name, Peterboro, and the district is spelled, Peterborough.

Unless our vision has failed, we recall a medium-sized sign at the entrance to Peterborough (Peterboro) on Highway No. 7, which spells the city's name, Peterborough. That is the way the 1926 official road map of the Department of Highways of Ontario spells it, too.

We are all familiar with the community of Foxboro. Local habit is to spell the name of that community minus the "ough," but the Highway's map spells it with the "ough." The Almanac spells it minus the "ough," but plays it safe by adding a parlieue after the last letter to show the name has been contracted.

Would somebody, please, provide us with the official spelling of the names of these communities?

Our Galaxy Middle-Aged

Ottawa Journal

What kind of a galaxy do we live in? Is it a young one, on the threshold of some great evolutionary advance? Or is it one whose stars are almost burnt out?

Dr. Walter Baade, probably the world's most distinguished astronomical observer, has made latest contribution to what might seem an important discussion at a meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society in London. It seems, is that our galaxy is neither old nor young but middle-aged. It has a high proportion of stars which are teeming to their end, whatever this may be, and then some young ones like the sun.

It may seem strange that this question, which even now is only answered in a tentative way, has not been answered before.

The trouble here is that it is much easier for astronomers in the southern system to find out things about other galaxies than our own, for we are unfortunately placed like flies on the plain of our galaxy, and most of astronomers' time is taken up by great clouds of glowing gas and by the dense mass of stars which make up the Milky Way.

In any case, telling the age of an individual star is difficult enough. Dr. Baade himself was responsible for one of the observations pertinent to this point, and the fact it is now easy to distinguish between two populations of stars which make up the universe (populations "one" and "two").

With the help of some evolutionary theories which have won fairly recent acceptance it is now possible to place stars as the old ones—that is to say, their ages are probably about six thousand million years, and then there may be an error of two thousand million either side way. Observationally a type-two star is colder (and thus redder) than a type one of the same size and composition would be.

Dr. Baade's most remarkable recent contribution to the question has been to point the 200 inch telescope at Mount Palomar mountain in California at the gap in the middle of the Milky Way—a direction in which it can hardly have been focused before, such a confusion of stars does it reveal. Among them it has apparently been possible to find nearly 300 stars whose output of light fluctuates rapidly (this is a comparatively common happening) and which by their variation revealed themselves as predominantly old. So, Dr. Baade concludes, the galaxy of our galaxy is made up of old stars.

Thus our own galaxy is made to resemble the great Andromeda nebula, which has the same mass of old stars in the middle, is mixture of old and young in the spiral arms, and a scattering of old stars extending far beyond the main confines of the structure.

It differs from those galaxies which are predominantly made up of old stars in that its shape is not a flat gas and dust disc from which new stars can be created.

So whatever happens to the sun in the next 100 million years or so—and it is almost certain that, as the sun is now arranged, it may suddenly be plunged into a series of evolutionary changes leading comparatively rapidly to its death — we can in this case score comfort from the fact that new stars will probably be born in the galaxy after that.

And indeed there is perhaps some chance of holding on to some stars and observing the difference of this part of the universe, and the stars about the older stars which Dr. Baade has been able to see in the neighborhood of our own sun. In some ways different from those which are to be found elsewhere they appear to have more heavy metals in their make up than is usually the case.

Dali Paints With Bullets

Washington Post

Says Salvador Dali, "now sleep always . . . sleep-sleep-sleep.

"I dream extraordinary dreams about the second that exists inside the bullet. Then I awake and shoot the gun . . . a boy-bom-bom.

"The image inside the bullet is also into the lithograph stone and voila, there is the picture."

Thus the famous Spanish artist interviewed here the other day, explained "bullet-ism," the latest development of his artistic career.

In "bullet-ism" the "brush" is an ancient muzzle-loader which shoots a special shotgun type of bullet. Dali says he likes to pours ink into the casing, then fires the shell against a lithostone.

"Bullet-ism," he went on, "is the beginning of something . . . the first attempt at the use of the accidental accident, and entirely new technique. Now I work in black and white, but it is possible also in color. So I am working on that.

"In addition, I have proved that, instead of killing with a gun, it is harmless. The explosion brings life instead of death".

That's what the man says, anyway.

Steady Tide Of Undesign

Christian Science Monitor

Before the centennial convention of the American Institute of Architects three speakers—a United States senator (once a big-city mayor), the president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, and an expert in urban planning—agreed the modern city is being blighted by its skyscrapers and traffic, and is already almost unmanageable.

They agreed also, however, that "megalopolis" is the pattern of the future, and that the solution lies in taking some thought about it, so that cities might best be planned and guided. The present tangle, to borrow a figure from one of them, results from a "relentless tide of undesign."

Any observant traveler must be struck by the zeal with which cities are now building ever bigger facilities to funnel more and more motor traffic through amazingly limited areas which are being decimated of buildings to accommodate them. He must be struck, also, with a countryside of roads reminiscent of a network of "stringtowns" obeying no rules of either beauty or economy.

If these processes continue unchecked, says the senator, "we are created by the very efficiency of concentration, will simply strangle themselves." Even the visible improvements in transport and communication will likely be compensate for the linear congestion caused by an engulfed centrifugal reaction.

One of the AIA speakers, granting that we have got to the road toward disaster, believes "we haven't gone too far to retrace our steps." It is informed discussions such as these, held upon platforms that command attention in respect, that will help chart a better course.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

NATURE OF TRUE RELIGION

Thomas Mann, the distinguished man of letters, has spoken of what he calls "religiousness," and he defines "religiousness" as attentiveness and obedience.

This would appear to be a quite penetrating observation on the part of this great literary man. For whatever else true and sincere religion is, it is certainly respectful attention to divine realities and obedience to divine commands.

Many people believe that they are religious simply because they belong to some church, attend religious services, or pay their dues. All these things are matters of considerable importance in the field of religion, but they are not religion itself. Religion is the attitude of soul which we maintain toward the Great Soul which dominates the whole of creation, and we are truly religious, and therefore pleasing to that Soul, when we pay respectful attention to its requirements and obey its commands without question.

If we only understood the nature of true religion, we would never have any part in persecution of any kind. There is a great deal of difference of opinion, that we will have no time left to judge and criticize others if we pay proper attention to the problems of our own spiritual life.

"Judge not that ye be not judged." "Love one another."

Mr. Frank Price of Sault Ste Marie, Ontario, is visiting his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Davis Price, in this city.

Tenders are being called for the privilege of erecting and conducting a refreshment booth on Victoria Park.

The 13th. Hamilton Band has agreed to accept from the city council the sum of $80.00 for six concerts at the park this summer. The difference between this amount and that which the band asked, will be made up by a public spirited citizen.

Boring Job For Newsmen

Owen Sound Sun-Times

Among the most bored, most harassed and most overworked, most all-around "fed up" group of Canadian citizens today are those unfortunate members of the press who have been assigned the job of following the political figures during their campaigning across the country. Each of the main parties' leaders have their own little following, reporters and photographers, who are "covering" the pre-election field. Their family life is disrupted for the duration. They must grab meals, oven rest, whenever the opportunity presents itself as they labor long after the political meeting is over and the politicians are at rest, to get out their stories, process their pictures and get them to the press.

Added to that is the fact that most speeches are repetitious. For, after all, there is only so much to be said. What appears new to the first time listener is mighty boring to the person who has had to sit and sweat while, through the past few days, Yet the reporter is duty bound to get his pictures, repeated scenes with part of the personnel new and the main figures remaining the same.

Some, at least, develop a certain loyalty to the figures they are following, and try to present his engagements in the best light. Often times they must wonder why they should bother. For the truth of the matter is that political figures often have little regard for the working members of the press. They forget the press, or if a "good press" in getting votes, the fact that the newsmen are just doing their jobs, and not under the best circumstances.

It's one of the toughest of newspaper assignments, one in which newsmen make a career in the service of our democratic manner of government. Those who appreciate the difficulty of the full appreciation of the general public and those actively engaged in the making of political life. It is doubtful if they will get it, however.

Free Chateau Goes Begging

Manchester Guardian

Another of France's once-proud edifices, the 450-year-old Chateau de Gallion, 60 miles northwest of Paris, has been humiliated by the brave new world. It is offered as a gift if its land is bought at the current local rate.

Inquiries have been made by all sorts of people, but who display no more interest in learning that the chateau needed to be made its place habitable.

The Chateau, built by a cardinal who was a Minister of Louis XII, has a magnificent interior, a Renaissance turret and portal, dungeons, and a chapel founded over two centuries. Parts of the fabric are in the Louvre Museum. The Primates of Normandy lived at Gillon. Kings stayed there.

Napoleon used the chateau as a hostel for the poor. It has been a convalescents home, a prison, and a workshop. Its only inhabitant is a caretaker and it is one of the few old French chateaux that has not a ghost.

Children Generally Have Large Tonsils in The Spring

In England, too, it appears, children of the "upper classes" are more likely to become victims of the most dreaded scourge than children of the "lower classes." I do not mean to imply that this fact is due only to inherited eagerness to get it done and bank the money. I believe there is another factor, but never mind now — I don't want to get everybody mad at me.

When we add things up, we find little if any justification for a lot to be said for a long waiting list; in that way, parents and surgeon can have second thoughts.

Haven't I been begging you about misguided parents to take plenty of time to think it over when a doctor looks in the child's throat and exclaims: "Oh, my, those bad tonsils must come out." Take at least one summer. By the time school opens in the autumn, the "bad" tonsils will probably have become "normal."

Only forty children died from tonsillectomy in the year 1935 in England.

Commenting on the frequency of this atrocity, the British Medical Journal, Dr. J. Fry says this atrocity (my word for it) is "prophylactic ritual carried out for no particular reason with no particular result."

In ten years of practice in London, Dr. Fry has found that there is a tendency among children 7 to 8 years of age toward a natural and spontaneous cure of the C R I (common respiratory infections), including tonsillitis, otitis media (middle ear infection) and bronchitis — the ailments which the hammer-and-tongs men use with success in persuading parents to consent to the brutal attack.

Tonsillectomy means removal of the entire tonsil. It requires considerable dissection of the throat; and in the necessarily blind cutting, the operator is likely to remove, along with the tonsil, portions of throat muscle.

But what operator is going to accept perhaps a victim who might have had a voice?

Dr. Fry says that the size and appearance of the tonsils and enlargement of cervical glands (nodes ("glands" in the neck) do not in themselves warrant tonsillectomy.

REVENGE

I have never been able to understand people who think they can "get even" with those who injure them or personal hatred or to revenge a fancied grievance. Nothing ever resulted from such a procedure. You can't get rid of hatred by exercising it. You only increase it. And as to "getting even" with a person because of a dispute, you can never get even! You will always have a loss to consider! No good ever comes out of revenge. Scars are left behind for all concerned. Returning evil for evil isn't constructive. All parties lose. The moment you dismiss all thoughts of revenge—no matter what the cause—you get back to a normal, healthy way of life. It isn't normal to hate people, or to want to make them unhappy, not even when they have injured you.

To live a constructive life, there is no room for vengeance toward anyone. There is enough unhappiness in the world already without adding to it. When we seek to revenge an act, we pay with our best self. We lose. The best that would be offer good for evil, and always pays. It's the Christian way.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Up at my summer community are a number of doctors, with a fairly heavy saturation of orthopedic surgeons. One of these is a Welmaraner dog, about the size of a slim greyhound, very well treated, with pale, distant eyes. Last weekend, the doctor was on a prolonged visit to his patient when the dog got into a porcupine. His long, competent nose had a few words with the dog and managed to jam a block of wood between his jaws. In his attempt to extract the quills by hand was hopeless. The dog had been active and in the middle of a political life. It is doubtful if they will get it, however.

But the can was empty. The ether had evaporated, probably around 1934.

However, he did scrounge up some old retired forceps and tweezers he had stowed away in the cottage for fish skinning and such like. And the four orthopedic surgeons set to his patient. They had collected $500 from any tycoon for every quill they had to pull through, and took turns, as opportunity permitted, in deciding on which way they were facing at the moment, at prying the block of wood in and out of the dog's jaws, and stopping out the quills. They started near the back end of the boathouse, half way under a hotsted launch, by the time the last quill was drawn, and the grazed Welmaraner was let up to his like mad for a drink in the lake.

By the time I heard of the operation, the dog was practically over recovering.

"In case you wish to report this incident," said the senior of the orthopods, "you might let it be known that from now on, I am conjust such an emergency as this.

The Face on the Stamp

Chief Scout of the World

By Nicholas Mika

One of the most successful and inspiring movements the world has seen is that of the Boy Scouts in their familiar outfit of Khaki Shirt, wide-brimmed hat, and shorts.

It was founded only fifty years ago, but it has since spread so rapidly that its membership now goes into seven millions. Its clear and unmistakable motto of brotherhood and friendship regardless of race or country found its echo in the farthest corner of the earth.

To be a Scout means to be unselfish, friendly to man and beast, cheerful, skillful, self-reliant, God-fearing, strong in body and mind.

The father of this world-wide organization was not only a hero as a soldier but the best Scout that ever was. He was a rugged man who loved the outdoors from early childhood and much preferred the simple way of life to comfort. Whatever he taught his first Boy Scouts, he practised himself, be it in the service to his fellow men or in his own personal life. And as for his skill as a Scout, people claimed that he had eyes in the back of his head. They called him the wolf that never sleeps.

He believed that God put us in the world to enjoy life. In his last message to his Boy Scouts shortly before his death, he told them that happiness does not come from being rich or successful. One step towards happiness, he said, was to keep yourself healthy and strong in youth in order to enjoy a useful life. He kept himself physically fit until his old age and nature failed to do his daily exercises.

SPLENDID QUALITIES

He possessed a never tiring energy, the qualities of a real leader and the fun-loving understanding of comradeship at the same time. No matter where he was, in the jungles of India or in Africa, on a war mission or at a Jamboree of the Scouts, he never failed to make friends. One of his last wishes was that there should never be a difference between countries or classes.

He was an expert rider and sportsman. To his favorite pastimes belonged shooting or hunting or just observing the wild life from a quiet spot in the jungle. Aside from that he displayed such a talent as an actor, entertainer and stage-designer that many soldiers, that he received the most tempting offers from various theatres to change his career. But next to being a soldier, his career was being the first and greatest Scout.

He was born in England a hundred years ago. He loved his homeland, but his second choice was Africa — the dark country that offered a thousand different challenges. It was true, his spirit and work belonged to the entire world.

FOUNDED IN 1907

His Scout movement he began with a group of twenty youngsters on Brownsea-Island in the English Channel, in the year 1907. Now a Jamboree is held every four years in some country of the world and at that time thousands of Scouts from all the continents with white, black and brown skin meet get together to enjoy camping and competitions, make friends and worship together.

The man who taught the youngsters of the world his wo live happy and in harmony was honored by many countries. He was knighted by the King of England and when he died, soldiers and scouts put him to rest near Mount Kenya. On his grave stone the badges of a soldier and a scout are carved and the inscription simply reads:

"Robert Baden-Powell

Assist Engine To Fight Wear

By EUGENE MILMOE

In your engine's fight for long life, you can help it stand off the hazards of rapid wear with good driving care as well as good maintenance. Some of the precautions which apply to driving rules are really basic, yet they are often completely ignored.

The driver who continually races a cold engine to hasten warm-up wears many miles off vital parts. So, quicker, safer warm-up, idle the engine for about a minute after starting so that lubricating oil is flowing properly. Then, get under way at a moderate, even speed.

Lengthy idling is harmful, too. Unfortunately, however, today's heavy traffic and parking problems usually make it difficult for drivers to fully avoid this practice.

But, rarely is it pardonable to zoom away for a race track start. This is a fault which is responsible for much scuffing and scoring of engine details.

V.T. asks: "On my car, which is a 1937 model, the air cleaner element is a different type than I have seen on others. Around the outside is wire mesh enclosing what looks like folded paper or plastic. How is this supposed to be cleaned when it needs it?"

A: This is the type — a disposable air cleaner element which is said to be quite efficient. It's not cleaned, but thrown away when it becomes too dirty and replaced with a new element.

W.A. writes: "You have said that clogged mufflers or exhaust pipes cause back pressure and that back pressure is harmful. Why is it?"

(A) Back pressure wastes power by restricting full escape of exhaust gases from the cylinders These gases increase pressure on piston heads, dilute the incoming fuel charge and reduce the amount of fuel drawn into the cylinders during the intake stroke.

From A.Q.: "The fuel gauge on my 1953 sedan isn't working right. The indicating hand stays far over at the full mark regardless of how much gas I have in the fuel tank. Would the trouble be at the tank or the dash end?"

(A) A short is to blame and it could be in either the dash unit, the tank unit or the wiring.

R.I. writes: "My car's carburetor has been overhauled, the automatic choke adjustment was checked, the fuel pump is new and its pressure meets correct specifications, the air cleaner is clean and tight. No air leakage can be detected around the carburetor or manifold. There is no sign of gas leakage anywhere and the gas tank and lines have been cleaned and flushed clear. Despite all this work, three mechanics have told me something is wrong with the fuel feed. The car acts as if it is half-starved for gas most of the time. Can you solve this?"

(A) Sharp bends or kinks in the fuel lines can restrict proper fuel flow. Another check point is the tank filler cap vent which affects fuel delivery when clogged.

SAFETY IS NO ACCIDENT

Be careful about your driving—Be sure about your car.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED E. WILSON

NECKS 'N OR OUT

Quite a few big birds, either entirely or mostly white, at one time or another may be seen flying over us. But it is very difficult to judge size accurately without knowing the exact distance of an object, before these birds can be named we need some evident truths to go upon Obviously the first two classes: those that extend their necks when in flight, and those that do not.

"CRANING HIS NECK"

A good way to remember which is which is to think of the phrase so often used to describe a person trying to see past some obstruction. We say he is "craning his neck". Members of the crane family stretch out their necks to the farthest possible extent; those of the heron family draw in their necks.

The recently much publicized whooping crane, white with black wing tips, therefore flies with neck extended. But here, then, shall we recognize our big white swans, the whistling and the trumpeter, that also fly with stretch their necks? We must find another feature that will differentiate them. Cranes are long legged as well as long necked, and their legs reach far behind their tails, the feet of swans lie under their tails.

As we have noted, the swans' cousin, the Canada Goose, holds both neck and feet in that same position. But this goose has dark wings, and is easily recognized by its black neck, popularly called "the black stocking". The snow goose has a black pattern very similar to the whooping crane's, but besides a different feet position when in flight can be distinguished by its small size.

HERON CLAN

All birds belonging to the heron clan, including herons proper, egrets, and bitterns, fly with necks drawn in. With few exceptions, our herons are large birds, have very long legs. Consequently, the rear end of a great white heron, an American egret, and a snowy egret looks like the back portion of a whooping crane.

Black-crowned night herons are apt to be mistaken for American Bitterns. They are a similar size, fly with necks pulled in, and have comparatively short legs; and although adults are grey and white, the immatures are, like bitterns, brown.

With feet tucked under tail, the year end of a white pelican, another large bird, resembles a swan's. But the pelican flies with the neck folded up. Remember then, that whereas the crane flies with both ends extended, the pelican looks as though it had been squashed up at both ends.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Numerous Friends Very Necessary For Contentment in Later Years

By THOMAS COLLINS

"I think I have discovered a couple of hard facts about retirement," says David R. Graham, "and if anybody cares to listen I can tell them how they can get a least part of the good life that is supposed to wait for us after 65."

Mr. Graham is the retired executive secretary of a trade association. He is 67. He and his wife together have a retirement income of $268 a month.

"Compulsory retirement probably the most inhumane act man is committing against man in our times," he continues. "Let us understand each other on that point. It is thoroughly brutal to throw a man or woman out of a life's work, take away their identification and everything but home and family, give them a subsistence, and say goodby.

"But most of us are stuck with that injustice. The issue is what to do about it.

"My wife and I didn't particularly want city life. Surely there was something better somewhere. Surely there was a place where $268 a month would buy more.

They rented their house, furnished, for one year for $175 a month. They went to California and rented an apartment between Los Angeles and Long Beach.

"We were lonely, bored, and miserable.

After three months they moved north to Santa Barbara and a better neighborhood. The same rent.

HEADED FOR FLORIDA

Maybe the trouble was California. They got out of their lease again and headed for Florida. "We tried St. Petersburg, then moved on down to Coral Gables. After that we lived for the day when the lease expired on our house back in Ohio so we could go back home.

They went back home. One neighbor had died in the year. Others had moved. And after a year of seeing California and Florida, the old neighborhood no longer appealed.

"We weren't a part of things any more," Mr. Graham says. People had moved on. So had the slow deterioration of our street, and it had taken us a year's absence to see it was not what it was 25 years ago when we moved in.

So the Grahams took stock of themselves.

"For a year we had been unhappy, and we were now. For a year, and now, we had no people close to us. In Santa Barbara we had wanted somebody to call on us. Nobody did. We withdrew into ourselves. Here in the mist of St. Petersburg it was about the same.

"Now we are in the first hard fact of retirement. If you pick up and move, don't expect anybody to move you or pay any attention to you. Don't wait for a welcome to any community. That fine old neighborhood custom is dead. Go out the first day and start digging for sugar. Inject yourself into anything you see people doing. Buy some suckers for neighborhood kids. Help the fellow up the street wash his car. Be aggressive in your endeavors to them, we would never have retreated back to Ohio."

The Grahams are now living just outside Columbia, Mo. They went there convinced that retirement had to be good. They were determined to collect a few. They joined everything in the community from the church to a Camp Fire canteen. And they are happier than they've been since retirement reared its head six years ago.

"I think, despite this lesson we have learned, that an able person must still have work," Mr. Graham says. "A job is identification and a label. It's importance. It's pride. These are needed whether you need the money or not. . . ."

So Mr. Graham is angling now for a job with the State of Missouri. He's looking for some sort of consulting job. He also has with a trade association fits him for that.

FRONT ROAD UNITED L.A.

Members and friends of the Front Road United Church Ladies' Auxiliary were cordially welcomed by Mrs. W. Cleary to her home for their June meeting on Wednesday afternoon.

The president, Mrs. H. McMullen, opened the meeting with prayer, and greeted all and expressed her pleasure that so many were present.

Mrs. Geddes Bradshaw presented the devotional, using "Integrity," as her theme. The Scripture lesson from Job 2: 1-10 was read by Mrs. Cleary. Mrs. Bradshaw defined "Integrity," as a state or quality of being complete, undivided, unbroken, sound, moral soundness, honesty and uprightness.

A short article on "Integrity" was also read by Mrs. Bradshaw in which she showed how well the need of "Integrity" is illustrated in Jack Spratt and God can we find "Integrity."

Other articles relating to "Integrity" were read as follows: "The Best years of Our Lives," by Mrs. C. Reid; "I Will, I Can, I Did," by Mrs. G. Ray; "The Optimistic Way," by Mrs. R. Clarke, and "The Romance of a Winter Coat," by Mrs. Bradshaw.

The devotional period was closed with the hymn, "Savior, Like a Shepherd Lead Us", and prayer.
